Daily Lenten Mass

ATTENDANCE at the 8:15 Mass, celebrated every morning during the Holy season of Lent in the college chapel for the spiritual benefit of the day students, has recently fallen below the mark established at the commencement of this sacrifice. Obviously the students who petitioned that this exercise be celebrated at this time have forgotten the provisions embodied in the granting of this request.

The chaplain of the college answered their plea on the condition that the students express their intentions by assisting at this Holy Sacrifice. That was the only requirement demanded by the authorities, and it is evident that the day students are not fulfilling their part of the contract.

If the attendance does not in the future retain the standard that it set in the beginning of the season, the practice may be discontinued. The students have been granted their request, but they are certainly not living up to the conditions implied, and in the past few weeks they have done nothing to warrant the maintenance of a daily celebration of Mass.

It is your power to prevent the occurence of such a drastic move. If you are really in earnest about the whole thing, come to the Mass and come on time. This practice should not be terminated at the end of the lenten season, but continued for the remainder of the year. Show your willingness to cooperate by attending Mass, and insure the preservation of this custom throughout the scholastic year.

"Not Cricket"

LAST week the British Government made a statement to the effect that in the future no more lands in Palestine could be purchased from Arabs by Jews or anybody else. On the surface this might not show signs of racial discrimination, but in a practical sense this prohibition will affect, for the greater part, the Jewish element in Palestine. Definitely it will put a stop to the further colonization of refugee Hebrews who might foster a desire to settle in that area.

The fact that the move was motivated by international political strategy on the part of England in an effort to placate the troublesome Arabs cannot be questioned. This in itself might be considered commendable, but in trying to do right the English have committed a wrong against a minority group, after the fashion of the totalitarian policies.

This again brings to mind the confusing inconsistency of England's views and sympathies, especially during the last few years. Indeed, it makes us doubt her sincerity in world affairs, and should dampen somewhat the effects of her cleverly conceived and widely publicized propaganda.

England was one of the strongest and loudest condemnors of the racial persecutions perpetrated by the Nazis and the Fascists, yet here is an example showing almost conclusively that Great Britain dos not practice what it advocates in the way of democratic toleration where the rights of minorities are concerned. This isn't an isolated example . . . The Irish and the Indian questions also might be cited to bolster this opinion.

All this should go to show that in the present European conflict, the Allies aren't fighting with clean hands and clear consciences. This should be a further warning to American citizens that to take sides, even morally, would be unwise, because those concerned are evidently waging a war for selfish rather than humanitarian causes.

—A. J. D'A.

Farsightedness

EX-PRESIDENT HOOVER has been been associated with many humanitarian movements especially those directed towards alleviating the sufferings of war-plagued peoples. At present he is soliciting aid for the Finns.

Undoubtedly the purpose of these organizations is grand and above reproach, conceived and fostered as they are by an unadulterated charity for the downtrodden. But aren't they conceived, too, by those with far-sighted eyes which fail to see distress right under their very noses?

The theory that guides these movements is that we, the United States, the 'land of plenty' can well afford, if we are not downright obligated, to give to afflicted peoples. This would be true if it were not for some inescapable effects concerning this 'land of plenty.'

For instance, there is the perennial share-cropper in the South, perennial because his lot has never been alleviated. Then there is the migratory worker, so recently popularized in a best seller, and whose standard of living is uncommonly low. Also, there is the dreadful inadequacy of the living wage the Government tries to give to our army of unemployed by relief, W. P. A., and similar agencies.

In these acute conditions just cited there is just as much inspiration for charity as there is in the plight of afflicted foreigners.

Give to the poor suffering Finns? Unqualifiedly yes. But only after we have given to poor suffering AMERICANS.

What Is Literary Criticism? What Is A Good Critic?

Negative Pitfalls, Positive Aids Presented For Him Who Would Be a Critic

By REV. JOHN J. McSHEA, O. S. A., M. A.
Assistant Professor, English

THE publication of an unusual book is normally a matter of interest and amusement not related in any way to the book's intrinsic merit. Booksellers, reviewers, and merely disinterested enthusiasts remind us of a solemn obligation to buy and read. The critic supplements this real or synthetic hysteria by urging reasons for the book's singular qualities. Now, this activity on the part of critics can be even more interesting than the book itself; and frequently it is.

Literary Criticism

Should a new book differ radically from most of the author's earlier works, there will be a very profound tendency to avoid passing judgment with a finality which cannot later be modified. "Prodigal Parents," by Sinclair Lewis, offered the most recent and most pointed instance of this sorry kind of confusion. Critics were, of course, familiar with the mannerisms and attitudes of the man from Minnesota, but they were quite unprepared for the change in his thesis. Most critics were merely surprised. Some approved of the unexpecetd sanity in the novelist's viewpoint; others, recognizing the anti-Marxist tone of the book, damned it robustly. Only a few, and these the genuine critics, retained a sense of objectivity; they found inferior workmanship and unconvincing characterization. They were not distracted either to a doubtful optimism or to a professional anger about unimportant side-isues. Analyzing the book impartially, they judged it as a literary item.

Father McShea

Received Bachelor of Arts degree at Villanova in 1930; M. A. in 1933 from the Catholic University of America. Studied at Oxford from 1935 to 1937; B. A. (ibid) in 1937. Expects M. A. from Oxford in 1942 In accordance with the Oxford system of automatic bestowal of the Master degree.

Warmth of Viewpoint

It is not our contention that intellectual aloofness alone constitutes the critic, yet, if tempered, it can be an asset. We rather like a warmth of viewpoint which is honorable and wholesome. We feel, however, that the critical function has frequently been cheapened by propagandists and noisy, second-rate writers whose omniscience is just a trifle trying. Isn't it insolence rather than criticism to offer successively contradictory judgment on a novelist such as John Dos Passos simply because his admiration for the Kremlin has disappeared in Adventures of a Young Man"? Is a book to be regarded for its methods and ingenuity, or for that vague thing called liberalism?

While these examples illustrate aspects of criticism, our primary concern here lies with something deeper. This purpose may be summarized in two queries: What is criticism? What is a good critic?

Not Bald Disapproval

As we are not attempting a detailed study of criticism, there is some advantage in examining the negative factors first. Thus, criticism is not bald disapproval of principles held by other people. This seemingly trivial factor is not the absurdity it might appear. Eugene Lyons has just explained how thoroughly a pink bias long dominated the usual media of critical expression.

Secondly, criticism is not a superficial search for comparison with recognized classics. This kind of thing might be promptly dismissed as beneath serious attention were it not for the uniform paragraph which suggests comparison with Tolstoy, Thackeray, and Hardy. In such a crescendo-like burst of enthusiasm, the writer reaches what he intends to be his critical climax.

Faded Fadiman.

Equally objectionable are those glib and complacently delivered comments like the following by Clifton Fedamin. Writing of "Grapes of Wrath," he notes: "I feel this book may possibly do for our time what 'Les Miserables' did for it. . . 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' for its. . . ." That, we think, is solemn pedantry, but scarcely criticism. (A friend of ours, a Kipling specialist, calls Fadiman "the man who would be like Mencken.")

Thirdly, criticism is not an opportunity to unloose adjectives in the superlative degree. Is there anything more pointless and wearying than the indiscriminate use of "greatest," "epoch-making," "epical," and, recently, "unforgettable"? Writers in this class make honest words cheap and suspect. One thinks inevitably of Disraeli's remark: "You know who critics are?

College Chatter

By Joe McCabe

ANOTHER week another column and more news about doings here, there and everywhere. This week, however, there appears to be a lack of that old life which is found at other times, but then it could be the snow. However. . .

Jim Walsh, the Freshman "man about town" should be more particular where he choses to impart sweet nothings to the fairer sex. After all there's a time and place for everything and surely a better time could be found than broad daylight and a more quieter spot than right in front of the dorms.

It appears that Jimmy Donovan has seen "A Yank at Oxford" more than once, for he's being tagged with a new monicker—"old man." It seems that every time he approaches someone his first greeting is "Old man, how are you?" or something to that effect. The habit has become so pronounced that many of the boys are running to the mirror to see if what he says is true. However, we think the "brain" is anticipating old age even before his hair-line recedes any further.

Verse of the week:

The gum chewing girl and the cud chewing cow
Are somewhat alike, yet different somehow
What is the difference? Oh yes, I see now
'Tis the thoughtful expression on the face of the cow.

It is interesting to note that among the members of the Senior Class there are many who are leaders in the various campus organizations. A few of the more popular deserve mention—

Brad McManus, who as president of the Student Council holds down the number one position in student achievements.

Ed Jonik, the present editor-in-chief of the Belle Air, is continually on the move looking for ways and means of improving the college annual.

From The Mail Bag

February 29, 1940.

Dear Mr. Editor,

We have been members of your reading public over a period of time, and feel that we have benefited thereby. We point with pride to the honors that have crowned your journalistic efforts, but we also view with alarm a certain biased tendency that has crept in of late. To this prejudiced tendency, which is becoming more painfully apparent, we respectfully draw your attention.

We relish occasional tidbits from the school across the tracks, but is it necessary to give us indigestion with the platter of social hash, week in and week out?

Thus it becomes our duty to remind your otherwise splendid sheet that there are other nearby girls' schools worthy of his journalistic endeavors. One of these schools, for example, is Immaculata. This verdant field for material would provide sources of news more compatible with the activities of the students. Besides, this would be a token of our appreciation for the reams of copy concerning Villanovans in the "Immaculatan."

Respectfully yours,
Three Hopefuls.

(Ed. Note: Three Hopefuls, you will have to adopt a new second name, for your cause of grief, mentioned above, will be taken care of in the future. We certainly did not intentionally slight any of the neighboring girls' colleges. While we certainly do not intend to exclude "the college across the tracks" from our comment, we shall endeavor to maintain an equilibrium in the space allotted to each.

(Thank you very much for your letter of constructive criticism. We have always a column open for the solution of any such problems should they really exist.)

A.I.E.E. Chairman, P.K.P. Representative Enjoys Frat Athletics And Vocalizing

By DAVID N. REARDON

A few decades ago in an old-fashioned homestead at 313 E. Penn Street in Norristown, a proud bundle of wailing joy in the person of Walter E. Kelly was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Kelly by a wise old physician who predicted great things for the squirming little lad.

After collaring Walt, he declined all this publicity but after a lengthy interrogation, we did manage to combine his admissions into a brief life story.

His grandfather was known as Capt. Kelly, a pleasant old Civil War veteran who fought for the Unuion Forces. Back in 1867, shortly after the war, Cap, as he was known, established Kelley's Old Fashioned Tavern and to this day it is operated by the Kelley family. Incidentally Walt insisted that he detested beer despite the fact that he used to drain the empty beer glasses as a little tyke.

Well to return to our man of the hour. Walt waxed strong in wisdom and strength and before long entered St. Patrick's Parochial School in Norristown, that busy little principality nestled in a valley on the Schuylkill river. Graduating from here, he decided to matricuate at La Salle High School in Olney, Philadelphia. His Junior year found him in Norristown High, the commuting distance to Philadelphia being too long. Here Walt actively participated in the Glee Club and was a member of a quartet within the club. The Student Council also claimed him as a member.

The Second Kelly

His selection of Villanova as his Alma Mater for the next four years was prompted by a brother who attended here previously and recommended it for its high scholastic standing. Its proximity also influenced his seelction. Upon matriculating, he enrolled in the school of Electrical Engineering where he had consistently maintained a good scholastic record.

To enumerate his many extra-curricular activities: His freshman year found him splitting the cords for the Phi Kappa Pi basketball team and pelting the pellet for his frat's softball aggregation. Physical prowess was not to be his sole activity. In his Junior year he was named to the Open House Committee and also joined the A. I. E. E., an engineer's society.

His Senior year has found Walt more active than ever. He has been elected Chairman of the A. I. E. E. and is the P. K. P. representative in the Student Council. Last October 29 found him representing Villanova at the Eastern Regional District Convention of the engineering society held in Scranton. The many successful undertakings of his society are indicative of his capabilities. Numerous trips to industrial plants have been arranged under his guidance.

High Scorer

At present, he is manager of the Shamrocks, a senior engineer's bowling team which is leading the newly formed tenpin league. His average of 150 points per game has greatly aided his team and is the high score in the league.

Each summer finds Walt laboriously engaged in some occupation at the family seashore resort, Ocean City, New Jersey. Turning from this wet business, he labored with an ice company by day and as a soda dispenser by night. Quite an ambitious lad; not to mention his postoffice job at Norristown during the Christmas Holidays.

Bath Room Baritone

Hobbies? Well, Walt enjoys singing and operatice performances tremendously. Had he not been stricken with acute laryngitis, he would have been a member of our Glee Club. This has not dimmed his liking for singing, and he never misses a concert or recital if he can help it.

On the lighter side he likes to dance to sweet swing. As for girls, he gives them all a break but can't understand why they will not go out with him more than twice. However, he insists that he has never been serious with any of them and perhaps that explains it.

After a few words with this sandy-haired Senior, it is evident that his sincerity, combined with his understanding and sense of humor, will enable him to proceed far in his future undertakings.

Interested In The Air Corps? Meet Cadet Tom Carbine, '39

By MURRAY P. ZEALOR

VILLANOVA graduates, as are graduates from every major college and university, are receiving communications from the war department concerning our government's development of its air corps.

To give Villanova students a clearer view of this new field that has been opened for them by the war department, I have gone through the correspondence of one of our former students, Tom Carbine, a member of last year's class who entered the air corps last August and will graduate this May.

The beginning of his nine months' course was his trip to Tulsa, Oklahoma, where he spent three months in preliminary training, gaining a total of sixty-five hours of flying. Just how and where they lived is as important a question as what they did. He states: "We are living in barracks which are divided into seven sections, the center one being used as a wash room. The buildings are new, one-story, frame affairs; the floor is light, natural wood and the walls are of knotty pine. The quarters are clean and comfortable and everyone seems satisfied."

Is Work Play?

Classes for the man who goes in for aviation do not end with the final exams prior to graduation here at Villanova. One of the hardest parts of the course, and Tom calls it the only bad part of the whole set-up, is the school work. They have four hours of classes a day, and the subjects include Navigation, Theory of Flight, Theory of Engines, Engine Lab. Work, Airplane Structure and Maintenance, and Meterology.

The exams at Tulsa are not limited to the class rooms. Every so often the school or the army gives the student a progress ride, to see how he is getting along. If the student is good enough he will go back to his instructor and proceed as he has been.

After several weeks of careful instruction in the rudiments of flying during which time half of your flying has been dual and the other half solo, you are on your solo stage. This means that your work is graded on the basis of take-off, climb, turn, 90 degree side approach with the "gun cut" and landing with accuracy.

It is necessary to pass this work three days in succession. If you can do this you are eligible to take out a solo ship on your own responsibility so that you can practice such maneuvers as stalls, with both power on and power off, and tail spins under the same conditions.

The Second Stage

Randolph Field is the next stop after Tulsa and the Spartan Field. Here is yhere the student is "ruffled up a bit." He forgets that he may have been a cadet corporal at Tulsa. Here the army life steps in. You hear officers commanding attention. "You, Mister, attention! Such in that gut! Get some wrinkles in your chin! Move! Push your neck back! Move your head down! Roll your shoulders back! Roll your butts under you. Is that a parachute you're packing around, Mister?"

Once at Randolph you commence

—the men who have failed in literature and art."

Criticism Independent

Applied to authentic critics, however, this definition is a libel. Why? Because criticism is an independent branch of literature; it requires creative ability; and the first-class critic is as rare as the exceptional poet or novelist.

There are many definitions of criticism formulated from the time of Aristotle to the present of T. S. Eliot. Yet, basically, criticism is the art of segregating the essential quality of merit of a literary work, of a movement, even of a fad. Poe wrote criticisms when he stated that the amorphous, aimless sketch was deficient for want of conscious direction. Wordsworth was critical in the highest sense when he indicated that artificial diction was the neo-classical weakness. Monsignor Sheen uttered a real criticism when, some ten years ago, he pointed out the incompleteness and the semi-Christian tone of American Humanism.

In a more modest way, William McFee spoke genuine criticism when he described Joyce's "Finnegan's Wake" as unintelligible and, therefore, hardly a masterpiece. Courage and sincerity should be observed here, for a less honest critic would have undertaken a frantic search to "discover" merit. After all, James Joyce is a "name" and already something of a legend. On the other hand, George Jean Nathan was only partly critical when he insisted that the plays of Noel Coward lack substance. Perhaps they do, but Nathan overlooked the dramatic asset of Coward's witty dialogue. Coward is in the Restoration tradition, not the Shakespearian.

Real Criticism

Criticism, then, is a form of analysis which concentrates upon the fundamental quality of a piece of writing. It seeks out the central element, the core of a work; it transcends "smart" and casual commentary.

Finally, a few general observations may be made with profit. Sound criticism is always constructive. It is gentlemanly and civilized. It perceives that the attacks on human dignity by Dreiser and Faulkner are inherently false. Seconly, good criticism fosters a thoughtful attitude. Like the careful study of Burke's orations, it is an exercise on logic, for consistent thinking is the foundation of valid criticism. (If the critic be P. E. More or W. C. Brownell, we have excellent specimens of pure, careful English.) Thirdly, able criticism sharpens our appreciation of literature. This is no remote afterthought. If a work is valuable, criticism will tell us why. Is some novel, for example, only an average narrative, or is it a fairly comprehensive investigation of life? Standards learned from criticism will answer that and kindred questions satisfactorily.

He continued, "A god healthy kiss generates so much heat it destroys germs; if anything, the University ought to advocate more kissing."

In reply to him Temple University's Dr. Spaulding said, "I never realized kisses were that warm." (All we have to say is that there are kisses and kisses).

Pennsylvania's Dr. Boerner said, "It's a matter of taking a chance. Some kisses may be worth it, others are not." (He must get around).

DR. ED. L. HAENISCH WILL GIVE LECTURE ON FAUST, CARMEN

Music Seminar to Hear Piano Lecture-Recital on Famous Operas

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Ph. D., associate professor of chemistry and chemical engineering, will present a lecture-recital on "Highlights from Faust and Carmen" in the meeting of the music seminar to be held on tomorrow evening, March 6, at 7:30 P. M. in Simpson Hall.

Dr. Haenisch, who presented a piano-lecture recital before the members of the seminar on December 6, 1939, and Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the seminar, hopes that the doctor will repeat his triumph with his explanation and illustrations of Charles Gounod's "Faust" and George Bizet's "Carmen."

The program for tomorrow evening's meeting calls for Dr. Haenisch to tell the story of both operatic works, giving sidelights of the composers and the conditions under which they composed the operas. Following this oral explanation, the doctor will illustrate the scores by playing selections from the arias on the piano and playing phonographic records of the scores.

This lecture-recital, which is the third in the new series of music seminar programs, follows the lecture on "Poetry and Poets" delivered by the Rev. Paul Healy, O. S. A., at the meeting on Wednesday, February 28.

Fr. Healy, opening his lecture with the words "Poetry is at best an elusive thing which defies definition," proceeded to show that poetry is the imaginative expression of experience in the language which adds beauty to truth.

Explaining to the members of the seminar the distinguishing notes of poetry, Fr. Healy demonstrated the three R's of poetry, Rhyme, Rhythm and Reason by the use of eight lines from Edgar Allan Poe's "Winchester Forest," and by the reading of numerous selections from English and American poets.

LKD Initiation Date Moved to March 8

Postponed Ceremonies To Be Held in Alumni Gymnasium This Friday

Due to unavoidable circumstances, the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity's annual initiation of new applicants has been postponed until Friday, March 8. The initiation will be held, as usual in the Alumni hall gymnasium promptly at 7:30.

The accepted applicants are asked to report on time. Pledgees are to have with them the standard equipment, consisting of pajamas, handkerchiefs, and sneakers for the "pajama party."

Also included in the standard equipment for the initiation are the paddles, which are supposed to be made according to the specified measurements posted on the science school bulletin board.

The necessary arrangements were made by those fraternity members appointed by Charles G. Martin, L. K. D. president, and other fraternity officers. Those men who were appointed are: Alfred M. Bongiovanni, Richard J. Martin, and Joseph P. Rossi, all seniors in the organization.

The applicants who have been accepted were notified at the time when the initiation was supposed to take place.

Current Book Club Prospers, Includes Literary Additions

Group's Circulation Hits 40 Mark; Membership May Still Be Obtained

The Book Club, recent innovation on the campus to arouse interest in current popular literature, has been enriched by many loans and donations presented by priests and friends. To date the circulation of this organization includes some 40 books.

The club, comprised of 20 members, receives donations and makes purchases from the selections of the Catholic Book Club of the Month, The Literary Guild, The Book Club, the Scientific Book Club, and the Book of the Month Club.

The intiation fee for admission to the club is 50 cents, and this sum entitles the members of the society the use of its books for the remainder of the year. The books may be kept out for one week without charge, but after this time has expired the members are subject to a fee of five cents per day. In this way the club protects the interests of all the members and keeps the circulation flowing regularly.

At the end of the year the books which the club has accumulated will go to the library and be placed in the recently established rental collection. The organization still has room for more members, and those who wish to join are requested to consult Arthur S. Somers, Room 235, Austin Hall.

SENIOR SECTION OF ANNUAL RECEIVES FINAL APPROVAL

The senior section of the Belle Air, Villanova's yearbook, has now been completed, according to a statement issued by Edward L. Jonik, editor-in-chief. The printer's galleys have been received and checked, and the pictures that will appear in this section have been given final approval.

The history of the class of '40, which is included in this portion of the book, presents the entire story of the class from the day on which its members registered as freshmen.

to fly speedier ships, newer by ten years, and the instrument board meters have increased from three to thirteen. They now use the BT-9, a very modern ship. Here is learned more rudiments of flying; in fact, you forget all you learned at Tulsa, and commence all over again.

Future Futures

When the training is completed "what then?" To Tom is open at present the prospect of staying in the service from one to seven years, receiving a commission of first lieutenant in the Air Corps after three years, and a substantial increase in pay.

There is also open to him the prospects of commercial aviation, a position of co-pilot with the trans-continental airplanes, with a salary of from $200 to $750 a month. Foremost is the opportunity of army life and its need for trained men with alert minds.

RESEARCH SEMINAR VIEWS CONCLUSION OF PICTURE SERIES

Nelson, Nieman End Program; Present Pictures on Beetles, Plant Roots

The meeting of the Research Seminar, to be held tomorrow at 4:00 P. M. in Simpson Hall will feature a continuance of the program of motion pictures being presented by Eugene Nelson and John Neiman, Jr., both sophomore science men. This will be the third and last of this series of moving pictures and will include the life cycle of the beetle and the development of the root of plants.

At the last meeting pictures of Fungi and the plant parasite the Dodder were shown.

The reel on Fungi dealt for the greater part on the mushrooms. With the aid of the pictures Nelson explained that the toadstools was the fruit-bearing body of the fungus, and that beneath its surface are encased millions of tiny sores, which correspond in the higher plants to the seeds. Each fungus begins its life as a spore, which are scattered about by the parent plant with the aid of wind and insects. The spores are so tiny that hundreds can be put on the tip of a needle with ease. In order to begin growing the fungus requires a dark moist place. They either may be saprophytic or parasitic. The original spore develops into a great mass of tubules which constitutes the main body of the fungus. Within these tubes flows the protoplasm, liquid of life. "At times the growth of the fungi is so uncanny as to seem to be directed by a brain," stated Nelson.

Continuing with the Dodder, a common plant parasite, pictures of the "angel hair," were flashed on the screen. Nelson followed the Dodder from when it first emerged from its seed case until it found its host and gradually caused its degeneration.

RELATIONS CLUB TO HEAR FULLAM AND McCALL

Relationship of the United States with Europ during and since the World War will be discussed at the meeting of the International Relations Club tomorrow, Wednesday, March 6, at 3:15 P. M. in room 111, Mendel Hall.

The discussion will be led by John P. Fullam, sophomore Education student, and Howard A. McCall, a sophomore in the Arts Schol. The topic will be divided into five principal parts, namely: New Position of the United States, Europe Since the Wordl War, European - American Relationship, America's Position in Case of European War, and Possibilities of Closer European-American Relationship. The Versailles Treaty in particular will be discussed.

Fr. McFadden Gives Public Forum Talk

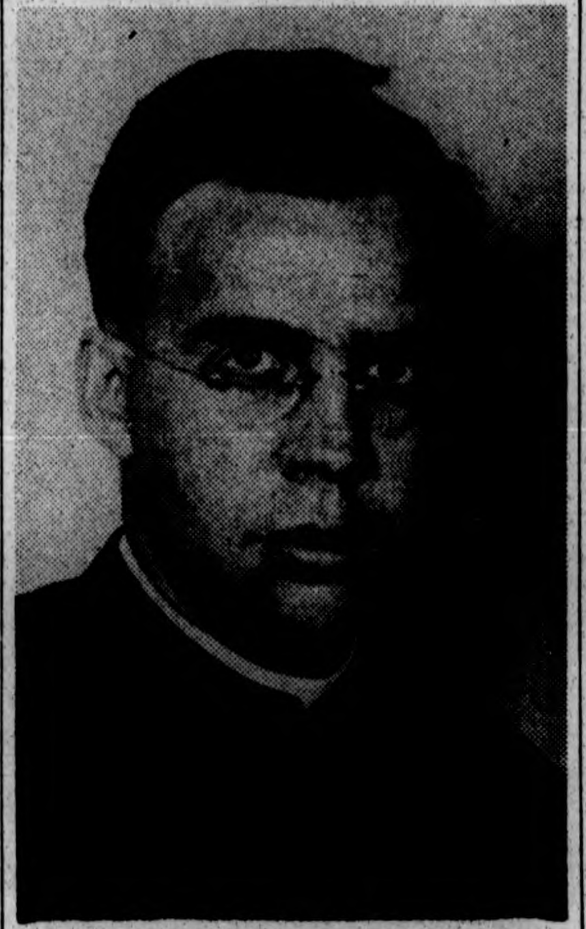
"The Church and Communism" was the subject of a lecture delivered by the Rev. Charles J. McFadden, O. S. A., Ph. D., before the Rutherford Public Forum in the auditorium of St. Mary's High schol, Rutherford, N. J., on Monday night, Feb. 26.

Father McFadden, a member of the Villanova faculty, is the author of the book, "The Philosophy of Communism," which was recently published.

Following the lecture, Father McFadden answered many questions asked by members of the audience on the subject of Communism. The Rev. Charles W. Tickler, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church of Rutherford, presided at the meeting.

This was the first of a series of three lectures sponsored by the Forum. The next one will be given by Rev. John P. Delaney, S. J., associate editor of "America" and director of the Vatican Radio station during the coronation of the present Pope.

Lenten Speaker



REV. VINCENT A. McQUADE, O. S. A., Ph. D., will discourse upon "The Christian Life" this Wednesday evening at the regular chapel period. He is the fourth speaker of the Lenten series.

NEW PHYSICS CLUB BEGINS ACTIVITIES, CHOOSES ITS NAME

McLaughlin to Speak at Second Kappa Gamma Sigma Meeting Tomorrow

Holding its first formal meeting, the Physics Club, youngest organization on the campus, made its first official move in selecting for its name Kappa Gamma Sigma.

The next meeting, which will be held tomorrow, at 3:15 in 215 Mendel will feature Francis J. McLaughlin, freshman science student, who will present a paper entitled, "The History of Physics." The paper will include the high spots in physical science since the beginning of the 20th century.

At the last meeting the program was devoted for the major part to "The Spectrum," a paper presented by Joseph M. Gambescia.

The first part of Gambescia's talk was devoted to an explanation of Newton's three classical experiments by which he was enabled to prove his theory of the composite nature of white light. Quoting Newton: "The light of the sun consists of rays of different refrangibility," Gambescia, with the aid of diagrams briefly discussed Newton's experiments.

With this as a basis, he continued with an explanation of the formation of the primary and secondary rainbows, occasioned by the refraction and internal reflection of the sun's rays within the raindrop.

With the aid of the projector, the principle of the spectroscope was explained and the different types of spectrum briefly discussed. Particular attention was given to the Fraunhofer lines appearing in the solar spectrum, and the reason for their presence shown as explained by Kirchoff and Bunsen, two eminent physicists and chemists of the last century.

Concluding his lecture, Gambescia made note of the importance the spectroscope plays in the analysis of substances and stated that the sensitivity of the spectroscope is such that it is able to detect substances in a dilution of one part in 300 thousand.

Tomorrow, election of officers will be held.

Courtmen Close Season On Saturday At Brooklyn

St. John's Five Serious Threat in Villanova Quint's Final Appearance of '39-'40 Court Campaign; Last Game For Four Seniors

By BOB FUNABASHI

The finality of the Villanova court season will reach its "Amen," along with an added bit of sorrow Saturday night, when the Wildcat passers invade the Metropolitan section to combat the mighty Redman from St. John's advocates of fast and tricky basketball so true to Gothamite quintets.

The battleground of the Wildcat-St. John's struggle will be rather unique for the two since the Redmen have been so frequently publicized as one of the Madison Square Garden teams, those who oppose the cream of the crop from all section and corners of the country. Last year the Redmen moved into Convention Hall and took the Wildcats' hide, but this year the Lapchick men will be promised many pre-game sleepless nights as Villanova brings together the greatest court squad in the history of the school.

FOUR GRADUATE

With this curtain-dropper, the services of four starters from the varsity squad will reach their last curve in Intercollegiate competition. "Duke" Duzminski, Mike Lazorchak, Lloyd Rice and Bill Sinnot, who formulated a basketball team which would parallel their individual reputations, will give their farewell performances on the ribbed-court.

Facing one of the most difficult schedules in their history, St. John's, with a formidable record of thirteen victories and only four losses, will meet strong foes in the Wildcats who possess seventeen wins in nineteen contests. Prognosticators of both sections imply that a victory for either team will mean a surprising upset and added laurels for the winner.

Only three veterans remain from the 1938-39 City Championship court squad of the Redmen; they are Co-Captains Bill McKeever; pivot artist, and Frank Haggerty, lay up specialist, and John Garfinkle, passer supreme. This trio forms the nucleus of Joe Lapchick's present court machine, a team that bode well through the season, but for one setback. Each is a star in his own right, but the fact remains that they have never been able to produce their best while working together. Truly the trio are one of the more efficient basketeers in the East.

Gadsby Is Appointed Golden Glove Coach

Former Boxing Mentor to Help Spike Webb With Mittmen

Ray Gadsby, varsity trainer and boxing coach, has been appointed assistant to "Spike" Webb, Navy boxing coach, in training the eastern Diamond Belt amateurs, who meet the western contingent in New York on March 18.

At present the easterners are in training in Gotham but Gadsby will fly to Chicago this week to scout the western group, coached by Johnny Baer, Olympic boxing coach.

Gadsby formerly boxed under Webb as a member of the Olympic boxing team of '28 at Amsterdam. He has developed such stars as Tony Sala, Billy Duffy and Johnny Nojunas. Recently Ray has been busy himself with officiating and has handled the Navy-Syracuse bouts at Annapolis, among others.

Spring Is Here?

Frosh Gridmen Answer Clipper's Call to "Spring" Practice

With the Sun not shining so brightly and the birds not singing in the trees, the Freshmen fotballers answered the call of Clipper Smith yesterday.

Starting spring practice this freak winter comes to a close, (we hope). The Frosh are busily shaking off the effects of thier winter layoff. Pulling, stretching, and doing the traditional duck walk all around the Field house the boys are hoping for blue skies and warm sun as they plan to toss the pig-skin around in the stadium starting next week.

The Clipper and Vince are supervising the calisthenics that always precede the real thing.

Clipper has quite a few standouts from the freshman team and will look for big things from Linemen Carlissimo, Christman, Tipp, and Whisner, while the backfield produces Euscho and Kupic, Rosatto.

So, readers put on your light suit, doff your top coats, for Spring is here or isn't it. Don't say we didn't warn you.

NINE GOLF MATCHES ARE SCHEDULED

While the outside weather gives no hint of apporaching spring, a golf schedule is being rounded into shape. Already several matches have been carded with still more colleges to be heard from. To date matches have been carded with Fordham, St. John's, Penn, Delaware, St. Joe's, and Haverford.

The St. John's match and the St. Joe's match are home and home affairs. Fordham and Haverford will be played away while Penn and Delaware will be played at home. All dates are not yet agreed upon.

Matches are being arranged with Rutgers as is a return match with Delaware. The dates and the complete schedule will be released at a later date.

The home matches will probably be played at the Main Line Open Golf Club as in former years. Several courses upon which away matches may be played are as follows: Fordham at Gedney Farms Country Club in White Plains, New York; St. John's at Hillcrest, near Flushing, Long Island. Haverford will probably be played at the famous Merion Cricket Club, and Delaware may be met on the links of the Newark Country Club outside Newark, Delaware.

Interest in golf is up and many players have asked about the schedule. Coach "Jumbo" Elliot is always availabe to pass out some helpful pointers. The season will son be here and Captain Cliff Randolph asks that all candidates for the teac get in as much practice as possible.

There are only two members of last year's team left, leaving the

MAHER WINS ABBEY DASH AS RUNNERS EXCEL IN C. U. MEET

By BILL CAREY

Flashing their best form of the season the Villanova track team finished a close second to Navy, and at the same time brought home a trophy and ten gold medals, from the Catholic U. Meet Saturday night.

With only twelve men entered for the Wildcats, they literally burned up the boards with 16½ points to 20 for the Navy which had at least one man in every event and as high as two and three in most.

Starting the night off in victory was Johnny Maher who retained his "Abbey" club invitation 50 yard dash title, equaling his own record time of 5.5 seconds. Maher in winning this event again defeated Leon Chalbot of Navy. Johnny breezed through his heat and won his final in a walk.

Following Maher in tape breaking were his younger team mates, the Frosh. The freshman won the Sprint Medley Relay in what was easily the most exiting race of the evening. Forming this quartet was DiCarlo, Nazian, Brown, and Keefrider. They stormed to victory over the famed Seton Hall Frosh who last week set a record in Madison Square Garden for this event.

Leading off was Johnny DiCarlo who ilned up against a strong field of quarter milers topped off by Mattaunis, Seton Hall's 48 second man. Johnny ran these men in to the ground aad finished with a terrific sprint to hand Stan Nazian a ten yard lead. But Nazian after a beautiful start on his 220 fell flat on his face on the second turn. Picking himself up, he continued valiantly to hand the baton to Jimmie Brown with a twelve yard

WITH assurance that "Clipper" Smith will be at the helm again next year the football future of Villanova's rhythmic Wildcats seems quite bright indeed.

This, coupled with the arrangement of the best schedule of games in the Wildcats' history should prove quite an inducement to those thousands of rabid fans who did not come out to view the Villanovans in past ultra successful years of gridiron warfare.

With the best coach in this district, the best material, and a schedule to compare with any hereabouts there is no reason why sizeable crowds should not be induced into Shibe Park next fall.

However the football fan must be coaxed and it is on this angle that we are driving. Why not make an offer so attractive that it wouldn't fail to attract the interest, and the dollars, of Philadelphia's gridiron bugs? Why wait until gametime to determine what kind of a crowd will pack, or vacate, the stands. A sizable portion of those

Alumni Cops Mural Crown As Varsity Boxers Win

Greenies Beat Mendel Day-Hops By One Point; Duffy, Mentzinger and Pryzicki Win, Kirk Draws in 3½ - ½ Triumph Over Seymour

By JIM HAUGHTON

Fistiana ruled supreme last evening as Villanova's varsity boxers outclassed Seymour A. C., 3½ to ½, and Alumni hall moved on to its third straight victory in the seventh annual boxing show before 900 spectators at the Field House ring.

Takng three out of four engagements against the Quaker City contingent, one being a declared draw, the locals showed the power that made them feared in bygone college encounters. Alumni, with an influx of fighters, managed to beat out the Mendel Day-Hops by an 8 to 7 margin.

Outstanding in the varsity engagement was Bob Mentzinger's clean victory over Charles Frisoli in the welterweight class. Bob displayed a lightning-fast left uppercut and jab which had Tony at his mercy. Time after time he would level off the Seymour battler with smashing blows to the heart and stomach.

Twin features of the intramural action were the opener between Charley Lazowski, Austin, and Dan Savini, Alumni, in the 150 class and the finale draw between George Smith and Vinnie Carlissimo.

Charley moved ahead in the first round with a fast left jab and kept it going throughout. Savini rushed him at several stages, but "Bo" managed to stab him off.

The finale was labeled as the freshman heavyweight football crown decider. Both boys, while they were not exponents of the scientific art, livened things up plenty with many exchanges. Carlissimo grabbed a short lead in the first round, but Smith came back and evened things up before the final bell.

Captain Bill Duffy, originally scheduled to meet Eddie Clabbitoni, matched punches with his sub, Jake Gray of Seymour, in the lightweight class and had things his own way.

Duffy pursued his famed left that led him to the semi-finals in the Golden Gloves and Grey couldn't do much about it. Only in the final canto did the husky battler come to life and engage in some stinging exchanges.

Grunt and groan also managed to find a place on the program in two events. Tony Anderson, of Austin, lost his varsity football squad wrestling crown to Ben Danik, Mendel resident. Benny knew a bit too much about airplane spins, flying mares, etc., to

VILLANOVAN "Predicted" Clipper's Withdrawal of Resignation

Pardon our vanity, but we just can't hold it in check any longer! Taking a cue from Walter Winchell and other "I-told-you-so" journalists we meekly refer you to the following item contained in a story appearing in the VILLANOVAN the Tuesday after "Clipper" Smith's resignation at a time when few thought withdrawal of the resignation would ever come about.

We quote ourselves (Pardon the Blush):

"The resignation has not yet been formally acted upon by the Athletic Board, nor have any applications for the position yet been considered. It appears that Smith would be welcome to change his mind even now and withdraw his resignation, if this is done before formal meeting of the Athletic Board."

The above appeared in the February 20 issue of this paper. Anyone doubting our veracity is invited to check in our files at a nominal fee!

So you see, dear reader (if any), the VILLANOVAN "scooped" the town. Expect a rise in subscription prices soon!

KELLEY TOPS SWIM TEAM IN SCORING

The varsity swimmers have completed another season in the tiled tank and the records show that they have finished with a .500 average. They won meets from Delaware University, St. Francis College, and Seton Hall College and lost to F & M, Rider, and Pennsylvania. They scored 222 points to their opponents 199.

In the '39 season the swimmers won five out seven contests which was a considerably better average than the present season. One thing must be kept in mind however, the "Wildcats" ran into stiffer opposition this year than last.

Leading point getter was sprint star Walter Kelley who took the honors for the second straight year. His 61.75 points were far ahead of Bill Hooper's 34.50 for second place. The leading scorers:

Third is John Pholeric, huge C. & F. Junior, who has done yeoman work for the Wildcats in garnering those needed second places. Fourth is Charley Barrett with sixteen points in the six meets. Barrett is the only senior among the first four scorers and finished his Villanova career last week in the meet with Seton Hall College.

Ed Leahy, captain of the swim team, tallied 15.34 points in competition with six opponents.

The leading scorers:

Inclement Weather Keeps Netmen Idle

Six Sophs Loom as Hopes For Strenuous Court Campaign

Climaxing several short meetings, the tennis team has planned a series of preliminary indoor workouts due to inclement weather. The reason is to start conditioning for what looms as a tough schedule consisting of St. John's, Loyola, Moravian, Fordham and Manhattan. The team hopes will be bolstered by the addition of several newcomers: Ralp Terraciano and the intramural champ, Major Grey, Ercolio Liberi, Jerry Belz and Dave Daly.

There remains as yet on the unfinished business side of the ledger, the task of electing a captain for the coming year. Several members of the varsity have commented to the effect that Saul Wallach is the most likely candidate. The team also boasts two new managers, Steve S[illegible] and Jack Mauch.

Fedigan-C&F Meeting Will Decide Second Half Race

Commerce Dayhops Need Win Over Fedigan to Clinch Title and Place in I-M Court Playoffs

With only a few days left in the second half intramural basketball title race, the crown has all but been decided. C & F has paced the league the whole second half with Fedigan right on their heels. C & F and Fedigan have one more scheduled meeting and the result of this match will determine the second half champion.

Out of the seven games last week, only two proved close enough to be interesting; the others proved to be breathers for the winners. The first game of the week, on Tuesday afternoon, was best of all. In this game, C & F retained first place by turning a 16 - 15 deficient at half time to a stirring 33 - 32 win over the second place Fedigan team. Coming out in the second half one point behind, C & F readily built up a fie point lead and maintained it until the last few hectic minutes in which Fedigan closed this lead to one point, but were unable to take the lead. Meehan paced the winners with eight points, all coming in the second half, when needed the most, while Connors took top game honors and paced the losers with twelve points.

Austin Winner

Tuesday evening Austin defeated Alumni 41 - 33 in a game which proved to be Austin, all the way. did little more than keep far enough ahead in the second half not to be seriously threatened. In the second game, the Mendel Day Students managed to nose out the last place Mendel Residents 32 to 30. The commuters held a 16 - 10 lead at half time but the Residents could not manage to get closer than two points to them in the second half.

On Wednesday night, Dan Keating, led Austin to a win over the ill-fated Mendel Residents 63 - 25. Leading the winners attack with twenty-five points and setting up many more, Dan practically won the game himself. Austin led, 25 to 11 at the midway mark and with Keating going hot in the second half, they had little trouble with the weary foe.

Revenging their only defeat this half (a 42 - 32 setback at the hands of Alumni) C & F turned the tables and trounced their rivals by a 50 - 37 score. Led by Don McGurk, the commuters ran up a 19 to 10 lead in the first half and had things their own way in the second. McGurk hit the cords for two field goals and six fouls for ten points while Dwyer, Coupe, and Meehan shared second with eight markers apiece. It proved to be a rough game in which thirty-two fouls were committed; seventeen by C & F and fifteen by Alumni.

RESIDENTS DEFEATED

Fedigan, in the first game Thursday night, conquered the last place Mendel Residents 41 to 26. The "Gigoloes," pouring seventeen field goals and seven fouls through the hoop, grabbed an early lead and held the Residents at bay for the remainder of the game. Bochette led the Fediganites in scoring and took the game honors with eleven points, while White paced the losers with nine counters.

The second game of the evening between Austin and the Mendel Day Students proved to be interesting, but Dan Keating would have his way, so Austin emerged the winner by a score of 41 to 33. Although they led 16 to 15 at half time, Austin found a tough opponent in the second half and the lead changed hands many times until there was only three minutes to go, at which time Dan thought they had played long enough so he put the game on ice with a few long shots. Dan led the Austinites with twenty-one points and on numerous occasions stole the ball to prevent the commuters from scoring. However, Moness managed to get thirteen markers to pace the losers.

FROSH COURTMEN BEAT BROWN PREP

Twenty Year Winning Streak in Home Gym Falls, 54-48

The Villanova College freshman basketball team put an abrupt end to Brown Prep's twenty year old winning streak last Saturday afternoon when the Kittens defeated the Brownies by 54 to 48. It was the first loss on their home court for the Prep team since basketball was first introduced there in 1920.

Two ex-stars from Brown Prep, Bill Woods and Art Spector, helped to end the streak which they previously had fought to protect when playing for the Prep in their high school days. Between them they scored more than half their team's points by swishing the cords for fifteen points apiece. However Joe Kelty was high scorer for Villanova with 16 points.

High scoring honors for Brown Prep, and also for the game, went to Herman Drizin.

This was the second time this season that the Frosh emerged victorious over the Brown Prep team. They previously defeated the Brownies on the Villanova home court at the Field House. The first game of this year's series was also very hotly contested and the Frosh had to play a superior brand of ball in order to win.

Villanova found themselves on the short end of the score only once during the struggle and that was at the end of the third quarter when they trailed by 46 - 35. However the Kittens soon regained the lead and with two minutes left to play they were leading by 52-44.

deficit, Brownie scampered around on another 220 leg and made up two yards before he passed the stick on to Harry Keefrider, who at this point was a good ten yards behind Seton Hall's Carmen Bova who already started out in his half-mile leg. Keefrider remained in second place, but only a few scant inches from Bova's heels.

Dogging him lap after lap Keefrider was contented to remain in second place, until the last lap, when he drew along side the leader as they both started to sprint. . . . Racing side by side as they came in to the last turn Harry put on a burst of speed the same time as the fast tiring Bova. Bova trying to close in on the pole position tangled his leg between Keffie's, and down they went, sprawled out over the track. Keefrider up with Bova, charged to the tape and broke it with a five yard advantage over him, and about 40 yards over the Catholic U. anchor man who finished third.

Winning this race was a great victory for the first year men, who even though falling twice, and loosing valuable seconds they tied the meet record of 3:59. Special mention should be given to DiCarlo and Keefrider. Keefrider in running his first competitive half mile defeated Bova by a decisive margin. Bova incidentally was last year's New Jersey Mile and Half Mile champion, and National Prep school title holder. DiCarlo did the same to Mattaunis, the quarter mile record holder.

The varsity mile relay team lost a close decision to Maryland. The Wildcats won their division easily but were beaten out by one and ½ seconds by the Marylanders, as the event was run on time. Barney Bellew, handed Jimmy Brady a five yard lead, Pete Yankauskas, and anchor man Bill Guiteras helped stretch it to ten. This combination avenged an earlier defeat by Senton Hall College by easily beating their time to cop second place.

A surprise victory came in the high jump with Sophomore Buddie Jones taking the event easily, as three men had to fight it out in a triple tie for second place. Jones won with the bar at 5'11 inches, and took three chances at 6'2" in an attempt to break the record. However, the sudden three inch raise was quite a handicap, but the meet officials were anxious to end the event so it rested at that.

Coach Elliot expressed his complete satisfaction at the brilliant showing of his handful of men. Satisfied with the Frosh who came up to his expectations, and Maher who won his second trophy from this meet.

Beating out the full teams of Maryland, Washington and Lee, Catholic U. and others has given Jumbo plenty of reason to look forward to a very successful outdoor season, and a major victory in the Penn Relays.

stands can be filled months before the initial kick-off.

The method of doing this is the simple one so successfully used by our good neighbor, the University of Pennsylvania, in building up her football bankroll. Annually the U. of P., through her top-notch press agent, Joe Labrum, starts reams of ballyhoo concerning her grid attractions for the coming season—currently they are playing up the bi-centennial angle, and doing a good job of making folks believe that Harvard, Army, Navy, and the rest of Penn opposition will be the best in the land next fall. In the midst of this ballyhoo activity comes the ticket-selling department sending forth unobtrusive little announcements that season tickets are available for the 1940 season, at a saving for the purchaser over game by game admission. The saving it so happens amounts to little but nobody notices that and Penn guarantees a packed stand several months before the opening game.

Smart business that and it could be put to good use out here on the Main Line—perhaps on a modified basis.

Next year Villanova's home games will definitely include Detroit, P. M. C., Kansas, Florida, and Duquesne, at Shibe Park. Oregon State is still a possibility for a Shibe Park meeting and Temple will be met at Temple Stadium in what is practically a "home" game. Is there a better inducement needed for the issuance of season tickets?

Six home games at $1.14 per game would cost a Villanova follower $6.84 in all. Season tickets for six dollars—a having of eighty-four cents for the purchaser plus the more important guarantee of the same, good seat at all games should provide assurance of a good crowd at all games. Corresponding rates could be made for higher-priced tickets.

One bright field for the selling of season tickets would be the Philadelphia district alumni and those from Trenton and other nearby towns. In the Philadelphia district alone there are close to sixteen hundred alumni and in counting the former Villanovans from nearby the total should come to almost four thousand possible prospects.

As every man must have a "gal" (or a wife) the possible sales approximate eight thousand. Be conservative and say that three thousand season ducats could be sold to this group and their friends. Add sales to other Villanova followers in and about Philly and you have an excellent nucleus for a packed grandstand at every game. Packed grandstands will bring better schedules in the future and the pinnacle of intercollegiate football will be attained.

of the outstanding cage mentors in the country. Lapchick stormed the heights last season when he guided the Redmen to the Metropolitan Title and then proceeded to reach the semi-final round of the Writers' Tournament at Madison Square Garden. St. John's teams, under Lapchick's guidance, have uncovered a tremendous scoring punch which proved a tartar for opponents but his belief is that the defense was a vital factor in last year's success.

In this current winter campaign the Redmen hold decisive wins over C. C. N. Y., Loyola University of Chicago, Bradley Tech, Temple, Dayton U., Manhattan, and Niagara. A policy denied by Lapchick, "Victory at any cost," makes the Redmen a well-mannered team and one whose sportsmanship drew high praise from thousands who saw the Redmen in action. Injuries and lack of regulars cost St. John's victories against N. Y. U., St. Joseph's, Fordham and Columorado U.

Every year St. John's makes it interesting for every opponent. Year in and year out, the Redmen have been represented by teams of high calibre and this year will not be an exception to that rule.

Phi Kappa Phi Bowling Notes

When the pins were cleared from the alleys and the balls placed on competition in the Phi Kappa Pi Bowling League it was found that the Shamrocks are still leading league "A" and are the only team in both leagues that boasts a clean slate. The Aces, however, are close behind the Shamrocks as a result of their win over the Picks.

In league "B" we find the Harps holding first position with eight victories against one defeat. They have a comfortable margin over the second place Atomizers who won only 5 matches against 4 defeats.

The outstanding performance Saturday was again given by Johnny Muench who broke his own high single record of 220 by sending the pins flying for a 222 score.

Frosh Natators Lose To Penn Yearlings

The "Kitten" swimming team fell before the University of Pennsylvania frosh Saturday in their first appearance of the season.

The Wildcats merman were of the opinion that the meet was to be conducted under inter-scholastic rules and had trained accordingly for the smaller distance required by such regulations but they were obliged to swim the longer distances of inter-collegiate rules and the difference was shown in their performance.

John Green, former Pennsylvania Interscholastic Diving Champion for two years, was high scorer for the Frosh taking a close second in the dive and a third in the 440 free style.

Bill Powell was next with two thirds, one in the 50yd. free style and one in the 100 yd. free style.

Taking third high scoring honors was Jake Mauch with a second in the 220 free style. Jake also swam anchor man on the 400 yd. relay team.

The Mail:

Sports Editor,
The VILLANOVAN.

Dear Sir:

This is to inform you that William Wood (Villanova freshman basketball player) is a former Southeast Catholic High School star. He played here for four years. Incidentally, he was captain for two years.

On page six of the last issue of the VILLANOVAN we noted that you failed to mention this in an article on Wood.

J. J. TULLY,
Sports Editor,
South Catholic "Rocket."

(Sorry, Mr. Tully, but Bill Wood attended Brown Prep and played basketball there after graduating from South Catholic. It is customary when giving casual reference to a player's origin to mention the last school which he attended. In Wood's case this is Brown Prep, even though he is equally renowned for his play at South Catholic a few years back.—Spts. Ed.)

Field House Is No Anaheim, Calif. But Blue Baseballers Carry On

By BILL EPIFANIO

This is a poor time for an article on baseball; however you can rest easy because we were assured that baseball was in the air by a note from "Mother Nature" via the grape vine.

We have the Athletics at Anaheim, California; the Phillies down at Miami Beach, and the Yankees at St. Petersburg. But "Alas" the "Wildcats" are at the Villanova field house! Yes, the boys are still restricted to just tossing the apple back and forth. (A lot of fun, try it sometime, yet there is nothing we can do about it).

Limited to the four walls of the Field House, "Doc" Jacobs has not been able to determine to any great extent the potentialities of the various try outs.

("Note to student body"—Please pray for some good weather for "Doc's" sake and the student body in general.)

The backstop situation is a bit unsteady due to the losses of Garbark and Vigilanti. You can rest assured that "Doc" will be able to picka capabel man out of the three tossing their abilities within the confinements of the Field House. At present he has "Reds" Murphy, Frank Moses, and Fitzgerald.

The burden of the pitching will be placed on the shoulders of Cliff Choquette, Nicholas and O'Leary. The sophomore prospects are Walt Carter, Bill Howlett and various others.

The initial sack which was vacated by the loss of Bond, will possibly be filled by "Tex" Connors or Thoma. This position, incidentally, is one of the biggest headaches of the many that "Doc" is confronted with.

"Woody" Reitmeir is one of the best prospects for second base; however he will have to do plenty of tall stepping to fill the shoes of his precessor "Cowboy" Crawley.

A great deal of weight is placed on the shoulders of little Mike Lazorchak who will attempt to fill the short field spot as he did last year; which you will remember was a bit all right. We all know that he will come through again as he did last year. Yes, why not be optimistic?

The hot corner is a debatable question, and too wide open for the team's benefit. No attempt has been made by the coach to figure it out to any great extent. It is surmused that Basca and Pash will have to battle it out.

The flychaser will be picked from Balmore, Donoghue, Basca or Pash and Rice, who at present is still busy with basketball. Any three of the ve will fill out an outfield that wil compare with any group in college baseball.

Duzminski's 213 Pts. Still Lead District

Villanova players security in the Philadelphia district basketball scoring race weakened quite a bit during the past week while the Cats were idle and West Chester and Swarthmore fives were active.

Duzminski and Nugent continued to lead the pack but Lazorchak fell back to sixth place in the district. The team scoring to date follows:

Player	Ga.	F.G.	F.	Pts	Avg.
Duzminski	19	84	45	213	11.2
Nugent	19	93	25	211	11.1
Lazorchak	19	81	30	192	10.1
Yund	19	40	24	104	5.4

Swimmers Have Field Day Against Seton Hall

Relay Team Cracks Pool Record in 46-9 Victory Over South Orange Tankmen; Sweep All First Places

In a crushing 46-9 victory over the Seton Hall College team the "Wildcat" swimmers rang down the curtain on another tank season.

It was an easy win for the Villanova band. They splashed to victory in every one of the seven events, made a clean sweep of the freestyle races, and set a new College Pool record in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

It was Ed Leahy, Tom Moore, and Tommy Lyons that started the massacre by winning the medley relay. Then the freestylers went to work.

The 220 was a duel between teammates "Big John" Pholeric and Bob Dooley with "Big John" winning in a last lap sprint. Walt Kelley speeded home in the 50 in 24.2 seconds and Charlie Barrett tok second. Then Tom Lyons and the aforementioned Mr. Dooley placed one-two respectively in the 100-yard distance.

The South Orange boys made their bestshowings in the diving and breaststroke events. Art Gallo gave Charlie Timmins some close competition in the diving but the Villanovan's 78.50 points were too god for him; and Ed Hahren of Seton Hall was second to Paul Fitzmaurice in the 100-yard breaststroke.

The record-breaking performance in the relay came at the very end of the meet, and it was fitting that a team composed of four of the best sprint men Villanova has ever had should establish a new College standard in the final meet of the season.

At the start it was agreed that each Seton Hall man should only swim 75 yards to each Villanova man's 100 yards, and the "Wildcats" beat them anyway although the Seton Hall men did not wait a second or two before they started. It was the quartet of Charlie Barrett, Bob Koness. Bill Hooper, and Walt Kelley that sped over the 400-yard distance in the time of 3 minutes, 48.8 seconds. Walt Kelley swam a 58.8 seconds 100-yard on his leg of this relay which unofficoially is .2 of a second better than his pool record for that distance.

SUMMARIES

150 Yd. Medley Relay— 1. Villanova (Leahy, Moore, Lyons). 2. Seton Hall (Gallo, Hahren, Hunt). Time: 1.44.2.

200 Yd. Freestyle — 1. Pholeric, Villanova. 2. Dooley, Villanova. 3. Dougherty, Seton Hall. Time: 3.00.3.

50 Yd. Freestyle — 1. Kelley, Killanova. 2. Barrett, Villanova. 3. Sullivan, Seton Hall. Time: 24.2.

Diving—1. Timmins, Villanova. 2. Gallo, Seton Hall. No third. Points: 78.5.

100 Yd. Freestyle — 1. Lyons, Villanova. 2. Dooley, Villanova. 3. Sullivan, Seton Hall. Time: 1.05.9.

100 Yd. Breaststroke — 1. Fitzmaurice, Villanova. 2. Hahren, Seton Hall. Third man disqualified. Time: 1.25.9.

400 Yd. Freestyle Relay — 1. Villanova (Barrett, Koness, Hooper, Kelley). New college pool record. Time: 3.48.8.

Final Score—Villanova, 46. Seton Hall, 9.

Revival Of Court League Endorsed; Spot For Cats

By JIM HAUGHTON

THE little note book carries clippings from the Temple News and Georgetown Hoya about a subject that has popped into the adult stage of discussion recently—and that is an Eastern Basketball League.

Last week Joe Barnes suggested a "Big Ten" Conference which had quite a scope, covering the New England and Eastern states. But Gene Shulman of the Temple News goes one better and proffers the plan of reorganizing the now defunct Eastern League. Gene, purely in his own interest, has gone to much work in reviving the case. He has written to the sports editors in the schools which formerly occupied slots in the league. Students polls and discussions have been sponsored on the subject. If sufficient interest is aroused Earl Yoemans, Temple Director of Athletics, will take steps to again establish it. And Georgetown, for one, seems all in favor of it.

Jim Haughton

Why not have Villanova in this little coterie of courtment? Our teams are strong enough to deserve consideration. The location is perfect. And the students and alumni support would be 100 per cent because in talking to quite a few fellows they were all for it.

As you know, during the past season there have been some very good ball games here; probably as good as you'll ever see. But there were also some bad ones. Several nights it would have been more enjoyable to sit in and listen to the radio than to walk down to the gym with that "another win-so what" feeling.

But imagine how you'd flock to league games of a group including Georgetown, Temple, Duquesne, Penn State, Carnegie Tech and Villanova. None could be sweeter.

Unlike Barnes' suggestion this group covers a fairly small area with long trips being unnecessary. With a six team conference only twelve league games would be necessary, leaving each team sufficient time to schedule other regular rivals. Natural rivalries predominate throughout and there are two inter-city combinations: Duquesne and Carnegie Tech; Temple and Villanova. Ordinarily these teams draw but in a league contest, wow.

Looking it over it seems that every contest would be a treat in itself. Penn State has a wide coverage of students and alumni drawing heavily in both east and west. Georgetown and Duquesne make natural rivals for Villanova and vice versa. All in all you have a league comparable to any in the nation and with a flock of supporters to outdraw any.

Such a group would not have to depend upon double header ball for each school has sufficient facilities for the contest. The Temple students, especially, don't like the idea of shelling out 42 cents to see their club in action when they could view a better league game via a matriculation card.

Then again, the possibilities of this reorganization are not mere mental gymnastics. Steps have been taken to get it moving. Having once been a reality formerly difficulties could easily be conquered.

But this corner can roar till doomsday—and to no avail. If the proper authorities give approbation to the suggestion another step can be covered. Also necessary is the support of the metropolitan papers. Just a short while ago Perry Lewis suggested a football conference. Why not aid such a court grouping, Mr. Lewis? Student opinion is all for it.

suit Tony and thus grabbed off the decision.

The other wrestling match brought together Ray Pescatore of Austin and Nick Petrullio of the Mendel Day-Hops. The latter seemed to have a better knowledge of the game, but the farmer's aggressiveness helped him cop the decision.

In the evening's only varsity draw setto, Eddie Kirk and Frank Mango, of Seymour, put on a thriller in the featherweight class. Both lads were exceptionally good boxers and didn't give the other much chance to get started. Kirk had a flicking left, but Mango's ever in-fighting bottled Eddie up time after time.

Two Alumni footballers given to histrionics, Hank Christman and Ken Weisner, showed the fans plenty of everything but boxing. Wrestling seemed to hold the fort here and both missed more than they landed. But those that landed hurt plenty.

Probably the classiest of the intramural bouts was the one in which Bill Nocco, Alumni, defeated Tom Dunn, Mendel resident. Both showed former experience and combined nice footwork with fast in-fighting. Nocco stepped ahead in the final set with some nice rights and copped the decision.

Bill Woods Paces Freshman Scoring

Still coveting the scoring honors for the victorious freshman is Bill Woods. Bill has gone over the 200 mark with 84 buckets, 50 foul shots and a total of 218 points. Pressing him from behind like "Kayak II," is Art Spector with 206 counters from 88 baskets and 30 fouls.

Taking third position in the race is Bob Kelty with 178 from 71 baskets and 18 fouls.

The team has scored 908 points to its opponents 582.

Last, But Not Least

Making The Mendel Bulletin

By ALFRED M. BONGIOVANNI,
Editor of the Mendel Bulletin.

MOST of the students about the college, particularly newcomers and members of departments other than the School of Science, have only a vague notion of just what the "Mendel Bulletin" is.

Perhaps the fact that is is the quarterly publication of the School of Science is not obscure, but the erroneous impression that it presents matter of a strictly technical nature, "above the heads" of the average student, should be corrected. The articles are, in most cases, within the scope of the general reading public and are designed to be of interest to the layman as well as to the science student.

The "Mendel Bulletin" is, unlike most campus publications, not restricted to contributions from the Board of Editors. It is the publication of the School of Science and, as such, it belongs to all the science students and all are invited to contribute.

The experience afforded the contributors should not be underestimated;its value in this regard may be better appreciated by citing Father Dougherty's traditional emphasis of experience as the best teacher.

The Mendel Bulletin Family

Another one to be added in the near future . . .

Board of Editors

The function of the Board of Editors is primarily one of orientation; submitted material is subjected to the examination of the members for good English, correct spelling, clarity of expression, completeness ofthought, and proper arrangement of ideas.

Any articles which have possibilities for photographic illustration are handed over to the photography department, while sketches and diagrams are prepared either by the contributor himself or by those members of the board who are artistically inclined.

The frontispiece of the Mendel Bulletin, usually presenting a photomicrograph of some appropriate subject, is representative of hours of work on the part of our photographer in his attempt to indicate minute details of structure clearly. By this means of illustration, patterns of nature otherwise obscured by their miscroscopic sizes may be better appreciated.

Embryo Stage

When sufficient material has been collected, it is sent to the printer who returns it as proof copy in a series of strips, a single column in width; these are the "galley proofs." All illustrations, with the extents of reduction or enlargement respectively indicated, are advanced to the photoelectric engravers, who in turn send the cuts for these, as well as a copy of each as it appears when reproduced.

The galley proofs are carefully read in order to insure an exact copy of the original article as submitted. Corrections having thus been indicated, the dummy is prepared.

This process is much the same as for other similar publications. The strips of proof are pasted onto sheets of paper representing the pages and are arranged according to columns; necessary spaces for insertion of the various illustrations are reserved.

Bulletin's Birth

The dummy is now sent to the printer and a page proof, representing the "Bulletin" exactly as it will appear, is forwarded for approval. This is the last step and, before we realize it, a new number of the "Mendel Bulletin" family is born.

"Ordinarily" it makes its debut every November, February, April and June. Its arrival is announced on the science bulletin board; all science students secure their copies by calling at the "Mendel Bulletin" office. Outside copies are distributed through the mail.

The "Mendel Bulletin" enjoys an extensive circulation throughout the United States and some foreign countries. Throughout its existence it has received many favorable comments from other colleges and universities, and its monographs have frequently been reviewed in nationally known publications, such as "Nature."

Last but not least, is the "vital principle" behind the "Bulletin." While the "Mendel Bulletin" is strictly a student publication, nevertheless it cannot be denied that Father Dougherty exerts an inestimitable influence upon the retention of its high standard.

Although the editors may not become immediately aware of his importance in this regard, the value of his constant readiness to render advice and the inspiration aroused in them by his paternal pride in the accomplishments of his students are soon recognized.

G. E. CO. SELECTS WILSON AS PROMISING EMPLOYEE

Messers Kline and Roff Interview Senior Electrical and Mechanical Engineers

Mr. H. Kline, Personal Manager of the Pittsfield, Mass., plant of the General Electric Company, and Mr. O. C. Roff, Head of the Central Power Station in Philadelphia, visited the College on Wednesday, February 23, and interviewed senior members of the Electrical and Mechanical Engineering departments with regard to the securing of positions with the General Electrical Company.

George J. Wilson, electrical engineer, was one of those chosen. Each year General Electric selects 252 of the most promising Electrical or Mechanical Engineers throughout the colleges and universities of the United States.

Mr. Kline gave a talk before the interview on the General Electric Co. and the plans and "test-course" for young graduate engineers.

SOCIOLOGY GROUP MEETS

"Anti-Semitism," one of the outstanding social problems of the world today, will be the topic discussed at this week's meeting of the Sociology Seminar, to be held today at 3:45 P. M. in Simpson hall.

The members of the group, inactive for the past few weeks, have been looking forward to the resumption of their weekly roundtable discussions.

Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., Ph. D., moderator of the seminar, has planned to continue the policy of bringing in outside speakers to lecture at the meetings. The next speakers will lecture in the near future.

TWO JUNIOR MEETINGS

Daniel J. Keating, junior class president, announces that there will be a class meeting on Wednesday, March 6, at 7:00 P. M. and one on Thursday, March 7, at 1:00. Both meetings will be held in the Mendel Hall amphitheatre.

E. P. T. MEETS

President Joseph McNamara of Epsilon Phi Theta Fraternity has called a meeting of all the brothers for Wednesday at 1:00 P. M. in 111 Mendel hall.

Delta Pi Epsilon Elects Connors To Presidency

Jonik, Brady, Flannery, Brennan, Murphy Receive Other Offices in First Voting of Reorganized C & F Fraternity

By THOMAS A. SULLIVAN

Francis X. Connors, class of '40, was elected president of Delta Pi Epsilon, recently re-organized fraternity of the School of Commerce and Finance at an election held last Wednesday at 1:00 P. M. in the Mendel Amphitheatre.

Other officers elected at the same time include Edward L. Jonik, '40, vice-president; John J. Brennan, '40, treasurer; and Arthur W. Murphy, '40, sergeant-at arms.

George J. Flannery, '41, automatically became secretary of the organization, having no opposition in the voting for this post. Flannery was responsible for the recovery of the fraternity's charter, which had to be produced before official approval could be given the group.

James T. Brady, '41, was elected to represent Delta Pi Epsilon in the Student Council.

Voting Close

Only those who atended the first reorganization meeting of the organization were permitted to cast their votes on Wednesday. The race for each office was closely and hotly contested, with a group of resident students furnishing opposition to a similar day-hop faction.

Rev. Jerome A. Mahoney, O. S. A., M. A., presided over the elections. A movement is now under way to have a permanent moderator appointed for the group.

Connors Active

Connors, a resident student, has been very active in extra-curricular activities during his four years on the campus. He was a member of the varsity tennis team last year and is a member of the varsity baseball squad. Last year he was chosen a member of the Junior Prom committee, and this year was a member of the Senior Dinner-Dance committee.

In addition, he has participated in almost all intra-mural sports. Connors was a member of the group

Philosophy Group Hears Collins On Garcia's Principles

Junior Presents Paper on "Religious Education in Democracy" at Seminar

"Religious Education in Democracy" was discussed by James P. Collins, junior artsman, last Thursday, March 7, at the meeting of the Philosophy Seminar.

Collins' discussion was based mainly on a paper delivered by Joaquin Garcia before the National Catholic Philosophical Association. Collins explained that Garcia, in his article, stated that St. Thomas Aquinas was an ardent believer in democracy.

In order to show that St. Thomas was a partisan in democracy, Garcia made a division betwen a democracy in substance and a democracy in form.

A democracy in substance, Garcia said, is one in which the government is directed for the common good; a democracy in form is a government which has the appearance of democracy but is not directed for the common good.

After the reading of this paper by Collins, the members agreed that Garcia was emphasizing his own distinction on St. Thomas Aquinas in order to prove his thesis.

Further on in the paper, Collins also brought out the importance of religious education in democracy. All members agreed with his views. The educational theories of Dewey were also criticised as being atheistic.

James F. Donovan, junior in the School of Arts, is to read a paper at the next meeting of the seminar on March 14.

This will be the last meeting before the quarterly exams occur.

35 STUDENTS WILL GO TO WASHINGTON

Justice Murphy To Address Group; Dates Set for April 3, 4, 5

By MARTIN M. LANGWEILER

A personal interview with Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy will feature the third annual trip to Washington, D. C., to be made by over 35 sophomore, junior and senior members of the political science classes on April 3, 4 and 5. The group will be in charge of Dr. Harold F. Hartman, Ph. D., assistant professor of social sciences.

The trip will be taken by students interested in the relationship of government with business and will include a comprehensive study of all three departments of the government; legislative, judicial and administrative.

The survey of the legislative department will include a meeting of the Dies Committee of the House of Representatives, a meeting of the Banking and Finance and Interstate Commerce Committees of the Senate, a meeting of both houses of Congress and a private conference with a prominent Senator and a Representative who will speak to the group on the functions of a committee.

Mr. Thurman Arnold, assistant United States Attorney-general, will address the group on the enforcement of anti-trust legislation and the problems confronting the government in the regulation of unfair trade practices, as the highlight of the students' investigation into the administrative branch of the government.

This section of the tour will also include the witnessing of meetings of the National Labor Relations Board, the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Trade Commission, the Securities and Exchange Bureau and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Tentative plans also call for a tour through the Federal Bureau of Investigation building, with the possibility of a talk by J. Edgar Hoover, head of the F. B. I.

Along with the speech by Justice Murphy in his private chambers, where will be explained to the students the functions of the judicial processes and some of the problems confronting the court in the interpretation of the law, the party will be present at a session of the Supreme Court.

In addition to the investigation of the workings of the Federal govern-

KEATING APPOINTS NINE JUNIORS TO PROM COMMITTEE

Men Named Will Assist in Selection of First-Class "Name Band"

By HOWARD A. McCALL

Nine members of the third-year class have been selected to serve on the Junior Promenade committee, Daniel J. Keating, president of the class, announced yesterday.

This group will assist George W. Coupe, chairman of the affair, in all the arrangements of this event, the highlight of Junior Week activities.

The students appointed to serve on the committee are: Gordon J. Brosmer, James F. Haughton, James T. McMenamin, Walter J. Kelley, and William F. Epifanio, commerce students; Robert E. De Persio, science man; Sylvester A. Mahan, of the School of Education, and Daniel P. Dalina and Joseph E. Norton, engineering students.

Engages "Name" Band

The Junior Promenade, presented annually in the Field House, is the only dance held under the auspices of the juniors which engages a first-class "name band." In view of this fact and the importance of the affair to the undergraduates, the chairman and his committee are entrusted with responsible positions.

The most prominent function of the chairman and his committee is the selection of the band which will represent the college on this occasion. Last year, Al Donahue and his Rainbow Room Orchestra provided the music for the promenade.

MATH CLUB TO JOIN HONORS FRATERNITY

Group Accepts 39 New Members, Makes Plans for Spring Banquet

Announcement of plans to join a national honor society, the acceptance of thirty-nine new members, and plans for a spring banquet at which members of the club for two years will receive keys highlighted the last meeting of the Mathematics Club.

The announcement of the plans to join the national society followed closely on the heels of the revelation by Professor Emil Amelotti, M. S., moderator of the group, that sophomore members of the club are at work drawing up a constitution for the club.

Under the Chairmanship of Robert Ayerle, chemical engineer, a committee is attempting to prepare a constitution along the lines of that of the national society, with the aim in view that, when the Math Club joins the national group, few if any changes will be required.

The selection of an appropriate Greek letter name is also under consideration. One suggestion is that the Greek letters "Mu Alpha Theta" be adopted as they correspond to the English "M," "A," and "Th," or "Math."

However the name has not as yet been definitely set and the committee is willing to accept and consider any suggestions.

A committee has also been appointed by the members to select a suitable key for presentation to those members of the society who have been active for two years.

The key will be given to the members by Prof. Amelotti at the Club's annual banquet, to be held sometime after the students return from their Easter vacation.

At the meeting, thirty-nine freshman and sophomore engineers who have attained scholastic averages of A or B for the first semester were admitted to the club and welcomed by president Gordon.

McNamara, Wilderotter, Donovan In Oratory Finals

All Three Are Artsmen, EPT, Beta Gamma Members; Four Others Eliminated in Murtaugh Medal Competition

Oratorical Finalists

J. McNamara

J. Donovan

R. Wilderotter

Joseph M. McNamara, James F. Donovan, and Robert G. Wilderotter, all members of the arts school, were judged the winners in the semi-finals of the oratorical contests which were held last Wednesday, March 6, in the Mendel hall Amphitheater and are thus automatically named as finalists of the contest.

"The Catholic Church in Democracy" was the subject of the speeches which were five minutes in length. In addition to those already mentioned, the list of speakers included: Thomas J. Moore, a student in the Education Department, and John J. Raney, Thomas Desipin, and Thomas C. Muraski, all members of the engineering school.

Rev. Henry A. Caffery, O. S. A., Rev. Charles J. McFadden, O. S. A., and Rev. Paul J. Healy, O. S. A., acted as judges of the contest and Paetrus F. Banmiller, registrar, presided as chairman. The order of speaking by the participants was decided by lot.

The winner of the contest receives a gold medal presented by the Very Rev. E. J. Murtaugh, O. S. A., to the student attaining the highest degree of perfection in public speaking. The award is made every year in conjunction with the commencement exercises. One of the finalists, Joseph M. McNamara, was winner of the medal in 1938. Joseph V. McCabe, who won the medal last year, is not entered this year.

The three finalists are active members of Beta Gamma, the senior debating society and have also participated in the productions of Belle Masque, the college dramatic society. All three are brother fraternity members and are engaged in numerous extra-curricula activities. McNamara is president of Epsilon Phi Theta, the arts fraternity and chairman of the debate council. Wilderotter is photography editor of the Belle Air, senior annual.

The finals will be held on Friday evening, March 15, at 8:00 P. M.

ROSEMONT SUPPLIES FEMININE LEADS

Misses Ambrose, Cissel, McDonald and Lewis Accept Roles in "Tavern"

By WILLIAM J. TOY

Casting for the feminine roles in the coming Belle Masque play "The Tavern," has been completed, according to its director, Anthony J. Frayne, with the assigning of parts to Mary Ambrose '40, Sue Cissel '41, Pat McDonald, '42, and Georgina Lewis '41, all Rosemont College students.

Miss Ambrose, who hails from Philadelphia, will take the character of Mrs. Lamson, the governor's wife, who is a fluttery individual offering much assistance but giving little. While devoting her time to her studies, Miss Ambrose has not been dormant in extra-curricular activities, being a member of the International Relations Club, Sodality, and the Rambler staff. She has been acting in various plays since her freshman year in high school.

Mrs. Lamson's daughter, Virginia, is portrayed by Sue Cissel, a Washington, D. C., resident, who is in her junior year. Miss Cissel, as well as Miss Ambrose, also has many extra-curricular activities to her credit, among which is the presidency of the International Relations Club and the writing of "Magpie," a column in the Rambler. In her part in "The Tavern" she is to portray a sophisticated and frivolous young debutante.

One of the more dramatic roles, that of an escaped lunatic who blames all her troubles on anyone who happens upon her, is to be portrayed by Miss Georgina Lewis, who reside in Germantown. Miss Lewis has had much experience in the art of acting through her performances with the Alden Park Players in the show "Biography" and in "The Swan" which was enacted by Rosemont College. In addition to these activities, she has found time to lend her services as a member of the tennis team.

Miss McDonald has been awarded the part of Sally, the barmaid at the Tavern who is in love with the son of the owner. This will mark the first time she has ever worked with a mixed cast. This Buffalo, N. Y., girl is president of the sophomore class and a member of the Rambler staff.

Newly Reorganized Flying Club Holds Officer Elections

Nominees To Be Voted on at Second Meeting Today

The inaugural meeting of the newly reorganized Flying Club was held on Monday, March 4. Forty prospective members were present and expressed a high degree of interest in the reorganization.

At the initial meeting Professor William M. Gorman, past and present faculty moderator of the club, held nominations for officers. Following the approval of the Deans, these nominees will be voted upon at the meeting today.

Three years ago this club was very active, but a lack of interest forced it to disband. The old charter is still in existence and will be used as a basis for the present charter. Thomas J. Carbine, '39, now a student flier in the Army Air Corps, organized the former club.

Exessive rates for group flying instruction was the main reason for the previous lack of interest. However, several instructors have been contacted and the group rates submitted have been quite reasonable.

The promotion of interest in all branches of aviation is the ultimate aim of the reorganizers. From time to time prominent speakers and pilots will give lectures. Papers will be delivered at every meeting on appropriate subjects by the members themselves.

After the club has functioned for a time, it is planned to merge it with the National Collegiate Flying Organization.

Rise With Christ

WITH the approaching termination of the lenten season the Church and mankind prepare to celebrate the greatest feast of the liturgical year. The dawn of this day moves the hearts of men with exultation and fills he world with renewed hope; it is Easter morn, the day of Christ's Resurrection.

The Resurrection proved Christ's divinity to the universe and confirmed His teachings to mankind. Had He failed to fulfill His promise, our faith would have been invalid — and "the rock of the Church" would have been without a foundation.

The lesson which man can draw from this joyful mastery should be a sweet consolation. Christ, by His Resurrection, made His passion a matter for glory rather than a scandal and His cross a throne insteal of a gibbet.

As Christ was destined through His many tribulations to enter His Kingdom, so we, too, by our sacrifices, by our spiritual and physical acts of self-denial are afforded the same means of some day joining Him and sharing in His glory.

In fitting preparation for this feast, offer all your works to Christ and beseech Him on that day to raise the world above the bitter hatred and the moral chaos that is threatening its downfall. Beg that the hearts of men will be once again instilled with love for their fellowman, and that the universe at large will realize its utter dependence on His goodness and mercy.

New Dealers Amend

SOME members of the House Committee investigating the N. L. R. B. seem to believe that the Board has been altogether too partial and flagrantly dictatorial.

In remedy, they prepare a measure of twenty-one amendments to the Wagner Act which would strip the Labor Board of much of its power — so much so that it will practically destroy the most potent agency in the Government for handling this country's tangled industrial relations.

These advocates of the investigating committee's measure seem to lack common sense as well as political tact. It is quite possible that the Act has allowed the Labor Board too much freedom, but an almost nullifying measure is entirely uncalled for. The Board has accomplished much to its credit.

Politically speaking, the measure seems to be doomed. However, if its framers would submit a more modified program, it might succeed. Then, too, it must be remembered that this congress is dominated by the same New Dealers who originally sponsored the Wagner Act. It would be asking too much to do away with one of the main supports of New Deal policy.

The Pope And Peace

DURING the past week Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles has been touring the capitals of Europe as the personal emissary of Roosevelt's fact finding committee on conditions "over there." Undoubtedly he has amassed a great deal of information, but as far as the crux of the whole mission he seems to have failed, for it must seem evident to him that Herr Hitler will not consent to comprises in order to reestablish a peace of long standing. On the other hand from the Allies he seems to have gotten hopes of reaching some kind of trade agreement with those nations and this country.

The dictators seemed to be willing enough on the surface of things to play ball with Mr. Welles, but later developments show that it was only a bluff, for Hitler's Memorial Day speech indicates that the Fuehrer intends to keep his country at war until his ambitions are realized . . . the complete emancipation of Germany from the economic dictatorship of England's capitalism through victory.

This brings to mind the fact that if the war is drawn out to its natural end, another Versailles Treaty will result, full of gross injustices and selfish purposes. Then, too, even if a compromise is reached, and if both parties are not treated as fairly as possible, a lasting solution to the ever-present danger of a general conflagration in the Old World will not have been reached.

Perhaps it was wrong for this country to try to make the first overtures on this subject because the Nazis believe that we are not a disinterested party. Perhaps, and with some justification, they might think that we favor the Allied cause too much to broach the subject of peace unbiasedly. This leaves a question in our minds which is readily answered. Where is this disinterested party? The Vatican seems to supply the answer. We believe that if a lasting peace is to be established the Holy Father should be chief consultant of all parties concerned. His decisions will be made with Christian justice and charity, not greed or ambition.

DURING the past week this column has been the recipient of several letters advocating changes in the matter and type of news which should be printed. One such letter appeared last week below the column which suggested that we give more attention to the doings of students of Villanova and Immaculata.

In answer to this idea, I can only say that the distance of Immaculata from Villanova is the one feature that prevents the majority of the local gentlemen from giving more of their time to those lassies. However, in the future, any news relating to Immaculata and Villanova will receive its rightful attention.

Editor Bewails Duties Facing 'Engineer' Staff

Plenty of Work To Be Done, But Advantages Gained and Capable Assistants Lessen Burden

By CHARLES J. SCHAFER
Editor Of The Engineer

ALTHOUGH it is usually a quiet place, eight times a year room 222 Mendel Hall is a scene of vigorous activity. The reason for this is the distribution of the latest copies of "TheEngineer." From October to May inclusive, "The Engineer" is scheduled for circulation on the fifteenth of the month for which the issue is dated.

Essentially "The Engineer" is similar to other school publications. It is the Engineering School's periodical. Contributors may include professors, all the student engineers, graduates, and other persons in the engineering profession. Most of the work however is done by the students. This includes writing articles, rewriting and checking for mistakes, arranging the make-up, and obtaining advertisements and pictures.

Since "The Engineer" is sent to most of the engineering alumni, to other engineering schools throughout the country, and to various other subscribers and organizations, distribution is quite a problem. Walt La Porte, the circulation manager, has a big job in keeping the' files up to date and getting the Engineer mailed as soon as it comes from the printer.

Valuable Asset

"The Engineer" gives students a chance to participate in an extra curricular activity that is not only recreational but a valuable complement to an engineering education. That may sound like salestalk but it's true. Many people picture engineering students as dull fellows who plod along with a textbook in one hand and a slide rule in the other. Such is not usually the case, and Frank Hiney and John Hallinan demonstrate this. They are the authors of Cross-section, and as they will admit, it is the liveliest page in the magazine and the gags are all original.

Good illustrations always improve any magazine but electrocuts for glossy paper, such as the Engineer is printed on, are expensive. Keeping this in mind Joe Norton and John McKinney of the editorial board usually assign articles which may be illustrated by cuts rented or borrowed from current commercial journals. Joe Dorsey, besides handling local advertising, also obtains the pictures and cuts needed.

Barr No Hindrance

An issue of "The Engineer" generally has two articles by students, Cross-section, local news about the Engineering School, and news about the Alumni. Space is assigned to the local chapters of the national engineering societies, which they may use to give announcements and news of their organization. Obtaining Alumni news has not been as difficult as usual this year because of the help of Eugene Barr, a former Engineer editor, and now an organic laboratory instructor. Then of course, the editorial board takes a page to view something with alarm or point to something else with pride.

Selection of material offers a difficulty which is still unsolved. Most of the articles should treat of engineering subjects, but if they are too technical then the suitability of the magazine is too narrowly restricted. On the other hand, if the material is entirely non technical the magazine is no longer an engineering publication. The editorial board tries to keep everyone happy by having a favorable balance of subject matter. Such a balance is rarely attained, however, because there are always assignments which are never turned in or are turned in late. Practically then, the real problem of publishing "The Engineer" is a matter of time. The chief trouble being that there is never enough time. Assignments turned in late are usually a result of the heavy schedule that the engineering students have to maintain.

It is headache and a worry but there is not a fellow on the staff who does not really enjoy working for the Engineer.

Oh! The Burdens Of An Editor . . .

Kerby Cushing Speaks on "Radio"

Kerby Cushing, local sports commentator, was the guest speaker appearing before the members of the Science Seminar conducted on Thursday, March 7.

Mr. Cushing's' topic was "Radio, its Growth and Technique." He explained the growth of radio from its beginning to its present status. He also explained the technique and preparation so necessary for a successful radio broadcast.

"Radio broadcasting, said Mr. Cushing, "requires not only a special talent but also years of experience in acquiring correct technique."

Mr. Cushing ended his talk in the manner of a forum discussion and answered questions put to him by the students concerning radio.

Take Heed, Juniors

All juniors are urged to pay their assessments before departing for the Easter vacation, Class President Daniel J. Keating announced yesterday.

Unless the third-year men comply with this request it will be practically impossible to secure a "name" band for the Junior Prom; since the staging of the Dinner Dance depends on the success of the Prom, its fate also hangs upon the immediate payment of the assessments.

The deposit required by the dance-band's agents, before any orchestra can be signed, amounts to 50 per cent of the total assessment. Since only 15 per cent of the entire junior class have paid their dues to date, it is impossible to sign the orchestra at this time.

Tender LKD Initiate Describes Happy Time

Everything Goes Wrong For Joe When the Frat Heads Choose Him For Their Own: Read "The Night of March 8"

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

Dearest Butch,

I'm writing this with the tenderest of feelings. Feelings, which even now surge in my bosom seeking outlet. Feelings which serve to bring sweet (???) memories of a night which the new members of the L. K. D. won't soon forget, for more than one reason.

All in all, though, as I think back, and now that it's all over, I admit that it was lots of fun. I'm just beginning to see the humorous side of some of the antics that were pulled (especially when I think of next year's frosh — I'm going to have fun and I've got a couple of pippin' ideas that would make even the most nonchalant and fear-loving freshman shudder in contemplation.)

Name-Calling Begins

It all started innocently enough, with my being blindfolded and told to walk. I walked all-right, straight into the wall. Just a few minutes had passed when a future brother came up to me and told me that my new name was "Go-dive-in-the-lake." That sounded pretty "screwy" to me but I soon found that it wasn't a very nice name 'cause another brother meandered around in short time and asked me my name.

I told him "Go-dive-in-the-lake." That didn't go over so big and that's when that tender feeling began to appear. Before he went away he changed my name to "You're-a-rotten-egg." I didn't like that name either and when I told another brother that my name was "You're a rotten egg" that tender feeling began to get really tender. What I mean!

No Pushover

So far though it hadn't been half bad, and I began to feel cocky and felt sure that this initiation was going to be a pushover. Then I was told to open my mouth and they told me to chew on a pepper that was as torrid as the Chicago fire. Then, to rub it in, they gave me another one, and if that didn't feel like liquid fire then my name's mud (my name's Joe).

Well, I lived through that one, but through no foult of mine. Little did I realize that the worst was yet to come, especially when they put me two-inches away from the wall and told me to run the 50-yard dash starting like a bat out of Hades. I started out fast enough and I also found out that I'm not superman for the wall didn't budge one inch and I must have bounced back about ten feet, if you go by the snickers and guffaws that went up when I hit.

The Angle Assumed

Then, just on general principles, I was told to assume the angle, and it began to dawn on me that I was going to have lots of trouble eating my meals from the mantelpiece. Still blindfolded I was told to start walking, and walking fast and, naturally enough, I ran smack into a frat brother who gave me the works again because I didn't watch where I was going. That didn't make sense to me and I told him so. Well, that tender feeling wasn't tender anymore. I suppose I must have become anesthetized or just plain calloused by this time.

They soon led me into another room, and this is where the fun began. They told me to swallow something that felt like an oyster but smelled like a combination of H2S and rancid butter from Sloppy Joe's. I managed that, but when they pulled it up again by a string I began to feel like the morning after the night before and stuff.

They then told me to lie down and poured on me the most evil smelling conglomeration of trash imaginable. I figured I was being tarred and feathered but it wasn't anything as pleasant as that, No Sir! Molasses, flour and stuff that any self respecting fly would snub as too low to associate with were the principal ingredients. Then it was an egg shampoo; I was told to rub and rub hard—I rubbed so hard that I pretty near had some fried egg.

Call Me "Pretty Boy"

I was then very prettily painted with mercurochrome and indelible lipstick and I looked like the newest brain-storm of one of these "wacky" surrealists. This being by no means sufficient I was given a general rub-down with oil of wintergreen. I was so hot then that I thought that another degree would make me a good example of cremation. I was told to stand up. A resounding "whack" rent the atmosphere and I prepared for the particular judgment.

I ended there, though, and I was sworn in and stuff. It was lots of fun—and it's too bad you couldn't be there.

Your bosom pal,
I. M. DUM.

Do You "Know Villanova"? Meet Its Originator, Anyhow

By GEORGE FLANNERY

ANTHONY J. LISCIO was born in Philadelphia on June 20, 1915. 'Tis said that when the time came for him to enter grammar school Tony experienced some difficulty in convincing his father that "cops and robbers" was a more interesting method of becoming educated.

In fact, Tony, like many another boy, was unable to drive home his argument and found himself within the portals of St. Rita's grammar school in Philadelphia.

Seminarian

During his last year of grammar school Tony decided that he would like to become a priest. Accordingly, a few months after his graduation from St. Rita's in June, 1929, he applied for admission as a postulant into the Augustinian Order.

In September of that year he was admitted to the Augustinian's preparatory school, St. Rita's Academy, situated on Grimes' Hill, Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y. For three years Tony lived the life of a postulant before he made the momentous decision that his vocation was out in the world.

Leaving the seminary, therefore, he returned to Philadelphia and finished his senior year of high school at Roman Catholic High School, graduating in June, 1933.

Decides on Business

During the ensuing summer months following graduation, he decided that a collegiate career would enhance his chances for success in the business world. When the time came to determine which of the local colleges to enter, Tony, remembering his past association with the renowned teaching methods of the Augustinian Fathers, chose Villanova College.

Enrolling in the School of Commerce and Finance, Tony finished out his freshman year and then left school to enter industry.

For four years Tony worked at a number of jobs, among which were those of salesman, store clerk and painter.

Returning to the Villanova campus in the summer of '39, he attended the Summer School, taking courses in logic and psychology, in order that he might fulfill his desire to condense a four-year college course into three years. Reentering the college proper in September, he took accounting as his major subject.

Athlete As Well

During his freshman year Tony played end on the freshman footgall team and then, when the baseball season started, made the freshman baseball squad, patrolling left field. In his junior and senior years he played on the 150-lb. football team, holding down the left end position.

Writer and Hobbyist

Perhaps Tony is best known for the column "Know Villanova" which he has conducted during his two years as a feature writer on the VILLANOVAN staff. This column dealt with interesting facts about Villanova College's past and present. The Belle Air staff also claimed his services in his senior year.

Commenting on his hobby of collecting stamps from all parts of the world, Tony related he has occupied his leisure with this hobby for over eight years. When queried as to his interest in the opposite sex he said: "Shakespeare once said: 'Any man who thinks he knows what a woman will do next is a fool'; I think he is right."

History Seminar Hears Labor Talk By DiMarcantonio

Epifanio and Brady to Present Contrary Views at Next Meeting

At a meeting of the history seminar held last Tuesday afternoon in Simpson Hall, Richard DiMarcantinio, junior education man, read a paper on labor unions.

DiMarcantonio attempted to prove that certain practices by so-called labor unions were not conducive to collective bargaining, and that therefore the rights of labor to organize as provided by the N. L. R. act were in effect violated by these practices.

Various administrative principles employed by the National Labor Relations Board in the carrying out of the authority contained in the law were also discussed by DiMarcantonio.

At the conclusion of the reading of the paper, the student members joined in a discussion of the ideas set forth in the paper.

William Epifanio and James Brady will present the other paper, which will advance the idea that the act should be amended and that the administrative authority of the Board should be curtailed.

The event proved a huge success, and efforts to secure an equally famous orchestra are already under way.

To Handle Publicity

The band contract, however, is not the only task confronting the chairman and his assistants. Scarcely less important is the management of the advertising essential to the success of any enterprise. The publicity program is handled by these men, and it is their duty to arrange the placards and posters displayed for this affair.

The selection of this committee practically completes the Junior Week appointments. The few remaining will be released after the Easter vacation, according to the statement of the class president. In the meantime, the various chairmen and their committees will act to make the activities under their supervision the successes they desire.

Explaining the purpose of this annual trek to the national capital, Dr. Hartman said, "The fundamental purpose of this particular activity is to familiarize the students with the practical operation of the legislative, administrative, and judicial processes of the national government. It is hoped that by achieving this purpose the students may better appreciate the advantages of democratic and representative institutions over those offered by dictatorial and authoritarian governments."

which first expressed a desire to revive Delta Pi Epsilon.

Upon being interviewed after the election, he stated: "We hope to accomplish something definite by the end of the year. We would especially like to obtain keys for the members of the fraternity."

Vice-president Ed Jonik, who is also editor-in-chief of the Belle Air, said: "After desiring a fraternity for two years, we have finally achieved the proper set-up on the eve of our exit. We hope that the senior members will at least have the satisfaction of getting the activities of the fraternity underway."

Jim Brady, Student Council representative, commented: "We plan to have speakers at the fraternity meetings who will give us the practical side of business as opposed to the theoretical."

There will be a meeting of Delta Pi Epsilon in the amphitheatre at 1:00 P. M. today. Pledges from the C. & F. students who have not yet joined the fraternity will be received in the near future. At the present time there are approximately sixty students enrolled in the fraternity.

All four are students of Rosemont College and hold dramatic roles in the Belle Masque Society's "The Tavern," this year's play to be presented April 17, 19 and 21, in the Villanova Field House.

KGS To Hear Borkowski

Adolph Borkowski, freshman science man, will present a paper to the members of Kappa Gamma Sigma, the recently organized physics club, when the latter meets tomorrow at 3:15 P. M.

The paper will deal with the application of physics to medicine and will bring forth the important and almost imperative part that physics has played in the medical sciences.

A part of the meeting will also be devoted to the election of officers, which was delayed pending the approval of the candidates by vice-president Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A.

The last meeting of the organization featured a paper presented by Francis McLaughlin, who spoke on the historical aspects of physical science, namely its nature and the men who have established the science.

"The history of science," said McLaughlin, "properly viewed is more interesting than the history of wars and emperors; it tells the story of the development of human ideas."

The science of physics was little advanced prior to the sixteenth century and contributions to it could compare to the contributions made in other fields, he stated.

The science of physics might be said to have "burst into bloom" with the discovery of Galileo on the nature of falling bodies. From this time on, one can name the great men who have contributed to physics and thus tell the story of the science.

Many great men after Galileo could be named, including Torricelli, Pascal von Guericke, Boyle, Huygen and Newton.

"No history could be complete," continued McLaughlin, "without at least a mention of the great names of Galvani, Volta, Ohm, Ampere, Farady and Davy; great names in a great science."

McLaughlin concluded his paper with a review of the modern advancements in physics, and called particular attention and tribute to the great efforts of the Curies, who devoted almost their entire lives to the advancement of the science and sought no financial remuneration for their immortal discoveries.

RELATIONS CLUB MEETING HEARS U. S.-EUROPE TOPIC

"Relationship of the United States with Europe during and since the World War" will be discussed at the meeting of the International Relations Club tomorrow at 3:15 P. M. in room 111, Mendel hall.

The topic was to be discussed at the meeting last week, which was postponed because of the illness of John P. Fullam, sophomore education student, who was to lead the discussion with Howard A. McCall, sophomore in the Arts School.

This will be the last meeting of the group until the conclusion of the Easter holidays.

SPANISH MEETING

A meeting of the Spanish Club will be held tomorrow evening immediately after chapel period in Room 106, Mendel hall. All members are asked to be present, as important business will be discussed.

Main topic of interest hereabouts at the present time is the possibility of Villanova being an entrant, for the second straight year, in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's annual basketball tourney to determine a national champion.

Last year's Villanova entrant, as is well known, won the eastern championship but lost to the strong Ohio State five from the mid west. Such a showing by Villanova was acknowledged to be commendable, especially since they went through the greater part of their schedule without the services of George "Duke" Duzminski, one of the greatest individuals in inter-collegiate ranks during the past three years.

This year Villanova played a nineteen game schedule and in losing only two battles established quite an impressive record. The two losses, one to Indiana and one to Baltimore University, do not mar the Villanova record greatly. No basketball team is expected to reel through a tough season undefeated. Witness the acknowledged outstanding N. Y. U. five which went undefeated through the entire season and dropped their final battle to C. C. N. Y., whom the Violets could probably beat in any nine out of ten games. We do not believe that this loss hurt N. Y. U.'s reputation to any extent. And in the same manner the two defeats sustained by Villanova's Wildcats cannot be considered a reason for their elimination from the N. C. A. A. tournament.

No eastern representative has been named as this is written and two of Villanova's strongest competitors for an N. C. A. A. berth have been eliminated. The aforementioned N. Y. U. club has declined to play in any tournament this year and Duquesne University, whose only defeat was at the hands of Indiana, a conqueror of Villanova, has accepted an invitation to play in the New York Sportswriters tournament, a financially lucrative affair.

With these facts in mind it seems likely to this column that Villanova will be named as the Middle Atlantic State district representative with the possibility of Darthmouth as New England competitor. No official basis for this surmising is had of course. It is merely the product of an elimination proceeding among the other eligible teams. Certainly no other team from the Philadelphia district could be chosen above Villanova as it is recognized that the Villanova club was far superior to anything else Philly has to offer.

Certainly the men who have played for Villanova during the past year deserve another opportunity to display their wares.

So Long, Al — Maybe

In the usual order courtmen Lloyd Rice, Bill Sinnott, "Duke" Duzminski and Mike Lazorchak bid adieu to Coach Al Severance. Unless an invitation to participate in one of the national basketball tourneys is received and accepted the above four have played their last basketball for Villanova and will graduate in June.

Star Events In Penn Relays Objective Of Trackmen

Wildcat Cindermen Work Hard in Hope of Copping American Championship Events; Indoor Season Cut Short by Withdrawal From K. C. Games

With the close of the indoor track season last week, Jumbo Elliot immediately put his charges to work in preparation for the Penn Relays.

Although there may be one or two meets before the Franklin Field Carnival, Jumbo will concentrate his full efforts on producing a championship winner in both the 440, and 880 yard relay events.

It may be that last year's team consisting of Johnny Maher, Bill Guiteras, "Legs" Shadlosky and "Whitey" Urbellis, placed fourth in the title race in which Pitt won in record time. This was the first Wildcat team ever to place so high in an American championship.

At the present time, of course, there is no picked team, it being a little early to test the men, but Elliot believes the leading candidates to be the four men already mentioned, and Barney Bellew, Pete Yankauskas and Bill Carey, who are proving to be dangerous threats for positions.

Drilling these men in the technicalities of relay-sprinting and baton passing will prove a serious undertaking, therefore justifying the early start.

Jumbo states that he feels exceedingly confident that the team will be right up with the leaders in both events

Winning or placing in these two events has been the ultimate goal for the trackmen, as they carried this thought with them throughout the indoor season.

Without a doubt a victory or a place in either of these national championships will establish Villanova as a major track power in the country.

Probably the only man sure of a place on the team right now is Johnny Maher. Last year Johnny ran in both these races beside competing against other leading sprinters of the nation, in the Penn Invitation "100" yard dash.

Maher will have his hands full as there will be heats and semifinals in the 440 and 880 on Friday afternoon with two finals on Saturday morning. He'll have to do all this before lining up in the special "100" yard dash.

Competing against anywhere from 30 to 45 colleges and universities will not dampen the hopes and expectations of Elliot as he thinks the prospects of a brilliant showing will turn from the potential to a fact.

The indoor track season officially closed with the Catholic University meet two days ago as the Villanova team decided to withdraw from last Saturday's Knights of Columbus games in New York City. The K. of C. affair was originally scheduled to be the season's finale for Villanova.

BAUMHOLTZ LEADS ALL-OPPONENT TEAM

Baltimore University received top honors in the annual all-opponent basketball team by placing two of her stand-out guards on the first team as selected by the ballots of the Wildcat quintet.

Pellino and Oland, prominent fixtures in the defeat of the Blue and White were elected to those honors because of their superlative play in breaking down the winning streak that Villanova had established since the Indiana loss. They received four out of six points to nose out Carrig of Catholic U. and Pitt of P. M. C.

High-scoring, Baumholtz representing Ohio University, along with Simmers of Waynesburg College were the only two on the balloting who were chosen by unanimous decision, while Schaeffer, set-shot artist representing the Big

Joe Bochetto, Fedigan ace for the past four years, finished his intramural career in another blaze of glory yesterday with his selection on the "All-Intramural" basketball team for the fourth straight year. Dan Keating now of Austin and formerly a Mendel Dayhop took honors for the third straight year.

It is interesting to note that every team which participated in the race placed two men on the first two teams with the exception of Austin. The boys are chosen mainly for their basketball ability, but their willingness and attitude played an important part in the selection.

The method used in choosing this team was the same as used in the past two years. Six judges, Revs. E. McKee, J. Dunne, R. Sullivan, J. McGuire and V. McQuade and George Fitzgerald, each selected a first and second team. Two points were given to the men selected on each voter's first team and one point if selected to the second. The points were then totaled and the two teams consisted of the men with the highest number of points for their positions. Each of the men on the first team received ten votes with the exception of Dan Keating who topped the field with eleven points, one short of a perfect score.

At forwards are Dan Keating and Harold King. The former was not only the standout of Austin, but also of the entire league which he led in scoring with 186 points. Dan, also, holds the scoring record for one game this year with twenty-five and has scored as high as fifty-four points in one week. Dan not only makes most of Austin points himself but time after time sets up plays for the other fellows to score. The latter, Harold "Duke" King, is only a first year man but has been honored already by being placed on the first team. "Duke" was a good ball-handler and a consistent scorer for Alumni. He placed second only to Keating in the scoring with 150 points.

Choosing a center for the team was the same old story and no other choice but Joe Bochetto would be tolerated. Joe is one of the finest pivot men in the league and was destined to be on this team; in fact he has been a permanent fixture on the team in his four years at Villanova. Frank Connors, chosen for this position on the second team, is outstanding but does not approach the smooth style and never-say-die spirit of Bochetto.

Bob Depersio and Art Martin topped the voting for the guard positions. Art, also, is a Freshman and is up among the leading point scorers of the league. Although his team was down in fifth place, Art continued to play his hardest in an effort to move them up the ladder. Bob's team is the cellar team but to see Bob play you would think he was trying to protect first place for his team. He plays the whole game in the same way, regardless of whether his team is ahead or behind. This is the first year Bob has received the honor of being on the first team, but he still has one year to go and if he maintains his spirit and style of play, he is a sure bet for next year's team.

Don McGurk, in the opinion of the judges, would probably be on the first team had he played all season, for in his short appearance in the second half, he has been outstanding. However, he was placed on the second team.

The second team consists of very able players, who would give anyone a run for their money. In the forward position, Jack McFadden of Alumni and Dan Dalina were right in every game and deserve at least the recognition they are receiving. As was said, Frank Connors of Fedigan is second only to Joe Bochetto in the center slot. Don McGurk occupies one guard position and there is a tie between Jim O'Brien of Mendel Residents and Jim Meehan of C and F.

Ivy League Invites Swimmers

Walt Kelley and Bill Hooper, freestyle stars of Villanova's tank aggregation, have been invited to participate in the Eastern Intercollegiate League swimming championships on March 15 and 16. The meet will be held in Hutchinson Pool, 34th and Spruce Sts., in Philadelphia.

Although the meet is an "Ivy" League" affair it was decided to invite the cream of the independent crop of swimmers to join with the league stars so that the meet winners will prove actual eastern champions.

It will be the first time that either Kelley, a junior, or Hooper, a sophomore, have competed in the meet. Kelley swims the fifty and one hundred yard sprints while Hooper participates in the two hundred and twenty, and four hundred yard distance events. Both have been highly successful throughout the 1940 swim season, recently completed. Kelly finished the Villanova season undefeated in his events.

Eliminations will begin Friday afternoon, March 15, and will continue on Friday night and Saturday afternoon with the finals scheduled for Saturday.

The meet is being sponsored this year by the University of Pennsylvania.

Alumnus To Honor 150 Gridder

An annual reward for "The outstanding player on the one fifty pound football team" will be created by an interested alumnus, the VILLANOVAN learned yesterday.

This valuable prize will go to the team member who in the eyes of his fellow team members has shown "good sportsmanship, consistently good play, regular attendance at practice and interest in the team."

Officially, sanction has been secured for the award and voting will be held tomorrow at 1 o'clock in the VILLANOVAN office under the supervision of the sports staff.

This award is being sponsored by an alumnus who wishes to remain anonymous. While at Villanova he did not participate in athletics but realizing the situation of the lightweight football team and wishing to create interest in it decided upon this method.

All members who were regular members or managers of the 150 lb. squad are eligible to vote and any team member is eligible for the award.

When the voting is completed the results will be announced through these columns. The alumnus will be notified and will forward the award which will be on display for several days before being awarded to the winner.

Commerce Dayhops To Face Fedigan In I-M Playoffs

The intramural basketball championship for the second half of the season has finally been decided. The C. & F. Dayhops gained undisputed possession of first place and also of the title Thursday night when Fedigan's last chance for the crown dissappeared as they lost to the Mendel Day Students by the score of 43-32.

It was ironical that the Mendel team should knock Fedigan out of the running for the second half title as the Fediganites had little trouble in defeating the Mendel team three times previous to Thursday evenings game.

Fedigan had a one point lead over the Dayhops at half-time, the score being 18-17. However, with Rielly leading the attack with 11 counters, Mendel outscored Fedigan in the second half by 12 points. Making their shots good from all parts of the court, the Mendel team played their best game of the season. High scoring honors for Mendel and also for the game went to Rielly who besides his 11 markers in the second half, scored 4 points in the first half for a total of 15. Bochetto and Conners led the losers in scoring with 8 points apiece.

Three other games were played during the week only one of which had any effect on the standings. C. & F. continued their march toward the title on Tuesday afternoon by trouncing the Mendel Residents by the one sided score of 56-26. Led by Famiglietti and Coupe, the second half champs kept the pressure on all the way and simply overpowered the hapless Mendelites. Green led Mendel in scoring with 10 counters.

Tuesday evening Alumni defeated the Mendel Dayhops by the score of 39-25. This game was marked by close guarding and hence little scoring the first half. At the half the score was 15-6 in favor of Alumni. However, both teams had their scoring clothes on during the second half with Alumni dropping in twelve field goals and Mendel eight. J. McFadden looped in seven field goals for fourteen points to take high scoring honors for the evening.

On Wednesday evening Fedigan had a comparatively easy job in vanquishing Alumni by 38-21. The Gigolos built up a half time lead of 19-8 and were never headed during the remainder of the game, holding Alumni to four field goals in the second half.

In the final standings Austin and Alumni tied for third place with five victories and five defeats apiece. The Mendel Dayhops brought up fifth place with a record of three victories and seven defeats. In the cellar position were the Mendel Residents who won two while losing eight.

Keating Tops I-M Scorers With 186 Pts; King Second

Dan Keating, who finished second only to Bernie Crumb in scoring last year, copped the scoring honors himself this year with 186 points in the 16 games which he participated for an average of 11.6 points per game. Dan led the scoring two weeks ago with an average of 10.2 points per game but has increased this to 11.6 mainly because of his 54 points in three games in one week. Right behind Dan is Harold "Duke" King who moved up from third to second place in the past two weeks. King has participated in 19 games, caging 61 field goals and 28 fouls for a total of 150 points and an average of 7.9 points per game.

Frank Connors, of Fedigan, is third with 143 while Jack McFadden occupies fourth, trailing Frank by a single point. Art Martin of the Mendel Residents who formerly occupied second place, rounds out the first five high scorers with 139 points on 61 field goals and 17 fouls. Although C & F won the second half crown, its first representative is George Coupe who occupies ninth place with 102 points, one point ahead of his team mate Jim Buxeda.

Among the 19 players who have 60 points or better as listed below, Austin has two, Alumni, three, Fedigan, five, C & F, five, and the Mendel Residents and Mendel Day Students, two each.

Ten team, Indiana, drew four votes in his favor. Undoubtedly the five chosen could match odds against any team in the country, furnishing hard opposition to the Varsity players and therefore stood out as the select five of opponents.

Heading the list for second team honors were players who stood high in rank but received insufficient voting to place their names on the first squad. None received unanimous ranking but Platt of Brown and Carrig of Catholic U. were high in their respective positions. Other players included Piff of P. M. C., Armstrong of Indiana and Pelletier of Assumption.

The total of the two mythical championship squads represent the cream of the crop as selected by the men who played against them. Individual scoring and tricky floor work marked each player in his efforts against the Wildcats. Some were responsible for their team's victory as was the case of Pellino and Oland of Baltimore U., who led the assault upon a surprised Villanova squad. Their defensive abilities enhanctd the Baltimore victory by holding the ball in the last few minutes of the game which marked defeat for the Severance sharpshooters. Schaeffer of Indiana, along with his teammate, Armstrong, were prominently pictured in Villanova's first setback as their fast playing and sure shots repeatedly drew rounds of applause.

Honorable mention was given to Feucht of Lehigh, Ross of Baltimore, and Biasetto of P. M. C. This trio was judged by the votes received after the selection of the quintet.

Blue Nine Outdoors

The baseball team went outdoors for the first time last Friday. Due to the excessive cold and damp weather they were forced to confine former workouts to a loosening up exercise in the gym.

With the first game less than four weeks away no one was more pleased to get outdoors than "Doc" Jacobs himself. "Doc" was a bit worried by the weather conditions and feared that the players would still be stiff and out of shape for the first diamond encounter.

'DUKE' NOSED OUT OF SCORING CROWN

P.M.C. Forward Cops District Laurels After Wildcats Completed Season

Cancellation of the St. John's game probably cost Villanova"s star, "Duke" Duzminski, his second Philadelphia district scoring championship in three years of varsity play. While the Duke has been idle since the Baltimore game three weeks ago P.M.C.'s team has been very active and has established its players in the district columns.

The Philly crown was copped by Willie Piff, P.M.C., with 217 points, four more than Duzminski. Villanova's Paul Nugent and P.M.C.'s Al Boandel tied for third place with 211 points each although Nugent racked up 93 field goals to Boandl's 85.

Next ranking Villanova player in the final computation was Mike Lazorchak, who led the district through the early part of the season. Mike finished up in eighth place with 192 points. Fourth among the Villanovans was Chuck Yund with 104 points followed by Lloyd Rice with ninety-three.

Duzminski had the best per-game average of the Villanova team with an average of 11.2 tallies per game.

The team scored 936 points to its opponents 678.

Spring Grid Training Underway; "Rhythm Shift" In Technicolor

With the freshman candidates having completed a week of Spring practice and the leftovers from last year having reported yesterday Clipper Smith and his football Wildcats have settled down to real work in preparation for next fall and Villanova's hardest task in recent years.

Besides physical practice sessions Smith's "football class" will continue as in former years. Three days per week of this class will be devoted to lectures and two days per week to pictures of past games. The course will be capped by written examinations.

A chance to become "movie heroes" will be given Romanowski, Neri, Urbellis, Gogolinski, and Chisick, gridmen from last year. Smith plans to catch the rhythm shift of these men in technicolor on the movie screen to use as a guide for future Villanova teams. The players named had the shift down pat last year and it is believed that seeing how to do it will help the gridders of this and future years.

Several switches are contemplated in the playing positions of some of the players. Bill Howlett will be tried out a quarterback and Pete Yankauskas will be used at fullback. Formerly they were halfback and fullback, respectively. Also many of the freshmen will be changed from the positions they played last fall in an effort to strengthen weak positions on the squad.

Smith has hopes that Johnny Gogolinski will return to school for another year so that he can be used as a "spotter." "Gogo" is a senior, but he played only two years of varsity football for the Wildcats. It is believed that he would be invaluable to next years team.

As regards next year's schedule negotiations are still being carried on. The Auburn game has not been definitely set yet but there is hope that a deal will be closed soon. Probability is that it will be played in Birmingham, Alabama. Oregon State does not seem a likelihood for this fall but they will probably adorn the schedule in 1941 and 1942.

The P. M. C. and Florida games are to be played at night and an attempt is being made to shift the Kansas game from Saturday afternoon to Friday night. All of these games are scheduled for Shibe Park.

In last week's opening Spring sessions several of the freshman candidates showed aptitude for the Villanova system of play. The initial sessions were quite satisfactory.

Kittens Win Over V. F. M. A. Swimmers

The Villanova Freshman swimmers floated to the top Wednesday, after being sunk last week by the Penn tankers, to down the Valley Forge Aquatic team by a 37-28 margin.

The Wildcats were in fine form, taking six of the first places out of the eight events and held a slight lead all through the meet.

A four-way tie developed for the scoring honors between Mauch, Desmond, Powell and Rilley, all of Villanova. Each won a first place and swam on the free style relay team that took first place.

HERE and THERE
By JIM HAUGHTON

IT all came about so unexpectedly. There was snow on the ground and the topic was, as expected, about the weather. And at that it was pretty quiet.

But the Old Grad back for a short visit broke the calm. "Say how's the 150 footbal team coming along here? What sort of a season did they have this year?"

Well if you ask me," remarked the resting Senior from his upper deck perch, they should have the best team in the league. But they don't get the breaks. Some of the players are as good as found anywhere. Yet they can't carry all the burden on their shoulders."

We interrupted, "as for records talking they're pretty quiet. Though some of the games could have been won as easily as they were lost."

"Why," asked the alumnus, "don't more fellows come out for the team? There are plenty of good high and prep ball players who are eligible for the team yet they never come out. At least that's the way it was when I was here."

The senior, who himself had contributed to the not too appreciated glory of the lightweights, couldn't figure out why a schedule filled with such flossy names as Princeton, Yale, Rutgers, Lafayette, Cornell and Penn couldn't inviegle any college lad to offer his best for alma mammy.

"Some of those trips are pretty nice in themselves and the boys aren't too tough."

Finally the alumnus hit upon an idea.

"Why not have an award for the outstanding boy on the 150 lb. squad. This award would be made each year on the voting of the squad themselves. Any one on the team is eligible. It doesn't necessarily have to be the star. A sub is just as deserving of it. It should go to the player who has shown consistency in play, interest in the team, regular attendance at practice and above all good sportsmanship."

It was a fine idea, we all agreed. But who is going to give this award? Nobody around here, to be sure. Not after the way battles ensue over a dime.

"I'll give it," said the graduate with that "most successful man in the class" tone. "And it will be a good one. Somethink like a watch. Anything to get a little interest in the 150's. I never played the game myself but after seeing the work some of the fellows put in it, well, anything is worth it."

So there you have the whole story. There's not much more we can say. This alumnus at his own expense is attempting to create interest in the lightweight by offering a valuable prize.

SIX NEW MEMBERS ADMITTED TO CEM

Honor Fraternity to Formally Welcome Neophytes, Present Keys at Banquet

John J. Seelaus, senior mechanical engineer and president of the Chi Epsilon Mu, has announced the acceptance of six new members to the youngest fraternity on the campus.

Those being received into the fraternity are Edward J. Cierkowski and John J. Maucieri of the senior class, and William J. Appel, George L. Haluzka, Frank W. Smith, and Raymond E. Vener of the junior class. These new members raise the total membership to twelve.

No plans have been made, nor has any committee been appointed for the initiation banquet. This year's affair will be attended by a guest speaker and the whole engineering faculty. The new members will be presented with their keys at the banquet. Sometime around the middle of April, the fraternity will hold a meeting to elect officers.

This honor fraternity, which was formed only last May, is the highest honor an engineering student can attain, as only juniors with exceptional records and seniors who have been outstanding scholastically are nominated. As yet the fraternity is local, but it looks forward to affiliation with a national engineering honarary group, such as Tau Beta Pi.

The keys with which the new members will be presented are gold with "Villanova" across the top in gold on blue; the name of the fraternity, "Chi Epsilon Mu" is across the center on white and the background of the lower portion is also gold.

In the fraternity's name, "Chi" stands for civil and chemical engineering, "Epsilon" for electrical, and "Mu" for mechanical.

Priest Writes For Anti-Communism

"Is Communism Dead?" an article by Rev. Charles J. McFadden, O. S. A., Ph. D., Associate Professor of Religion, appeared in the March, 1940, issue of the national magazine "Telling Facts".

Fr. McFadden pointed out that, to a certain extent, Communism is right in its protests, but that it is definitely wrong in its proposed method of bettering society through violent revolution.

"Do not forget," states Fr. McFadden, "that Communism is born of social injustice. . .God forbid that we shall be so complacent as to forget that we have not eradicated the causes of Communism from our social system. All Communism needs is another opportunity. It is going to get that opportunity. The question is: Will we be ready for the battle?"

"Telling Facts" is a Catholic periodical published primarily for the purpose of counteracting Communism. Edited by Fr. Louis A. Gales, coeditor of the- "Catholic Digest," its objective is to present Catholic social philosophy and the Catholic critique of Communism in language understandable to the ordinary workingman.

AIEE MEMBERS SEE FILM ON LAMP MANUFACTURING

"Mazda Lamp Manufacturing," a picture presenting many sidelights on the automatic machine production of Mazda Lamps, was shown to the local branch members of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers yesterday.

In addition to the presentation of the motion picture, John J. Skelly, a junior member of the chapter, gave a talk on current technical events in the electrical world.

His main discussion concerned the use of sodium vapor lamps on a 50-mile stretch of highway in New Jersey.

On Wednesday, March 6, the members of the A. I. E. E. made an inspection trip to radio station WCAU in Philadelphia, where Mr. Lynch, a prominent constructor, led a tour through the studios and equipment rooms.

WOODS STUDIED BY MUSIC SEMINAR

Instruments To Be Explained and Illustrated at Meeting Tomorrow Evening

A sound motion picture illustrating the various woodwind instruments of the symphony orchestra will highlight the program on the "Woodwind Choir of the Symphony Orchestra," which is to be given at the meeting of the Music Seminar in Simpson hall tomorrow evening at 7:30.

Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the seminar, will first explain what the instruments of the woodwind choir are and what their purpose is, meanwhile illustrating their sound and range by means of selected passages.

Following this will be the sound picture illustrating the use and position of the woodwind instruments.

At the last seminar meeting, Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Ph. D., associate professor of chemistry and chemical engineering, explained and illustrated the stories of Gounod's opera "Faust" and Bizet's "Carmen."

Opening his lecture-recital with a few strains from "Faust" on the piano, Dr. Haenisch first gave a brief synopsis of the opera and then proceeded to give a detailed account of the opera.

SOCIOLOGY STUDY GROUP DISCUSSES ANTI-SEMITISM

Situations Concerning Bible Prophesies Remarked at March 5 Meeting

Anti-Semitic situations concerning the prophesies from the Bible, pertinent to the persecution of the Jews, were discussed by the Sociology Seminar last Tuesday, March 5.

In the absence of Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., moderator of the seminar, the discussion was directed by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A.

Fr. Vrana gave his opinion and maintained that the various complaints brought against the Jews were not fundamentally true but were merely used as weapons in time of political disturbance; and that, from specific instances, people have made unfair generalization concerning them.

The seminar will meet as usual under Fr. McQuade today, at 3:45 P. M. in Simpson hall.

VARSITY DEBATERS ACTIVE

Beta Gamma dropped a close decision to the debaters of Misericordia College last Friday night at Dallas, Pa. The question, in which Villanova took the negative, was the standard isolationist one.

Representing Beta Gamma against the women's college were Robert J. McIntyre, sophomore commerce student; John J. Raney, senior engineer, and Thomas J. Moore, junior education man.

Each debater gave a ten-minute constructive argument and returned with a five-minute rebuttal speech.

JUSTICE F. MURPHY, J. MADDEN ADDRESS CAPITOL VISITORS

Thruman Arnold Also Met; Group Feted By Washington Alumni

By WILLIAM E. SCHUBERT

Conferences with Associate Justice of the United States Supreme court Frank J. Murphy, National Labor Relations Board Chairman, J. Warren Madden, and Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold were the principal features of the third annual trip to Washington, made by the students of the American Government and Constitutional Law classes.

The trip which was held on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, April 3, 4, and 5, was conducted by Dr. Harold F. Hartman and Rev. John R. Dunne, O. S. A.

Justice Murphy gave a brief outline of the growth of the Supreme Court since its first session when it also performed the duties now included in the jurisdiction of the Federal District Courts. Afterwards he sketched the functions of the court as it exists today. He stressed "advocacy" as the most important quality that anyone appearing before the Court should have. "Advocacy" he explained as something more than the ability to present mere arguments or to speak in a fluently oratorical fashion. It is the power to present to the court, in a strong and pleasing manner, an orderly, logical arrangement of well prepared arguments.

"The Organization and Administrative Procedure of the National Labor Relations Board" was discussed by the chairman of the Board, Mr. Madden. His talk dealt mainly with the manner in which cases are brought before, investigated by, and decided on the Board.

Mr. Thurman Arnold explained the duties of the Attorney General. He illusrated the activities of his office by tracing several actual and fictitious cases of companies who had infringed on some federal

OWN A PERSONAL ANNUAL

Any student desiring to have his name engraved on the cover of his copy of the "Belle Air" must give his name, together with 40 cents to the Belle Air office, room 51 Mendel, or to any member of the Belle Air staff before April 15. No orders will be taken after this date.

Annual Conferral Of "Merit Awards" Held Early In May

Fr. Stanford to Present Certificates to Extra-Curricular Participants

"Merit Awards" will be conferred during the first or second week of May, the exact date as yet to be set.

These certificates of honor will be presented on behalf of the faculty as a whole by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., before the entire student body assembled in the Commerce and Finance auditorium.

By this system of awards, students are given recognition for their participation in extra-curricular activities. Only those who have good scholastic standing and who have shown themselves to be "worthy of merit" in one or more of the sixty approved activities are eligible to receive "Merit Awards."

These awards are of use in giving recognition to those students who participate in many activities of the college, but have not chosen activities which are rewarded with such as distinctions as athletic letters and keys.

While Villanova is not the only college now using this system, it was among the first; other institutions, such as the U. S. Military Academy, have followed its example.

CARD PARTY HELD

Approximately 700 persons attended the annual Augustinian Guild Card Party, held last Tuesday, April 2, in the Field House.

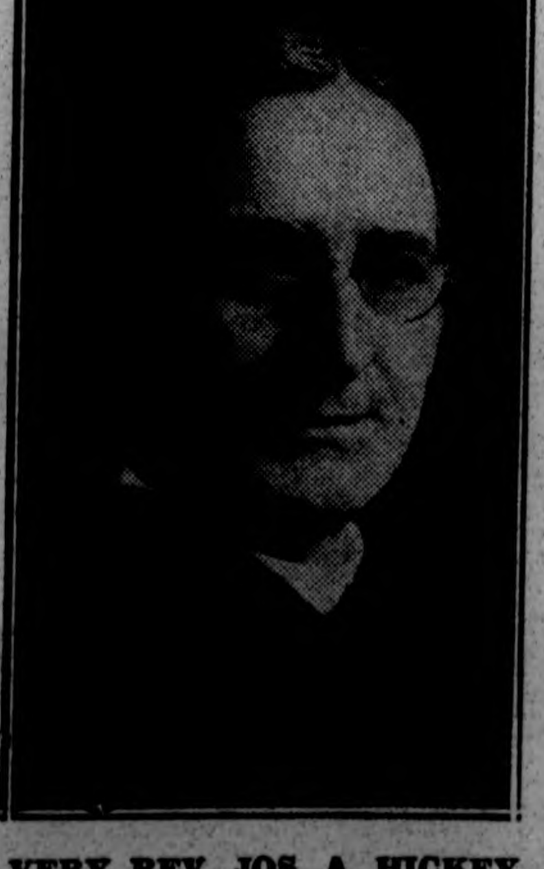
Features of the evening were card playing in the gymnasium, "bingo" upstairs and, later, dancing to the music of the Villanovans.

Nation Hears Fr. Hickey

By JOHN HARRINGTON
Former Editor-in-Chief

Pagans find in exaggerated liberalism no ground for the liberties they would glorify, declared the Very Rev. Joseph Hickey, O. S. A., former president of Villanova, in a radio sermon last Sunday from the Vatican City, Rome, Italy.

In glorifying the human spirit they have rejected as degrading any law but human reason, forgetting that only in Truth is freedom found, continued the present assistant General of the Order of St. Augustine.



VERY REV. JOS. A. HICKEY, O. S. A., D. D., Assistant General of the Augustinian Order of English Speaking Nations.

Speaking on "The Spiritual Dignity of Man," Fr. Hickey emphasized that due regard for human dignity lies at the very foundation of civilization.

The priest, a member of the Board of Directors of the Sacred Congregation of Sacraments, said that irrespective of race, creed or degree of culture every person was destined for God. In His providence God had not only given him an exalted destiny, but ransomed him with His blood, and given him a church to guide him and minister unto him in his religious needs.

The Schola Cantorum of the International Augustinian College in Rome opened and closed the Church of the Air Program with compositions for four vocies.

Fr. Hickey said that if man were but a superior animal respected only through self-interest, expediency, or artificial conventions the veneer of civilization would disappear when it conflicted with force, A moral chaos would bring with it jungle law. There are examples today of communities of a materialistic concept which disregard the fundamental rights of

Five Juniors Aid Blazer Chairman

Five members of the third year class have been selected to serve on the Blazer Committee, Daniel J. Keating, president of the class of 1941, announced recently.

Those chosen are as follows: Edward Banagan and James T. Brady, commerce students; Charles V. Dolan, science man, and Robert P. Schisler and Francis S. Vogel, students in the School of Arts.

These members of the junior class assisted Clifford Randolph, Blazer Chairman, in the selection of Jacob Reed and Sons, the firm which is filling the blazer contract. The blazers are purchased by the juniors for the Blazer Ball, held during Junior Week.

Two Top "Name-Bands" Present Opposite Tempos

Sponsors Plan Alternating Half-Hour and Hour Periods of Music to Please Lovers of "Sweet" and Addicts of "Hot"

By JAMES F. HAUGHTON

Music by Van Alexander and Leighton Noble. Two of America's "name" bands. One sweet — one hot. Five hours of continuous dancing. Two charming vocalists. Two male vocal combinations. A comic songster.

That's the musical menu for the Villanova Junior Prom as announced by George W. Coupe, Jr., chairman of the Prom committee; a "double-header" for the first time in Prom history.

Dancing will be continuous for five hours, from 9:00 P. M. to 2:00 A. M. Each orchestra will begin with a half-hour program and then divide the evening's entertainment with hourly and half-hourly offerings.

Extra entertainment will be the keynote of the evening. Noble, besides directing from his piano, will feature his beautiful, southern songstress, Edith Caldwell, "Chick" Lloyd, a talented pianist, and the Noble trio.

Alexander, also directing from the keyboard, will offer Phyllis Kenny, a lovely chanteuse, and "Butch" Stone with his comic vocals.

Both orchestras are coming to Villanova on May 10, direct from hotel engagements. Noble is now beginning an extended engagement at the Garden Terrace of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia, from whence he will issue a nation-wide broadcast three times weekly. Alexander will bring his complete outfit direct from New York.

The composer of "A Tisket a Tasket," Alexander has one of the fastest-rising bands in the land. Both RCA and Victor records are grooming him to take his place with America's greats. Among his other song hits are: "Got a Pebble in My Shoe," "In a Good For Nothing Mood," and "Alexander's Swingin'". He also arranged Ella Fitzgerald's now famous rendition of the basket song.

Noble has been playing at the Hotel Statler in Boston during the winter months, broadcasting almost nightly over the nation-wide network of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

One of the nation's best arrangers, Alexander took to orchestra work and was an instant success.

'THE TAVERN' CAST O'BRIEN PLAYS LEAD

Director Assigns Male Roles in Annual Belle Masque Production

Enacting a role made famous by George M. Cohan, Robert E. O'Brien will portray the leading character of the "Vagabond" in this year's Belle Masque production, "The Tavern."

To him, a senior in the School of Commerce and Finance, goes the difficult assignment of making plausible the part of the happy-go-lucky wanderer who considers all the events of the drama as amusing because prearranged.

This information was disclosed by Anthony J. Frayne, M. A., director, along with the names of those filling the other male parts of the play written by Cohan.

Of the seven other parts to be played by Villanova students, six have definitely been filled. Four commerce students and two artsmen have secured these roles.

The only role not yet finally determined upon is that of the "Sheriff." The leading applicant for the part is Alfred Skaf, junior in the School of Commerce and Finance.

Commerce men who have secured parts are: Victor I. Cook, senior, as "Freeman," John J. McGovern, junior, as "William," Frank Buckley, sophomore, as "Zach," and Frank Quaranta, sophomore, as "Allen."

"Stevens" is portrayed by Joseph M. McNamara, senior artsman, and the "Governor" by James F. Donovan, junior in the School of Arts.

As was previously announced, the four Rosemont College girls acting in the production are Georgina Lewis, Sue Cissell, Mary Ambrose, and Pat MacDonald.

Rehearsals are continuing at a rapid pace to put the show in shape for the dates of April 19, 21 and 23.

Debaters To Meet St. Joseph Frosh

Devine, Ward, Borden, Guncheon to Uphold Negative of "Isolation" Topic

This afternoon, the freshman debating team will engage the St. Joseph's debaters in a non-decision debate at Villanova. The question will be the "Isolation" topic; the Villanova team, composed of Thomas Devine, Ward Guncheon, and Edward Borden, will uphold the negative.

The first-year men engaged in two debates last week, meeting the Penn yearling debaters at Penn on Wednesday and making their annual trek to St. John's of Brooklyn on Friday.

Joseph Mahoney, George Harris and Thomas Devine upheld the negative side of the question: "Resolved, that the United States should follow a policy of strict isolation (both economic and militaristic) toward all nations outside the western hemisphere engaged in armed civil or international strife," against Penn. Harris presented the rebuttal arguments for Villanova.

In the debate at St. John's, Martin Langweiler and Loring Jones upheld the affairmative of the same question.

The rebuttal was taken care of by Langweiler. Both contests were non-decision.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

At the meeting of the International Relations Club tomorrow at 3:15 P. M. in Simpson Hall, the peace efforts of the present Holy Father Pope Pius XII. will be discussed.

The discussion will be carried on as has been outlined in the pamphlet "Piux XII. and Peace 1939-40," which has been put out by the National Catholic Welfare Council. This is one of the many pamphlets in the club's reference library. Because all future meetings will be held in Simpson Hall, the library will be moved there too.

L.K.D. Closes Season At Arcadia April 13

Eleven Seniors to Receive Keys at Dinner-Dance

The Lambda Kappa Delta, fraternity of the School of Science, will close its social functions for the present year this Saturday night, April 13, when it will have its annual Dinner-Dance at the Arcadia International Restaurant.

Rev. Joseph M. Doughtery, O. S. A., Dean of the Science School and moderator of the pre-medical fraternity, will preside over the festivities which will start at 7:00 P. M. At this occasion, the senior members of the fraternity who are in good standing will be presented with the honorary fraternity keys.

Seniors who receive the keys of the L. K. D. fraternity are as follows: Joseph M. Back, Bernard A. Bellew, Alfred M. Bongiovanni, Peter E. Hanlon, Charles G. Martin, Richard S. Refowich, Harry M. Taylor, and Francis X. Thomas.

Arrangements for the affair were made by the fraternity officers under the direction of Charles G. Martin, L. K. D. president. Final arrangements are being carried out by the Student Council Representative, Alfred M. Bongiovanni.

Collegiate Communists

TESTIMONY of a communist witness at a Dies Committee hearing confirms previous suspicions that there are communistic 'goings on' at many of our big name institutions.

The witness was one O'Dea, president of the Young Communist League of Massachusetts. He identified some students at such well established schools as Harvard, Dartmouth, M. I. T., Amherst, and Radcliff with the league.

That the clenched fist seemingly waxes stronger at these institutions is of unhappy note. These schools were founded in and have flowered in a background of pure democracy, and now, some intellectual "wise guys" would reject the grand principles which made this nation and their schools possible.

The real Americans at these schools should vigorously combat this trend to the left. A league of advocates of democracy should be organized whereby subversive activities could effectively be checked.

Another phase of O'Dea's testimony indicates a growing defiance of these Communists as they hide behind a liberal interpretation of the Bill of Rights. This witness refused to answer legitimate questions proposed by the committee. Among these were inquires concerning other party members and whether or not he would support this country in a war against Russia.

No More On The Cuff!

IN DRAFTING a neutrality policy for this country the lawmakers had to be careful that it would be as fair as possible to all. The Cash and Carry Law, although presumably neutral, actually favors the Allies, for they alone of the warring powers in Europe have the greater opportunity of taking advantage of it. The Johnson Act, however, works on the basis of no credit to debt defaulters. Now since England and France are both World War debt defaulters, the only possible way for them to trade with us is on the strict Cash and Carry basis.

Hence, it is entirely an unjustifiable act on England's part to issue a statement to the effect that they will not purchase anything but war materials from us unless we extend credit to them, since they must recognize the status of their credit with the United States. If this is a threat, then England is barking up the wrong tree. If it is a plea, she has no grounds for lenience. She is a belligerent and a defaulter and must be treated on the same basis as other belligerent countries, even though sympathy may be with the Allied Cause.

America doesn't want war. It must be firm in this respect if it wants to keep from being involved in the European conflict because of American credit to England or France, for in that case, as in the last war, the ultimately results would be the transporting of more doughboys "over there" to save the world from something or another, when the real reason would be to help collect money extended on credit.

An Oppressed Press?

THE preservation of our "American Way" has never been so tantamount in the minds of the people as at the present, when the lack elsewhere of that same ideology we cherish has caused the world scene to turn near chaotic. Last week, however, the action of a certain court seems to indicate that, if not stopped, a precedent might be established which in its operation would endanger the principle of a free press in this country.

We refer to Circuit Judge Thomas J. Rowe, who initiatel a contempt action and fined the St. Louis Post-Dispatch because of two editorials and a cartoon which criticized the dismissal in his court of an extortion charge against State Rep. Edward M. Brady.

The actual facts of this particular case are not of prime importance, for it makes little difference where the blame lies. Whether the court was guilty of a miscarriage of justice or whether the newspaper's criticism was unjustified and extreme, the fact remains that in this instance there is involved an issue the continual violation of which will lead to the ultimate destruction of our system.

Our Constitution guarantees the freedom of the press. The integrity of this tenet is supposed to be held inviolable by our courts. Wouldn't it be supreme irony for the protector to turn vandal and destroy what he should preserve?

In the first place, the departments of the State and Federal governments should be so clean that they would not have to fear criticism. If this is not the case, then our newspapers should remain free from drastic restraint so that they can acquaint the people of any corruption that exists. Is the press to serve politicans, bow before them and let corruption exist where-ever is is found, or is it to serve as a medium to keep the people informed of things around them?

AFTER a lapse of some three weeks, during which time exams were taken — and passed, and the "bunny" came and went, it once again comes time to open up the storehouse and see what we can find in regard to all and sundry individuals.

CONGRATULATIONS to Justice McGeehan and the taxpayers of New York who have a sense of religious values for revoking the appointment of the would-be divisor of moral codes, Bertrand Russell.

There is no doubt that his appointment to the "chair of indecency" would have most undesirable influence on the ideas of his students. A teacher's own philosophy of life is almost always projected to some extent into his teachings, no matter what the subject matter, and no sane person with a sense of right and wrong would expect Russell to impart ideas in keeping with the Christian and democratic state in which we live; at least, not judging by his private life, which is an example of the living of his philosophy.

Despite a great hue and cry from such institutions as Harvard, Princeton, and Swarthmore defending "academic freedom," this department aligns itself with the taxpayers of New York. After all, we must distinguish between "freedom" and "license" and, while Russell might be free to expound his crackpot theories, there is no reason why he should be given the license.

Our suggestion is that Mr. Russell stick to the field of mathematics, where he does possess genuine ability; and that he stay out of the field of morality, where he obviously doesn't belong as an authority.

SUCH IS LIFE:

I took her to a night club,
I took her to a show,
I took her almost everywhere,

That she was taking me!

History Preserved In Alumni Hall Museum

Relics of General Sherman, Early Villanovania, Many Odd and Curious Old Souvenirs Contained in Augustinian Collection

By THOMAS C. MURASKI

IN a rather small room in the northwest corner of the original Augustinian Academy, under the protection of barred windows, a well locked door, and obscurity, stand several rows of showcases laden with articles and particles from all parts of the world; articles that range in time from the first days of recorded history to our new streamlined era; particles that include everything one could imagine, everything from a Pope's snuff box to a shark's teeth. These are among the articles contained in Villanova's museum.

This collection was organized by Rev. Francis F. Tourcher, O. S. A., deceased librarian, archivist of and outstanding authority on the Augustinian order.

Begun in 19th Century

In the latter half of the 19th century, Mrs. Ellen Thackara, wife of Lieutenant Alex M. Thackara and daughter of General Sherman, lived in the parish that included Villanova College. Being a blood relation of so famous a man as "War is hell" Sherman, she had some of the articles he had accumulated during his career. These she gave to Villanova, and here they remain in good shape.

In the museum are the testimonials given by the Union League and the City of Philadelphia at Sherman's death. Inclosed in glass cases are Sherman's war coat and a collection of his swords and sabers.

Local Souvenirs

Sticking to local history, we find the lock of the original homestead bought from the Randolph's by the Augustinians back in the 1840's. Next is a policeman's billy used in the days of old, when thieves were bold.

On the wall, we find a page from the "Practical and Tragical Almanac," with a sketch of the burning of St. Augustinian by the Know-nothings during the beginning of religious strife in America. A little further down on the shelf is a crucific salvaged from that same fire.

Also contained is a diploma used in the first graduations of the Academy and a program of a Washington's Day play given by Villanova students in 1856. There are some hand wrought nails from St. Joseph's Chapel, another Augustinian church which played an important part in the growth of the Church in the Philadelphia area.

Book Collection

The collection of books alone is very fascinating and probably very valuable. There is a book printed (1563) in the Greek language by a printed noted for his clear, small type. Yes, if you know any (or, perhaps, it would take a lot of) Greek you could still read the type today.

There is a "History of the Bible," printed in 1829, after which the pocket-sized dictionaries of today are fashioned. At least they are of the same size. A copy of the "Spiritual Mirror," a Catholic periodical written by an Augustinian in 1812, is also in the collection.

Hanging on the wall is a photostatis copy of the title page of the first medical book printed in America, written by an Augustinian and printed in Mexico in 1519.

The Catholic Directory

There is also in the collection one of the first Catholic directories. Comparing it with the size of a modern directory, which is at least twenty times larger, we get a good idea of the increase of Catholicism in America.

Last but not least, there is in the book collection a volume written in Latin entitled "Imitation of Christ," in whose book plate is inscribed the name of Thomas Wells. It was in Thomas Wells' chapel that Charles Carroll was consecrated Bishop of Baltimore.

Papal Possessions

Popes have made donations (unknowingly) to the collection. There are two skull caps of Benedict XV and the snuff box of Leo XV. Several Maniples and a Miter used in church services in France and a hammered silver Chalice, dating back to the Cuba of 1749, were sent to add to this collection.

Innumerable coins of all ages from all over the world, memorial medals, a check for $100 drawn in 1820 by Archbishop Morecheal on the Franklin Bank of Baltimore, several early American "greenbacks" and a $10 bond issued by the Irish Free State are present.

Odds and Ends

Besides boxes, a chest, and closets of pictures and records of early Villanova activities, there are numerous odds and ends. Here they are, just snatches from here, there and everywhere:

Indian arrowheads, spearheads, and stone implements; a confidential letter written by Henry Clay when he held a high secretarial post; the tombstone of Fr. John Rossiter, the first Augustinian in America (1794); shark's teeth; a gold altar spoon; log peat;

A Japanese sacrificial cake, used in the Buddist temples; an Etruscan mirror; Rosary beads of six decades, from Lourdes, each wooden and the size of a marble; a preserved sea horse; a model of the church of St. Augustinian at Hippo, Africa; various seals used by the college; and a harp of Bog Oak from Ireland.

Historic Pens

There is a pen and quill used in the Conclave of 1903, which elected Pius the Tenth to the Papacy. Also preserved is the pen used by the Apostolic Delegate, Monsignor Guidi, the Hon. Wm. H. Taft, the Hon W. Fergeson, and Recolets to sign the agreement for the purchase of Recolets' estate in the Philippine Islands in 1896.

An article which, if explained and described thoroughly, would require quite a book is a small Babylonian tablet. This apparently insignificant piece of stone was one of the tablets first used by man to record state affairs. To decipher the characters on this tablet and to explain them would in itself be a feature story.

A Rare "Billy"

This is the oldest article in the collection—the newest is a "billy" used by the guards at Joliet State Prison, Joliet, Illinois.

For those who don't realize where "the northwest corner of the Augustinian Academy" is, we'll conclude with the information that the museum is in Alumni hall, at the head of the flight of stairs leading to the gymnasium. That portion of Alumni was part of the original academy and is now nearly one hundred years old.

Sivcho Speaks On "Spermatogenesis"

"Artificial Spermatogenesis," a paper to be presented by Stephen Sivcho, freshman science student, will feature tomorrow's meeting of the Research Seminar, to be held in Simpson hall at 4:00 P. M.

Four reels of sound films on various functions of the body were shown at the last seminar gathering.

These films, products of the biological department of the University of Chicago, had as their subjects: "The Nervous System," "Food and Nutrition," "The Respiratory Mechanism," and "The Alimentary Tract."

Justin G. Rubin chairman of the group, states that several more papers are planned for the remainder of the year and that details of a field trip are also under process of formation.

other states, their minorities, and the indignation of the rest of the world.

Man, on the contrary, is "a creature composed of body and soul, made to the image of God". He is not merely material but, spiritual. As the psalmist sings, "Thou hast made him little less than angels". Because he is spiritual, he is destined to transcend the present world. Belonging to God, he is esteemed; as something respected, he is free to work out his duties for his Maker.

Spiritual dignity is the moral justification for the liberties on which this civilization depends. Rights are drawn from the nature of man, principally from the spiritual part of it. There is no dignity except from God and under God in sovereignty of God.

Submission to God was preached by Pius XII in his Easter homily on spiritual renovation as the only safeguard for the future of society.

A "Happiness Boy," Suave Business-Like "Willie" Garrity Also An Aesthete

WILLIAM F. "Rhodes Scholar" Garrity, Jr., claims February 14, 1918, as his natal day in the city of Philadelphia. A war baby, Bill was almost named Valentine, after the day of his birth.

However, Mrs. Garrity's son decided otherwise and took the name of his father. Although not given the monicker Valentine, he has inherited many of the amorous qualiteis associated with this saint.

At the tender age of two years, he, and the Garrity household, migrated to that baseball metropolis, Brooklyn. Before he could walk, his family took him to Great Neck, L. I., to live. Soon again they moved, this time to Montclair, N. J., where Bill first attended school at Mt. Hebron Grammer School. After completing five years of education, back to Great Neck went the Garritys, where our boy Bill completed his initial educational endeavor at St. Aloysius School.

High School Athlete

Great Neck High School claimed him as their own for the succeeding four years. These years found Bill active on the gridiron and in intramural baseball and basketball, no varsity teams being sponsored in the latter two sports.

During this time Bill visited his grandparents in Pihladelphia every summer and became acquainted with the educational opportunities afforded by this city. Two former graduates familiarized Bill with Villanova. Finally, he induced his father into permitting him to pursue his higher education on the Main Line campus.

College Aesthete

As a frosh, Bill enrolled in the School of Arts, eager to procure a thorough knowledge of the finer things in life. This particular Alumni hall resident participated in intra-mural baseball and basketball as his initial activities.

His sophomore year was passed asan Austin hall fireman. He became a member of the VILLANOVAN staff and a writer for the Belle Air, as well as participating in Belle Masque's one-act plays.

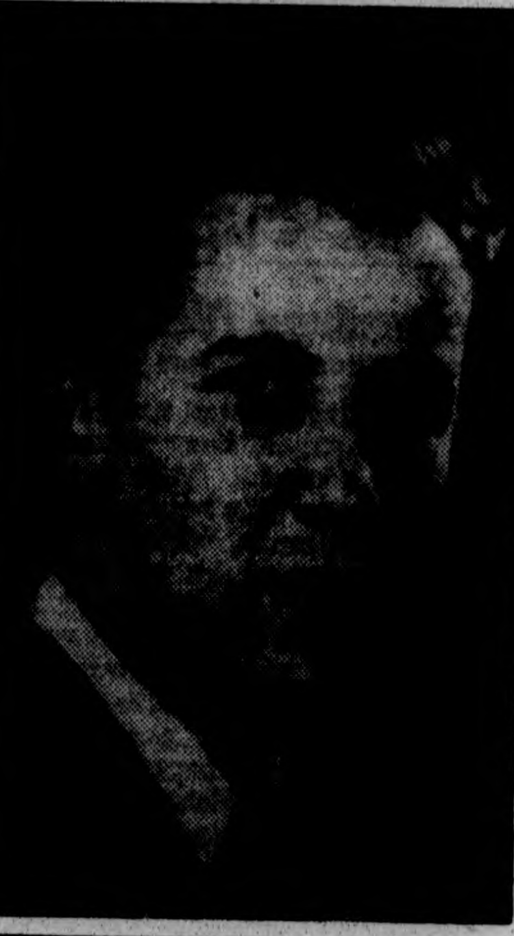
Turns Day-Hop

Came his senior year and he decided to qommute from Philadelphia, where he stays with his grandparents. This year he was appointed copy editor of the Belle Air, publicity chairman of the Senior Prom, and member of Epsilon Phi Theta, arts fraternity. He acted as chairman of his fraternity's initial smoker last January 19.



Each summer finds Bill actively employed in the law offices of White and Case on Wall Street (New York City) although he contemplates entering the field of advertising upon graduation. He is the oldest of five children and the son of an accountant.

A Fickle Lover

Every year Bill has had a different Philadelphia lassie for a heart-throb. This year his "ex" is a girl from Waterbury, Conn., who resides at the college across the tracks. However, Bill claims that his associations with the fair sex are, at present, non-existent.

Bill insistently protested the unheralded publicity you are reading and would give us only the barest facts concerning his existence. However, the fact remanis that he is one of the most popular students in his class; this is evidenced by his numerous friends in every corner of the campus.

Winning Personality

This biography of the transpired events in the life of Bill Garrity have been wholly statistical. It would be a difficult task to enumerate the many outstanding qualities inherent in his character. From this reporter's viewpoint he impresses one as being shy, yet as possessing a unique trait of self-assurance.

Always nattily attired, he undoubtedly presents a businesslike appearance. Those who know him insist that he is thorough in all his undertakings, acquiring the things he has by study and hardy work. Unceasing activitiy marks his scholastic as well as his social life. Such a pleasing personality cannot possibly escape the goal he seeks.

Math Club Charter Read To Members

Reading of the Math Club constitution was the main highlight of the last meeting of the group, held on Tuesday, April 2.

The constitution, as read by Robert Ayerle, chairman of the constitution committee, declared that "the Math Club of Villanova College shall henceforth be known as the 'Mu Alpha Theta,' the three Greek letters standing for the English abbreviation 'Math.'"

The motto of the society shall be "Tau Pi Rho"—Greek letters for the English "theory, practice, research," the three steps or stages through which all scientists must pass.

The constitution also declared that keys shall be awarded to members who have been in active membership for three semesters and who are approved by the moderator and a committee appointed by the members of the society.

A series of talks to be delivered by members was also arranged. The addresses, to be delivered by Samuel Burruano, Herman C. Behnke, Robert B. Koob, and John J. Dougherty during the rest of the school year, will trace the history of mathematics as reflected in the lives of individual mathematicians.

Philosophers Hear Papers Presented; Way Talks April 11

Bongiovanni Discusses Aristotelian Method of Abstraction

William N. Way, junior artsman, will present a paper before the philosophy seminar this Thursday, April 11. His topic has not yet been disclosed.

"The Relation of Intellectual Knowledge to Sense Knowledge" was discussed by Joseph N. Bongiovanni, Jr., senior arts student, at the last seminar meeting. The Aristotelian method of abstraction, especially as developed by St. Thomas of Acquin, was examined and the difficulties of this explanation were noted.

Bongiovanni pointed out that he did not think abstraction was a solution to the problem of the relation of intellectual knowledge to sense knowledge, because the sense data is concerned only with accidents. He considered it impossible, therefore, that the "intellectus agens" could draw the essence from these data, as nothing can give something that it does not have.

He believed that the solution to the problem was to be found in some explanation which was nearer to Plato but not so extreme—probably in St. Augustine.

Other members of the seminar defended the Aristotelian doctrine of abstraction, saying that it was more in conformity with experience, even though not complete enough.

ENGINEERING FRATERNITY SPONSORS DINNER-DANCE

The Phi Kappa Pi Dinner Dance will be held this Saturday night, April 13, at the Aronimink Country Club, from 8 to 12 P. M. This was recently announced by John Seelaus and Ed Kirk, co-chairmen of the fraternity.

The affair will be semi-formal and the music will be provided by the Villanovans. Father O'Leary will speak.

The incoming officers will be inducted and 34 seniors will receive keys, and awards for special work will also be given.

Members of the dance committee include H. Kunberger, G. Wengrynuik, F. Rappleyea, D. Dunne, J. Dorsey, V. Gordon and R. Ayerle.

Election of officers will be held tomorrow in the amphitheater at 1 P. M.

Motion Pictures To Aid Seminar Study

A sound motion picture and a discussion on the "Percussion Group of the Symphony Orchestra" will constitute the program of the meeting of the Music Seminar in Simpson hall tomorrow evening at 7:30 P. M.

Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., director of the seminar, will lead the discusion of the percussion instruments, using slides and the sound picture to illustrate the individual instruments, their sounds, and their use as part of the whole of the orchestra as well as their use as solo instruments.

With this program on the percussion group, the series of discussions on the various groups or choirs will be brought to a close. The brass instruments were the topic of the meeting last week. After a short introduction by Fr. Vrana, records were used to illustrate the brass group as a whole and to demonstrate the uses of the individual instruments.

Following the discussion two sound films, one on the "Woodwind Choir of the Symphony Orchestra," the other the "Brass Choir of the Symphony Orchestra" were presented through the courtesy of the Erpi Films Corporation. The orchestra in the films was under the direction of Howard Barlow.

Green Dream

By JOHN J. McGOVERN

SURE I just came over from Dublin town,
Where quick is the smile, and rare is the frown;
Where each woodland dell forms a God-painted scene,
And the shamrock blooms forth in beautiful green.

* * * * *

Faith, with a lump in my throat, I left the auld sod,
Where Saint Paddy once preached the word of his God.
Sure I left me auld Mother with a tear in her eye,
She never broke down til' I whispered goodbye.

For that white-haired Mother in auld County Clare,
In me rosary each night there's always a prayer;
And by the grace of God, if I ever roam,
'Twill be back to auld Erin, me life, and me home.

BELLE AIR TREATS EDUCATIONAL IDEAL FOR YEARLY THEME

Publication Will Develop Working of Catholic Principle in Three Sections

By THOMAS A. SULLIVAN

"The Catholic Ideal in Education" will be the theme of the 1940 Belle Air, according to an announcement made by Edward L. Jonik, editor-in-chief of the publication.

The topic of Catholic education has been developed in three parts. The first section will serve as an introduction; the second discusses the Catholic Ideal in regard to the individual; the third part explains its relation to society in general.

The treatment of the theme explains that in early America, education was entirely of a religious nature, but that as the country prospered, religion and religious training gave way, to a great extent, to secularism. More recently, because of the prevalence of war and social injustices, it has been realized that religious training cannot be neglected.

Thus, the Belle Air of the current year adds its voice to those seeking to have the old practice of universal religious training revived.

Under the heading of the individual and Catholic education, it is pointed out that the educational system of the Catholic Church is the only sure means of stopping the forces which threaten the faith and morals of humanity. Also, the members of the Catholic Church have, by leading exemplary lives, the opportunity to exercise a good influence over the other members of society.

The section devoted to Catholic education in respect to society explains that the principles of the Christian Ideal are necessary for attainment of security in family life, in the community, in the state, and in worship. Thus, through the practice of the Ideal, divorce, lawlessness, war, and Godlessness may be avoided.

Favorable criticism has already been received by Jonik in regard to the selection of this topic as the theme of the annual. Each year the Belle Air attempts to choose a theme that is both practical and timely. Last year, the theme of the book was anti-communism.

Jonik has also disclosed that all pictures taken for the Belle Air will be on display in the Field House during Open House. Those desiring to purchase photos may leave their orders at that time.

law such as the creating of a monopoly by illegal methods. In the course of his discussion Mr. Arnold touched on some of the leading questions of the day and showed the particular phases which would come within the scope of the Attorney General.

On Wednesday afternoon ,the group visited the new Supreme Court building and attended a session of the court. Immediately following this the students traveled to the Capitol where they observed both houses of the national legislature. A tour was made of the Federal Bureau of Investigation building, featured by a meeting with J. Edgar Hoover .

The program included numerous other events such as an address by Under Secretary of the Treasury, Daniel W. Bell; a meeting of the National Labor Relations Board; a hearing of the Interstate Commerce Commission; an explanation of the activities of the I. C. C. by Judge Davis, Chairman; a visit to the Francisan Monastery, and several interesting features.

On Tuesday evening a dinner was held in the Capitol Park Hotel with the Villanova Alumni from the Washington district. Senator James M. Meade, of New York, was the guest speaker. Several other important personalities and members of the Villanova Alumni spoke or were introduced by Dr. Hartman. The latter publicly thanked all those who had contributed to the success of the trip, particularly Mr. Sommers and Mr. Fitzpatrick.

NOBLE BROADCASTS

Did you know that Leighton Noble and his orchestra broadcast from Station WABC every Monday at 11:30 P. M. and from WCAU at 11:40 P. M. in addition to two other broadcasts weekly?

Frosh Moderator

REV. FRANCIS N. McGUIRE, O. S. A., D. D., recently has been appointed moderator of the present freshman class. His active duties will commence with the class elections later in the year.

Orchestras Named

Before his group even made a personal appearance, they were making Victor records. This is one of the rare times this has happened.

Only this month, "Swing" magazine selected him as band leader of the month and predicted that his organization will soon be among the top five. Known chiefly as a swing outfit, Van nevertheless does well on the sweet numbers, as many of his recordings testify.

The Leighton Noble orchestra combines a new style of dance music designed for dancers as well as listeners. An artist in "tone color," he has a gift for creative music and has succeeded in grasping and interpreting dance rhythms in a new manner. Besides being a talented pianist, Noble is also an accomplished vocalist, having held this position in the late Orville Knapp's orchestra. His many follows are rabid partisans of his music.

Decorations for the affair are expected by the committee to reach a new high this year. The committee has designed a complete new set and will depart from the usual color scheme.

New members added to the committees are James J. Jernee and Paul D. Nugent, both students in the School of Commerce and Finance.

Tickets for the prom will be $4.50 until May 10 and $5.00 at the door.

AIEE MEMBERS ATTEND SWARTHMORE CONVENTION

Members of the local branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will atend the Eastern District Convention of the A. I. E. E. at Swarthmore College on April 22. Papers will be presented there by members of the various branches.

At Swarthmore, also, the Villanova students will make an inspection tour of the college's engineering laboratories.

Yesterday, sound pictures on "Farnsworth Television" and "Symphonic Orchestration and Its Co-Relation with Sound Equipment" were shown to the members at their regular meeting.

In the branch's election of a counsellor, Professor Harry S. Bueche, M. S. in E. E. was selected to succeed himself.

Lost and Found

LOST—Light blue fountain pen, probably in Pie Shop. "M. A. Bruder & Sons" inscribed on side. Will finder please return to Harry Dhue, Austin Hall.

LOST: Valuable stop-watch in a black case in the swimming-pool locker room of the Field House on Friday, March 29. Finder please return to Paul Farnsworth, junior engineering dayhop. $5.00 reward offered.

FOUND: A pair of eye glasses, silver mounted, strong lenses. Owner may claim same by applying to the VILLANOVAN Office.

PICTURES

Final Belle Air pictures are being taken today. Chronological schedules have been posted as to the handling of these group pictures. Kindly be on time for any pictures for which you are eligible. The arrangement made calls for only a limited time quota for each group. Kindly be prompt.

M'NAMARA AGAIN ORATORY MEDALIST

Senior Artsman Adjudged Murtaugh Medal Winner Over Wilderotter and Donovan

Joseph M. McNamara, senior arts student, was adjudged winner of the oratorical contest held in the Commerce and Finance auditorium on Friday evening, March 15. This marks the second time that McNamara has triumphed in this contest; he previously won the Murtaugh Oratorical medal in 1938.

Robert G. Wilderotter and James F. Donovan, also arts students, were the other contestants. These three won the right to compete for the medal in the semi-final round held on March 5. Each of the speakers discussed the same topic, namely, "The Catholic Church in American Democracy."

McNamara, in the development of this topic, centered his arguments around two main issues; his first point was "the accord between Catholicism and Americanism," and his second issue was "the contributions of Catholics to American Democracy."

In the treatment of the latter point he cited the efforts and success of Cardinal Bellarmine, Father Suarez, and Father Francisco De Victor. The first advocated divided sovereignity, and the other two were the first ones to advance and defend the theories which the United States later adopted and made its own.

The judges were Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., and Anthony Differ, valedictorian of the class of 1937. The medal will be presented at the graduation exercises.

KGS PRESIDENT APPOINTS MEN TO FORM CHARTER

Discharging his first official duty, as president of Kappa Gamma Sigma, Joseph M. Gambescia appointed Francis McLaughlin chairman of the fraternity's charter committee.

This committee is being formed to draw up the charter and constitution of the society. The constitution will be drawn up along similar lines of that of the American Physical Society.

The other officers elected were Donald Hans, vice-president; J. Turner, secretary, and Stephen Sivcho, treasurer. Members appointed to the charter committee were Eugene Labowski, Adolph Borkowski, and Sante DiSanto.

VIILLANOVA DEFEATS PENN

Villanova varsity debating team of Beta Gamma defeated the forensic representatives of the University of Pennsylvania on the air lanes of station WIP Friday, April 15. Thomas J. Moore, junior Education man, John R. Raney, senior engineer, and Robert J. McIntyre, sophomore C & F student, gained the victory for Villanova.

Popular opinion as testified by the votes of the radio audience provided the means of judging the debate.

SCHOLARSHIP EXAMS TO BE HELD MAY 18

Three $1000, Competitive Awards Proferred to Needy Catholic Students

Annual competitive scholarship examinations for needy Catholic high school students will be held on the campus on Saturday, May 18.

Three scholarships, each worth one thousand dollars, will be awarded to the Catholic students most successful in the four-subject examinations. The thousand dollars is applicable to a four-year course, at the rate of two hundred and fifty dollars per year.

The subjects in which students will be tested are mathematics, a foreign language, history and English.

The mathematics exam will cover the regular four-year elementary algebra course, including the subject of quadratics. Students may select either French, German, Latin, or Spanish for the language test. Questions on American history, including current events, will be included in the history test. In English, the students will be tested in usage, vocabulary, and spelling.

The first examination will be held at 9:00 A. M., D. S. T., in room 106, Mendel hall. After the first two exams, the students will be served lunch in the college dining hall and will be shown about the campus. The tests will be concluded by 3:00 P. M.

Applications may be received by writing to Paetrus F. Banmiller, Registrar, Villanova College, Villanova, Pa.

N. B., STAFF MEMBERS

There will be a meeting of the College Staff of the VILLANOVAN today at the usual time, 1:00 P. M. in the office. All please attend for assignments.

The annual VILLANOVAN staff pictured is scheduled for today at 1:00 P. M. in the main gymnasium.

Domenick Receives Award For 150-lb Gridiron Feats

Retiring Captain Unanimous Choice For Engraved Bulova Watch; Has Been Outstanding End For Three Years

Victor Domenick, retiring captain, is the first winner of the Annual Alumnus Award for the most valuable player on the 150 lb. football squad.

The senior Commerce student was the unanimous choice of his mates for the award which is a beautiful jeweled Bulova watch. It bears the inscription: "Victor Domenick—end —1939-40. Most valuable player on Villanova 150 lb. football team."

Domenick has been a member of the local lightweight squad for thre years. He grabbed the varsity end position his first season and held it for three years, being elected to the captaincy in his last. During his sophomore and junior years he received honorable mention for his play on the All-League team. But in his final year he clinched the league second team post, narrowly missing out for first team recognition.

Alert End

Vic hails from Wayne and formerly played end for Radnor High School in the strong Philadelphia Suburban League. He is an alert end with an excellent defensive record. Time after time he stopped attempted advances with his vicious tackling. He is also an adept pass receiver being responsible for several scores via this route.

Naturally pleased with the award, Domenick heaped praise on the anonymous alumnus who donated this valuable prize. He remarked: "If one who has left school thinks so much of the one fifties let's hope the students can be made to feel the same way It really is something to work for."

Now that the award is established it will be awarded each year to the player who in the eyes of his mates has been "a good sport, played consistently good football, attended practice regularly and has had the interest of the 150's at heart."

Golf Season Opens Friday With Hawks

The Villanova golf season gets off to a flying start this Thursday, when Villanova will face a strong St. Joseph's College team on the home course.

Tryouts for the team were held Friday and yesterday after several weeks of practice. Cliff Randolph and Dave Morse are the only two regulars left after graduation played havoc with the squad. Two newcomers who show promise are Jim Brown and Ernie Klappenbach. Other good prospects are Bob dePersio, Harry Schwartz, and Joe Rozum, last fall's intramural golf winner.

While the full squad has not been definitely decided upon, the schedule has been releasd. New opponents on this year's schedule are Pennsylvania and Delaware. Relations have been resumed on a home and home basis after a one year lapse. St. John's University of Brooklyn will also be met on a home and home basis. Haverford will be played away while Penn and Delaware will be met on the home course.

SCHOLASTIC MEET

Invitations and entry blanks for the Villanova Interscholastic Track Meet on May 11 will be mailed tomorrow to approximately 250 high schools in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Maryland, Massachusetts, Delaware, Virginia, and the District of Columbia by track manager Tom Doyle.

HOWLETT TO COACH FRESHMAN BASEBALL

After a lapse of one year Villanova will again be represented by a freshman baseball team. Last Monday, the squad held its first workout on the field adjoining the varsity field. This year the frosh are being coached by "Buzz" Howlett, senior football player, who was also a member of the varsity baseball team for the past two years.

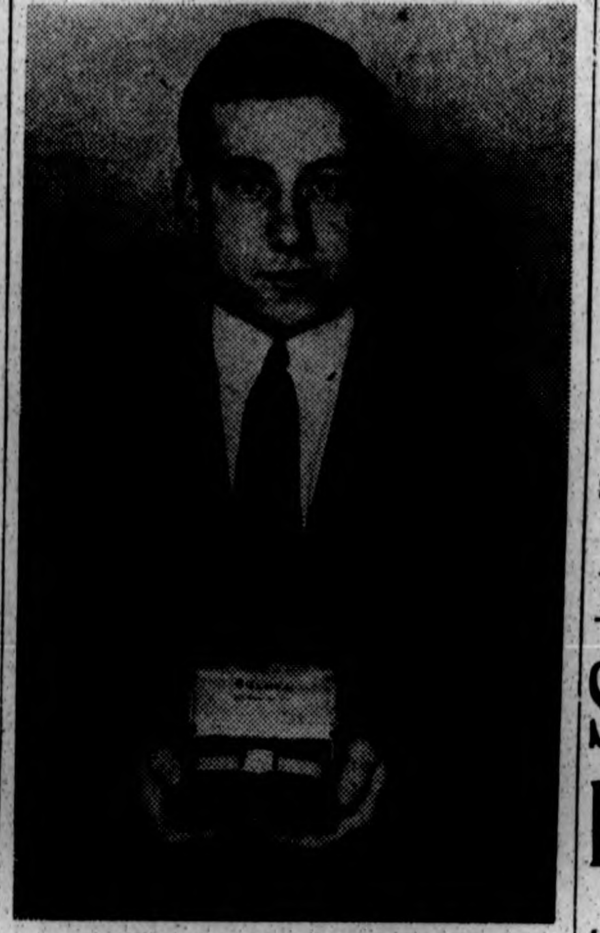
A modest schedule of four games has been arranged. A more elaborate schedule could have been put together but this was deemed unwise since the purpose of freshman team is to uncover material for next year's varsity. The frosh will play two games apiece with Brown Prep and Ursinus College Freshmen.

When approached on the subject, Coach Howlett would not comment on the ability of the boys because he has not had enough time to check the candidates. However there is a lareg turnout for the team and some likely prospects should be found.

Dykes' Son Candidate

A unique feature about the team is that one of the candidates is the son of a big league star. He is Jimmy Dykes, son of the famous manager of the Chicago White Sox. Jimmy is trying out for an infield berth but Coach Howlett has intentions of converting him into a pitcher.

Most Valuable



VICTOR DOMENICK, senior Commerce student, who was the unanimous choice for the first Annual Alumnus Award to the most valuable member of the 150 lb. football team.

Severance Returns From Kansas City

Recently returned from the N. C. A. A. Basketball Coaches' Meeting, Coach Al Severance, representing Villanova among several hundred mentors from all over the nation, has discussed the various new rules and regulations which are under proposal by the committee.

Gathered in Kansas City the annual coaches' meeting was held for three days being climaxed by the playoffs of the N. C. A. A. tournament which was won by Indiana University who defeated Kansas to gain the National Championship. Earlier in the year Indiana defeated the Wildcats at the Main Line Gym.

Coach Severance culminated his affairs at the meeting by making several tentative contacts with coaches of prominent schools for games next year.

Opening Engagements on Villanova Schedule Provide Hard Tests; Penn Team Benefited by Southern Trip and Early Games

By BOB FUNABASHI

Villanova's diamond debut will be in the form of "A Philadelphia Story" as the team inaugurates its 71st season this week matching forces against two leading representatives of the Quaker City, Penn and Temple.

The Wildcat nine, in full strength, will rely upon a trio of able hurlers, Choquette, O'Leary and Nichols, to set down the Penn batters as they met in their annual duel, Wednesday afternoon at River Field in Philadelphia. Two days later Coach Jacob's squad will move into Temple's backyard for another varsity tussle marking the second of the nineteen game schedule.

Weak in South

Dr. Walter L. Cariss, embarking upon his twentieth season as Varsity baseball coach at the University of Pennsylvania will be supported by a squad of thirty-four players to choose a starting nine. Featuring a host of five pitchers the Penn outfit will try to better their win column after their disastrous trip down South. The Quakers dropped five contests on their Spring Southern tour while winning one. On their recent home stand Penn triumphed over West Chester and Drexel.

Temple in its initial game was shut out by Connecticut U., losing 4-0, with indications of sparce hitting by the club. The Owls, who provide the greatest rivalry to the Cats in athletic competition, have an able battery in Monroe and Dunn although Coach Pep Young's pitching assignment may go to Andy Tomasic, football halfback, Joe Matchett, a veteran southpaw, and two other newcomers, Don Battisto and Bob Bauers. Monroe, a Sophomore, and mound performer of promising ability might not see action after starting on the hill against Connecticut.

Sophs Lead

Sophomore will man three of the four ineld berths; Johnny Pasquella at first, Angelo Musi, the basketball ace, second, and Joe Papieves, third base, all newcomers, will work with George Nemchik, leading hitter in 1939 and holding down the shortfield post for the third campaign.

The outfield is entirely composed of seniors, with George Honochick, Bill Kucker and Bob Nicol holding down the garden spots. The strongest hitting on the club is evenly divided between the outfield and infield. Nemchik, Musi, Nicol and Honochick hold the first four positions on the batting roster.

Penn's captaincy is held by Charles Morris who also does the

SCHERMERHORN NEW LEADER OF NETMEN

Betty Schermerhorn, a Senior in the School of Commerce and Finance was elected Captain of the 1940 Tennis team, at a meeting of the lettermen yesterday afternoon.

Schermerhorn who is a graduate of Upper Darby High School succeeds Saul Wallach who has held the post for three successive seasons since 1937. Wallach will retain his post as Manager and Coach.

With the recent release of Villanova's tennis schedule, two new college appear on the roster, namely; La Salle College and Delaware University. La Salle will be met on the home court and a return engagement is scheduled on the former's court. Replacing Temple and Baltimore, Delaware and La-Salle appear to be formidable opponents in the net game, as they stress Tennis as one of their major sports.

A ten-game schedule will be encountered this Spring with such standouts as Manhattan, St. Johns, Moravian and Rider College. On April 20, the Wildcats will meet their first opponent of the schedule, Rider College. Coach Saul Wallach, who also handles the managing end of the squad, has five varsity men returning from last

Villanova Grad Is New LaSalle Coach

Jim Henry newly appointed coach at La Salle College is a former Villanova star. During the late twenties Henry was one of the outstanding ends in the east. After leaving here he took up coaching duties at La Salle High and then moved up to assist Marty Brill at the college. Brill's departure for Loyola leaves Jim in a tight position as last year's squad suffered only one defeat.

Henry alternated at right end on the 1928 and 1929 Villanova teams. He graduated in June, 1930. With his appointment as La Salle head coach Henry becomes one of a select list of former Villanovans who are now coaching college football elevens.

Austin Nine Clips Fedigan In I-M Baseball Opener

Mendel Residents Crush Alumni in Afternoon Battle; Jack Macek Outstanding in Fedigan's Loss to Firemen by 5-4 Score

The intramural baseball season opened last Sunday with a bang! Austin met its traditional rival, Fedigan, and clipped their wings by a 5-4 score, while a fast, anxious Mendel Resident team trimmed an over-eager Alumni team 23-10.

In the first game which started at eleven o'clock and took two hours to finish, McGuire, of Austin, broke up the game in the last of the seventh by singling in Nicora from third with the winning run. Nicora, the first man up, walked, stole second, and went to third on an error by Murphy, the Fedigan catcher and scorer on McGuire's hit.

For the first three innings neither team scored but Fedigan started things in the first of the fourth with one tally. With one out, Forkin walked, stole second and took third on an error. Clark was retired but Jack Macek, Fedigan's "hero of the day," singled Forkin home. Sindall flied out to retire the side. Fedigan came back in the fifth to score another run. Murphy with one down, walked, stole second and third and scored on a fielder's choice.

AUSTIN TRAILS

Trailing 2-0, when they came to bat in the last of the fifth, Austin sluggers bunched four hits and two walks to score four runs and take the lead. Cleary opened the inning with a single and took third on Crumb's single. Aisenbrey walked filling the bases, and Daly, the next batter, doubled scoring Cleary and Crumb and leaving men on second and third. Urban singled, scoring Aisenbrey and Nicora walked filling the bases. McGuire hit to the second basemen who overthrew second and allowed Daly to score. Urban was caught between third and home trying to score. Celure popped out and Fitzgerald struck out retiring the side.

But this rally did not discourage Fedigan, which came bacg with two in their half of the sixth. With two down, Forkin singled, went to second when Clark walked. This tied the score at four-all and nothing happened until Austin scored the winning run in the last of the seventh.

This game was a pitcher's duel all the way. Steve Aisenbrey, Austin's ace, allowed the Fediganites four runs on only three hits. He struck out ten men that faced him, Stan Grigolunas, Fedigan's pitcher, allowed the Austinites five runs on only six hits and struck out three men. Each team committed two errors. Jack Macek was the standout of the game collecting two hits out of three times up and knocking in three of Fedigan's four runs.

The afternoon game which took abrut two-and-a-half hours to complete was everything but a pitchers duel. Alumni scored ten runs on five hits admitted twenty tree runs on twelve hits and eight errors. Alumni's star Jack Geipe collected two hits, a triple and a single, and one walk oot of four times up. Lucas and Callahan did the Alumni pitching. Mendel's hero was Joe Malore, who

GUITERAS TO LEAD BLUE TRACK TEAM AT PENN APR. 20TH

Runners Practice Daily; 70 Candidates Report for Varsity Drills

Greeted by more than 70 candidates, track coach Jumbo Elliot started the men on their daily workouts in preparation for a busy season.

This being the largest turnout in the history of the school has proved very gratifying to Elliot, who now in his fifth year as Wildcat track mentor, smiles optimistically when asked of the team's chances for a successful season.

Not having a complete schedule at present, Jumbo could not comment on the season's opposition but stated that his men are getting ready for their opener with the University of Penn on April 20 at Franklin Field.

Elliot Names Guiteras

Climaxing the record-breaking turnout was the appointment of the senior middle distance star, Bill Guiteras, to the captaincy of the team. Jumbo made this selection after the first few days of practice.

Guiteras, a product of North Catholic High School in Philadelphia, has performed brilliantly for the past three years under Elliot and is expected to lead the cinder men in quite the same fashion.

Back in '37 Bill was shining for th Frosh, and with his running mate, Barney Bellew, bore the brunt of the burden in carrying the first year men through an undefeated season.

Starting with the varsity as a sophomore Bill has since starred both indoor and out up until this point and so far there's nothing to prevent him from having the best season of his career in the spring.

A. A. U. Titlist

Last spring at Ocean City Bill won the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. half-mile title in dethroning his teammate Bellew, who had won it the year previous.

With the Penn Relays still looming as his main objective, Elliot keeps drilling his men for precision in their baton passing. More than ever does Jumbo feel the chances for a brilliant Wildcat showing are strong, and if his team takes a place in either of the sprint championships he'll feel that the season has been a success.

Penn A. C. Beaten

Doc Jacobs' Villanova baseballers played an eleven inning practice game with the Penn Athletic Club of Philadelphia Sunday afternoon and emerged the unofficial victor by a four to nothing verdict.

The game provided an excellent preview of Villanova's prospects as the Pennac nine is regarded as one of the leading amateur clubs in the country and the equal of many minor league teams.

Jacobs used four pitchers whose work as a whole was highly satisfactory as the Pennacs were limited to three hits in the eleven innings.

Spring Training Enters Fourth Week; Squad Takes To Austin For Drills

Motorists passing along Lancaster Pike in front of the innovated Austin Hall Field these sunny Spring afternoons may think they are witnessing a study in surrealism with a vivid maze of colors but in reality Clipper Smith, master showman, and his gridiron ballet are busily engaged in their Spring training revue. The varicolored jerseys introduced by Clipper and his able assistant, Vince McNally have their double purpose, to distinguish squads and add a bit of liveliness to the game.

The squad is rapidly gaining their momentum of last Fall and after two weeks of heavy practice behind the gym they have made their appearance upon Austin's campus decked in colored jerseys. Goal posts have been set up and from now until Spring training expires much of the action will take place there.

"This Spring," quotes the Clipper, "we will stress tackling, blocking, and pass defense as our major activities. As everyone no doubt remembers, it was poor playing in these departments which caused us troublesome occasions last season."

Spirit Evidenced

With the spirit that is evidenced among the players there appears to be a wide open race for Varsity positions. Twenty-two returning varsity men from last year and last years crop of yearlings constitute the group that will vie for the eleven positions. The only casualties of the recent scrimmages was Tony Anderson, rugged guard, hailing from Massachusetts who suffered the loss of two teeth. Anderson played a prominent part in last year's line as a Sophomore standout.

The end problem again looms morbidly over the football horizon. A big gap in the line is at the left end berth vacated by Walt Nowak. At present "Elk" Murray seems to be the likely successor and should pair off with Stan Stress who understudied for Sam Monaco at the other wing position. But these two can expect plenty of trouble from three big Freshmen, "Hank" Christman, Steve Pritko, and "Wild Bill" Prohovitch, three who are adept to rough play.

Ed Kasky and Paul Stenn, Sophomores and both 200 pounders mainstays of last years forward wall, are back in form at their tackle positions. Kasky shows the hustle that Clipper favors and throws cruel blocks on the sweeping backs while Stenn, who has been suffering from a cold, has plenty of charge in those bulky legs. Coming up from the Freshman squad is Mike Purzyki whom the Clipper believes is one of the best since Johnny Mellus. Purzyki combines offensive and defensive power.

"Vince and I are very pleased with work thus far," says the Clipper, "the boys have lots of pep and enthusiasm and I hope it continues. We will have our toughest schedule ever, next year and we'll need all the co-operation of the players." In regards to the scrimmages Clipper has lined up his forces against N. Y. U. and Lehigh if they accept.

Ursinus Cancels

The baseball game scheduled with Ursinus College for last Saturday was cancelled at the request of the Collegeville nine. Reason for the cancellation was the lack of practice for Ursinus, whose playing field has been in poor condition. There is a possibility that the game may be played at a later date this year.

'Cats Have Powerful Nine But Must Show Some Hustle

By JIM HAUGHTON

SEVERAL of our acquaintances have suggested that this corner do something spectacular to startle the nation's presses. Like the Harvard Lampoon's lambasting Ann Sheridan. Now Miss Sheridan is a nice kid—and with a hundred grand as added attraction—why even bother telling anybody her phone number. And come to think of it we could even forget the money for an evening's entertainment. So why let forth with such a literary blitzkrieg.

Instead, customers, we mount the minaret to engage in a bit of rhetorical frenzy about a bunch of lads who—along with thousands of others—have been holding sway on the sports pages. And we mean the baseball pupils of the effulgent Doc Jacobs.

Jim Haughton

On paper Villanova should have one of the classiest collegiate nines in the States. It's been slightly over a century since Abner Doubleday conceived the idea of nine men and a white ball running after a boy in blue. For at least seventy of these the 'Cats have mustered a leader. Along with Duke and Holy Cross they've been considered the Eastern Greats. And should be again this year provided—get that—provided they show some hustle.

Hustle Necessary

The power, class and all around strength is available. But the hustle is necessary. What Villanova needs this year is a TEAM. Not a bunch of prima donnas. These boys can do it if they work and can count upon the full support of the students.

For a nine man combination it's plenty strong. The outer garden has it in Rice, Balmore and Donaghue. The Frederick, Md., boy wasn't expected to break into the starting lineup but his hitting has all but forced Jacobs to move Basca into third to make way for Charley Keller's neighbor. Balmore, the Bronx Bomber, was an in-and-outer last season, showing sparks of class. This year he seems to have gathered the necessary composure. Donaghue hit well his first year out as no doubt Hank Borowy will admit. And looks fine again.

Moving into the inner terrain one finds a small but fast collection. Nick Basca because of his hitting has beat out his cousin, Joe Yednock, at third. Mike Lazorchak, who last season brought a gleam to the eyes of McCann, the Yankee scout, again promises to do the same. Woody Reitmeyer, a newcomer, should bring back memories of Cowboy Crowley with his nice work at second. He is small, fast and handles the willow well.

First Base Undecided

It's the initial corner which is providing the conjectures for the wishenheimers and worries for Doc. With Bobby Bond gone, he must find a choice among Tex Connors, Jack Thoma and Jim Traite. Connors doesn't have any trouble with the fast balls but is a bit weak with the willow. Thoma if he gets a little experience along with some hustle might fill the job. Traite is a newcomer who popped out of nowhere. He doesn't look classy but does the job well. And that's what Jacobs wants. If necessary, Donaghue can always be moved in to take care of the post.

With the moundsmen it's a pleasant story. What with a well rounded staff the opposing batters should have their worries. Shorty Choquette has recovered from his arm trouble and is due for a big year. Connie O'Leary last year showed himself among the best college prospects. But the surprise of the year will be Connie Nicholas. Last season he was plagued by wildness but those who know believe he has conquered it. And above all has the confidenec that he can do the job.

Ending up with the catchers one finds several likely prospects. George Flood and Reds Murphy will probably divide the duties. This is Shanty's first attempt at receiving while Murphy backed up Vigilante last season. Also to be counted on are Alky Skaf, Frank Moses and George Fitzgerald.

Checking over the list one finds a well balanced outfit that should have a great year. And we all wish them luck.

receiving for the squad. Morris, with a fielding average of .995 last season, is also consistent with the willow but shines behind the plate. Leading the array of pitchers is Tony Caputo who last Spring recorded five wins and lost four. Most noteworthy feat was a one-hit nine inning victory over Columbia.

Locals in Shape

Meanwhile the Wildcat nine is in top shape, with the injury list free of any names. As yet Coach Jacobs has not announced his starting line-up but the Penn and Temple frays will enable the Doc to study over his players for making a more compact club.

year's successful aggregation. Along with the regulars, the team will be supported by four newcomers of promising ability, Gray, Belz, Terraciano and Daley. In last year's Intra-mural championships, Terraciano held top honors after subduing the leaders of the different dormitories.

With a few hours of indoor work to their credit the squad has not shaped up to any great expectations but Wallach will soon display his squad on the College courts which have been reconditioned during the past week. Constant tryouts to develop the No. 1 man on the squad will put the players in active competition to determine the standout. Forming the nucleus of the team are Dunne, Bannigan, Rapplyea, Schmerhorn and Leary in which the strength of the squad subsists.

pitched the first four innings allowing only three runs on two hits and striking out nine of the sixteen men to face him. He, also collected two hits and a walk out of his five turns at the bat and scored two runs. Angell pitched the last three innings for Mendel.

Mendel started right out in the first inning by scoring three runs on three hits. They, also, got six runs in the second, eight in the third and three in the fourth. Alumni did not get started until the third inning, but they were hopelessly behind at that time, 17-0. However, they showed a little fight in the last three innings and closed that seventeen run lead to twelve.

DELTA PI EPSILON CHOOSES DOUGHERTY

Business Professor Becomes First Moderator of Resurrected Fraternity; Picture Today

Patrick J. Dougherty, M. A., assistant professor of business administration in the School of Commerce and Finance, was selected by the officers of Delta Pi Epsilon to serve as moderator of the fraternity at a meeting held yesterday.

PROF. P. J. DOUGHERTY

Long associated with the commerce school and a members of the national fraternity Delta Sigma Pi, the local chapter of which he was one of the organizers at Temples university, Mr. Dougherty, in the minds of those who chose him, is well-equipped for his position.

At at meeting of the fraternity members, also held yesterday prospective members' applications for admittance were received. These applications will be acted upon as soon as possible and, after approval by the administration, the names of those to be admitted will be announced.

John J. Brennan, treasurer, urged the members present to pay their membership fee and dues before the April 15 deadline in order that there will be sufficient funds in the treasury to warrant the fraternity's sponsoring some activity before the close of this semester.

The meeting concluded with the announcements that future meetings of the group will be held on Mondays at 1:00 P. M. in the Commerce and Finance auditorium and that the Belle Air Picture of the members will be taken this afternoon at 12:30 P. M. at the front entrance to the commerce school building.

CLASS ASSESSMENTS

With the orchestras for the Prom already under contract, the demand for the payment of Junior Class assessments is more than ever urgent. A goodly sum of money must be in the Class treasury before the night of the dance.

Treasurer James Forkin has issued an appeal for all members who have not done so to pay the required assessment. Any members of the Prom Committee are eligible to receive the money.

One hundred percent cooperation is expected of the third year men by President Dan Keating.

FLYING CLUB NAMES M. GASTON PRES.

Gallagher, Mambretti and Naylor Also Chosen to Lead Reorganized Club

The election of officers for the coming year highlighted the meeting of the newly reorganized Villanova Flying Club on Thursday, April 4.

Melcihor W. Gaston, electrical engineer, was elected president and took over the active management of the club from Joseph A. Gallagher, senior civil engineer, who has occupied the post of acting president since the movement to reorganize the club was started.

Paul L. Farnsworth, junior mechanical engineer, gained the post of vice-president, while Francis J. Mambretti and William F. Naylor, freshman engineers, were elected to the posts of secretary and treasurer respectively.

Following the elections on Thursday the members of the club again assembled on Friday to listen to Lieutenant Frank Hill, pilot from the Philadelphia air and seaplane base, discuss flying in general and recount some of his experiences while learning to fly at Pensacola, the naval flying base.

Negotiations are already under way for some of the members of the club to receive flight training but President Gaston wishes it made clear to all that it is not necessary to take flying lessons to belong to the Club.

"The club is open to all Villanova Students who wish to join," declared Gaston. "Our main purpose is to cultivate and further an interest in flying, and it is not necessary that the members take lessons as long as they are interested in aviation."

Hits Racial Discord

JAMES RICHARDSON, above, junior in the Commerce and Finance School, will speak on "Justice For The Negro" at the Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council Symposium. This is to be held at the St. Joseph's College, Sunday afternoon, April 21, from 2:30 until 5 o'clock.

FR. ALBERS ADDRESSES CATHOLIC HIGH GROUPS

Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., Vice-President of the college, will continue his series of addresses before Philadelphia high school groups this afternoon when he will speak before the St. Thomas More student body. The subject of his talks concerns the advantages Villanova offers to the Catholic high school graduate.

Previously, two such addresses have been made. On Friday last, Northeast Catholic High was visited by Fr. Albers. Yesterday, April 8, he spoke to the students of West Catholic High School for Boys.

Tomorrow, Southeast Catholic High School will be his host, while on April 12, Roman Catholic High School will provide the audience.

WIN $$, GET A JOB BY WRITING ESSAYS

Two nationwide essay contests and one in the Philadelphia area invite the participation of Villanova students.

The largest of these, conducted by "Scribner's Commentator," solicits essays suitable for publication in their magazines written by undergraduates of American colleges.

The winner of the contest will receive as his prize a summer job in any department of the magazine he chooses. A second prize of $200, a third prize of $50, and sixteen awards of $25 will go to the authors of the eighteen next best essays. Closing date is June 1.

Students interested in the fields of the sociology of the family, Christian marriage, parent education, and home economics are invited to participate in the Fifth Annual National Essay Contest sponsored by the National Catholic Conference on Family Life.

Those competing in the competition may write either an essay or a story dealing with one of these topics. The entries must reach the Conference no later than May 5.

Cash prizes of ten and five dollars, books, and subscriptions to "The Catholic Monthly" are offered to the winners.

A competition conducted by the Educational Committee of the Foreign Traders Association of Philadelphia, Inc., offers a prize of $25 for the best essay written by an undergraduate college or university student on one of the following topics:

Stephen Girard, Foreign Trader; Advantages of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements; and, To What Extent Can the Western Hemisphere be Economically Self-sufficient.

Complete rules of these three contests as to length of manuscripts, judging, method of preparation of copy, and addresses of contest sponsors may be obtained at the VILLANOVAN office.

SPANISH CLUB

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., moderator of the Spanish Club, has announced a meeting for Wednesday at 1 o'clock, in 110 Mendel.

Chesterfield

Busiest Cigarette in the Country ...that's Chesterfield

Going "two packs at a time" because Chesterfield is today's definitely milder, cooler-smoking, better-tasting cigarette

These three qualities—MILDNESS, COOLNESS, TASTE... are the sum and substance of real smoking pleasure. You enjoy all three in Chesterfield's right combination of the world's best cigarette tobaccos.

At over a million places where cigarettes are sold you can see these clean white Chesterfield packages going into more pockets and more handbags every day. All over the country smokers are finding out you can't buy a better cigarette.

Miss Aasta Pedersen ... the smiling hostess who welcomes guests at one of New York's most famous hotels. She will tell you Chesterfield is the busiest cigarette in the place.

JUNIORS ENGAGE RITZ-CARLTON ROOF FOR DINNER DANCE

Entire Gardens at Disposal of Third Year Men; Committee Is Selected

By FRANCIS J. MAMBRETTI

Midst the rural summer atmosphere of the Ritz-Carlton Roof Gardens, the members of the Class of 1941 will on Saturday evening, May 11, formally write "finis" to their week of festivities by dining and dancing to the tuneful rhythms of Stewart Murray and his orchestra.

John J. McGuire, chairman of the dinner-dance, in announcing the site declared that the orchestra, which is at present playing in the Ritz-Carlton Empire Room and which played at the December Ball, one of the largest and best social events in the Philadelphia area, will furnish music for dancing continuously from eight to twelve.

The dinner will officially get under way at eight-thirty but the dancing will start at eight to enable those who wish to, in the words of McGuire, "sample the music and prepare for the dinner—the menu of which will please the most exacting of epicures."

In addition to the rustic background of the hotel terrace, a country setting, unique decorations have been arranged for the occasion by the committee. Each table will be adorned by a large candle surrounded by a display of flowers and floral greens. Banners and pennants in the college spirit will further bedeck the festal surroundings.

McGuire has promised that the favors this year will be appreciated by all in view of the fact that

DRAMATIC SOCIETY GIVES 'THE TAVERN' ON APRIL 17 AND 21

Belle Masque Players, Rosemont Girls Set for Wednesday and Sunday Nights

By ROBERT J. McINTYRE

Wednesday, April 17, and Sunday, the 21 are the "red letter" days of the Belle Masque dramatic society, for on these two dates the group will present, under the direction of Anthony J. Frayne, M. A., George M. Cohan's hit production, "The Tavern."

The Field House, theater of Belle Masque, is the scene of last minute preparations this week. All departments of the Belle Masque report complete cooperation.

This year's scenery shows the interior of a 19th Century tavern; many who have seen both this year's set and the scenery of past years have given their personal opinion that "The Tavern" set is the best and most authentic ever constructed and used by the Belle Masque Society. The group responsible for the set construction was comprised of Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., moderator of the society; John T. Gallagher, company manager; Robert Dooley, stage manager, and Robert E. Tirell, assistant stage manager.

Realistic sound effects have been secured and will be operated by Joseph McNamara, chief sound effects man, and his crew composed of Joseph V. McCabe, Thomas Lyons, Walter Mason and the property man, John J. Burke.

Under the experienced business manager, J. Bradley McManus, and his assistant, Arthur S. Somers, work has been completed on the tickets, program, and list of patrons. McManus has announced

DPE ADMITS 25 PLEDGES TWO COMMITTEES NAMED

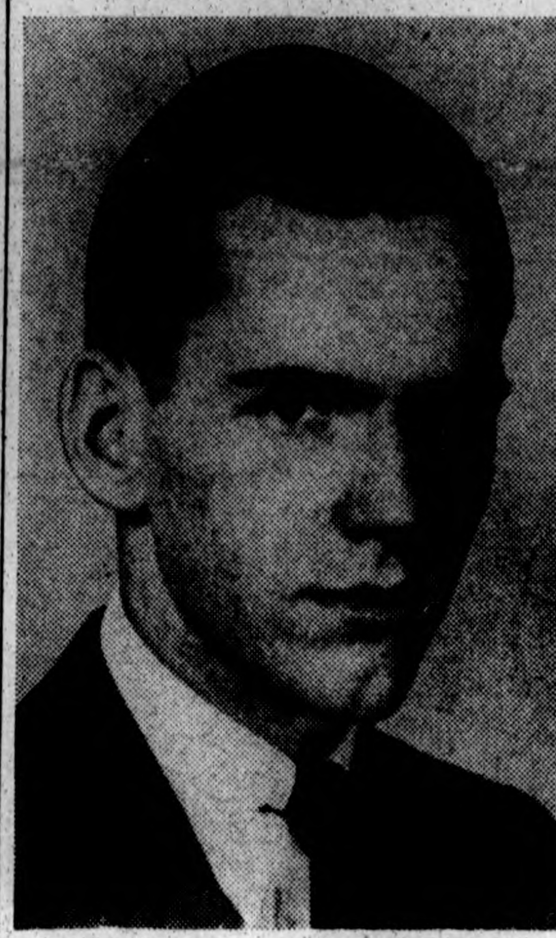
Twenty-five new members were received into Delta Pi Epsilon, commerce fraternity, last week, according to chairman of the membership committee William Epifanio. The reception of these pledges brings the total membership up to 93. President F. Connors appointed two committees at last meeting.

A.S.M.E. Convention To Hear Seelaus

John J. Seelaus, senior mechanical engineer and an honor student, will present a paper at the convention of the Eastern Colleges of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, to be held April 29, 30 at Newark College of Engineering, Newark, N. J. The paper, entitled "Problems in Air Conditioning a Spinning Mill," is limited to a quarter of an hour.

The convention will be attended by the junior and senior members of Villanova A. S. M. E., as well as by students of many other engineering schools such as New York University, Swarthmore, Drexel, Stevens Institute, Penn, and the University of Delaware.

Ball Chairman



WILLIAM J. APPEL

APPEL APPOINTED BLAZER BALL HEAD

Filling of Post Completes Chairmanship Positions of Junior Class

William J. Appel, junior engineer, has been appointed chairman of the Blazer Ball, to be held in the Field House on Wednesday evening, May 8, according to an announcement by Daniel J. Keating, president of the class of 1941.

Appel has been prominent in extra-curricular activities for the past three years. He served on the Orientation Committee during his sophomore year, and at present is a member of the Student Council. For three years he has been a member of the college glee club, and now sings second tenor in the quartet. He is also a member of the honor fraternity of the engineering school, Chi Epsilon Mu.

With the announcement of this appointment, the Blazer Ball Committee was also released. Those selected to assist Appel in his duties are: Hugh J. Boyle, William J. Delahanty, and James E. Flood, engineering students; Leonard J. Kolenda, School of Arts; Alexander J. Cannon, Victor J. Corbett, and Edward J. McKay, students in the School of Commerce and Finance.

Music Group Ends Instrument Talks

A review of all the choirs of the symphony orchestra featured the meeting of the Music Seminar on Wednesday, April 10.

With Dr. Edward Haenisch, Ph. D., operating the projector, sound films illustrating the various choirs individually and as a whole, were shown. Discussion and explanation of the various instruments and their use was conducted by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the group.

Due to the presentation of "The Tavern," the next meeting of the Music Seminar will not be held until Wednesday, April 24, at which time Dr. Haenisch will enlighten the members on the "Music Terminology of the Symphony."

EPT MEMBERS TO HOLD STAG DINNER ON MAY 29

Epsilon Phi Theta, arts fraternity, will hold a stag dinner on Wednesday evening, May 29, it was decided at a meeting held yesterday.

Because of the season and the nature of the affair, it was voted to make the dinner informal. It has not yet been decided just where the dinner will be held.

Two Honor Rolls Released By Deans; 27 Artsmen, 35 C&F Students Listed

Third-quarter honor rolls for two of the four schools of Villanova have been released by the deans. Those issuing the names of the meritorious students are the School of Commerce and Finance and the School of Arts.

The roll of the School of Science has not yet been compiled, while the School of Engineering will not issue an honor roll for the third quarter.

Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Ph. D., Dean of the commerce school, has released the following list of the 35 students who made the honor roll by obtaining an average of 3.00 or more and incurring no deficiency grades.

Seniors: Thomas J. Casper, Frank A. Pimpinella, Ronnie Tornwall, Hugh J. Riley, Arthur W. Murphy and Joseph J. York, Jr.

Juniors: Raymond F. Valentine, Walter T. Brown, Edward Banagan, James J. McGarey, Walter J. Kelley and James T. Brady.

Sophomores: Thomas A. Sullivan, Edward R. Frank, Joseph V. McCabe, Bernard J. Swartz, Anthony J. LaBrasca, Robert Hursh, John F. Jakovic, Joseph J. Costa, Fred J. Clark, James E. Halpin and James McElligott.

Freshmen: Loring A. Jones, Edward Borden, Ward C. Guncheon, Jr., William F. Fallon, Harry Keefrider, Neil Geighan, James Meehan, Paul Apostolica, John J. DiCarlo, Joseph T. Halpin, Martin M. Langweiler and James A. Walsh.

Twenty-seven art students have merited a position on the honor roll.

The honor roll reveals that the seniors have a higher proportion of merit students than any other class in the School of Arts.

Following are the leaders of their respective classes in the School of Arts: Joseph N. Bongiovanni, senior; Francis S. Vogel, junior; William E. Schubert, Sophomore, and Thomas F. Devine, freshman.

Others in the arts division of the school who obtained a general average of 3.00 or better are: seniors, Joseph M. McNamara, John J. Harrington, Paul W. Fitzmaurice, and Francis V. Moynihan; juniors: James F. Donovan and John M. Bader; sophomores, Howard A. McCall and Gerald Belz; freshmen, Joseph Haggarty and Joseph F. Mahoney.

Those in the Education Department who received an average of 3.00 or more are, seniors, Henry A. Mazzei, John A. Gogolinski, William J. Romanowski, Michael J. Sabrinsky, and William F. Duffy; juniors, Thomas J. Moore, Andrea D'Angelo, Ralph J. Bracken and John Valeri; sophomores, Thomas J. McKimmey, John P. Fullam and Mark Fitzgerald; freshman, Joseph Casele.

These ratings were calculated according to the system now in use in the four schools, in which an "A" counts 4 points, a "B" 3 points, a "C" 2 points, and a "D" 1 point (lower marks counting O). The credit hour value assigned to each course is multiplied by the mark received; after the total of all credit hours and grades is added, the sum is divided by the total credit hours carried to find the student's rating.

Board Dinner Honors Fr. Stanford; P.K.P. Seniors Given Keys At Banquet

Twenty-six College Presidents of Pennsylvania and Executive Directors of three national educational organizations were guests at a dinner in the Union League, to honor Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of Villanova College, on Thursday evening, April 11.

The dinner was given by eighteen members of the Advisory Board, "as a token of our appreciation and esteem, for the recognition that has been accorded to him as President of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania (1936-37), The National Conference of Church-Related Colleges (1937-38), and the Association of American Colleges (1940-41)."

Speakers were: William Mather Lewis, President of Lafayette College; Frederick P. Corson, President of Dickinson College; William P. Tolley, President of Allegheny College; Clement C. Williams, President of Lehigh University; the Rev. Dr. George Johnson, of Washington, Secretary-General of the National Catholic Educational Association, and W. W. Montgomery, Jr. Edgar Scott was Master of Ceremonies.

The members of the Advisory Board are: Vincent A. Carroll; William T. Connor, Frank Rogers Donahue, Walter F. Drueding, Aloysius L. Fitzpatrick, Ignatius J. Horstmann, Benjamin James, 3rd, John F. Macklin, Mr. Montgomery, William R. Mooney, Dr. Edward A. McCloskey, Martin J. McLaughlin, Gerald Ronon, Mr. Scott, William Simpson, J. Stanley Smith, David J. Smyth, and O. Howard Wolfe.

Dining and dancing to the music of the "Villanovans" at the Aronimink Country Club, the members of Phi Kappa Pi, official fraternity of the Engineering School, formally closed their social season at the frat's annual spring dinner-dance last Saturday, April 13.

Highlighting the affair, which lasted from eight to twelve-thirty, was the presentation of keys to the senior members of the fraternity by the Rev. John S. O'Leary, O. S. A. moderator of the fraternity.

Harold Murphy, president of the fraternity, acted as toastmaster of the affair, introducing the speakers: John Seelaus, senior mechanical engineer; J. Barr, a former president of the Phi Kappa Pi and feature speaker of the evening, and Fr. O'Leary.

After the presentation of the keys, Walter Kelly and a quartet consisting of John Heck, Francis O'Connell, John Seelaus, and Fred Bergner entertained the members with their renditions of Irish ballads and other songs.

Following the speakers and closing the formal entertainment for the evening came a series of dancing specialties — arranged through the efforts of Fr. O'Leary — presented by Walter Kelly, Vincent Gordon, John Dunnigan and Melchoir Gaston, whose interpretation of the tango was the hit of the evening, according to various members of the fraternity.

The site of the affair, the Aronimink Country Club, was that of last year's Junior Dinner Dance; the success of that class function induced the PKP officers to select the Club.

Remember Belle Masque

THE annual dramatic productions of the Belle Masque have been an intrinsic part of Villanova tradition, and the society's precedent of quality performances has made this an event to be looked for. This week the members of the Belle Masque will once more display their histrionic talents in their new show "The Tavern".

As everyone knows a play is never completed until it has been exposed to an audience. In fact, many playwrights consider the "fourth wall" of the theatre just as important a part of the play as the actor, in the final analysis.

Hence, the efforts of the director, the cast, and the stage crew of "The Tavern" will go unrewarded unless proper support be given to their forthcoming production. The play itself, the undeniable talent of the various members of the cast, together with the carefully built set for the show, will provide an enjoyable evening for all who attend.

In fact the excellence of the past performances and previews of the present almost demand full student support for the Belle Masque this week.

Wings On The Campus

FOR centuries, the human mind tried to solve the problem of flying and what a few decades ago was ridiculed by many as a dream has since been made an actuality. The airplane has become essential to modern peacetime activity and a potent part of modern warfare. Because of aviation's importance and appeal, flying clubs are being organized all over the country.

Here, on the Villanova campus, the flying Club has recently been reorganized. To foster and embellish their interest in aviation, the members will visit nearby airports and aircraft factories; they will pore over book on the subject and study the pictures. They will learn about the Wrights, Bleriot, Curtiss, and other pioneers in the field. Some will even eventually take flying instruction.

Aviation is a fast-expanding field; the Flying Club will help those students interested to learn about it and to keep pace with its developments in the modern world. Those interested among the students still have the opportunity of joining this campus organization.

Nice Knowing You

RECENT elections held in the Philadelphia locals of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union showed that the golden promises of the Reds in this country are beginning to lose their appeal for the worker. A great majority of the Communist candidates for office were defeated.

Getting a strangle-hold on the labor of a country has been one of the first steps taken by the Reds in inculcating their infamous doctrines in a nation, but it seems that the American worker has, to use a slang expression, "wised up".

If this is an indication of the weakening of the Red influence in the United States, it is a sure sign that good old Yankee common sense has once more come to the fore in this respect. It is to be hoped that all the labor unions in the country start their spring cleaning by fumigating their premises by getting rid of the Red plague that infested them with a reeking odor, wherever it has fostered.

This news coming with the proximate opening of the baseball season, casts a reassuring outlook in part on domestic affairs.

—A. J. D'A.

Share The Guilt!

CLEVER British propaganda is now attempting to camouflage their part of the guilt in the recent Norwegian atrocity by stating that Hitler's seizure of Denmark and his attempt to "grab" Norway have given the Allies an opportunity to launch an effective offensive against German totalitarianism.

On the surface of things, this may seem to be true, but the situation takes the hue of another face-saving declaration when the thinking observer of the foreign scene doesn't allow conflicting reports and counter-reports to obscure the import of the circumstances leading up to Hitler's latest adventure.

The mining of Norwegian territorial waters was an outright violation of that country's rights as a neutral. In its way, although more "humane", it is just as powerful a weapon of war, being injurious economically to the land of the fjords as Germany's militaristic methods. Hence it is safe to assume that the Nazis were prompted to this rash action undoubtedly by England's blockade of the Scandinavian coast, and that the English must share in the guilt of spreading the conflict.

All this is by the way of pointing out that now is the time for all good Americans to keep their reason and not let sentiment and artfully arranged propaganda destroy their perspective point of view. It's a funny game they're playing "over thar", and we don't want to get in it at any event. Before we do, we want to know the score.

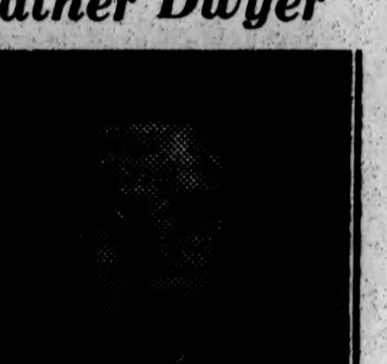
A Frontier Of Philosophy Repulsing Mistaken Ideas

Man Cannot Progress Without Gazing Fixedly Toward Superior Things

By EDWARD M. DWYER, O. S. A., Ph. D.
Assistant Professor, Philosophy

PERHAPS there is nothing new under the sun, but then the sun disappears every so often and we have the pleasure of feasting our eyes on the novel. The philosopher for one does not take the old adage too seriously, although like most people he makes his living by being serious, which is likewise ancient and moth-eaten. He is elated when a new thought appears, and does not relish finding that his joy was unfounded. Of course, philosophical elation is only grim tenseness to people of lighter heart, who do not consider laughter a waste of time and energy, but still to find new ways of thinking about things brings a happy smile to the lips of Plato's progeny.

Father Dwyer



A. B., Villanova College, 1928; Summer School, Manhattanville College, N. Y., 1927; University of Berlin, 1933; Ph. D., Graduate Work, Institutum Angelicum, Rome, Italy, 1933-37; Villanova College, 1937.

Remember that the corners of his mouth turn down instead of up, so do not misinterpret his expression of gladness. Even business men have the privilege of smiling sourly at times, so why quibble about calling philosophic lip-curling a smile of joy?

Philosopher Conservative

Not so long ago the philosophic visage broke into a hilarious, sunny, rollicking, tight-lipped roar of happiness. In philosophical language the phrase "not so long ago" is a synonym for recently. It is a general way of locating chronologically what may have happened during the last thre centuries. In his noble effort to be critical, the philosopher becomes a trifle careless in the use of temporal adverds. "Only a short time" ago means less than a century. It is, to the unitiated, somewhat misleading but definitely or indefinitely liberal. Beside the chronology of the astronomer and geologist, or the breath-taking zeros of a senatorial appropriation for national defense, the philosopher is markedly conservative.

The happy occasion mentioned was the appearance of what has since been dubbed the philosophy of value. No, it is not communistic. The Reds have values, of course, but so do the Nazis not to speak of the Finns. Values are like arms and legs. Everybody has them. To evaluate you must be alive; even kicking is not a prerequisite, so stand by. The theory of values seems to have begun as a face-saving device. Generals and sea-captains sometimes shoot themselves or go down with the ship, but the able philosopher will argue his way out of what is obvious to all as a childish blunder. The evident advantage of using this method to save face lies in the fact that the philosopher lives on.

Mistaken Notions

Not so long ago, to repeat, sophisticated criticism had earned the thumbs down signal for philosophy by throwing some of man's cherished pets to the lions. Queer notions such as cause, certitude, virtue, loyalty, beauty, faith, and the like had been pulled apart by smart boys until the parlor floor was a litter of bits of fur, bone, a few teeth, with here and there a pool of blood. Mother was horrified. The little darlings had often tormented the cat, dog, and canary it is true, but she scarcely expected them to strew the house with what they thought was a clever effort to find the bark, meow, and song.

The notions, however queer, had to be resurrected in some manner or other, even though they are difficult to understand and not a little obstinate at times. Get rid of causality for instance and life becomes too much like bingo. Guess again is bad philosophy, poor science, and frequently weak manhood. Certitude and faith form an odd combination. They are alike as a man's two feet, but just as different too. Two right feet or two left might be infinitely more intelligible, but for some strange reason they do not walk well together.

Efforts of Philosophy

The philosophy of value has made a brave and still promising effort to reinstate and make respectable again what some of their predecessors had so casually discarded. The process does not consist in waving a wand and having a brace of previously unknown doves emerge from the hat. It is a revitalization which has gone beyond the shot-in-the-arm stage. The first step in the operation, not experiment, was to recognize clearly that man could not progress without gazing toward things superior to himself. The second step followed naturally. The gaze dare not be a passing glance. It must be so struck by the brilliance of its vision that it remains fixed on the scene of beauty, purity, peace, and dignity of human life as it should be lived. The new theory of values is passing through the critical phases which are the

IT is interesting to note that mighty Joe Connors has resumed his mid-day visits to Harcum. M. Joe wasn't along at the time; if he was, we'd put our money on him for first prize, masquerade or no.

TWEET-TWEET:

Spring has finally come to the campus and, besides the presence of the robin and the budding trees, there are several more prominent signs to herald this change from "heavy to light." Among these are Kirk Holland and his tonsorial undoing, affectionately called a "whiffle." He and Phil Quinn are trying to put the barbers on relief.

"Rick" Frey finally emerged from hibernation the other day and proceeded to exercise his big frame on the lawn in front of Austin—such ambition!

Along with all these might be noted the "walks" which the boys are taking in the surrounding countryside; really very pretty; the countryside!

And then there was the stew who was lying on the sidewalk, clutching the concrete with both hands.

A pedestrian came up to him and said, "What in the world are you doing, by good man?"

To which the inebriate replied, "I'll climb this wall if it takes me all night."

Let that be a lesson to youse guys!

HERE AND THERE:

Artie Somers holds the endurance record for local telephone calls. It appears that either he holds stock in Bell Telephone or else he repeats himself—Give the 'phone a chance Art! . . . Jack Eldracher appears to have finally narrowed down his choice at Rosemont. For a while there, it looked as though he were "playing the field" and getting nowhere in a hurry . . .

The presence of the Rosemont girls in "The Tavern" has come as a welcome relief to the "toiling" male members of the cast. Jimmy Donovan really does breeze around backstage—first one, then another —very gallant, James! . . .

Bob Dugan refuses to write to Dot until she answers his last. You ought to send a stamped self-addressed envelope, Bob — it might get results.

ENTHUSIASTS:

Among others, Johnny Parsons and Bill Mowen were present at the Ben Franklin last Friday night to look over Leighton Noble and crew. Their stamp of approval was definitely given; in fact, it was Bill's second trip to the Roof Garden during the maestro's present engagement and he says it won't be the last.

John, an experienced radio announcer, has worked with Noble in the past and claims that the maestro, along with playing swell music, is just about the most pleasant leader he has ever introduced to the public.

FLASH:

The honor of purchasing the first ticket to the Junior Prom goes to Steve Eusko, a freshman football player, who had the money even before the tickets were printed. That oughta put some dynamite into the rest of the student body because the big event is less than a month away.

Barney Bellew Supplies Material For Anyone's Hero — Excells in Track

NO! Villanova has no Newton, Pasteur or Jenner, but it does have Bernard M. Bellew (pronounced Bell-you) who someday hopes to give these fellows a run for their money. 'Twas a memorable day for Philadelphia when a new heir joined the Bellew family way back on December 19, 1917—the war wasn't the only important thing that year).

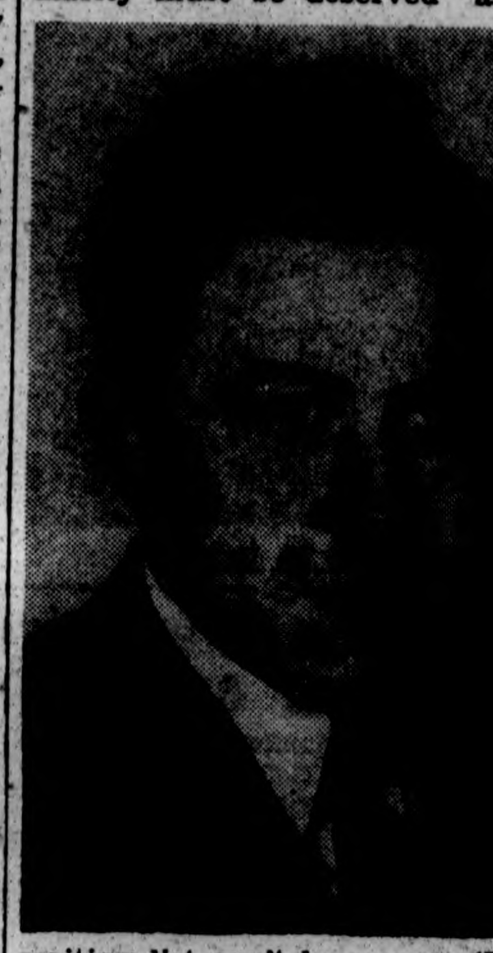
Barney proved to be an athlete from the beginning of his antics in the bedroom as a young'un; but crossed up all prophesies in later years. The way he climbed over the crib poles pointed toward his being a champion pole vaulter but Barney decided to run instead.

All good things must come to an end, however, so Barney was forced to leave St. Stephen's for higher institutions of learning and entered Northeast Catholic High.

All Around

It was here the athletic genius in the boy came forth. Not content wtih excelling in one sport, Barney became a letter man in swimming, football and track and topped all this off by making the honor roll 14 out of a possible 16 times for a batting average of .875, which isn't bad. It was while pursuing his studies at N. C. that Barney cracked the National Indoor A. A. U. 800 meter track record and his mark still stands intact. He also added the Catholic League championship in the 880 yard run to his now long string of wins.

However, Barney, as all other exceptional men, realizes that everyone must have a certain amount of play in his life. According to his friends Barney never has any trouble with the fair sex but has one fault—he's fickle. Barney is a very modest chap, and so someone must tell things about him. It looks like I'm elected. On many occasions this handsome Pre-Medical student has been haunted by members of the opposite sex and is one of the most popular fellows on the campus. As far as women are concerned Barney has quite a reputation and in some sections is known by the name "love them and leave them" Bellew. However, such popularity must be deserved as his waiting list can't be wrong. (I said wrong—not long).



Free Lancer

Now comes the most important steps in the life of this young man —his entrance into Villanova. Since his matriculation at the college, he has been active in all spheres of endeavor, and has never been a member of any cliques—he's just a free lancer. In his foremost activity, track, Barney has carved himself a niche in Villanova's hall of fame. When he and his pal, Guiteras, made their entrance on the scene, the track team was at a low ebb, but, around these two men, a creditable team has been built.

In his freshman year Barney immediately demonstrated his popularity with the members of his class by being elected Treasurer of his class. He has the unique distinction of holding this responsible position for three successive years. Being a member of the Science School, Barney was privileged to join the L. K. D., Science fraternity, in which he has been one of the most active members. Once again Barney showed his abiilty to combine successfully sports and studies by being placed on the honor roll.

Although devoting much of his time to track and his books, Barney has not ben dormant in other activities. He spent four years as a member of the VILLANOVAN and wrote "College Chatter," one of its columns, in his senior year; he was also a member of the yearbook staff in his sophomore and junior years.

Half-Mile Champ

During his stay on the track team, Barney captured the half-mile championship in 1938 and finished behind Bill Guiteras in the following year. He has been one of the mainstays of the cinder men and has also run indoor, on the mile relay team. It seems that the pet pastime of this runner is to "get on the ear of Guiteras," and he does a good job.

Now that Barney is on the verge of graduation, he has begun to look into the future for his life's work. First choice in his mind seems to be medicine, but if that should be impossible, he would either like to join the air corps or study chemistry.

To Barney Bellew—really a gentleman, athlete and scholar"—we bid a fond farewell and offer our best wishes for success in his chosen field, no matter what it may be.

Learn To Dance And Go To Prom

By "MING" YOT

ARE you going to the Junior Prom? . . . You're not? Why, I'm ashamed. Well, why aren't you going? . . . What! You can't dance? I don't believe it . . . You're not kidding. Well, something has to be done about this . . .

You say we should teach you by remote control. What's that . . . Oh, run an article telling how. Well, why not? Here goes, and heaven help those who learn. We guarantee results, but reserve all rights to prosecution for accidents. After all, can we help it?

Point One: Alibis

In this science of dancing there are many troubles which should be averted but can't be. You know, thing like stepping on your partner's foot, kicking her shins, etc. We realize you can't help this, but you should know some good alibis. The first principle of this course will be to learn a good supply of alibis.

First we'll take up that very prevalent slip of stepping on your date's foot. Never let her think you're wrong. That's the wrong attitude. One good method is to tell her: "I'll not bother to apologize now, I'll save time and just apologize once at the end of the night." This is a "sure fire" alibi because it puts your date in a humorous frame of mind, and she'll have to have a good sense of humor to dance with you.

Trouble Crops Up

Next we take up that very disastrous mistake of treading on the girl's dress in the process of the dance and rending it from hem to hem. This is indeed a touchy problem and the most experienced men have trouble with this situation. The best alibi for this is to stand there and take the slap like a man. She may cool off in a couple of weeks, but it's doubtful. When my students get in this position I sever all relationship.

Another ordinary mistake is to absent-mindedly turn your head to speak and get a mouthful of the girl's hair. This sadly disarranges the young lady's coiffure, which isn't being done in the best of circles. When this happens, a good line of excuse would be to offer some flattery. Tell her: "Dancing with you is a dream, I forget everything." This should work, but if she replies, "This is no dream, it's a nightmare" just give up the ship and go home. Your mother loves you anyway.

This, it seems to me, should suffice for the alibi angle. Although it is very important to know the correct alibis for your dancing, there are other angles to be regarded.

Learn the Answers

When in the presence of girls at a dance, it is elementary that you have a good knowledge of the right answers at the right time. After all, good dancers always sit out several numbers an evening, and who are you to disagree with good dancers?

The first requisite in a conversation is never to tell the truth when it hurts. She won't, so why should you? Never say, "This is a nice dance." She probably has formed an opinion already, and what you say can't change it.

Never let any hints of ancestry enter the conversation; after all it's you she came with, not your family.

Special Points

The best system, however is to be just plain subtle; look in her eyes and coo like a dove. That puts any woman on the defensive and also breaks down any defence.

During the dance speak of the fine time you're having; maybe after a while you'll believe it yourself.

When leaving, take plenty of time at the cloak room. Don't be afraid to converse with the fellows—she can wait. Have a last cigarette and then return with the comment, "Now, I wasn't long, was I?"

Now You're Set

Although these may seem to have no bearing on the point, don't let that bother you. You are now a full-fledged dancer without a lesson in your life. After all, dancing is only a matter of how smart you are getting out of disastrous scrapes.

To learn the mechanical points of dancing, see any ordinary instructor, but it is these higher points of conduct which cause the trouble. Master them and you too can be a "sharp article."

See you at the Junior Prom, and I'm not kidding!

Fiendish Mars

"Go forth and kill!" scream the gods of war,
"And fill our thirst for blood;
Fools that you are, let your spirits soar;
The hell with that heart-rending thud!"

And man, like a fool, goes into battle;
Father kills son, brother kills brother,
And death conquers all with his laughing rattle
At a grief-stricken wife or a tearful mother.

And, when it's all over and a day breaks clear,
They realize then that nothing was gained.
Some return home to ones they hold dear,
Very few healthy, most of them maimed.

Remember Belle Masque

THE annual dramatic productions of the Belle Masque have been an intrinsic part of Villanova tradition, and the society's precedent of quality performances has made this an event to be looked for. This week the members of the Belle Masque will once more display their histrionic talents in their new show "The Tavern".

As everyone knows a play is never completed until it has been exposed to an audience. In fact, many playwrights consider the "fourth wall" of the theatre just as important a part of the play as the actor, in the final analysis.

Hence, the efforts of the director, the cast, and the stage crew of "The Tavern" will go unrewarded unless proper support be given to their forthcoming production. The play itself, the undeniable talent of the various members of the cast, together with the carefully built set for the show, will provide an enjoyable evening for all who attend.

In fact the excellence of the past performances and previews of the present almost demand full student support for the Belle Masque this week.

Wings On The Campus

FOR centuries, the human mind tried to solve the problem of flying and what a few decades ago was ridiculed by many as a dream has since been made an actuality. The airplane has become essential to modern peacetime activity and a potent part of modern warfare. Because of aviation's importance and appeal, flying clubs are being organized all over the country.

Here, on the Villanova campus, the flying Club has recently been reorganized. To foster and embellish their interest in aviation, the members will visit nearby airports and aircraft factories; they will pore over book on the subject and study the pictures. They will learn about the Wrights, Bleriot, Curtiss, and other pioneers in the field. Some will even eventually take flying instruction.

Aviation is a fast-expanding field; the Flying Club will help those students interested to learn about it and to keep pace with its developments in the modern world. Those interested among the students still have the opportunity of joining this campus organization.

Nice Knowing You

RECENT elections held in the Philadelphia locals of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union showed that the golden promises of the Reds in this country are beginning to lose their appeal for the worker. A great majority of the Communist candidates for office were defeated.

Getting a strangle-hold on the labor of a country has been one of the first steps taken by the Reds in inculcating their infamous doctrines in a nation, but it seems that the American worker has, to use a slang expression, "wised up".

If this is an indication of the weakening of the Red influence in the United States, it is a sure sign that good old Yankee common sense has once more come to the fore in this respect. It is to be hoped that all the labor unions in the country start their spring cleaning by fumigating their premises by getting rid of the Red plague that infested them with a reeking odor, wherever it has fostered.

This news coming with the proximate opening of the baseball season, casts a reassuring outlook in part on domestic affairs.

Share The Guilt!

CLEVER British propaganda is now attempting to camouflage their part of the guilt in the recent Norwegian atrocity by stating that Hitler's seizure of Denmark and his attempt to "grab" Norway have given the Allies an opportunity to launch an effective offensive against German totalitarianism.

On the surface of things, this may seem to be true, but the situation takes the hue of another face-saving declaration when the thinking observer of the foreign scene doesn't allow conflicting reports and counter-reports to obscure the import of the circumstances leading up to Hitler's latest adventure.

The mining of Norwegian territorial waters was an outright violation of that country's rights as a neutral. In its way, although more "humane", it is just as powerful a weapon of war, being injurious economically to the land of the fjords as Germany's militaristic methods. Hence it is safe to assume that the Nazis were prompted to this rash action undoubtedly by England's blockade of the Scandinavian coast, and that the English must share in the guilt of spreading the conflict.

All this is by the way of pointing out that now is the time for all good Americans to keep their reason and not let sentiment and artfully arranged propaganda destroy their perspective point of view. It's a funny game they're playing "over thar", and we don't want to get in it at any event. Before we do, we want to know the score.

A Frontier Of Philosophy Repulsing Mistaken Ideas

Man Cannot Progress Without Gazing Fixedly Toward Superior Things

By EDWARD M. DWYER, O. S. A., Ph. D.
Assistant Professor, Philosophy

PERHAPS there is nothing new under the sun, but then the sun disappears every so often and we have the pleasure of feasting our eyes on the novel. The philosopher for one does not take the old adage too seriously, although like most people he makes his living by being serious, which is likewise ancient and moth-eaten. He is elated when a new thought appears, and does not relish finding that his joy was unfounded. Of course, philosophical elation is only grim tenseness to people of lighter heart, who do not consider laughter a waste of time and energy, but still to find new ways of thinking about things brings a happy smile to the lips of Plato's progeny.

Father Dwyer

A. B., Villanova College, 1928; Summer School, Manhattanville College, N. Y., 1927; University of Berlin, 1933; Ph. D., Graduate Work, Institutum Angelicum, Rome, Italy, 1933-37; Villanova College, 1937.

Remember that the corners of his mouth turn down instead of up, so do not misinterpret his expression of gladness. Even business men have the privilege of smiling sourly at times, so why quibble about calling philosophic lip-curling a smile of joy?

Philosopher Conservative

Not so long ago the philosophic visage broke into a hilarious, sunny, rollicking, tight-lipped roar of happiness. In philosophical language the phrase "not so long ago" is a synonym for recently. It is a general way of locating chronologically what may have happened during the last thre centuries. In his noble effort to be critical, the philosopher becomes a trifle careless in the use of temporal adverds. "Only a short time" ago means less than a century. It is, to the unitiated, somewhat misleading but definitely or indefinitely liberal. Beside the chronology of the astronomer and geologist, or the breath-taking zeros of a senatorial appropriation for national defense, the philosopher is markedly conservative.

The happy occasion mentioned was the appearance of what has since been dubbed the philosophy of value. No, it is not communistic. The Reds have values, of course, but so do the Nazis not to speak of the Finns. Values are like arms and legs. Everybody has them. To evaluate you must be alive; even kicking is not a prerequisite, so stand by. The theory of values seems to have begun as a face-saving device. Generals and sea-captains sometimes shoot themselves or go down with the ship, but the able philosopher will argue his way out of what is obvious to all as a childish blunder. The evident advantage of using this method to save face lies in the fact that the philosopher lives on.

Not so long ago, to repeat, sophisticated criticism had earned the thumbs down signal for philosophy by throwing some of man's cherished pets to the lions. Queer notions such as cause, certitude, virtue, loyalty, beauty, faith, and the like had been pulled apart by smart boys until the parlor floor was a litter of bits of fur, bone, a few teeth, with here and there a pool of blood. Mother was horrified. The little darlings had often tormented the cat, dog, and canary it is true, but she scarcely expected them to strew the house with what they thought was a clever effort to find the bark, meow, and song.

The notions, however queer, had to be resurrected in some manner or other, even though they are difficult to understand and not a little obstinate at times. Get rid of causality for instance and life becomes too much like bingo. Guess again is bad philosophy, poor science, and frequently weak manhood. Certitude and faith form an odd combination. They are alike as a man's two feet, but just as different too. Two right feet or two left might be infinitely more intelligible, but for some strange reason they do not walk well together.

The philosophy of value has made a brave and still promising effort to reinstate and make respectable again what some of their predecessors had so casually discarded. The process does not consist in waving a wand and having a brace of previously unknown doves emerge from the hat. It is a revitalization which has gone beyond the shot-in-the-arm stage. The first step in the operation, not experiment, was to recognize clearly that man could not progress without gazing toward things superior to himself. The second step followed naturally. The gaze dare not be a passing glance. It must be so struck by the brilliance of its vision that it remains fixed on the scene of beauty, purity, peace, and dignity of human life as it should be lived. The new theory of values is passing through the critical phases which are the

IT is interesting to note that mighty Joe Connors has resumed his mid-day visits to Harcum. M. TWEET-TWEET:

Spring has finally come to the campus and, besides the presence of the robin and the budding trees, there are several more prominent signs to herald this change from "heavy to light." Among these are Kirk Holland and his tonsorial undoing, affectionately called a "whiffle." He and Phil Quinn are trying to put the barbers on relief.

"Rick" Frey finally emerged from hibernation the other day and proceeded to exercise his big frame on the lawn in front of Austin—such ambition!

Along with all these might be noted the "walks" which the boys are taking in the surrounding countryside; really very pretty; the countryside!

And then there was the stew who was lying on the sidewalk, clutching the concrete with both hands.

A pedestrian came up to him and said, "What in the world are you doing, by good man?"

To which the inebriate replied, "I'll climb this wall if it takes me all night."

Let that be a lesson to youse guys!

HERE AND THERE:

Artie Somers holds the endurance record for local telephone calls. It appears that either he holds stock in Bell Telephone or else he repeats himself—Give the 'phone a chance Art! . . . Jack Eldracher appears to have finally narrowed down his choice at Rosemont. For a while there, it looked as though he were "playing the field" and getting nowhere in a hurry . . .

The presence of the Rosemont girls in "The Tavern" has come as a welcome relief to the "toiling" male members of the cast. Jimmy Donovan really does breeze around backstage—first one, then another —very gallant, James! . . .

Bob Dugan refuses to write to Dot until she answers his last. You ought to send a stamped self-addressed envelope, Bob — it might get results.

ENTHUSIASTS:

Among others, Johnny Parsons and Bill Mowen were present at the Ben Franklin last Friday night to look over Leighton Noble and crew. Their stamp of approval was definitely given; in fact, it was Bill's second trip to the Roof Garden during the maestro's present engagement and he says it won't be the last.

John, an experienced radio announcer, has worked with Noble in the past and claims that the maestro, along with playing swell music, is just about the most pleasant leader he has ever introduced to the public.

Barney Bellew Supplies Material For Anyone's Hero — Excells in Track

NO! Villanova has no Newton, Pasteur or Jenner, but it does have Bernard M. Bellew (pronounced Bell-you) who someday hopes to give these fellows a run for their money. 'Twas a memorable day for Philadelphia when a new heir joined the Bellew family way back on December 19, 1917—the war wasn't the only important thing that year).

Barney proved to be an athlete from the beginning of his antics in the bedroom as a young'un; but crossed up all prophesies in later years. The way he climbed over the crib poles pointed toward his being a champion pole vaulter but Barney decided to run instead.

All good things must come to an end, however, so Barney was forced to leave St. Stephen's for higher institutions of learning and entered Northeast Catholic High.

All Around

It was here the athletic genius in the boy came forth. Not content wtih excelling in one sport, Barney became a letter man in swimming, football and track and topped all this off by making the honor roll 14 out of a possible 16 times for a batting average of .875, which isn't bad. It was while pursuing his studies at N. C. that Barney cracked the National Indoor A. A. U. 800 meter track record and his mark still stands intact. He also added the Catholic League championship in the 880 yard run to his now long string of wins.

However, Barney, as all other exceptional men, realizes that everyone must have a certain amount of play in his life. According to his friends Barney never has any trouble with the fair sex but has one fault—he's fickle. Barney is a very modest chap, and so someone must tell things about him. It looks ilke I'm elected. On many occasions this handsome Pre-Medical student has been haunted by members of the opposite sex and is one of the most popular fellows on the campus. As far as women are concerned Barney has quite a reputation and in some sections is known by the name "love them and leave them" Bellew. However, such popularity must be deserved as his waiting list can't be wrong. (I said wrong—not long).

Now comes the most important steps in the life of this young man —his entrance into Villanova. ARE you going to the Junior Prom? . . . You're not? Why, I'm ashamed. Well, why aren't you going? . . . What! You can't dance? I don't believe it . . . You're not kidding. Well, something has to be done about this . . .

Point One: Alibis

In this science of dancing there are many troubles which should be averted but can't be. You know, thing like stepping on your partner's foot, kicking her shins, etc. We realize you can't help this, but you should know some good alibis. The first principle of this course will be to learn a good supply of alibis.

First we'll take up that very prevalent slip of stepping on your date's foot. Never let her think you're wrong. That's the wrong attitude. One good method is to tell her: "I'll not bother to apologize now, I'll save time and just apologize once at the end of the night." This is a "sure fire" alibi because it puts your date in a humorous frame of mind, and she'll have to have a good sense of humor to dance with you.

Next we take up that very disastrous mistake of treading on the girl's dress in the process of the dance and rending it from hem to hem. This is indeed a touchy problem and the most experienced men have trouble with this situation. The best alibi for this is to stand there and take the slap like a man. She may cool off in a couple of weeks, but it's doubtful. When my students get in this position I sever all relationship.

Another ordinary mistake is to absent-mindedly turn your head to speak and get a mouthful of the girl's hair. This sadly disarranges the young lady's coiffure, which isn't being done in the best of circles. When this happens, a good line of excuse would be to offer some flattery. Tell her: "Dancing with you is a dream, I forget everything." This should work, but if she replies, "This is no dream, it's a nightmare" just give up the ship and go home. Your mother loves you anyway.

This, it seems to me, should suffice for the alibi angle. Although it is very important to know the correct alibis for your dancing, there are other angles to be regarded.

When in the presence of girls at a dance, it is elementary that you have a good knowledge of the right answers at the right time. After all, good dancers always sit out several numbers an evening, and who are you to disagree with good dancers?

The first requisite in a conversation is never to tell the truth when it hurts. She won't, so why should you? Never say, "This is a nice dance." She probably has formed an opinion already, and what you say can't change it.

Never let any hints of ancestry enter the conversation; after all it's you she came with, not your family.

Special Points

The best system, however is to be just plain subtle; look in her eyes and coo like a dove. That puts any woman on the defensive and also breaks down any defence.

During the dance speak of the fine time you're having; maybe after a while you'll believe it yourself.

When leaving, take plenty of time at the cloak room. Don't be afraid to converse with the fellows—she can wait. Have a last cigarette and then return with the comment, "Now, I wasn't long, was I?"

Now You're Set

Although these may seem to have no bearing on the point, don't let that bother you. You are now a full-fledged dancer without a lesson in your life. After all, dancing is only a matter of how smart you are getting out of disastrous scrapes.

To learn the mechanical points of dancing, see any ordinary instructor, but it is these higher points of conduct which cause the trouble. Master them and you too can be a "sharp article."

See you at the Junior Prom, and I'm not kidding!

ZEALOR, STELLER PICK COMMITTEES

Thirteen Juniors to Assist in Mother's Day, Open House Activities

Thirteen members of the third year class have been selected to serve on the Mother's Day and Open House Committees by the chairmen of these respective Junior Week activities.

Frederick C. Steller, Open House chairman, has announced his committee as follows: William N. Way, School of Arts; George Baran, business student; Karl E. Vogel, John J. Skelly, engineering school; Edward E. Steinhardt, Peter C. Yankauskas, Robert W. Kiley, science students.

These two activities are held in conjunction with each other, and officially inaugurate Junior Week. Mother's Day is for the benefit of the students' mothers, who are on this occasion granted an opportunity to witness the progress of the college. Open House, held this year in the Field House for the convenience of the mothers, is a combination of exhibits and entertainment presented for the interest of the community at large.

In previous years, Mother's Day has been a favorite with both the students and their parents, and this year, if possible a novelty will be added to the program. The new highlight, if present plans materialize, will be a tea dance held in the gymnasium for the mothers. Luncheon, as usual, will be in the college dining hall accompanied by the music of the Villanovans. Souvenirs will be presented to the mothers at this informal gathering.

that this year's program will be larger than any used previously at Villanova.

After weeks of endless and grueling rehearsals the production cast has finally been decided upon. The lead is Robert E. O'Brien, that of the vagabond. Other featured players are Victor I. Cook, James F. Donovan, Frank Buckley, John J. McGovern, Joseph M. McNamara, and Frank Quaranta. Also sharing the Belle Masque spotlight this week will be the Misses Sue Cissell, Mary Ambrose, Georgina Lewis and Pat McDonald, young ladies of Rosemont College, who will portray the female characters in the show.

Tickets are on sale at the book store, the Commerce and Finance office, and the Registrar's office. They may also be purchased from Fr. Sullivan, J. Bradley McManus, and Arthur S. Somers, or at the door. The prices of the tickets are $.50 and $.75 for reserved seats. Student tickets are $.50 and each student may purchase as many as desired.

Spanish Students To Present Drama During Open House

Immaculata Girls to Appear in Language Play By Fr. Lozano

The Department of Spanish will play an important role in Open House, which will be held this year on May 6.

For the affair, Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, M. A., moderator of the Spanish Club, has written a language play entitled, "Lolita Quiera Aprender Ingles" (Lolita Wants to Learn English"). The play is a farce in two acts, in which English as well as Spanish is spoken on the stage.

Male parts will be portrayed by members of the Villanova Spanish Club, while the feminine roles will be handled by Spanish students from Immaculata College.

Rehearsals, under the direction of Fr. Lozano, are being held regularly. Under present plans, the play will be presented twice during Open House in order to give everyone a chance to see it.

Villanova students in the cast include: Alsenio Martinez, Erricson Roy, Frank Jimenez, Steve Pritko, Manuel Alsina, Anvolina Andrew and Jorge Luis Cuadro.

A. S. C. E. PLANS TRIP

The local chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers intends to conclude its present series of field trips with a final tour in the near future. The date and site of this trip have not as yet been decided.

The members of the society journeyed to the Valley Forge Cement Works at Conshohocken last Thursday, April 11. Here, the various processes connected with this plant were observed.

Conclave Draws Chemists

Eighteen delegates from the Chemical Society, together with Dr. Edward L. Haenisch and Mr. Francis J. Limacher, members of the chemical engineering faculty, will attend the Intercollegiate Student Chemists' Convention at Albright College in Reading, Pa., on Saturday, April 20.

Student members of the session, representing fourteen colleges and universities of Eastern Pennsylvania and Delaware, will present papers on original research. The speaker from Villanova College will be chosen from the group comprising Edward J. Cierkowski, Andrew McKane, Daniel J. Troy, and George M. Wengrynuk. The material for the talk will be taken from the thesis work of the student chosen.

Two days before this trip, the members of the society will play host to their graduate members at the annual Alumni Dinner of the society, which will be held May 18 in the college dining hall.

John J. Maucieri, chairman, has appointed a committee consisting of J. Gordon Smith, Harry A. Kunberger, Allen A. Brown, John F. McKinney, Joseph E. Norton, and Joseph R. Wickland to make arrangements for the affair.

In accordance with their calendar schedule, the Chemical Society held the nominations for officers for the coming year. William E. Deasy, James E. Flood, John F. McKinney, and Charles J. Schafer, junior chemical engineers, received the nominations for the presidency while William J. Delahanty, junior, John J. Madison, sophomore, and Hyman Malkin, junior, were nominated for vice-president. Nominated for secretary were Robert S. Ayerle, sophomore, and James J. Early, sophomore, while Roger L. Logan, and Charles W. Schaumann, both sophomores, received the bids for the post of sargeant-at-arms.

A nomination committee consisting of John R. Leary, Frank W. Smith, Harold A. Kunberger, George Haluszka, John Madison and Samuel Mongelluzzo will consider the nominees and present the approved list of candidates at the next meeting.

Also at the meeting on April 22 the Chemical Society will present, through the courtesy of the Standard Oil Company, a sound motion-picture on the subject "Design for Power." Dr. Haenisch has issued an invitation for all those interested to attend.

DR. McHUGH MEMBER OF EDUCATIONAL COMMITTEE

Visits John Bartram High, Phila., to Evaluate School for Association

Dr. William H. McHugh, Ph. D., head of the Education Department, has been engaged in the work of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools since last October.

He was a member of one of the two committees sent by the association to visit John Bartram High School in Philadelphia on April 8, 9, and 10; earlier in the year, he visited the West Philadelphia Catholic High School for Girls.

The purpose of these committees, each of which consisted of sixteen members, was to evaluate each school for admission into the association and to make it a standard, or accredited, high school. The first experiment with the committees, its object was to check on the validity of the system.

PHYSICS FRAT PLANS TRIP TO SCIENTIFIC INSTITUTES

Kappa Gamma Sigma, recently organized physics fraternity, has completed plans for a trip to the Franklin Institute and Fels Planetarium, Philadelphia, on Ascension Thursday, May 2, at 1:00 P. M.

Directions as to how to reach the Institute will be posted for the benefit of the resident students who may wish to attend. Non-members desiring to accompany the group, should inform the officers, in order that the total number attending may be estimated. Rev. John H. Crawford, O. S. A., M. S., will be in charge.

Tomorrow, the principal part of the society's meeting will be given over to a lecture by Fr. Crawford.

The last meeting was featured by a paper presented by Steven Sivcho, freshman science student, who spoke on the application of physics to modern artillery. The principles behind the operations of the cannons were discussed at length.

Prom Orchestras Feature Lovely Feminine Vocalists

By HOWARD A. McCALL

LEIGHTON NOBLE and his orchestra, featuring "Chick" Floyd, Edith Caldwell, and the Noble Trio; Van Alexander and his orchestra, starring Phyllis Kenny, and "Butch" Stone; Dancing from 9 to 2 in the Field House; Beauty abundant!; A lovely partner; low moon (dim lights); Friends; Lilting melodies rendered by two beautiful, talented, charming vocalists. . .All this and heaven too.

Neither of these maestros need any introduction to the youth of the nation, but since we are no longer worthy of being included among this carefree set (remember, we all have grave trials to undergo daily, and recall also that we now boast a beard) we chose to tarry a while musing upon the achievements of these famous orchestra leaders.

Noble, although he has just reached the quarter-century mark, has been conducting an orchestra for eleven years. Born and raised in Pasadena, California, he learned to play the piano and sing when very young, and at fourteen he organized a small orchestra for high school dances. This was the start of a famous career, and now he is one of the youngest of the country's successful leaders. His good looks, coupled with his ever-improving playing and singing, have carried him far since the first day.

Having at different times sung for various orchestras, he finally joined the late Orville Knapp, and it was upon the demise of that illustrious maestro that Noble, together with Edith Caldwell and "Chick" Floyd, formed his own orchestra. Floyd is considered one of the cleverest musical arrangers in the business. This combination, plus the blue velvet voice of Edith Caldwell, have been sweeping the country with their "color tones."

Van Alexander is also twenty-five, and has been making a path to fame and fortune for a number of years. Environment and teaching had prepared him for a classical future, but fortunately, swing found his heart susceptible to its tempo. In his sophomore year in high school he began his career banging out chords for the school dance orchestra.

Swing is certainly the Alexander forte, but it doesn't stop there. For contrast it plays sweet and does an excellent job. Besides being a maestro, Alexander is quite adept as an arranger and composer. All of us remember "A Tisket A Tasket," one of his compositions. It was the most popular of them all, but he has arranged many other favorites.

This master composer and leader has a talented songstress in the persons of Phyllis Kenny. The songs which he once arranged for the late Chick Webb are now sung by this charming warbler. "Butch" Stone handles comedy chores, and . . .well, wait until you see and hear him.

Need any more be said concerning these maestros, their orchestras, or their featured stars? There is one way that more can be learned concerning their styles and renditions, and it is probably the best—come to the Junior Prom on May 10.

Frosh Debate Men Meet St. Joseph's

Second debate of a home-and-home series between the freshman forensic men and the representativs of St. Joseph's College is scheduled for this afternoon at St. Joseph's, with Joseph Mahoney, Charles Callahan, and George Harris supporting the affirmative for Villanova.

The frosh will play host to the University of Pennsylvania's first year debaters on April 23.

Wildcats Ready For Home Opener Tomorrow

N. Y. U. Team To Face Cats On Gridiron

Blue to Concentrate on Straight Football During Week

By SID CAPLAN

There will be no more swing and sway for Clipper Smith's gridiron corps de ballet but just plain ordinary old fashioned grunt and groan for the remainder of the spring training schedule.

Dr. Mal Stevens will bring his budding Violets from New York University to Wildcatville for the annual spring game with the Villanovans this Saturday afternoon at 2 P. M. Coach Smith ruled that entrance to the melee will be made by invitation. Students will be admitted by presentation of matriculation card.

Prior to the meeting with "Father Knickerbocker's" boys, Smith intends to spend the next few days improving position play in the line and backfield.

Prohovich Converted

Ever on the alert for fortifications, the Villanova coaches have converted "Wild Bill" Prohovich, a fullback by trade, to an end post. As a result of the switch, the 'Cats are enriched by a sure-fire pass receiver as well as an excellent defensive end, somthing the team will miss due to the graduation of Wally Nowak.

A trio of freshmen have caught the eye of the Clipper. We refer to Sal Rosatto, he of the powerful shoulders and the Philadelphia edition of "Joltin' John" Kimbrough, according to advance reports. Triple-threat Stan Eusko, who passes, runs, and kicks like nobody's business. Just for good measure Eusko is a great blocker. Steve Pritko's all-around ability has been pleasing the Board of Strategy.

Handy Andy Chisick has been devoting his time to center candidates Bray and Casale. The big bosses are rating Bill Piscione and Ed Collins very highly these days for the guard positions. Anderson and Carter are also on the honor list.

The New York University scrimmage may be followed by a similar game with the Hoyas of Georgetown University if the Washingtonians offer is taken up by the authorities here.

Last Saturday's scheduled scrimmage with Lehigh University at Bethlehem was cancelled by mutual agreement when Friday night's surprise snowstorm covered the upstate field. Both coaches figured that a scrimmage under such conditions would be of little value to their teams.

Negotiations are still being carried on for the Auburn game but the meeting is still not definite.

Up, Over And Down

Bill Carey and Tim Waad practice the "220" high hurdles event under the watchful eye of Coach Jim Elliott. The 'Cats meet Penn Saturday.

Penn Nine Is "Soft Touch" For O'Leary

Connie O'Leary, long-armed right hander, turned up another of those "jinx" balls assisted by nine blows from the willows of his mates to serve up the opening game victory last Wednesday at Philadelphia as Villanova chalked up a 7-3 win against Penn.

The second game which was scheduled against Temple last Friday was called off because of the rainy weather which ruined the playing field.

This was the fifth straight year in which the Wildcats have set back the Quakers and disregarding the set theories that Penn was due for a win over the Jacob tribe, O'Leary and his mates pounded out five runs in the fatal sixth to sew up the contest.

Six Hit Game

Going the full distance O'Leary limited the Quakers to six hits, all of which came after the fifth frame. Until that time O'Leary had beautiful control and made the Penn batters yield to his tricky delivery, by striking out six men. In the sixth frame he weakened and a three-run cluster put the damaging blows on a possible shutout.

Villanova got an early jump in the scoring ni the fourth inning as Mike Lazorchak romped home on an error by catcher Chuck Morriss who threw wild to second on at-

Golfers Lose To Hawks, 6-3;

On the wind-swept Main Line Golf Course last Thursday, the Villanova Golf Team lost to St. Joseph's by the score of 6-3. It was the first match of the season for the Villanova team and the showing that was made indicates the need for more practice.

In the feature match of the day, Captain Cliff Randolph lost to St. Joe's Ed O'Malley, 4 and 3. Bill Mills, the St. Joe's captain, beat Jim Brown 2 and 1. The best ball for this foursome was won by St. Joe's, 3 and 2.

Bob de Persio came through with the first Villanova victory by trouncing Keough 7 and 6. Bob made an auspicious debut with his win. Ernie Klappenbach lost his match to Gelback of St. Joe's. The twosome for Villanova won best-ball to count another point.

Dave Morse turned in the last victory for the home team when he beat Jack Ryan 2 and 1. Marvin Mones ran into a little trouble and lost out to Ed Fillmeyer 6 and 4. Villanova also lost the best-ball match in this foursome, 2 and 1.

Next Friday, the team will travel to New York where they will meet Fordham. The match will be played on the long Gedney Farms course. This is the only time this year that Fordham will be played. A hard match is expected as Ford-

IT takes just about all the "won't" power this column has to keep from blurting forth the name of Villanova's "most loyal alumnus" — who is of course the gentleman who donated the 150 pound football award recently given to Vic Domenic.

The alumnus, as was written last week has refused to allow his name to be revealed and only three or four individuals know who he is. What makes it tough is the fact that we know his name and have a violent urge to shout it from the peak of a mountain as a man of whom all Villanova feels most proud. We are honor-bound to keep quiet but how long our honor can withstand a withering barrage from our inner conscience wo do not not know.

JOE BARNES

We believe that the award should proudly bear the donor's name for he should feel as proud as we that Villanova can boast of such a man among her alumni. We know other men whom Villanova may be proud to call "son" — such as Patreus Banmiller and Bill Slaughter; others we do not know personally but we hear that they are 100% VILLANOVA also, such as Ed Reilly of Philadelphia and Cyril Burke out in Detroit—but of all these we can't help but feel most proud of the man who did something BIG, in the real sense of the word, and was compelled by modesty to keep from revealing his name. There is not the slightest doubt that he gave the award, a valuable watch, because of a true love for Villanova. Many awards are given for the personal benefit of the donor who likes to see his name attached to something but this award stands as a memorial to a true school spirit. May God send a thousand such men to Villanova.

Track Team Opens Season With Penna.

With three weeks of outdoor work behind them the Wildcat trackman face the University of Penn this Saturday afternoon at Franklin Field. This meet will serve as the season opener for both schools.

Finally fighting their way through the icy winter the Wildcats were eager for spring to roll around, but it seem that the calendar is telling lies as we expect snow at least once a week.

However with all this trouble handed out by old man weather, coach Jumbo Elliot has managed to whip the team into some kind of shape. Elliot has ben working the men whenever the weather would permit and he will more than likely call for a few time trials before the week runs out.

Replacing the sprints in this meet will be the 440-yard sprint relay. Both Elliot and Robinson of Penn decided to give the sprint teams a dress rehearsal for the Penn Relays. Jumbo and Robbie both feel that each has a sprint team that will go places in the annual Penn Carnival; therefore, both are anxious to see their charges in action.

Representing Villanova in this event will be Captain Bill Guiteras, Whitey Urbellis, Legs Shedlosky, anchored by brilliant Johnny Maher. They will face the strong quar-

Lehigh Nine Invades Blue Home Field

Engineers Here Tomorrow; Providence Club Threat to Cats

By FRED CLARK

Although they opened the season last week against Penn in Philadelphia, the Villanova baseball team brings the current season closer to home tomorrow when they play their initial contest on the home grounds against Lehigh University.

One other contest is scheduled for this week and that is against Providence College whom the Cats play on Friday.

Lehigh is expected to arrive on the Main Line with an experienced and well-balanced team. Last week they defeated a highly-rated Dickinson nine by the count of 6 to 3.

However, the Providence team from up New England way is not to be treated lightly either. The Rhode Island school annually boasts of one of the best college nines in the east and this year should prove no exception. Doc Jacobs' men will have to be in top form in order to come out on the long end of the score in this game.

Nearing Form

Meanwhile the home forces are rapidly approaching mid-season form under the tareful tutorage of Coach Jacobs. Besides the Penn and Temple games, the Cats also engaged the Penn A. C. outfit in two practice games and this has done much to bring the boys up to date in tip-top shape. No injuries have been reported as yet and this is fortunate, for, the fact that only nine men were used in the Penn game seems to indicate that Doc Jacobs is depending on his first string line-up to win the games.

The first base and catching jobs seem to have been definitely filled at last. Doc Jacobs has solved the first base problem by shifting John Donaghue, formerly an outfielder, to that position. Donaghue is one of the best hitters on the squad but since there are three other capable outfielders handy, Donaghue will not be missed in the outer garden.

George Flood apparently has won the starting assignment behind the plate from "Reds" Murphy. George seems to inject life into the whole infield when he is in there receiving. He is full of winning spirit and you can't keep a guy like that on the bench. George is also handy with the willow and its looks as though he will have little trouble following in the footsteps of Art Vigilante, last year's capable catcher.

The rest of the infield has been set for quite some time with two sophomores, Woody Reitmeier and Joe Yedneck at second and third base respectively and Mike Lazorchak at shortstop.

Netmen Meet Rider Saturday

With Captain Beatty Schermerhorn playing in the number one slot Villanova's 1940 tennis team will make its bow on the home courts next Saturday afternoon against Rider College of Trenton, New Jersey.

Due to turbulent weather conditions the netmen have not enjoyed too much practice. What little was had so far has been mostly within the confines of four walls. Saul Wallach, manager-coach, has been unable to decide on a definite line-up due to the minimum of practice sessions. Only Beatty Schermerhorn seems sure of a position.

Several sophomores are under serious consideration for positions. As was the case last year when Doc Jacobs' baseball team inveigled the services of Lloyd Rice, Maryland State champion, the Blue nine has again taken the services of a star netman—this time Tex Conners. Rice is still a member of the baseball club and will not play tennis. The loss of such valuable material affects the tennis' chances to a great degree.

During the last week the team acquired the services of the Rev. Julius J. Boyle, O. S. A., chaplain of the college, as moderator. The choice was acclaimed to be a popular one and it is believed that the new and energetic moderator will do much to further the success of the racquetmen.

Three Championships Help Austin To Lead Race For VILLANOVAN I-M Trophy

By BOB FUNABASHI

Recent statistics concerning the standings of the Intramural Teams as formulated by Father McKee disclose the fact that Austin Hall is leading the other dorms in scoring.

The total number of points scored by Austin's numerous teams has reached 51 which is an eleven point advantage over second place Alumni, with 40, and twelve points ahead of Fedigan who ranks third with 38. C & F, Mendel Day Hops, and Mendel Residents have fallen to the rear with 25, 23 1-2, and 18 1-2 respectively.

Austin Hall has taken three first places in the Golf tournament, Tennis tournament, and Amateur Night. Victories, either in the annual baseball contest which is in session now, or the Softball tournament will most likely insure the Austinites the renowned VILLANOVAN sports trophy. Each year this trophy is presented to the Hall which amasses the greatest number of points in Intramural competition. Last year the cup went to the Blueshirts and they hope to repeat and gain added honors for their Hall.

Recording a first place in the recent Boxing meet, Alumni Hall jumped ahead of Fedigan who only took fourth place. It is possible for the Freshman Hall to capture the Intramural Crown if they capture the Softball and Hardball contests. Fedigan, two notches behind Alumni also has a similar chance of beating out Alumni and Austin if they succeed in the aforementioned events.

The three remaining teams have all been eliminated earlier but have a chance to capture second or third place. Honors were bestowed upon the Commerce and Finance club for their remarkable comeback in the Intramural basketball play-offs when they won the second half games to battle Fedigan in the finals. Capturing a first in the Swimming championships the Mendel residents are far behind in other departments, collecting poor fifths and sixths in the meets.

ticular activity in its own right, is shouting another claim to fame these days. Steadily rising is the number of varsity sports men who owe their start to Fr. McKee's vast sports organization. Most outstanding is Lloyd Rice, basketball and baseball, who first hit the limelight as a member of the Alumni Hall mural court team in his freshman year. Lloyd was plucked for the varsity because of his I-M performance.

Others who have advanced to varsity slots from intramurals are George Flood, catcher on Doc Jacobs' baseball club; George Terciano, Tennis; Bob Depersio and Joe Rozum, golf, and a host of others. It seems that the road to athletic glory lies in the not-so-humble beginning of an intramuralist.

BIGGEST EVENT

This year's Villanova Interscholastic track and field championships are expected to surpass all such events held in the past. All indications point to a huge entry list.

Ursinus Game Carded For May

The baseball game with Ursinus College, scheduled originally for April 6 but cancelled due to lack of practice for the Collegeville nine, will definitely be played late in May.

The Widcats and Bears are scheduled to meet at Villanova on May 17, so the Collegeville meeting will probably be held within a week or two of this date.

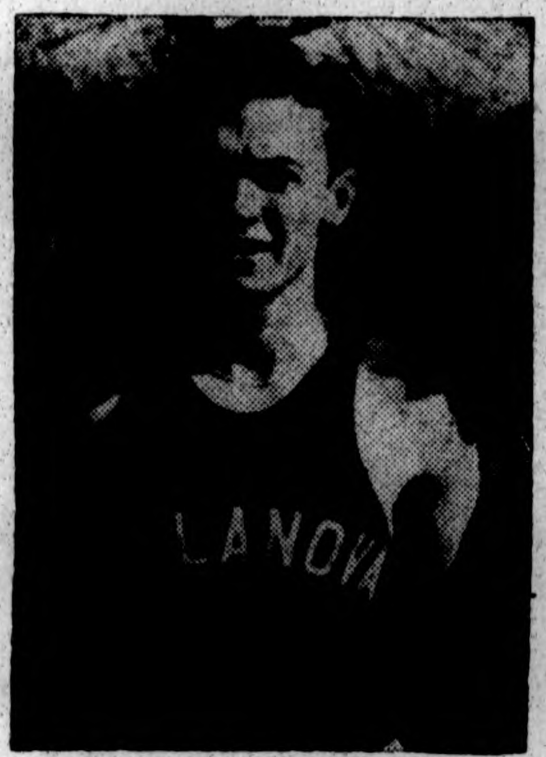
Although nothing definite has been decided upon, attempts are also being made to re-schedule the Temple game, rained off last Friday's calendar. According to reports, Temple wishes to re-schedule the game for a date within the next two or three weeks.

The Spoils . . .

The VILLANOVAN Intramural Trophy, awarded annually to the I-M champions. Austin Hall, winner last year, holds a commanding lead in the present race.

Jim Elliott, Maher Lead Villanova Track Record-Holders; Hickey Has 3

Villanova College track and field records as recently compiled by a Philadelphia newspaper show that Wildcat stars of recent years have established cinder marks that rank with the best.



JIM ELLIOTT

Outstanding among the Villanova marks are a 9.7 century dash, negotiated by Johnny Maher of the present squad and a 47.9 quarter mile, run by Jim Elliott, now head track coach, in 1934. The recognized undergraduate record for the former is 9.4 seconds and 46.5 is the intercollegiate standard for the 440-yard run. The later marks also aproximate world records so the quality of the Villanova marks is self-evident.

Johnny Maher, who with Pete Yankauskas is one of two colleges record-holders still in school, also holds the 220-yard dash in conjunction with Johnny Fenstenmacher of the class of '34. Maher's mark is 21.7 seconds—1.4 seconds above the recognized world mark as of November 1, 1939, an International Amateur Athletic Federation mark.

Coach Elliott also holds the half-mile college mark with a time of 1:54.1, which was quite a formidable mark when Elliott was an active runner.

Harold Duffy, several times Melrose Mile winner in the early thirties, holds the college mile mark, 4 minutes, 25 seconds, while Dick Womer's 9.59 two - mile tops the Villanovans in that event. Both marks were made a few years ago and still rank among the nation's best.

Warren Brown is holder of both hurdle marks, with a 14.9 mark in the lows and a flat 24 seconds in the highs. Intercollegiate undergraduate marks for the two events are 14 flat and 22.6 respectively.

In the field events Villanova mark - makers have not fared so well. George Huber holds the discus and shot marks with 141 ft. 3 inches for the discus and 50 ft. 2 inches for the 16 lbs. shot. Pete Yankauskas holds the javelin record with a heave of 189 feet as against the undergraduate mark of 231 ft., 7¼ inches.

Carl Hickey, '35 has a corner on three records, the pole vault, high jump, and broad jump. Hickey's mark in the pole event was 13 ft., 1 inch, while he did the high jump up to 6 ft., 2 inches, a mark that is threatened by members of the present team. The Hickey broad jump standard is twenty-three ft., 2 inches.

Pro Baseball Attraction For Villanova Graduates; Desmond With Baltimore

"Prof" Wysocki Loses Ball Game

Youth had its innings last week and while doing so it had them at the expense of long Johnny Wysocki, former Villanova grid great and a member of the class of '38.

John was the pitcher for the faculty nine in a baseball game between the Clifton Heights High School faculty. John, being football coach and a "professor" in his own right, made the faculty team with little difficulty concerning eligibility.

All went well and the Faculty team led their charges until in the sixth inning the students bore down on Villanova's Wysocki and smacked out too many hits for John's comfort.

Net result: Losing Pitcher—John Wysocki, B. S.

By JIM HAUGHTON

Villanova's diamond graduates are finding organized baseball much to their liking, an examination reveals.

Art Mahan '36 is the leading candidate for the first base post with the Louisville Colonels. Mahan, according to reports, is being groomed for the future vacancy Jimmy Foxx will create in the Boston Red Sox infield. Art has had a meteoric rise since graduation and seems destined to hit the big loop in a season or two.

Shortly after graduation he signed with the Sox and was farmed out to Hazleton, then in the Eastern League. Under Specs Torpocher's guidance he developed into one of the league's leading hitters and fielders. Next season found him moving up a notch to Little Rock and now this year finds him with the Colonels.

Desmond With Baltimore

Last year's class, especially, is doing quite well. Joe Desmond is now hurling for Baltimore of the International League. Last year Joe pitched great ball for Cambridge in the Eastern Shore League and his work attracted the Maryland scouts who immediately promoted him.

Cowboy Crowley is now holding a spot with Evansville in the Three Eye League while Bobby Bond is handling the first base duties with Chattonooga. Originally the property of the Phillies, Bob was transferred during the winter trading session.

Lenny Merullo ex '39 is still being retained on the roster of the Chicago Cubs. Last season Lenny was injured a good part of the season but the Cubs carried him for experience. Later in the season he was farmed out, but this season finds him right back with the major leaguers.

DAYHOP BASEBALL

An attempt is being made to have the dayhops represented in the softball and baseball intramural leagues. If enough are sincerely interested the plan will be carried out. Father McKee will give further information to those interested.

A CAREER in Search of Men
Statistics show a decrease among practicing dentists in recent years while the number of professional men in other fields has increased. This can largely be attributed to advanced standards in dental schools.
The Marquette University Dental School is one of the 18 dental schools of the United States whose diplomas are recognized in all of the states.
The close relationship of the Dental and Medical Schools at Marquette University is an advantage to students.
Entrance requirements: Two years in a recognized College of Liberal Arts with satisfactory credits in biology, chemistry, and physics.

Kitten Nine Plays Today

This afternon the Wildcat freshmen base-ballers make their debut against the Ursinus frosh at the Villanova Field at 3 o'clock. This game will serve as a return of frosh baseball after one year's absence.

For the past month or so the frosh have been geting into shape while more or less dodging between the raindrops and digging themselves out of snow storms. This bad weather has given mentor "Buzz" Howlet more than one headache. Buzz, however, in his first year as freshman diamond coach, feels that he has finally rounded his men into a fast moving ball club, and is anxious to prove the Wildcats will have another great freshman team.

The main reasons for Howlett's optimism are such men as Art Spector and Bill Wood, both freshman basketball stars, together with Jimmy Dykes, Jr. and George Famagiletti.

Spector will take care of first base while Wood will do the pitching to Famagiletti behind the bat, Jimmy Dykes will patrol the outfield.

tet of Kroupa, Bradley, Hughes and Junghans.

Aside from running in this relay the Villanova four will all line-up in the 440-yard dash.

In the half mile the Wildcats have entered Barney Bellew, Jimmy Brady, Pete Yankauskas and Bill Duffy. Duffy in the absence of the two mile run turns his attention to the short distance.

Completing the varsity running events will be the 120 high hurdles. Bill Carey last year's freshman hurdler will team up with versatitle Tim Waad, who until this year hadn't tried the high hurdles. Waad will also toss the javelin with Pete Yankauskas and try the pole valut. However, Brad McManus is the team's mainstay in the vault.

The broad jump will be taken care of by Maher and Art Murphy. Murphy will in turn lend assistance to sophomore Buddie Jones in the high jump.

So far there has been no definite decision on the discus, hammer throw and shot put. If the coaches decide to include these events in the program, it is more than likely that there will be no Wildcat entry in them.

Also making their outdoor debut will be the highly tutored freshman mile relay team. These men will line up against the Penn yearlings. Harry Keefrider, Johnny DiCarlo, Stan Nazian. The fourth man has not yet ben picked. Jimmy Brown and Mort Mahoney are waging a nip and tuck battle to get Jumbo's call.

ham always has one of the strongest teams in the East.

Extensive practice sessions will be held this week in preparation for the forthcoming match. No immediate changes in the line-up are contemplated before the Fordham match. However, the Wildcats admittedly need strengthening and are on the lookout for new material from the campus.

Candidates are invited to report to Cliff Randolph, commerce junior and manager-captain of the links squad.

Summary:

Bob De Persio, Villanova, defeated Bill Keough, 5 and 4.

Larry Gelback, St. Joseph's defeated Ernie Klappenbach, 4 and 3.

Villanova won best ball, 4 and 3.

Bill Mills, St. Joseph's, defeated Jim Brown, 2 and 1.

Ed O'Malley, St. Joseph's, defeated Cliff Randolph, 4 and 3.

St. Joseph's won best ball, 3 and 2.

Dave Morse, Villanova, defeated Jack Ryan, 2 and 1.

Ed Filmyer, St. Joseph's defeated Bill Murphy, 4 and 3.

St. Joseph's won best ball, 3 and 2.

tempt to break up a double steal involving Lazorchak and John Donoghue. Another wild throw in the sixth inning on a double play bal by second baseman Bill Koepsell helped the Cats to their offensive drive. Lazorchak started it off with a walk after one out and Donoghue followed with a single to left. Lloyd Rice walloped the game's only extra base blow—a double—to the same field, scoring Lazorchak.

George Balmore kept the barrage going by promptly driving a sharp single into left field to score Donoghue and Rice. Keopsell then heaved wild on Nick Basca's hopper, and two more runs came in later on with Joe Yednock's sacrifice fly and George Flood's safety. Kahn relieved Fawley at this point and got O'Leary out to retire the side.

Reitmeir Scores

In the ninth with Kahn still on the mound Woody Reitmeir scored the Wildcats' seventh run when he singled, advanced to third on Harlan Gustafson's error and then tallied on Donoghue's long fly.

The best defensive play in the game was marked in the fourth canto when Reitmeir threw a perfect strike to Flod, the Cats' catcher, who put the ball on McDonald to cut down the Quaker at the plate on an attempted double steal.

The three run cluster the Quakers gained in the sixth also had a damaging error as the basis. Bob Partridge, first up, got the first hit off O'Leary and went to second on Lazorchak's error on Bob Fortune's grounder. Frank Reagan singled to score Partridge. Gustafson's out tallied Fortune and Bill Koepsell's single admitted Reagan.

Andy Chisik is still fondling that juicy offer from the Chicago Cardinals of the National Pro loop. "Adam" isn't too anxious to engage in the "play for pay" league, but is holding out for an offer from Big Business. . .The Cards had a young outfit last year but experience will aid Marsh Goldberg, Bob McLeod and the like to make themselves known. Ki Aldrich of TCU fame is the man Chisik would probably understudy. . .Only one other Philly area gridder was drafted by the pros. . .He was Kolman, of Temple, whom the Greey Bay Packers grabbed . . . Several other senior gridders have been offered spots on lesser grid outfits but say they won't accede until they find it necessary to earn some cash. . .Claim the work is too tough.

Al Severance, back from his Kansas trip, is pretty close mouthed about the whole affair, but news leaking out promises some bigger and better attractions for the coming court wars. . .Indiana, the NCAA winners, will more than likely lead the parade. . .But don't be surprised when you hear some of the leading eastern outfits booked. High class. . .With prospects of such a fine club why waste time flooding a schedule with weak teams. Last season showed the drawing power and let's hope this schedule dream isn't just a lot of talk.

Col. Myers Speaks At Chi Epsilon Mu Initiation Banquet

Col. C. E. Myers, chairman of the board of examiners in Pennsylvania and president of the Philadelphia Cociety for Professional Licensed Engineers, was the principal speaker at the initiation banquet of the Chi Epsilon Mu held last Thursday, April 11, at Erskine Hal, Haverford.

Col. Myers impressed upon his audience the fact that practicing engineers have very large responsibilities, and pointed out that because of this, forty-four states now have requirements for licensed engineers. The talk was followed by an informal discussion.

John J. Seelaus, retiring president, welcomed the new members to the society, and congratulated them on their accomplishment. Raymond Vener acknowledged the welcome.

an unusual gift has been selected.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the dinner-dance site McGuire has released the names of the committeemen who will assist him on this occasion. Robert G. Boudon and John F. McGuire, engineering students, David G. Morse and Joseph J. Camarda of the science school, John J. Cleary, arts student, and Daniel O'Mahoney, Robert Mentzinger and Edward B. Wagman, of the Commerce and Finance school, are those selected for the committee.

McGuire has issued a call to all members of the Junior Class to have their assessment paid by Thursday, April 25, so that he may determine how many favors to order. Those who do not pay their assessment and who wish to attend the dinner-dance must see Maguire or any member of the committee at least one week in advance of the date of the event. MaGuire urges that this be done at once so that final arrangements may be completed as soon as possible.

FROSH NOMINATE

Nominations for the officers of the Class of 1943 will be held this afternoon at 1:00 P. M. in the Mendel hall amphitheatre under the guidance of the Student Council.

The final elections will be held next Monday, April 22, in amphitheatre and the results will be announced the next day in the VILLANOVAN.

BUECHE TO JUDGE PAPERS

Professor Harry S. Bueche, B. S. E. E., of the engineering faculty, has been invited to serve as a judge of papers presented at the annual convention of Student Branches of District No. 2, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, to be held at Swarthmore College on April 22.

Villanova student members of the society have been invited to attend the meetings and plans are now underway to have a large representation present.

OFFICIAL DELEGATES

Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., college President, spoke at the forty-fourth annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science on April 12 and 13.

Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., Ph.D., Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., Ph.D., and Dr. Harold F. Hartman, Ph.D., were the official representatives of Villanova at this same meeting in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

Additional Power Given Orientators Of Freshmen

Student Council Chairman McManus Receives Faculty, Extra-Curricular Support For Enforcement Amendment to Orientation Program

By WILLIAM J. TOY

At the last meeting of the Student Council, J. Bradley McManus, Chairman, received the approval of the Council members on his revised list of regulations pertaining to the Freshmen orientation program. The new regulations, drawn up by McManus and approved by the faculty, are designed to counteract the lack of freshmen support that has been evident in many former instances.

The following procedure to be followed next year has been accepted by all the major extra-curricular activities as proposed by the Student Council:

1. "That the present form of Orientation Program be carried out exactly as in the past. . . ."

2 "That the Orientation program shall be officially conducted during the period from the first day of registration at the College to the first day of the Thanksgiving recess and that during this time all the members of the Freshman class shall be subject to all the regulations set forth in the Student's Handbook."

3. "That the Orientation Committee shall have the power during this period of orientation to disbar any member of the Freshman Class from participation in any recognized extra-curricular activity during the first year in which said student is at Villanova. This penalty may be imposed at any time during the period of orientation for any offense. . .which, in the opinion of the Orientation Committee, is deserving of such punishment. The disbarment shall pertain to fraternities, publications, class offices, etc."

'ENGINEER' FAVORS EXAM EXEMPTIONS

Pays Tribute to Fr. Stanford; Discusses Fluid Transmission

Exemption from final examinatiins for students with high grades was suggested in an editorial in the latest issue of the "Villanova Engineer," released last Tuesday.

Since students with an "A" grade can do no better, anyway, it was suggested that they be entirely exempt; those with a "B" would be given a choice to take the examinations or not, and all others would take them as usual.

The editorial argued that the exemptions would be an incentive for better work all through the year, offer a reward to the students who do work hard, and do away to some extent with last-hour "cramming."

A tribute was paid to Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, on his election to the presidency of the American Association of Colleges. A review was given of Father Stanford's work at Villanova and of the positions he has held in educational societies.

"Hydraulic Transmission," by Edmund J. Hagan, sophomore engineer, explained the method of fluid transmission used in some of the new automobiles, buses, and trucks.

Paul Farnsworth, in "High Flying for Lower Costs," explained the advantages of sub-stratosphere flying for economy, proving his points by mathematical formulae.

This last issue saw the return of "Cross-Section," the magazine's gossip column, and it also featured a review of the activities of the engineering graduates of the last few years. The latter article covered both those doing graduate work and those out in industry.

Keating, Collins To Be Delegates

Daniel J. Keating, president of the junior class, and James P. Collins, editor-in-chief of the VILLANOVAN, have been chosen to represent the Villanova student body on the occasion of the University of Pennsylvania's Bicentennial Celebration.

Although the planned festivities cover the space of one week, Keating and Collins will be in attendance as undergrdauate delegates only on September 19, 20, and 21, 1940.

George W. Jack, '40, and John T. Cumbler, '41, of the University of Pennsylvania, are the co-chairmen of all the undergraduate committee's activities. Harry K. Liebert, '42, is the committee's secretary.

FORKIN NAMED TO DIRECT ARTS FRAT STAG DINNER

Elevent Assistants Chosen; Conestoga Mill Selected as Site of Affair

James Forkin, junior arts student, has been appointed chairman of the stag dinner to be held by Epsilon Phi Theta, arts fraternity, Joseph M. McNamara, fraternity president, announced.

The dinner will be held at the Conestoga Mill, Bryn Mawr, on Wednesday evening, May 29. Detailed plans for the dinner will be announced in the near future.

Forkin will be assisted by a committee composed of Francis S. Vogel, Robert P. Schisler, Ralph J. Bracken, 'Andrea J. D'Angelo, Thomas J. Harford, David F. Daly, Howard A. McCall, John P. Fullam, James F. Donovan, Gerard F. Belz, and John J. Cleary.

Nominations for next year's officers were held yesterday, and elections will be held, if possible, on Monday, April 29.

BURRANO PRESENTS TALK

Samuel J. Burrano, freshman in the School of Engineering, will present a talk on the "History of Mathematics" before the Mathematics Club this evening at 7:00 in Simpson hall. His talk will be concerned with the findings of such noted mathematicians as Exodus, Zeno, and Archimedes.

MURASKI CAPTURES CENTENNIAL CLASS PRESIDENTIAL POST

Dougherty, Canning, Quinn, and Boyle Fill Out Successful Frosh Ballot

Thomas C. Muraski, of the engineering school, yesterday was elected the first president of the Centennial Class of 1943. His closest competitor was John McFadden of the Commerce and Finance school.

In the same elections John Dougherty, engineer, came off first in the vice-presidential contest. Samuel Canning, business student, was chosen secretary. John Quinn, of the engineering school, was named treasurer, while Malchy Boyle, also an engineer, won the right to represent the present Freshman Class in the Student Council.

President-elect Muraski already has shown great interest in extra-curricular activities. Besides being an active member of the VILLANOVAN staff, he also is prominent in the Phi Kappi Pi, Engineering Society and the Mathematics Club. He was an entry in the Oratorical Contest and has participated in several of the regular debates of the Freshman Forensic Society.

Noteworthy in this election is the fact that Muraski is a resident of Rockford, Ill., also the home town of the present sophomore president, Thomas McKimmey.

Belle Air Index Being Compiled

Listing Will Serve to Identify Every Picture Contained in Annual

One of the many features in the Belle Air, which will soon reach its last lap in production, is the introduction of an index which serves to place every picture and article therein.

In the words of Edward L. Jonik, editor of the publication, "Every student and his intimate friends at home will naturally want to see the student's picture and the activities which have served to occupy his time during the scholastic year.

"This index will facilitate this, and serve moreover to acquaint the student to a fuller extent with the Belle Air. Each student has been absolutely identified and no stone has been left unturned in the identification."

Intensive work on the listings has been underway for the last two weeks under the direction of Robert G. Wilderotter and Thomas J. Moore; this constitutes the last big job prior to sending the yearbook to the publishers.

Jonik also wishes to inform the student body that each and every student, with the exception of those who did not pay a matriculation fee, is entitled to a copy of the Belle Air.

Dr. Haenisch Talks On Musical Terms

"Musical Terminology of the Symphony Orchestra" will be explained and demonstrated by Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Ph. D., at the regular meeting of the Music Seminar in Simpson hall tomorrow evening at 7:30.

The structure of the symphonic composition, together with various movements and themes, will be discussed. Recorded music will supplement the piano illustrations of Dr. Haenisch; both will illustrate themes and methods used to have these themes recur in different movements of the symphony.

Although other compositions will be used as supplementary examples, Tschaikowsky's "Fifth Symphony" will be used as the main illustration of the explained subject matter.

At the close of his discourse, Dr. Haenisch will present a glossary of the musical terms used in symphonic works.

Dr. Debye Twelfth Annual Mendel Medal Recipient

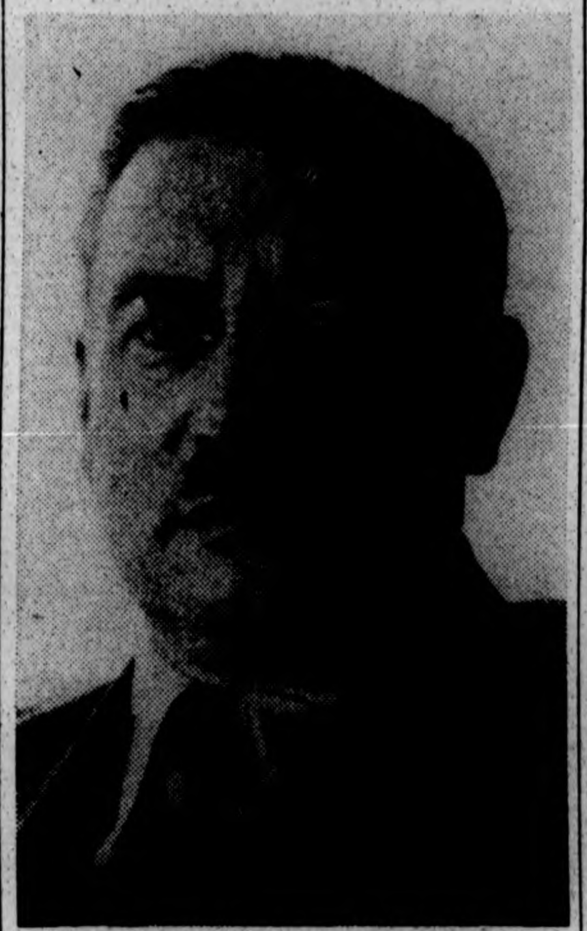
Noted Catholic Scientist, Professor Includes Nobel Chemistry Prize Among Many Honors; Achieved Distinction in Molecular Construction Problems

By DAVID N. REARDON

Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, director of the Max Planck Institute of Berlin, has been selected by the executive committee as the recipient of the Mendel Medal for 1940. Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., chairman of the board and president of the college, recently issued this statement.

* The Mendel Medal is awarded annually in recognition of outstanding achievemnt in the field of science. It was founded by Villanova College in 1928, in honor of Gregor Mendel, Abbot of the Augustinian Monastery, Brunn, Austria, whose scientific researches have given the world the now celebrated Mendelian Laws of Heredity.

Mendel Medalist



DR. PETER J. W. DEBYE

A Hollander, Dr. Debye was born in the low country in 1884. He received his B. S. in electrical engineering from the College of Aix-La-Chapelle in 1905. Three years later he was awarded his Doctor of Philosophy degree at the Universityof Munich. In 1911, he was appointed professor of theoretical physics at the University of Zurich from where he proceeded to the Universities of Utrecht and Goettingen in similar capacities.

At the age of thirty-six, he was named professor of physics and director of the physics laboratory at the College of Engineering of the Swiss Confederation, in Zurich. He held this position until 1927, when he was called to the University of Leipzig to assume a similar position.

This outstanding physicist was requested by the Emperor William Society to head the construction of a research institute of Physics, in 1935, with funds appropriated by the Rockefeller Institute. At present it is known as the Max Planck Institute. Simultaneously he as-

"The Tavern" Cast Receives Praise

"Every Annual Play is distinctly a co-operative venture. The Belle Masque Moderator and its Director wish to take this occasion to stress that fact in congratulating warmheartedly the members of the Society for the success of 'The Tavern.'

"To all partakers in the production, it will remain a well-remembered event, because the fun, the excitement, the worry and the work were shared by all. CONGRATULATIONS!"

GLEE CLUB TO PRACTICE FOR MOTHERS DAY SING

Choristers Also Plan for Concert During Week of May 12

After a brief respite from activity, the Glee Club at a meeting last Monday unanimously decided to resume its weekly practice sessions in preparation for the Mothers' Day entertainment. Meetings will be held immediately after Chapel on Monday and Tuesday of each week.

Although pressed by lack of time, the club is confident of rendering a favorable program, "Fight," "Winter Song," and "Jeannie," three numbers previously arranged for but not presented in the Catholic Glee Club Contest, will be the main features.

Plans are also being formed for the presentation of the belated Symphonic Band-Glee Club Concert, which is to be given during the week of May 12.

SANCTUARY GROUP ELECTS

Officers of the Sanctuary Society for the forthcoming year were elected at a meeting held last Thursday. The successful candidates were Hugh J. Boyle, junior engineer, Richard Gray, sophomore artsman, and Charles J. Callahan, freshman commerce student.

OPEN HOUSE PLANS CALL FOR VARIETY

Nuclei of Cultural Exhibits and Performances Show "Difference" of Events

With most of the variegated exhibits and performances that will make up the 1940 edition of Open House definitely settled, Paetrus F. Banmiller, Registrar and faculty co-chairman of the event, has revealed plans for the May 6 event.

Featuring "different" extra-curricular and cultural activities, the affair falls on the same date as Mothers' Day at Villanova. Accordingly, the afternoon performance, to last from 1:30 until 5:30 P. M., will be given mainly for the benefit of the students' mothers. The evening performance will begin at 7:30 P. M. and carry on until 10:00 P. M.

Among the exhibits which have definitely been scheduled are those of the Psychology Department, the library, the publications, the Fine Arts Department, the Social Science Department, and the History Department.

A program of periodical presentations has also been planned; these will be held on the Field House stage, leaving visitors free to "take in" the exhibits at their leisure. The program, which will be given both in the afternoon and evening, will include performances by the Male Chorus and Symphonic Band and a one-act play enacted by the Spanish Clubs of Villanova and Immaculata.

The Psychology Department will conduct a psychological laboratory and clinic, in which will operate a lie detector and a recording apparatus for correcting speech.

Built and decorated in the engineering woodshop by students, a model of the proposed library will

Dr. Debye Honored

GREGOR MENDEL, Augustinian priest of the nineteenth century, lived an obscure life in the service of God and science, and yet as a result of his great contributions to biology, his name today is not as obscure as he might have wished it to be in his priestly humility. For indeed, that science has recognized his work and he is duly acclaimed for it.

Some of that spirit which prompted Gregor Mendel is embodied in a tradition which was instituted and continues to grow here at Villanova. Each year, the Board of Trustees confers an award upon a Catholic who is outstanding, not only for his Catholicity, but who is also accomplished in his particular field of endeavor.

This award is called the Mendel Medal in memory of that illustrious priest-scientist. It rewards and seeks to inspire diligent Catholic effort for service to God and science. The Award carries with it an ever increasing importance and is attracting more and more attention. Dr. Debye, this year's winner, will receive an honor of which he may justly be proud.

'Frigidaire' For Hire

THERE is an 827,275 square mile "iceberg" in the Atlantic Ocean that is creating a great deal of discomfort to Uncle Sam. . . . Repeating a situation that existed in 1917 when the United States, to preserve the Monroe Doctrine, purchased what are now the Virgin Island from Denmark. Our country once more needs to buy or take possession of an island for our own protection, the misnamed Island of Greenland, covered with ice and basking seals but an island that is only 1,250 miles from the coasts of Maine.

We have no Seward to request its purchase. Who will sell us Greenland? Hitler disavowed technical title to Denmark's Greenland. Denmark does not exist. For any nation such as Canada or Great Britian to set foot upon Greenland or to claim it would be a violation of the Monroe Doctrine and a violation of our neutrality.

This step cannot be permitted to happen. The answer is for the United States to establish a proctectorate over Greenland until Denmark once more is freed of the Nazi influence. Then there will be no need to fear that Germany or any foreign Nation will seize Greenland and bring World War II to our coast.

Think what might be in existence today had Denmark retained the Danish West Indies and Germany had seized them. Think what will happen if Greenland is occupied by Germany or another nation with similar designs. Think this problem over and you will decide that we must occupy Greenland.

Spirit of '76

WE SEE by the papers that a campaign is now underway in Philadelphia to have the local citizenry visit their cherished historical spots.

There is no reason why such a drive should be necessary, for the Quaker City is certainly the richest of any in the nation in point of places where the spirit of the Revolution is preserved. Independence Hall, Congrss Hall, the Liberty Bell, Carpenters' Hall, the Betsy Ross House, and Old City Hall are only a few of the surviving reminders of the Spirit of '76. Besides these interesting and inspiring commemorations, Philadelphia contains innumerable old churches, famous graves, scientific institutes, libraries, gardens, stately mansions, and other unique places begging the public to visit them.

These spots are not without their just fame, however, for out-of-towners usually make it a point to "take in" the historic Independence Square group on their first trip to Philadelphia. Villanova students from distant regions usually visit many of the points of interest around the city (during their freshman year).

The lack of support that strikes the eye is that on the part of native Philadelphians. Probably not one out of twenty citizens of the city has visited the most noted spot of all, Independence Hall. So, dayhops (and residents as well) why not visit some of these interesting places the next time you happen to be near them?

—T. H. D., Jr.

Visitors Welcome?

SPRING and the visiting season has arrived—if the sun would only make its appearance. But it looks like the visiting item is in for a bad welcome here at Villanova. Because the entertaining facilities are, might we say, a wee bit weak.

At present the majority of the students are forced to entertain most of their visitors in their (the visitors') cars. Nice comfortable spots, but a bit crowded for more than a dozen.

Several spots on the campus could easily be converted into pleasant reception rooms. And at small expense. For instance, there is the Austin Hall section which would begin to glow with a coat of paint and a little investment in new furniture.

Let's hope that before Junior Week arrives some suitable arrangements will be made for the entertainment of guests. At least, in renovating the Austin Hall reception room.

Mathematics Teaching: Is A "New Deal" Needed?

Curriculum Must Meet the Needs of the Majority of Pupils

By EMIL AMELOTTI, M. S.
Assistant Professor, Mathematics and Physics

I WONDER how many times we all have been approached by our students and asked the question: Please, sir, what is the use of learning this?

We may open our discussion by asking the following question: What is the purpose of the school?

According to the Code of Regulations of the Board of Education: "The purpose of the school is to form and strengthen the character and to develop the intelligence of young people entrusted to it and to assist them to fit themselves for the work of life." An English educator, Sir Richards Gregory, defines education as "The deliberate adjustment of a human organism to its environment."

Prof. Amelotti

B. S. in E. E., 1926, and M. S., 1928, at the University of Illinois. Did graduate work at Politechnico Institute, Turino, Italy in 1931-1932 and at the University of Chicago from 1933-1938.

Spent years in research and industry and assisted in the development of the new mathematical bio-physics.

Since coming to Villanova in 1938 has instituted the now-popular mathematics seminar.

Surely we all agree that in all our deliberations we must have in mind the pupils themselves, with their interests, varying as they do according to age and development. We must think as much about what they like to learn as about what we wish to teach them. The pupils should enjoy their work. If a subject is worth-while including in a curriculum, the pupils must not only learn that subject but learn to love it.

Changes of Interest

The sentiments and feelings which may grow up about a subject may form the very foundation of permanent interest and should lead to a real enrichment of life. Lack of interest in a subject undoubtedly leads to definite adverse sentiments and distaste which will persist, if not throughout life, at any rate for a long time. These interests gradually change as the student advances in years.

Young children are mostly interested when the facts presented are in themselves wonderful, startling, or extraordinary. Later they pass to a utility stage. They are not interested in abstractions or generalizations unless they are needed to explain their own experience. They are interested in the practical activities of life as presented to them in the household, shops, street, and work shops.

It is only at the age of fifteen or sixteen, at the very earliest, that the vast majority of children even begin to take an interest in academic work or learning for its own sake. The teaching should not be vague, for it is important that the child, at this stage, should possess a growing nucleus of exact knowledge which he thoroughly understands and can use with ease, whilst the teaching itself should stimulate him to real effort. Our pupils thus acquire habits of hard work and intellectual honesty.

Three Purposes

The Science Masters' Association, in a report of 1935, gave the following reasons for justifying the inclusion of any subject in the curriculum: (1) Utilitarian or Vocational, (2) Cultural, and (3) Disciplinarian.

Let us now examine the results of the present aims and methods in the teaching of mathematics. At the present moment there seems to be a horror of mathematics among the general public and active opposition to it. It is then not surprising to us when we hear the painful question: "What is the good of learning this?" That fact in itself shows, at any rate, that there is no positive love for it amongst those individuals. If there were, those pupils would never stop to think about the questions.

Does the normal healthy child stop in the middle of a game of football or baseball to ask the instructor: "What's the good of doing this?" No. They love it far too much; their minds are much too occupied for the question to have time to be formed. And, besides, we do not let them play games just because they like to, but because we believe they will get considerable benefit from doing so.

Aim of Mathematics

Lancelot Hodgen just a few years ago wrote a book, "Mathematics for the Million"—written for his own fun while he was in a hospital during a long illness. The author states that a few friends among the million or so intelligent people who have been frightened by mathematics while at school have advised him to publish it. He goes on, says that: "It will have fulfilled its aim if it stimulates the interest and removes the inferiority complex of some of the million or so who have given up hope of learning through the usual channels." The book has become a best seller in America. Apparently there was a crying need for it.

Under the three types of argument mentioned into which the jus-

Again, congratulations for a job well done!

Goodman Discusses Embryo Treatment

Beginning his lecture with the first step in the study of the embryo, Harry Goodman, junior science man, spoke of the "Mounting, Staining, and Study of Growth of the Embryo Chick" before the Research Seminary last Wednesday.

As it is imperative that the embryo not be injured, he demonstrated the proper method of breaking the shell. "This care," Goodman stated, "is to be exercised throughout the process so as to obtain a mounting which will in all instances show the embryonic chick as it appears in life."

Tomorrow's seminar paper will be presented by Matthew Cappuccio, freshman science man; it will deal with the parasitic amoeba infesting man.

Introducing A Triumvirate Of "Aces": Cirelli, Scott, Fanning Take A Bow

By Thomas A. Sullivan

BOOK ONE, volume one, in the life of James Barnett Scott, senior artsman, opens up in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., in the year 1918.

The setting soon shifts, however, for Scotty was educated in Trenton grammar schools and attended Trenton High for two years. He finally completed his prep course at Coughlin High School. Jim's main interest there was in the sports field; he played both baseball and football.

Intra-Mural Athlete

Reading on a little further in the life of Mr. Scott, we see that he enrolled at Villanova College in the fall of '36 and continued his participation in athletics through the intramurals; the highlight of his first year came when he was runner-up in the intramural tennis tournament.

In his sophomore year, Scotty really began to get into the swing of things, and joined Beta Gamma, varsity debating society; the Belle Air staff; and the Sophomore Cotillion committee. At the end of his sophomore year, he moved to Philadelphia and began his career as a dap-hop. The change of scenery evidently did not hamper his style, however, for the next year we find him continuing his work on the Belle Air staff, joining the History Seminar, and being appointed to serve on the Junior Dinner-Dance committee.

Business Manager Now

In this, his farewell year, Scotty has served on the senior Prom Committee, and heads the Belle Air business staff. Delving into other chapters of the biography of James B. Scott, we find that his principal hobby is stamp collecting, that he attends all campus social activities, and that he has no "special" girl friend.

Jas. Scott

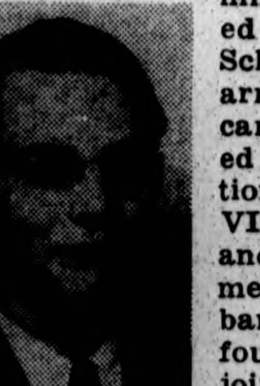
It is rumored that future volumes on the life of Scotty will reveal his enrollment in law school.

JOSEPH A. CIRELLI, JR., having been tracked down in the library, informed your reporter that he was born on April 28, 1918, in the city of Vineland, N. J. Being pressed further, he also admitted to the fact that he attended Sacred Heart Grammar and High schools (also in Vineland).

Joe must have been just as popular in Vineland as he is here on the campus, because he was president of his class during his sophomore, junior, and senior years at Sacred Heart. In addition to these three years of gavel-swinging, Joe was also manager of the basketball team and had important roles in two school plays.

Enters C & F

After perusing Villanova's catalogue, Joe decided that it was just the place for him, and enrolled in the C & F School. Upon his arrival on the campus, he joined the circulation staff of the VILLANOVAN, and became a member of the band. He also found time to join the symphonic band.



Jos. Cirelli

These three activities have consumed all his extra time during his four years on the campus. He was made leader of the symphonic group during his junior year, and has managed the regular band for the last two years.

Circulation Manager

Joe climaxed his work on the staff of the paper by assuming the post of circulation manager in his senior year.

Joe may be seen at almost all the campus social affairs, but when asked about the girl question he reneged. He probably realized that, unlike the census taker, it is your reporter's duty to reveal to the world at large all information received in these interviews.

Our Mr. Cirelli has not set plans as to his future, but is significantly majoring in accounting in the School of Commerce and Finance.

ARTHUR EDWARD FANNING made his first appearance on the stage of life on March 8, 1919, at Danvers, Massachusetts.

After preliminary education at a private grammar school and at Sarah Richmond Junior High School, he enrolled at St. John's Prep, which is also located at Danvers. While attending this latter school, he made frequent contributions to the school magazine.

Joins Decoration Committee

Came the time when Art had to decide which college to attend, and Villanova finally got the verdict. During his first year on the campus, he joined the Music Seminar and, of course, the Massachusetts Club. The following year he also became a member of the Intra-Mural Decoration Committee.

In his junior year, Art continued to serve on this last-named committee, joined the Math Club, and assumed the all-important post of class secretary. This year he was re-elected secretary, and became co-chairman of the Intramural Decoration committee.

Art was active in the re-organization of Epsilon Phi Theta, the arts frat, and was made co-chairman of the initiation committee. He has also been an honor man for the last three years.

Social Devotee

Social life? Yes indeed. Some of the boys like Rosemont, others prefer Immaculata, but Art will take Chestnut Hill every time. He therefore frequents the social affairs of both Villanova and Chestnut Hill. "She" lives on Roosevelt Boulevard.

By this time next year, he hopes to be connected with an insurance company. Considering his pleasing personality (topped off by a New England accent), and the way he has blended scholastic, social, and extra-curricular life at Villanova, we believe that Mr. Fanning is bound to go far in his chosen field.

HOW about an inter-fraternity dance sometime this year or next? Now that the fraternity spirit is riding high on the campus, it would be an excellent opportunity to organize such a social function as would promote fraternity activities of a desirable nature and should be a means of financial income for all groups involved.

Princeton University has installed a plan whereby senior honor students are exempt from class attendance in order to allow them more time to work on their theses. The merits of this plan may be noticed from the fact that they are, almost without exception, preparing their theses on broader and more difficult topics than are usually chosen.

There are times when class attendance is more a hindrance to good study than a help. In addition to their work in this regard, it has been found that these men are actually attending classes in at least four undergraduate or graduate colleges. It would appear that this plan is well worth adopting.

BOYLE TALKS TO AIEE ON MOTOR CONTROL TYPES

Hugh J. Boyle, junior member of the A. I. E. E., will present a talk on "Direct and Alternating Current Motor Controls" at the next regular meeting of the Villanova branch club on Thursday, April 25.

Boyle will discuss starting boxes of the revolving, 3 and 4 point, and automatic types, as well as D. C. and A. C. speed regulators. After the talk, he will answer any questions pertaining to the topic.

Yesterday the members of the branch visited the Leeds and Northrup Electrical Manufacturing Company, Germantown, where they made an inspection trip after attending the Swarthmore convention.

A "New Deal" In Mathematics?

tification for teaching a subject can be placed, that is, utilitarian, cultural and disciplinarian, I think that the latter is the only one that can be seriously advanced in favor of present-day mathematics. Of course, everybody agrees that mathematics is a good mental discipline, fostering logical reasoning and so forth, but one very painfully observes that such mind training has very little "carry over" into other human activities. By all means, let us nourish it, but let this not be the only justification for the inclusion of our subject in our curriculum.

With regard to the cultural and utilitarian values of our present-day mathematics, there is very little doubt in the minds of many that they are microscopically small. In short, what do the children get? Plenty of formal discipline, a tiny little bit of cultural value, and about the same amount of utilitarian value—one outside ace and two very small trumps! Truly a Raw Deal.

A New Deal

Is it possible to get a New Deal? Or, being mathematicians, we would prefer a Square Deal. The answer definitely is "yes." Mathematics can still retain that outside ace of mental discipline and the ace, king of trumps, cultural and utilitarian values. Mathematics touches life at so many points that the all-around of a mathematician is a long business. Consider the mathematics of physics alone: what a vast field! Then, there is the mathematics of chemistry, of enginering, of astronomy, biology, of statistics, etc.

Hodgen in his "Mathematics for the Million" calls his first chapter "Mathematics—The Mirror of Civilization," and, actually criticising present-day teaching, says, "As Mathematics is now being taught and expounded in our schools, no effort is made to show its social heritage, its significance in our social lives. the immense dependence of civilized mankind upon it. . ."

The question now arises as to what methods and technique adopt. Here, of course, no two of us would agree in every detail. Let us consider only broad issues.

The Curriculum

To start with, the curriculum must be complete in itself. There must be no loose ends. We must keep well in our minds the fact that the vast majority of our pupils are not going to be mathematical specialists. This means a drastic cutting down of purely manipulative exercises. Daily observations indicate that three types of exercises are needed:

(a) Those in connection with some new idea on principle where the numbers chosen are very simple, so that the whole attention is focused on the principle and there is no need of worry on the arithmetic.

(b) Exercises to give skill in pure manipulation and to drive home the principle by sheer repetition.

(c) Problems taken from real life, where the principles brought forward under (a) and requiring some degree of (b) are required.

There are three types of pupils:

(1) A few who have the so-called mathematical type of brain and so can very soon do pretty well with any example you give them.

(2) The few who are anything but mathematical and cannot be guaranteed to get the one-thousandth example.

(3) The intermediate mass.

By giving a large number of manipulative exercises to all these pupils, we do very little good to most of them. The good ones do not need them; the very poor ones never improve. The regular working of exercises is essential for the illuminating of ideas and impressing them on the mind. Nevertheless, the working of exercises tends to dominate our work far too much and to consume time that might far more profitably be devoted to the tilling of now-neglected ground of great interest. Our courses should be arranged in as liberal a manner as possible, and they should be designed to cover a wide range, at any rate in the early stages.

The Teacher's Role

Let us conclude the discussion by considering the role the teacher plays in moulding the future of our young generation. The state requires the teacher to have to his credit a number of courses in Education, so that he may be able properly to conduct classes. Of course, to know how to teach is very important but we must not lose sight of the fact that he must also know what to teach. He must be interested in the subject matter which he is teaching. In other words, the subject matter must become a part of his physical and mental make-up. Then, and only then, can he succeed in giving to his material the life and beauty which it justifiably deserves.

Too many teachers have chosen their present career because, according to their version, teaching offers a comfortable means of earning a living with the minimum expenditure of time and energy. Teachers with that viewpoint are no asset to our educational system.

Allow me to close this contribution with the following passage:

> There is one element of work which cannot be fully compensated for in dollars and cents. It is above and beyond the mercenary and is represented by that spirit of love which the true craftsman holds for his toil. Those who develop a love for their work always enjoy an extra reward in the pleasure and gratification of its performance—and often cherish appreciation and commendation fully as much as proper pay.

RICHARDSON PLEADS FOR RACIAL ACCORD

Villanova Student Calls Negros "Truly American" in Speech at Symposium

"The Negro population of the United States numbers twelve million, which is more than ten percent of our total population. This part of our citizenry is as truly American as any of the other groups that go to make up our country."

With this statement, James H. Richardson, junior commerce student, opened an address before some two hundred persons gathered at St. Joseph's College last Sunday to attend the annual meeting of the Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Symposium.

He continued by holding that "the Negro is quite often more American than others, as he can lay claim to being in this country for more than several generations, which is longer than the majority of his fellow citizens."

Commenting upon the present position of the Negro in society, Richardson stated that the Negro is still deprived, to a large extent, of the rights to hold property, to enter labor unions, to earn a living wage, and of the opportunities to enter the professional fields.

"The fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Constitution gave the Negro a certain degree of freedom, but there still persists in too large a portion of the South unreasonable and unjustifiable racial discrimination," he stated.

In conclusion, Richardson made the following plea: "For the continuance of the Christian ideals that have governed our country since its inception, we ask the people of these United States to give the Negro a chance to exercise his God-given powers of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Other colleges represented by delegates to the symposium were Rosemont, St. Joseph's Immaculata, La Salle, and the St. Joseph's Evening School of Social Science.

Newly-Elected Officers of Phi Kappa Pi

News In Brief

Invitations to the Commencement Exercises of 1940, may be procured for a nominal fee at the College book store. Individual allotments of the same will not be automatically delivered. Orders are being taken at the present time.

Nominations for officers of Lambda Kappa Delta for the coming year will be held today at 1:00 P. M. in room 212 Mendel hall. All members are urged by president Charles G. Martin to be present.

point a committee of five members, including himself, one senior, two juniors, and one sophomore, whose function it will be to keep a record of all offenses against the regulations reported by members of the Orientation Committee, and to conduct hearings for those Frosh who have violated regulations.

"If the offender should continue to violate regulations he shall be given a hearing by the Senior members of the Student Council at the discretion of the sub-committee. If the Student Council at such a hearing finds the offender sufficiently guilty, they shall declare him ineligible for participation in activities during the current school year."

These rules have been adopted by the Student Council after a thorough study of the past performances of the Orientation Committees. The provisions are made largely in outline form and will serve as a guide to the incoming committee which will adapt them to their own requirements.

"If properly stressed and organized during the first few days next year, the plan should work," said Chairman McManus, "in building up the Villanova spirit of the incoming Freshmen."

"BULLETIN" ISSUE DUE

The next issue of the Mendel "Bulletin," publication of the School of Science, is expected to be in circulation on or before April 30.

The frontispiece will be a photograph of an unusual algae. The photograph was taken by Edmund A. Malcolm, staff photographer, from a culture given by Miss Mary K. Donovan, a member of the department of Biology at Rosemont College.

Miss Donovan is connected with the Villanova Research Laboratory at Woodshole, Mass, which is under the direction of Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., Ph. D., assistant professor of biology.

Juniors: In Re Blazers, Dinner-Dance

Junior Blazers will be delivered on Thursday, April 25, in the Mendel Hall reception room. They are being sent C. O. D. by Jacob Reid & Sons, the contractors, and, thus, the remaining payments on them may be paid then. Anyone wishing to make payment in advance may do so either to Cliff Randolph, the Blazer Chairman, or to "Elk" Murray, the firm's campus representative.

At the time of delivery there will be an authorized representative from Jacob Reid & Sons on hand to insure correct fittings. Blazers, if at all dissatisfactory to their purchasers, may be returned for alterations. These latter in any case will be returned in time for the Blazer Ball.

Chairman Randolph may be reached for further information pertinent to this subject.

Dinner-Dance

Junior Dinner-Dance Chairman, John J. McGuire, wishes it to be realized by the third year men that the assessment for this partciular event must be submitted tomorrow at the latest if favors are expected to be received. The order for these novelties is being held up pending word from the late-comers.

At the Dinner-Dance in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, tables accommodating five couples each will be provided. The Juniors themselves will on the occasion of this concluding social of Junior Week arrange among tehmselves these parties of ten people. It is understood that such groups of five couples at the tables will occupy the same ones throughout the evening.

Stewart Murray and his orchestra will provide music for dancing continuously from 8 o'clock until 12 midnight. However, the dinner will promptly be served at 8:30 o'clock. The Chairman asks that all Juniors bear this fact in mind insofar as the Ritz-Carlton management is not obliged to render late dinner service after the beginning of the affair.

Interview Stamps Noble Amiable, Debonair, O. K.

By JAMES F. HAUGHTON

PLAYING for college dances is a palatable tidbit for Leighton Noble's musical appetite. The collegiate affairs don't require any special plan because the American students puts everybody—including the orchestra—right in the mood.

"Say we have a great time playing college dates. The kids are out for a big evening and the boys in the band just join in on the fun, too.

"Why, down at Georgetown I'll bet there were a dozen fellows leading the band! And Edith! (Edith Caldwell) Why we almost lost her a couple of times."

That is what Leighton Noble, handsome maestro who will share the spotlight with Van Alexander at the Junior Prom on May 10, told us as we talked at the Garden Terrace of the Ben Franklin Hotel where his orchestra is now playing an extended engagement.

Partial to "Sweet"

Their music is strictly for dancing. Swing has its place, but Noble is satisfied to let the other leaders handle that.

"I like to listen to swing," he said, "but would rather play the sweet music. If you've noticed, we try to play a music that is danceable. And that's our big aim—to play dance music. Van, I'm sure, will take care of the swing."

And you would be quick to agree after listening to Noble, as we did, as he was making a network broadcast of his "music with color tone." An instrument called a "Novachord," which resembles an organ, provides much of this color. Chick Floyd, personable arranger, handles it, aided and abetted by two pianos. A harmonic saxaphone section and a strongly accented brass group blend to form the necessary hue for this "colortone music."

"Alabama" Edith

The charm department of the Noble musical firm is ably handled by beauteous Edith Caldwell of the Alabama Caldwells. Edith provides much of the vocal work, along with the maestro and guitarist Bob Grifin. But she also managed to entertain the visiting dance committee with several laughs.

A very witty lass, Miss Caldwell is an avid candid camera fiend. "Why," she remarked, "I took a candid shot of Chick Floyd. And was it candid! Bet ah cut his head right in half. But when does the sun shine in Philadelphia, so I can put my camera to outdoor use?"

And college proms are very much to her liking, too. She is collegiate at heart having attended Howard University in the deep south. "You know college proms are such nice affairs. Much nicer than playing anywhere else. Everybody seems so set on making it nice."

Likes Philly

Philadelphia is no strange land for Noble, though. For it was shortly over two years ago that he made his initial appearance with his orchestra at the famous Arcadia International. He has many friends in Quaker Town and especially likes "the historic atmosphere."

"We played up at Boston's Hotel Statler all winter, and Philadelphia is so much like Beantown," he said. "Everything seems so set. And we like it here at the Ben Franklin, for we sure get a swell crowd."

Villanova will not be the only college stop for the Noble orchestra. While their itinerary isn't definite yet, there are several campus dates in mind. They've already played such colleges as: Alabama, Duke, Illinois, North Carolina, Virginia Military Institute, Georgetown, Harvard and many more.

Shortly after the local campus engagement the troupe is scheduled for a three weeks engagement at the famed Cavalier Hotel at Virginia Beach, Va. They played an engagement there last season and were brought back by popular demand. The Cavalier books only the better bands, such as Hal Kemp and Tommy Dorsey, who play regularly there.

ALUMNI AWARD MADE

Hon. Silvester F. Sabbatino, who received his B. A. from Villanova in 1916 and his M. A. in 1918, was recently awarded the Charles McGeehan trophy "for outstanding loyalty and service to his Alma Mater."

This trophy, which is awarded annually by the Villanova Club of Boston, was won last year by "Doc" Jacobs, '26, present baseball coach.

CHEMISTS PICK VILLANOVA

Villanova was selected as the site of next year's Intercollegiate Student Chemists Convention; this choice was made last Saturday at Albright College, site of the 1940 convention.

The local Chemical Society elected the following officers at a meeting yesterday: Charles J. Schafer, president; John J. Madison and Hyman Malkin, vice presidents; Robert S. Ayerle, secretary and treasurer, and Roger L. Logan, sergeant-at-arms.

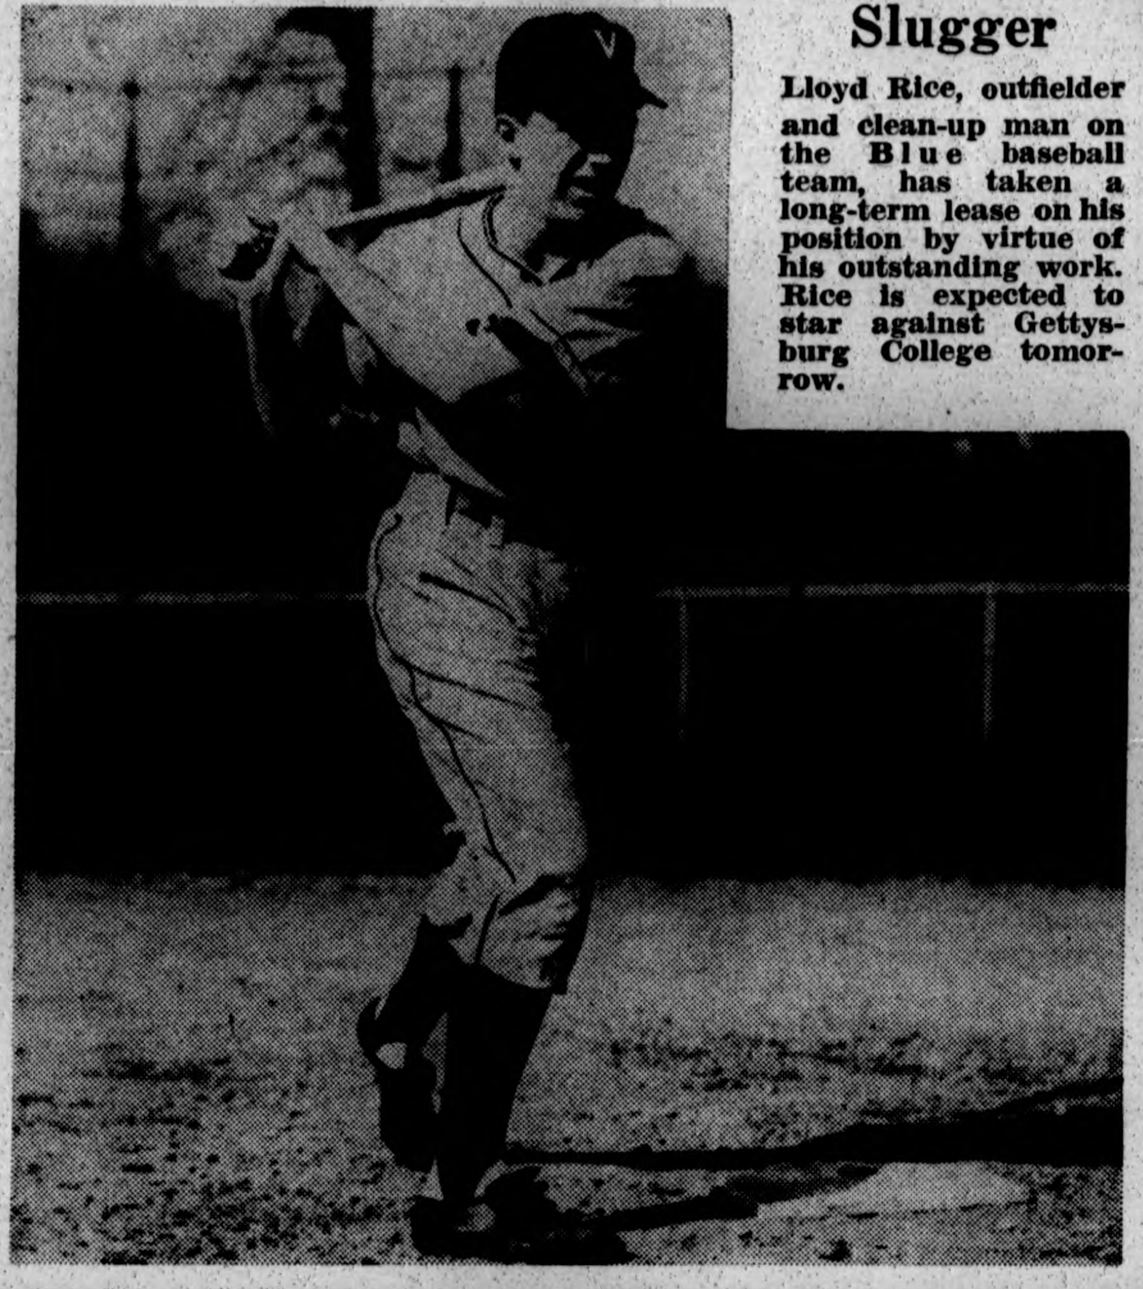
WILDCAT RUNNERS READY FOR RELAYS



Slugger

Lloyd Rice, outfielder and clean-up man on the Blue baseball team, has taken a long-term lease on his position by virtue of his outstanding work. Rice is expected to star against Gettysburg College tomorrow.

FOUR BLUE TEAMS IN PENN CARNIVAL AT FRANKLIN FIELD

Cats Look for Success in Half-Mile Relay Event

MAHER IN INVITATION 100

By BILL CAREY

Sporting its largest entry in years the Wildcat track team travels to Pennsylvannia's Franklin Field this weekend to engage in the 45th annual Penn Relays. Featuring this entry for the Wildcats will be their two sprint teams that face an acid test in meeting the fastest teams in the country.

Anchored by Johnny Maher both sprint quartets will be made up of the same men. Bill Guiteras, "Whitey" Urbellis, and "Legs" Shedlosky. In the quarter mile race the team didn't reach the finals but they finished fourth in the half mile event. This brilliant showing definitely stamps Villanova as one of the favorites.

Aside from his relay work Maher will run in the special "Invitation 100." Johnny who finished fourth last year will team up against Ellerbe, last year's winner, among other leading sprinters of the nation.

With the men in the shorter races meeting the crop of the country including Pitt last year's victor, Navy Fordham N. Y. U. North Texas Teachers, and other top notchers, mentor Elliot has retained his mid-winter optimism and now has only to wait for the day of the race to see the results of his long preparation.

The Wildcats have also entered a mile team to match strides with leading Middle Atlantic squads, and probably a few from the New England district. Guiteras will step from the sprint team and join Barney Bellew. These two are the only definite choices of Elliot. Other men in consideration are Pete Yankauskas, who will have to take time off from spring practice, Legs Shedlosky, and hurdler Bill Carey who looms as a dark horse.

Men who will carry the colors of Villanova individually will be Jones, Murphy, Waad, Gerland, Yankauskas.

Conquered Only By Rain Blue Nine Faces Bullets Tomorrow, Redmen Friday

By BOB FUNABASHI

If perchance the prophets of the weather predict the long-awaited sunny skies and fairer weather, possibly Doc Jacob's nine will continue on their delayed baseball campaign after being snowed and rained under in two preivous contests.

Last week's current crop of downfall undermined a number of games but if all goes well Villanova will face three leading contenders of the diamond this week. Annual battles mark their appearance as the Wildcats face Gettysburg, St. John's, and C. C. N. Y. within a week. These affairs will end the present home-stand for the college nine as they depart soon for their annual journey on the road.

Gettysburg Tomorrow

Tomorrow, the Gettysburg Bullets make their arrival here to face the Wildcats who already have entrenched themselves firmly in prominence along the baseball front, by trouncing Penn and Lehigh. To date, Gettysburg has shown no real power dropping two decisions to Wesleyan and Temple. Their other two games were cancelled because of rain.

Coach Ira Plank, former Athletic's great, will have either Bill Knauer or Ralph Cox on the hill to face the Wildcats while Al Bender will be their batterymate. Both are Sophomores and come up from a successful Yearling squad of last Spring.

St. John's Old Foe

Facing one of their oldest rivals of the diamond, the Wildcats will encounter St. John's of Brooklyn, who last year were champions of Metropolitan New York. Carrying over from the ribbed-court, Coach Joe Lapchick guides the destinies of the Redmen and so far this season, his forces have registered victories over Seton Hall, winner of 16 straight games, and Brooklyn College.

Lapchick is well contented with his forces after their displays in recent games. In the Brooklyn game, Lapchick's pitchers, John McPadden, Joe Dooley and Joe Bownes, limited the Brooklynites to one hit, a single made off the shoots of McPadden. Starring in the Seton Hall game was Mickey Rutner, star leftfielder who pounded out four hits, three of which were doubles. This is only a sample of the star-studded staff which Lapchick has to work on.

Last years impressive record as compiled by the Redmen gave them the City Championship as they beat out Fordham for the title. The squad is somewhat similar to that intact outfit with the exception of the loss of three twirlers. But five new hurlers have replaced the departed and the team is enhanced by the fact that they are all Sophomores with the exception of one.

Another Gothamite rival will be on hand Saturday to face Doc Jacob's charges, namely, City College of New York. By ware of forecasts, Villanova, as in past years will be in hot water with the Lavender bats, for this year's Beaver diamond nine is well on its way to being the hardest-hitting outfit in their history.

Conzleman Signs Chisick To Pro Football Contract After Long Negotiations

Andy Chisick, varsity center for three years, has signed a contract to play professional football with the Chicago Cardinals of the National Pro League, he announced today.

Chisick signed after Jimmy Conzleman, newly appointed Cardinal coach, made a flying visit here on his way to the coaches meeting in New York. Two previous offers having been rejected, Conzleman decided he could transact business better in person and finally persuaded Andy to affix his name to the contract last week.

A clause in the contract permits Andy to withdraw if before the season begins he receives an attractive business offer.

The Cardinals secured the right to bargain for Chisick's services in the annual draft. Only one other regional player was drafted, Kolman of Temple.

Andy's eventual aim is to enter the coaching and teaching field and he expects to take graduate work in the "Windy City," possibly at the University of Chicago. With practice in the afternoon he feels it will be possible for him to further his education in the morning.

The Cardinals are newcomers in the league but this year should possess one of the most powerful teams. Backed by a millionaire sportsman, they are made up mostly of players fresh from college campuses. With a year's experience behind them such men as Marshall Goldberg, Pitt; Bob McLeod, Dartmouth; and Ki Alrich of TCU should make themselves known in the pay-for-play circuit this season.

Chisick will probably find himself a member of the All Star squad which annually meets the pro league champs ni Chicago's Soldier's Field, Cozleman intimated. Practice for the pro gridders will begin late in August.

Outstanding Center

"Handy Andy" has been the most outstanding center to ever wear the blue of Villanova. Coming here from Good Counsel High School in Newark, Andy easily grabbed a spot on the yearling squad. His sophomore year found him sharing the varsity center post with John McKenna. But in his junior and senior years he took complete control and gained national recognition with his work.

Famed as an excellent play analyist, Chisick has the uncanny knack of knowing just where the enemy will move. And he was there to stop them. A vicious tackler and masterful on pass defense, this 230 lb. gridder was a thorn in the side of the enemy at all times. Time after time he awed the crowds with his almost impossible tackling.

Chisick made several "all-star teams" and almost every year found him receiving recognition from some football expert.

This June Andy will receive a B. S. degree in Economics from the Schol of Commerce and Finance where he is majoring in Marketing.

Murals, Revamped In '32, Have Shown Steady Growth

Present System Outgrowth of Loosely Organized Inter-Fraternity Meets; Basketball Has Grown Faster, More Popular Than Other Sports

By WALTER BROWN

In the fall of 1932 a very extensive intramural program was started by interested authorities. There had been intramural teams in preceding years but because of poor organization and lack of interest, the student body failed to participate to any great extent.

However, the new athletic progrom started that year had for its purpose the creation of inter-hall competition in all sports, in order that students not on varsity teams would be enabled to take part in some athletic activity at Villanova. The organization of this idea was effectively done by Father McKee and Father Vrana.

Previous to the program started in the fall of 1932, intramurals were carried on an intra-fraternity basis. The fraternities of each of the four schools selected a team and a schedule was worked out between them. Competition between these fraternities dates as far back as 1925. In 1930 the season schedule consisted of track, basketball, and a little baseball. That year each basketball team played four games with the "Premeds" coming out on top. Each member of that winning team was awarded a gold basketball.

In the 1931 and '32 basketball competition, strong Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity took top honors and in 1931 placed two men on the "all-Fraternity team" chosen that year for the first and only time. Also in 1931 the first inter-dorm track meet was run. This was the first indication of inter-dormitory competition, which has been the basis of the intramurals since the fall of 1932.

Because of the fact that in previous years participation was limited to members of various fraternities, Father McKee and Father Vrana placed the intramurals on an inter-dormitory basis when they started their organization in order that more could participate and more interest would be shown.

Alumni Early Winner

They succeeded in organizing an interesting schedule which brought out all the fellows interested in any way and everyone got an equal chance. The schedule the first years consisted of wrestling, boxing, basketball, track, swimming, baseball, softball, and volleyball. In basketball, the kingpin of all intramural sports, Alumni reigned supreme the first two years, 1932 and '33. In the 1933-34 season they won both halves and a playoff was not necessary. This is the only time that this happened.

The second year of intramural football and golf were added and wrestling was dropped. In the first two years of competition there were six competing teams—Austin, Fedigan, Good Counsel, Mendel, Alumni, and the Dayhops. In the third year Good Counsel was merged with Mendel and the C. & F. Dayhops were added and these six teams continued up to the present.

In 1935 bowling and billiards were added. It was with the development of the intramural program that our Varsity boxing, swimming and bowling teams were organized. Also that year, a new trend of thought favored the conduction of a triangular intramural meet with teams from Penn and Temple. That year Villanova and Temple met and the Wildcats emerged victorious. But after that year, this idea was dropped.

Another event was added to the program in 1936; it was Amateur Night. That year it was decided to pick an "All-Intramural" team for basketball and the idea has been continued so that a team of the best intramural basketballers is chosen each year.

Basketball Highlights

So far, basketball has proved to be the highlight of the whole program and in its early years it was dominated by Alumni and Mendel Day students but in the more recent years Fedigan and the C. & F. have proved to be stronger. In the eight years of competition Alumni has won the crown three times (1933, '34, '35), Mendel Day students twice (1936, '37), Austin once (1938), C. & F. once (1939), and Fedigan once (1940), the Mendel Residents being the only team that failed to capture at least one crown.

A trophy, symbolic of intramural supremacy, is awarded each year to the hall which has scored the higest number of points in all sports on the intramural roster. So far the cup has been awarded as follows:

1932-33 Alumni Hall.
1933-34 Austin Hall.
1934-35 Alumni Hall.
1935-36 Mendel Hall.
1936-37 Austin Hall.
1938-39 Austin Hall.

Father McKee is very pleased with the way the intramural program has worked out and he only hopes that he can interest more fellows in it and have closer races. He is at present trying to organize a Dayhop team from both C. & F. and Mendel. He is starting with softball among the frats and hopes in time to build the Dayhops so that they may be a serious threat each year for the trophy. The frats from the different schools will play the winner of the intra-dormitory league.

You can bet that with Father McKee behind the new idea that it will be built to great heights in the future.

Golfers Lose To Fordham

Wildcats Fail to Score as Gothamites Win, 9 - 0

At the Hickory Country Club, Tuckahoe, New York, last Friday, Villanova was shut out 9-0 by Fordham. It was no day for golf, but that didn't stop Fordham. The match was played on a tricky course with the result that there were no good scores turned in all day.

Cliff Randolph started things out when he lost to Art Conaty of Fordham 3 and 1. Jack Burke followed with the defeat of Jim Brown 5 and 4. The two New Yorkers cleaned up a full three points when they won best-ball 2-up.

Depersio Beaten

In the second foursome, Ed McFarland polished off Bob de Persio 5 and 4. Ernie Klappenback continued the streak by losing to Fordham's George Grady 3 and 2. In this foursome too, Fordham won best-ball 5 and 4.

Dave Morse lost a close one to Marty Patreska of Fordham one-up on eighteen holes. Jack Maher, who had replaced Marvin Mones on the team, lost to Frank Fazzella 7 and 6. The last best-ball match was no different than the others and Villanova lost that one 2 and 1.

Next Friday, Villanova will play host to the team from St. John's University of Brooklyn.

CATS CRUSH LEHIGH IN ONLY GAME OF RAIN-RIDDEN WEEK

Choquette Hurler in 14-2 Conquest of Engineers From Bethlehem

Living up to it's reputation of being one of the best baseball teams in the East, Villanova's Wildcats thoroughly trounced Lehigh by a 14-2 score last Wednesday in the only game not rained out.

Winning their second straight game the Cats had little opposition from the Lehigh club until the sixth inning when Choquette relinquished the only three hits of the game. He then held the visitors hitless and scoreless through the remaining three innings.

Assuming a leading role in fielding and batting was second baseman Reitmeier who collected four hits out of six times at bat. Two of these mighty clouts were for extra bases, both being doubles. He also assisted in a spectacular double play. On a fast grounder to Lazorchak, Reitmeier came swiftly around behind second to take the force-out throw from Lazorchak but he was way off balance and had to make his toss to first in ths awkward position to just barely catch the runner by a breath.

The team looked in the pink of condition even though weather conditions have hindered much of the out door practice. They pounded out fifteen hits to their rival's three and made every one count, scoring 14 runs and chasing three Lehigh pitchers to the showers.

Triple By Rice, Pash

Rice and Pash both hit long triples and each also collected a single. Pash didn't come in till the sixth along with Murphy, Donahue was the only other Cat to get two hits.

The game with Providence on Friday was postponed due to rain but a three game home series is on for this week.

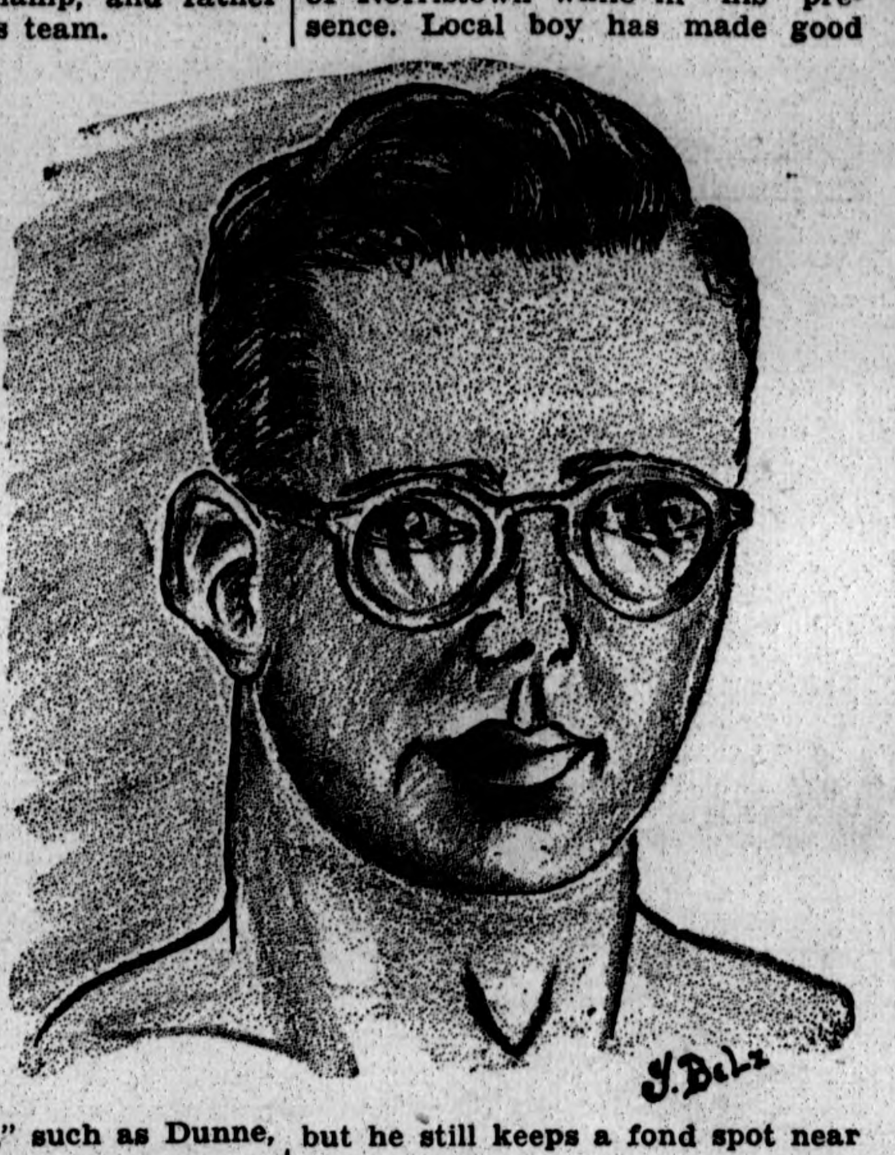
Busy Man Is Little Saul, Foster Father Of Tennis

This June, when the [illegible] of '40 receives their diplomas, will mark the lowering of the curtain on the college career of a true "Villanovan." This lad has done more for tennis at Villanova than any other person with the possible exception of Sol Berman, former Eastern Intercollegiate Champ, and father of our first tennis team.



We speak of Saul Wallach, who came here in his freshman year and picked up the remnants of a disbanded varsity tennis team, and by the sheer stint of his own driving power, wooing new candidates out for the team, cajoling veterans to support a sinking ship, he tugged, squeezed, and scratched his way until Villanova was established in the proper collegiate tennis brackets.

Playing Coach

The men who made up that frosh team of "36," such as Dunne, Wienfeld, Rappleyea, Wallenbach, and Wallach himself, through the ensuing years, strengthened the backbone of our tennis teams and from year to year have advanced in ability until this their final year gives evidence of being a banner one. Playing, coaching, and managing have proved to be a full bill for this mighty mite who, although himself not a topnotch player, has due to his absorbing interest in the game, helped nurse an aiding sport along until now it is capable of going places.

Ever Present "Jinx"

Saul's chief yelp is the everpresent jinx of always drawing the top seeded players in the 1st round of his past tournaments, such players as, Frank Shields, Joey Fishbach, and Gardner Maloy. His biggest kick was the upsetting of Danny McFadden of P. M. C. in a match which required four hours to terminate, and having such final scores as 15-13, 11-9, and 15-13.

Through his experience gained while writing for the VILLANOVAN, Saul has gained such an adeptness of style in his writing that for the past few years he has been writing for several Philadelphia papers on Sports and through this vocation has caught the eye of a news feature syndicate and has been offered a position in this organization. After leaving school Saul intends to keep on helping to build up the tennis team in any way that may be possible.

Norristown Graduate

A graduate of Norristown High School and still a resident of that noble town Saul is one of its most able supporters. Say what you will of Wallach, but speak not in vain of Norristown while in his presence. Local boy has made good but he still keeps a fond spot near the third rib for the old hometown. (Norristown papers please copy!)

When he does start writing for profit for his feature syndicate Villanova can rest assured that Saul will make the grade. His sharp, to the point, always complete and accurate, reporting for the VILLANOVAN has proven his journalistic ability beyond question. In years to come you will see a familiar by-line, By Saul Wallach, prefacing many a story in the biggest journals. The little man from C. & F. has hitched his wagon to a star.

Meet "The Brute,"

Villanova's newest acquisition in athletic equipment is none other than the "brute," a pneumatic pressure machine used for blocking. This name is derived from its action upon those who attempt to block it. So far John Nieman, rugged tackle had found its true value for he has registered the most pressure upon the dummy.

FRESHMEN WIN MILE RELAY OVER PENN

Villanova's freshman mile relay team won yesterday afternoon over the U. of Pennsylvania Frosh and Overbrook High School in a meet held at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, scene of this week's Penn Relays.

The Frosh are entered in the American Mile Championship event Saturday.

Poor passing of the baton cost the varsity a win in the sprint race with Pennsylvania's varsity quintet. Penn's four turned in a time of 42.1 seconds in conquering the Wildcats by a margin of approvimately one foot.

"Whitey" Urbellis was the leadoff man for the 'Cats and came home with a slight lead which was lost while passing the baton to Al Shedlosky. Guiteras cut down the Penn lead some and anchor man Johnny Maher lopped off plenty of yardage but fell short of the final foot.

In the freshman event Nazian, Keefrider, DiCarlo, and Brown led all the way for Villanova and won by ten yards door Invitation meet last month, is entered in the high jump.

Fred Gerland a newcomer will toss the shot, while all-around man Tim Waad will compete in the broad jump and throw the javlin. Joining Waad in the broad jump will be Art Murphy. Murphy will also team up with Jones in the high jump. Yankauskas, if the football schedule permits, will hurl the javlin. Pete, because of last year's showing in the dual meets, will prove a serious threat to the leaders in this event.

Finishing up the entry list for the Wildcats will be the freshman mile team. Consisting of Harry Keefrider, Stan Nazian, Johnny DiCarloiand. Jimmy Brown, this quartet has an outside chance of doing something. The order of their running has not been settled, but DiCarlo is the likely choice for the anchor position.

Rider Match Washed Out

Netmen Also Cancel Match With P. C. P. Racquetmen

The destinies of the tennis team have lately come to depend entirely on the weatner, consequently the Rider match scheduled for last Saturday was postponed and in all probability the match with the Phila. School of Pharmacy scheduled for tomorrow will be cancelled. Rider will be played early in May.

Since the home courts were not in condition and the weather prevented them from being rolled and lined the team practiced on courts at Norristown and Narberth until continued bad weather forced them to give up the work entirely.

The first match will probably be with the Seton Hall team from South Orange, N. J., on Friday. This is to be held on their courts. The main threat of the Jersey boys will be Johnny Sullivan, their No. 1 man, who was defeated by Dennis Dunne last year in three sets. Sullivan will be out for revenge and the match should prove to be very interesting.

On Saturday the courtmen will travel to Newark, Delaware, to cross recquets with the "Blue Hens" of Delaware U.

Denny Dunne, the "Wildcat" ace, looks impressive as does his doubles partner, Fred Rappleyea, probable number three man.

Most improved player is John Leary, another senior who has developed a devastating drive. He needs plenty of practice but has the potentialities of a better than average player. Of the sophomore crop Daly, Grey and Belz are looking well.

Frosh Reschedule Ursinus Meeting

The freshman baseball game, scheduled originally for last week but called due to wet grounds, will be played on May 1.

With the addition of two new players, Bob Kelty and Dick Cartwright, both members of the frosh basketball team last winter, the frosh are rapidly rounding into form under the direction of Coach "Buzz" Howlett, despite poor weather conditions.

Howlett stated that the defense was far ahead of the defense on the club as good hitters are lacking. Improvement of the latter is expected soon, however.

South Philadelphia Catholic High School may be added to the schedule consisting now of two games with Brown Prep and two with Ursinus Frosh. The Pirates have asked for a date and the matter is under consideration.

MURALS CALLED

For the second straight week the intramural baseball games met the fate of cancellation last Sunday. This time the postponement was due to rain, a little better than the snow reason given the previous week.

Schedule for next Sunday: 10:30 A. M.—Mendel vs. Austin; 1100 P. M.—Fedigan vs. Alumni.

HERE and THERE

By JIM HAUGHTON

RIGHT about now is the appropriate season to gaze through seed catalogs, price the newest sarongs or even placidly listen to a Brooklynite about the praises of those rickety Dodgers.

It isn't the least bit suitable to discuss schedules because that's one topic which, no matter how much a person may think he knows about it, the inside office knows more.

Jim Haughton

Yet a gent wearing the initials G. J. S., who supports the pillar "Now Look" in the Temple ..News, all but forces us to bring the subject to the floor. He laments the fact that for two schools like Temple and Villanova who are supposed to be athletic rivals there is very little rivalry, except in baseball and football.

He says: "Whether or not Villanova has other teams besides varsity sports we do not know, but if they do, we can't see why they haven't played us. We sincerely hope that in the future we will be able to meet our rivals in more than two sports because competition in two sports is not competition to us."

Now Mr. G. J. S. has hit the nail right on the head. This subject has been on the stand for quite a time. But, as we said, one just can't be sure of what he says on the subject. Yet we'll try and aid the cause. Or maybe just make it deeper.

Yes, we have a few teams besides the varsity squad to represent our institution. I'm afraid the gent doesn't read the papers carefully or he would have read of our swimming, golf, tennis, and formerly boxing, squads. And the local authorities are more than anxious to schedule the Broad St. boys, having sanctioned the scheduling of them in almost all minor sports.

The golf team, for instance, taking cognizance of this, dispatched two letters to the city folks, but it was all in vain. First, they said they weren't sure they were going to have a golf team. Then, when they decided to frolic on the links, politely replied to the second request with "Sorry, but the schedule is filled."

Swimming also brought the same plight. The team manager sent a request for a match way back last Spring and didn't get much satisfaction. Again in the fall he requested a match but it was useless.

Temple is much stronger than the 'Cats in the minor sports and should find no trouble in coming out on top because they have much the larger student body to pick from.

Basketball seems to provide much material for the issue. The Owls play in Convention Hall; we don't. And won't. The local authorities feeling they can do better by engaging in court wars at the Field House. Temple being dependent upon double-header ball can't see the use of playing otherwise. If both these things could be adjusted and the games played in Mitten Hall or the Field House all would be fine.

Why such conditions exist we don't know. Probably both schools are at fault. Thus, it's hard to blame either. Yet why aren't the conditions rectified?

For a good span of years the Owls-Cats rivalry existed on a firm foundation, then suddenly hit a snag. Each year when the grid squads go to wars reams of copy are written about the intense rivalry, yet it is limited to two sports. Other famed rivalries like Lehigh-Lafayette, Fordham-N. Y. Y., etc., continue pleasantly in almost all sports, even chess.

It's a funny thing, but mention of Villanova or Temple among students of both schools is like rubbing against a sharp knife. There is just something — something which is hard to put on paper — which creates a barrier between the two. Yet this shouldn't be so. Both schools have fine records and we honestly believe there is no wrong intent on either side. Yet things are in a bit of a dither and something must be done about it.

Why not get together and arrange a complete program covering every sport possible, regardless of whether records want to be protected? Let's have a rivalry that stands on a permanent foundation. It will help both Temple and Villanova.

SPRING RIVALS

St. John's University, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is one of the most prolific rivals for Villanova spring sports. The Cats and Redmen meet in baseball, tennis, golf, and in freshman track at the Penn Relays.

N. Y. U. Scrimmage May Be Held Sat.

If New York University will accede to the wishes of Coach Clipper Smith the Villanova-N. Y. U. scrimmage, rained off last Saturday's sport card, will be played this Saturday afternoon at the Villanova stadium. Acceptance from N. Y. U. has not yet been received.

Spring practice for the Wildcats has been almost nil lately due to the weather, although they did manage to get in a few licks yesterday afternoon.

sumed the position of professor of physics at the University of Berlin.

A brilliant scientist, he has held visiting professorships in many of the outstanding European universities. Frequently he has traveled to the United States to conduct lectures in our American universities. Presently he is delivering the Baker lectures at Cornell University.

His achievements have included some noted papers on the question of molecular construction. He visualizes the unison of scientific principles in the form of physiochemistry.

Evidence of his qualification for the award are the innumerable prizes that have been awarded to him. In 1936, he received the Nobel Prize for chemistry. Other medals he has won include the Rumford, Faraday, Lorentz, and Franklin awards. Honorary degrees have been accorded him by the Universities of Oxford, Liege, Bruxelles, Sofia, and Harvard.

The Mendel Award Committee is also composed of Rev. A. Caffrey, O.S.A., M.A., Rev. John H. Crawford, O.S.A., M.S., Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., Ph., D., and Rev. John F. Hammond, O.S.A., M.A.

FROSH DEBATERS ACTIVE

Villanova's freshman debating team will engage the University of Pennsylvania's freshmen this afternoon at 4:00 P. M. in Simpson hall. Supporting the affirmative of the "isolation" resolution will be Loring Jones, Edward Borden and Thomas Muraski.

The team will engage the Rosemont freshmen team on Thursday, May 2, at Rosemont. Arrangements are being made for the final debate of the present season with Immaculata College.

SONICS SPEECH

"Ultrasonics," he stated, is that branch of physics which deals with sound vibrations whose frequency is so high as to be imperceptible to the human ear."

Fr. Crawford went on to point cut that, though they may be produced by such means as Dalton's whistle or by the electric spark, they are for all practical purposes produced by the magnetic and electric methods.

The publication exhibit will display the VILLANOVAN, the Belle Air, the Mendel "Bulletin," and the Villanova "Engineer," the four student journalistic orks appearing on the campus. The work and materials that are used in their make-up will be shown.

Twenty-five famous paintings, in actual-size reproductions, will be exhibited under the auspices of the Fine Arts Department in their "Contrast Show." This exhibit will be housed in Simpson hall at the conclusion of Open House and will remain there during the greater part of May.

Through unique charts, the Social Science Department will analyze the population trend and will explain the numerous seminar activities through graphical representation. An exhibit pertinent to its field will be set up by the History Department.

The plans for Open House, while well underway, are not finally settled; much work still remains to be done to put the affair into final shape for public showing.

STAFF MEETING

There will be a meeting of the entire VILLANOVAN staff today at 1:00 P. M. in room 119, Mendel hall.

SENIOR COUNCILMEN INAUGURATE FUNDS DRIVE FOR LIBRARY

Contributions To Be Solicited by Disposal of Colored Photographs of Campus Scenes

ALUMNI TO COLLABORATE

By HOWARD A. McCALL
(See Page Three)

Plans for a drive to obtain funds for the construction of a new building housing the college library have been drawn up and will be put into active operation at the beginning of Junior Week.

In view of the continued increase in the number of volumes contained in the library and the need for larger and better working quarters, a fact long realized by the administration and the alumni, the Student Council has determined to commence the long-pending fund drive.

The alumni, in collaboration with the undergraduates, also will shortly commence a parallel program. They will announce their plans in the next issue of their quarterly, the Villanova "Alumnus."

From Students

Both groups will be working to fill a need that has been increasingly more apparent as the volume of the library steadily increases beyond the possible capacities of the present system. The fact that this drive for funds is coming from the general student body enhances the fact that such plans for extension of indispensable library services are essential. The students realize the growing need, and their answer is the current drive.

As the means to this end the seniors in the Student Council have chosen pictures of various campus scenes in natural colors as an added incentive to the growth of the fund. There are on hand at the present a stock of three such scenes prepared for use in the campaign. Council members will be in charge of the dispensation of these and handle all the contributions issuing from the sale of the pictures.

Photos Valuable

J. Bradley McManus, Student Council chairman, has this to say: "The pictures in themselves are worth several dollars, all considerations of the value of the library fund being excluded. They have been specially prepared with all the natural beauty of the campus being captured and are fit remind-

MALKIN BECOMES V.-PRES. IN CHEM GROUP'S RUN-OFF

Hyman Malkin, junior engineer, became Vice - President of the Chemical Society as a result of a second election held last Wednesday. The second ballot was necessitated when the first resulted in a tie betwen the newly-elected officer and John J. Madison.

The juniors and seniors of the Society journeyed to the Scott Manufacturing Company in Chester, last week, where they witnessed the various processes connected with the manufacture of paper.

The junior members of the Society concluded their schedule of inspection trips with this outing. The seniors will make their final trip to the American Link Belt Company. The date has not as yet been decided.

SKELLY IS AIEE SPEAKER

At the next regular meeting of the Villanova Branch of the American Institute Of Electrical Engineers, John Joseph Skelly, junior student in electrical engineering, will present a talk entitled "Electrical Switchgear Equipment." Also a report on recent developments in the electrical world will be made by Laurie P. Ventry.

Hugh J. Boyle has been appointed chairman of the program committee. He has promised a varied and interesting program for the near future.

PRESIDENT CONFERS MERIT AWARDS AT MEETING TOMORROW

Outstanding Student Achievement Officially Recognized by Certificate Presentation

Annual "Merit Awards" will be distributed tomorrow morning, May 1, at 11:30 A. M. in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium. A general assembly of the student body and faculty will be held; every student is expected to attend unless otherwise excused by the Dean.

Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president, will preside over the meeting. Opening prayer will be said by him to be followed by remarks from Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice-president. The conferral of the awards will be made by the president.

Following this, the student body will sing "Hail Villanova" and Fr. Albers will give a brief address. The singing of the "Alma Mater" will conclude the exercises at approximately 12:30 P. M.

Recipients of these awards must be worthy of merit evidenced by their effective co-operation in extra-curricular activities and must likewise enjoy good standing. The latter pertains to academic, chapel, and disciplinary records.

This recognition of outstanding student achievement was inaugurated in the school year of 1933-34 and since has proved very popular.

As a consequence of the meeting, the lunch hour in the dining hall and the Pie Shop will be from 12:30 P. M. until 1:30 P. M.

SPANISH CLUB HAS 1ST ANNUAL DINNER

Ardolino and Mudafort Receive Awards for Submitting Best Contest Composition

Andrew Ardolino, freshman in the science school, received a complete collection of Cervantes' "Novelas Ejenmplaies" for the best poem written on the Spanish author, Miguel de Cervantes. Rafael Mudafort, freshman science, was awarded a medal and diploma for submitting the best theme on the life of Cervantes. Both presentations were made by the Spanish Club at the first dinner in its history. The site was Benedict Hall in Philadelphia.

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., Club Moderator, made the presentation after both recipients read their respective winning works, and spoke to the group at some length.

Study Temperament

In his speech Fr. Lozano urged the members of the Spanish Club to study the psychology and feelings, the customs and traditions of the Spanish speaking peoples in addition to learning the mechanics of speaking and reading Spanish. "In this manner and only this manner," he said, "can such societies as the Pan-American Union, which hopes to foster better relations between the United States and the Spanish-speaking, South American countries, hope to accomplish its purpose."

It is the nature of the Spanish people, Fr. Lozano continued, to hate dictatorships. They do not look upon Franco as a dictator but as the father of his country, much the same as we revere George Washington. "Franco is first in war, first in peace and first in his countrymen's hearts," Fr. explained.

After the dinner a feature-length film of authentic Spanish War scenes was shown. This picture, entitled "Spain in Arms," cost the lives of three cameramen in the filming.

'Medicos' To Hold Annual Field Trip; Contests Featured

Buses Leave Mendel at 12:30 Today; Committee Lists Attractive Menu

The science school's Second Annual Field Trip, sponsored by the senior class, will begin promptly at 12:30 P. M. today. Buses will leave Mendel hall. All students are invited to attend.

An attractive schedule of events has been arranged for the participants. Following the collection of local fauna and flora, under the supervision of Dr. McClain, there will be a three-legged race; a frog race for freshmen and sophomores; a wood sawing contest for juniors and seniors; a pie eating contest in which each class will be permitted one entry; and a soft ball game between the pre-medical and pre-dental students.

Another feature attraction which is included on the program is a "Gaelic Hurling Contest." This last-mentioned event will be under the direction of Father O'Leary.

At the conclusion of this program, food will be served. The following is the menu of courses as it appears on the program: Pabulum & Media (for embryonic scientists), Ozone Appetizer (unlimited quantity), Coney Island Steaks (plus), Wheat Blanket Coverings (18 inches maximum portion), Bostonian Delight (1,000 per person), and Special Java (brewed by Prof. Lamberti).

The direct management of the affair is being handled by a committee of twelve, three representatives from each of the four classes.

DEBYE DINNER FRIDAY

Dr. J. W. Debye, who at present is giving the Baker series of lectures at Cornell University, will be the guest of honor at the testimonial dinner, Friday night, at which he will be presented with the Mendel Medal. This annual presentation will be made by the Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., Villanova's President. It has ben awarded to an outstanding Catholic scientist for the past eleven years.

Little Flower High School Becomes City Headquarters; 108 Courses Offered

The Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Ph. D., Dean of the Summer School, has announced that those summer-session courses usually held at Hallahan High School, Philadelphia, will given this year at Little Flower Catholic High School, 10th and Lycoming Sts., Philadelphia, since Hallahan High will be temporarily closed for repairs. However, the majority of the 108 courses will be held on the campus as in former years.

Registration for the courses given in Philadelphia will be held Saturday, June 22 from 9:00 A. M. to 12 Noon at Little Flower High. Those intending to take courses on the campus will register Tuesday and Wednesday, June 25 and 26, from 9:00 A. M. to 4:00 P. M. at Villanova.

Classes at Little Flower Catholic High will begin Monday, June 24, at 8:30 A. M., and will be conducted six days each week. Classes at Villanova will commence Thursday, June 27, at 9:30 A. M. after opening exercises in the College Chapel. The Summer School term will last six weeks, ending with commencement at Villanova on Saturday, August 3.

These summer session courses are designed to meet the requirements of members of Catholic teaching Sisterhoods and Brotherhoods, regular students who wish to make up deficiencies or take advanced courses, school teachers, nurses, librarians, graduate students, and special students.

The total number enrolled in the Summer Schol last year was 1,087. Villanova has held these summer courses on the campus since 1918

JUNIORS ELECT LATER

William Howlett, Commerce and Finance student, received the presidency of the Class of 1942 in the balloting yesterday.

John Kirchner, a chemical engineer, was voted Vice-president. George Gabuzda, likewise a chemical engineer, became Secretary, and Andrew Melton was re-elected to the treasuryship.

William Hooper, Thomas Sheehy, both of whom are sciencemen, and Thomas McKimmey, artsman and president of the Class last year, were elected as class representatives to the Student Council.

Howlett is well-known as an athlete in Villanova's major sports. He was a utility quarterback on last year's varsity football team. As a baseball pitcher Howlett has so far won the only game he has pitched this year, that of Gettysburg. In the scholastic field he has at each marking period been quite high in the ratings.

The new president graduated from Roman Catholic High School, Philadelphia, in 1938. Here he was All-Catholic in both football and basketball. Howlett's brother "Buzz," graduates this year from Villanova and also is a winner of the Varsity "V."

OPEN HOUSE SHOWS PORTRAIT BY EAKINS

Painting of Fr. Fedigan Will Be Feature of 'Contrast Show'

A portrait of Rev. John J. Fedigan, O. S. A., the seventh president of Villanova College, painted by the famous American painter, Thomas Eakins, will be exhibited for the first time since its disappearance in the Monastery fire of 1931 at Open House.

The portrait was lost for quite some time and finally was found the attic of one of the campus buildings. It is a good example of the realistic potrayal of character for which Eakins is famous.

The full length canvas is over six feet high by four feet wide and shows Fr. Fedigan holding a picture of the original college and monastery buildings which he was instrumental in building. It is dated by Eakins as 1902, a time when he was painting many portraits of personages in the Philadelphia area.

Eakins lived in Philadelphia and painted famous people, sporting scenes, prize fights, rowing, hunting, and hospital scenes, and above all, portraits which are remarkable for their ruthlessly honest penetration of character. Though grossly underestimated as an artist during his lifetime, his integrity has been an inspiration to many American painters during recent years.

Fr. Fedigan was born in Ireland on April 27, 1842. He studied at St. Mary's in Wilmington, Del., and Ghent, Belgium. Ordained a priest in Philadelphia on Oct. 24, 1868, he served as a curate at Cambridge, Greenwich, and Carthage, N. Y.

In 1879 he was appointed president of Villanova College. He later became Provincial of the Augustinians in America and, under his supervision, the main college and monastery buildings at Villanova were completed; these have since been destroyed by fire.

This original painting is the feature of the "Contrast Show" at Open House; it will include twelve groups of contrasting paintings demonstrating the technique and methods of the Renaissance painters as compared with those of the Modernistic painters.

A Toast To 'Forgotten Man' Dooley

By ROBERT J. McINTYRE

HEAR YE, HEAR YE, this is the story of Villanova's Forgotten Man. Over a week ago the Belle Masque Society presented their annual show, George M. Cohan's "The Tavern." Everyone who saw the show agreed that it was one of the best, if not THE best ever produced at Villanova.

There were plaudits for all members of the cast. There is even talk of a screen test for one of the female leads. Although everyone noticed that the scenery seemed very authentic they promptly forgot about it in their interest in the show. Ah! but behind that beautiful and exact set lies a story. A story of hard work, day and night for several months before the gala opening night. Who is this man who labored hard and long building the most complete and authentic set ever used in a Belle Masque show? None other than Robert Dooley, the stage manager, sophomore commerce student, who hails from Flushing, Long Island.

Bob has always had a great interest in the mechanical end of the stage, and upon coming to Villanova he proceeded to suit his interest to the surroundings. It was he who was chiefly responsible for the attractive set used in last year's "Room Service." This year he received his chance to construct a larger and more difficult set. How well he made good can be answered by all who witnessed the play.

So to all and sundry let us hope that he will be in charge of constructing the set for next year's show. And now let's have a long cheer for Bob Dooley, Villanova's Forgotten Man.

Yours For The Asking

MAY in all the beauty of the verdure and the blossoms is, in a rational sense, comparable to the exquisite beauty of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the Mother of God.

This beauteous month, in the midst of the budding warmth, is particularly dedicated to Mary by the Church. As she is the patroness of our great country we should confide in her our troubles and desires, especially so during this month when she will be most generous with her favors.

In the center our expansive campus is a grotto, constructed in her honor where one may go and pray in the silence and coolness of a rock-built shrine.

Would it be over-burdening to ask each student to attempt a daily visit to her blossom-filled altar? Many spiritual and temporal bouquets will be distributed by her merely for the asking.

More Power to Them

THE RECENT action of Student Council, in increasing the power of the Orientation Committee over members of each year's incoming freshman students by means of an enforcement amendment to the orientation program, has been approved by the faculty.

With its increased powers, the Orientation Committee will have authority during the period of orientation to disbar any member of the freshman class from participation in any recognized extra-curricular activity during the first year in which said student is at Villanova. This disbarment pertains to fraternities, publications, class offices, etc.

The Orientation Committee will now be in a better position to eliminate the flagrant disregard of freshmen duties that has been so much in evidence the last two years. The open violation of the "no smoking" rule for freshmen will be more easily corrected. The "Hello Habit", which has been noticeable by its absence among freshmen students during their period of orientation, should now become a reality.

Friction between freshmen and the Orientation Committee can be eliminated and the orientation program, which is planned weeks ahead of time, facilitated. This paves the way to make the wearing of the traditional "regs" a potent means of creating a real fraternal spirit among the freshman students and a new spirit of co-operation with the upper classmen and the faculty. Friendships among the students may now more easily be formed that will make our collegiate days even more memorable.

Unintentional Injury

MR. ROOSEVELT'S proclamation applying the provisions of the Neutrality Act to the warfare in Norway points to a broadening of views on the part of the Chief Executive. This is the first instance in recent years that the president of his own initiative has announced as existing a state of war when neither of the belligerent nations has actually declared war.

With the advent of World War II all the principles of international law have been discarded as antiquated by most of the European powers, and with this throwing down of the old went the idea that one country should declare war on another before hostilities begin. It is about time that Washington was convinced that with reference to incidents pertinent to the present precedent and tradition can not be applied; on the other hand the means expedient to the moment must be used.

It is deplorable that a peace-loving nation such as Norway must suffer the brutal consequences of the strict Cash and Carry Clause since they are now in no position to profit by it, but in the greater interest of American neutrality and the prevention of our needless entanglement in the European conflict Americans must in all fairness condone the president's proclamation.

We would like to add one word, however, and that is with reference to the "unofficial War" in the Far East. This would be the proper time for the White House to make official moves with regard to clarification of our neutrality policy there. It now has a precedent upon which to base its assertions.

Objective Peace

IN THE college chapel on next Thursday morning at 7:15, Fr. Stanford will celebrate a special Mass for Peace in the name of Villanova students. This is something concrete in behalf of that much bandied about state of affairs, Peace. By this act of worship to the Prince of Peace the true perspective of the matter is held. Peace is rightfully an objective, something to be aimed at and attained, not just a means to something trivial, not just an excuse for having a conference of many thousands, no matter how dramatic and pretty the speeches may be. Peace is a real objective, not a flurry of frothy nouns and verbs. And what could be more in keeping with this idea than the perfect sacrifice of the Catholic Church, the Holy Mass, in behalf of Peace? Bear this in mind at Thursday's Mass, and lend yourself completely to the offering of this sacrifice for the return of Peace.

FACULTY COMMENTS

Action That Is Catholic Through Use Of Libraries

Catholics Are Encouraged Primarily to Use Public Library Facilities

By DANIEL P. FALVEY, O. S. A., A. B.
Professor, Library Science; Acting Librarian

DURING the past few years Catholic Action has revived Catholic lending libraries because of the interest created for Catholic literature. In the past many parishes had their own lending libraries of devotional books. Now these books are frequently preserved as historical relics, as they give very little evidence of being used. However, the libraries of this new movement are not being limited to devotional books, but they include all fields of human interest and, therefore, the books are being used. These new libraries are producing astounding effects insofar as Catholics are becoming acquainted with Catholic literature and the pleasure to be derived from reading good books. The end or purpose of these libraries is a noble and praiseworthy one, but is the means or manner just as effective? It seems possible that the same objectives could be obtained by encouraging Catholics to use the public libraries and then to establish study clubs or book clubs for the stimulation and promotion of reading Catholic literature from this common source.

Unburden Catholics

This last suggestion would seem to obtain the same effects through a more useful community enterprise. At the present time the conscientious Catholic is already carrying a capacity load in supporting public and parochial shools, the upkeep of the parish, the local charities and foreign missions, without taking upon himself the purchase of books and their administration that can more adequately be provided by the public libraries.

The librarians in the vast majority of our public libraries are very sincere in their function as public servants. They are eager to know the needs and wishes of their communities. Many of them have made surveys of their localities seeking to determine the reading habits and reading levels of their public. Although many of the public libraries were constructed by donations or grants by individuals, nevertheless they are supported from public funds. The librarian's duty is to spend these funds in serving the community. If a sufficient number of citizens request a Catholic book and the librarian knows that the book will be used, there is a good chance that the book will be purchased. However, if only a few people request a book, or if a book does not have a good circulation among the people of the locality, very likely it will not be acceptable to the public libraries. After the book has been placed in the library a demand must be created by giving publicity to the book through a book club or a study club.

Efficient Model

The July, '39, issue of "Columbia" mentions that the public library at Watertown, Mass., assisted the local members of the Knights of Columbus by compiling data on the early history of the Catholic Church in Watertown, Mass., and the librarian also arranged a bibliography of available books on Communism. The public library at Concord, N. H., has encouraged Catholics to present a list of books they would like to have in the library. It seems that this is action to be adopted by other localities. Recently the public library in a city of over 50,000 people published a list of new books added to the library. This list included at least fifteen books pertaining to religion and only one of these had a bearing on the Catholic point of view. This occurred in a city where 60 or 65 per cent of the population is Catholic. It seems hard to blame the librarian of that community; rather the fault should be attributed to the Catholics themselves for not taking a proper community interest in themselves.

Sound Reasons

The co-operation of the public library in this matter of books seems to be desirable for many reasons. Perhaps the first is the fact that Catholics would be relieved of the purchase and administration of the books. Once the books are in the library, and if they are used by Catholics, there is a great possibility that others who are not Catholics may desire to read these same books, since curiosity is a great factor in getting people to do things. Moreover, Catholics themselves might find other good books in the library. Another fact not insignificant is that the activities of the Catholics would be recognized and the community would be conscious of their presence.

Here at Villanova the Book Club has inaugurated an action that is Catholic in regard to literature and current events. The members have begun to index two Catholic newspapers, "The Tablet" of Brooklyn and the "Catholic Herald" from London. This activity has demonstrated its worth to the members of the club both for the information they absorb and for the practice they receive in indexing. The index cards are to be preserved in the library and made available to the student body for term papers and current events. It is hoped that this service will be at the disposal of Catholics and others in this locality and especially of service to the future research scholars. These few instances illustrate Catholic action through the library.

Turn On The Heat—Today!

IN spring a young man's fancy turns . . ." to everything but the work on hand.

Well, it is here again! Ah . . . yes, SPRING!

This year, however, this pleasantest of all the seasons has come like Byron's Assyrian and has dealt the unwary college lad a deadly blow, leaving in its wake chaos and havoc, where once the energy expended by industrious individuals rivaled the proverbial bee in the intensity of its activity.

Sweet Spring! Gentle Spring!

A long, drawn out yawn issuing from lips idly munching on a blade of grass, sighing — dreaming, dreaming — sighing like the dickens, "Oh, heck, I'll get on the ball tomorrow," and Joe College glories in the luxurious relaxation of the moment, spending his spare time looking for more spare time. Then he gets qualms of conscience and starts to work . . . figuring out how many weeks, days, hours, minutes, and even seconds are left to vacation time.

Glorious Spring!

But, really, there's no cause for alarm because the above is a normal reaction upon the first few days of pleasant weather. Now, however, that the enemy has come and we have tested his mettle, we can feel sure of overcoming spring fever with the cold analytical facts of textbook and study, or we fall ignominously on the field when the day of reckoning comes.

Get on the ball. Turn on the heat. In other words, let us not lay down on the job when the goal is within our grasp. Having come out of the fray victorious, imagine the joy of receiving at home, when we are vacationing, an all "A" report, or possibly "B."

REVOLUTIONARY ERA TIME OF FOUNDING

Growth Is Traced From St. Augustine's Church of 1796

THE history of Villanova's library is unique among college libraries insofar as its foundation was laid during the period immediately following the Revolution. Its origin goes back to the beginning of Old Saint Augustine's Church, which was started in 1796.

During the course of two score years, according to authorities, this library was developed into the best ecclesiastical library in the country.

The life of this library, however, was comparatively short lived, for on May 6, 1844, Saint Augustine's was consumed in flames. In an endeavor to salvage the library, some of the valuable tomes were thrown from the building to the street. Many of these books were destroyed, others were taken home by some of the crowd of idle watchers, and some remained in the possession of the Augustinians.

The estimated damage to the library alone was over $13,000. The remaining books and the few that were returned—even to this century some are being returned to the rightful owners — were transferred to Villanova College, which was opened two years previous, in 1842.

These books were shelved with the combined college and monastery libraries on the third floor of the old Rudolph Farmhouse, Old Saint Rita's hall. In 1874, the college library was separated and moved to the second floor of the newly-completed college wing, Alumni hall. Here it remained until the new group of monastic and college buildings were completed in 1901, when it was moved to a large room on the southeast corner of the second floor of Mendel hall.

During the same year, the monastery library was moved to the second floor of the monastery. There the brethren, during their leisure time, shelved, recatalogued, and classified this library during a period of ten years. The accession book of the monastery library is still preserved and shows that the library expanded from 3,643 books in 1884 to over 10,000 bound volumes in 1919.

When Austin hall was completed in 1925, the libraries were moved and again combined in the east wing of that building. The library grew rapidly so that it now occupies the entire first floor of this hall.

Due to a recent move, it is no longer confined to this building. Just a few weeks ago, it invaded the basement of the Commerce and Finance School and has established additional quarters there.

Authorities state that college libraries increase their circulation annually from a minimum of 3 percent to a maximum of 6 percent. Considering for a moment these statistics, we can imagine how much time will expire before this last retreat has fulfilled its purpose. . .and then? The current drive for a new building fund, if successful, will alone answer the question.

The success of this move is in our hands.

Grateful Acknowledgement

All the facts compiled and the articles written on this page are the work of HOWARD A. McCALL, sophomore in the School of Arts and VILLANOVAN staff member.

For the publication of authentic and authoritative material on the subject-matter treated in these articles a great deal of time and effort were required on the part of the compiler and author.

Building, Planned In 1935, Will Fill Long-Felt Need

SIMULTANEOUS with the founding of the college the Villanova library originated. Approximately a hundred years — a period marked with new and various sites necessitated by the ever expanding circulation—have passed, and now plans for a new library, designed by Alfred Panepinto, engineering class of '27, are in the process of being realized.

The plans for the proposed building, drawn in 1935, have already materialized in a miniature form. William M. Gorman, engineering instructor, and some of the students of that school have been working since last September on a model of the new library. It is now finished, and the result of their long efforts will be on display in the gymnasium during the Open House exhibit.

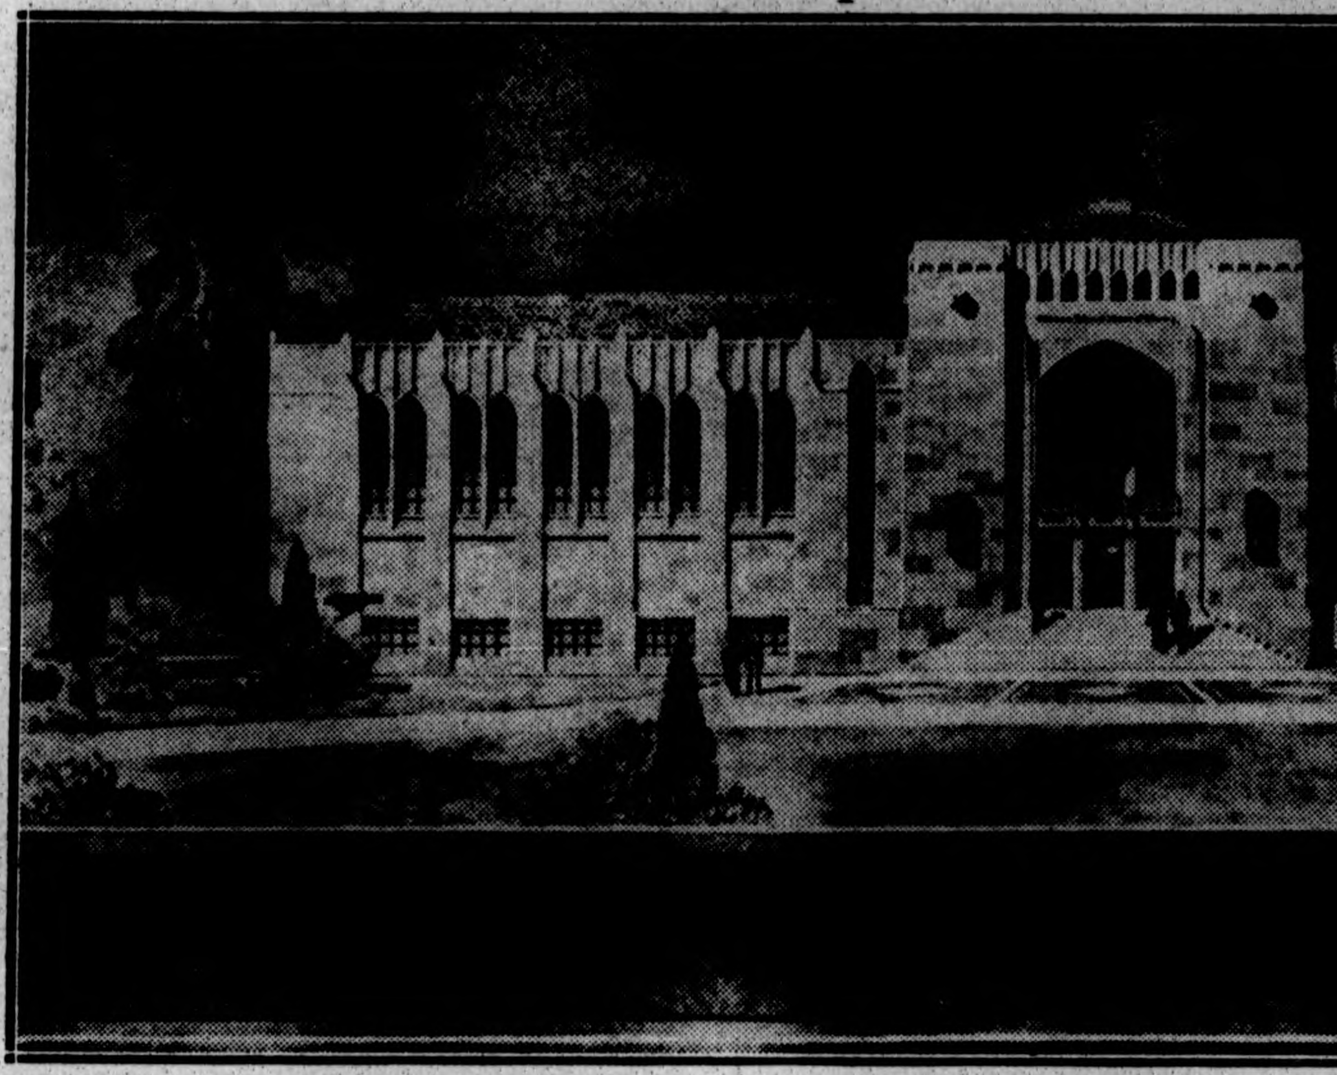
The detail of the present plan is Modern Collegiate Gothic in character and harmony with the latest building on the campus, the Monastery. The erection of a new library, an urgent need at present, will eliminate the dire lack of sufficient working room and save both time and effort.

Those familiar with the existing conditions fully realize the cramped and crowded quarters in Austin Hall. The stacks are filled to capacity; the building is itself small and scarcely adequate for the efficient operation of a college library; the storage rooms are bulging in every nook and corner; and the students already know that it takes a very small percentage of the total enrollment to make studying and research unbearable.

Only a few weeks ago the library, in its effort to make space for the books it has ready for circulation, played its last hand, and moved a large number of volumes to the Commerce and Finance basement.

With the prospect of soon erecting a construction that will remedy this deficiency, if the drive for a building fund for a new library is successful, we may some day in the near future possess at Villanova a library on a par with that of any college or university in the country.

To Grace Campus If Current Drive Is Successful



Letter Indicates Worth of Mark

THE Villanova College library recently made a valuable contribution to the Incunabula, a series of works up to 1500 A. D., by sending to the Annmary Brown Memorial the photostat of Jean Petit's printer's mark found in the library's copy of Bonaventure's "Breviloquim."

Below is a copy of the letter, which the librarian received from Frederick R. Goff expressing his appreciation:

April 4, 1940.

Thank you for sending the photostat of Jean Petit's printer's mark found in your edition of Bonaventure's "Breviloquim". . . .This appears to be the first state of Petit's third device which was used from May, 1498, to April, 1500. It would thus seem that this edition is a genuine incunable, although this edition is not described in the "Gesamtkatlog Der Wiegendrucke." We have been unable to locate any other copy.

(Signed) Frederick R. Goff.

THESES REMAIN ON FILE FOR STUDENT REFERENCE

THE names of the Villanova College alumni have not been effaced in the oblivion of time, nor has their work been forgotten and discarded, for the library has preserved their memory in the mass accumulation of theses which it has in its storage quarters.

Copies of all the theses presented to the college as partial fulfillment for a degree from Villanova are bound and on file in this building. A section of the main catalog marked "theses" contains the author and title entries for all these. Two copies of the majority of theses are in the library, and one of these may be taken out for a period of one week.

When Austin Hall was completed in 1925, the library established permanent location in this building, and it was in that year that the collection of these theses commenced. Since that date, every thesis has been deposited within its portals and, as a result, any member of the alumni can at any time visit and the library and see his thesis.

Insofar as each senior and graduate student is permitted to select his own subject and to treat any particular phase of the matter he decides upon, a wide and varied assortment of topics may be consulted in the thesis department.

The student body can thank both the alumni for supplying the college with this channel of information upon their graduation and the library for preserving and circulating this source of a general education.

Tax Petition, 1528, Is Now Translated

IN DECEMBER, 1528, a private document written by local authorities was presented to Charles V., King of Spain and Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. The purpose of this petition was to seek exemption from and the lowering of taxes.

This valuable manuscript, now in the possession of the college library, has been translated into modern Spanish and English by Jordan Olivari, class of 1938. It is only one of the rare manuscripts which will be on display at the Open House during Junior Week.

OPEN HOUSE EXHIBIT SHOWS RARE WORK

Texts, Manuscripts and Impressions Owned Were Printed as Early as 1481

A STORY very seldom, if ever, told around the Villanova campus is that one concerning the rare texts, manuscripts, and impressions, printed as early as 1481, which the college library now possesses.

If age and the scarcity of similar copies of these books, rich in literary content, can be accepted as standards for determining the worth of these medieval works, they are above commercial value.

The oldest printed book in the library is a Roman impression printed 459 years ago by Herolt. The book, bound in two volumes, is a series of expositions on Monastic legislation according to the rule of Saint Augustine written by Ambrose Coriolanus, a former Prior-General of the Augustinian Friars.

Another Roman print is the collected works, letters, poems, and treatises of John Anthom Campanus. The printer is Eucherius Silber (also Franck), but the type is Venetian, as is stated in the colophon. The year of the print is 1495.

A Bible, the Vulgate text, printed in Nurburg, Bavaria, in 1482 by Anton Koberger, one of the famous names of the early years of printing, has also been preserved. Though the type was set ten years before the discovery of America, the surface is still soft, white and smooth. Bound with the Old and New Testament is the text of a college or school handbook—a grammar and guide to the structure of the Latin language as it was studied and used in the schools of the fifteenth century.

Besides the above mentioned text book, the library has two editions of the famous Dictionary of Ambrose Calepini, the Vocabularium which was a recognized authority for the languages of Europe in the sixteenth and seventeenth century.

One impression was printed in Rome in 1570, and the other in Valse in 1582. The former gives the Vocabularium in five languages—Latin, Greek, French, Italian, and Spanish; the latter, in addition to the five languages of the earlier Roman print, has the vocabulary of Germany and Belgium.

All the ancient works in the library, however, have not been printed on paper, for the bibliotheca has many manuscripts on vellum and parchment. Foremost among these is the "Vitae Sanctorum," by James De Voraigne. The library's copy, written on parchment, contains 208 leaves and was at one time the possession of Pope Pius the Sixth.

Another manuscript codex, written by an unknown scribe of the fifteenth century, is on beautiful white vellum. The subject of this book is "Historic Deorum et Heroum." The initials are done in blue and gold. A third manuscript on white vellum is also the work of a fifteenth century writer, Treatises of Saint Augustine, namely, "De Dona Preservantial," "De Beata Vita," "De Predestinatione Sanctorum," and other short tracts form the subject.

The library also has a Babylonian Tablet written in Assyrian hieroglyphics up to 2000 B. C. These and many other rare and valuable works will be on display in the gymnasium during the Open House exhibit.

More Power to Them

THE RECENT action of Student Council, in increasing the power of the Orientation Committee over members of each year's incoming freshman students by means of an enforcement amendment to the orientation program, has been approved by the faculty.

With its increased powers, the Orientation Committee will have authority during the period of orientation to disbar any member of the freshman class from participation in any recognized extra-curricular activity during the first year in which said student is at Villanova. This disbarment pertains to fraternities, publications, class offices, etc.

The Orientation Committee will now be in a better position to eliminate the flagrant disregard of freshmen duties that has been so much in evidence the last two years. The open violation of the "no smoking" rule for freshmen will be more easily corrected. The "Hello Habit", which has been noticeable by its absence among freshmen students during their period of orientation, should now become a reality.

Friction between freshmen and the Orientation Committee can be eliminated and the orientation program, which is planned weeks ahead of time, facilitated. This paves the way to make the wearing of the traditional "regs" a potent means of creating a real fraternal spirit among the freshman students and a new spirit of co-operation with the upper classmen and the faculty. Friendships among the students may now more easily be formed that will make our collegiate days even more memorable.

Unintentional Injury

MR. ROOSEVELT'S proclamation applying the provisions of the Neutrality Act to the warfare in Norway points to a broadening of views on the part of the Chief Executive. This is the first instance in recent years that the president of his own initiative has announced as existing a state of war when neither of the belligerent nations has actually declared war.

With the advent of World War II all the principles of international law have been discarded as antiquated by most of the European powers, and with this throwing down of the old went the idea that one country should declare war on another before hostilities begin. It is about time that Washington was convinced that with reference to incidents pertinent to the present precedent and tradition can not be applied; on the other hand the means expedient to the moment must be used.

It is deplorable that a peace-loving nation such as Norway must suffer the brutal consequences of the strict Cash and Carry Clause since they are now in no position to profit by it, but in the greater interest of American neutrality and the prevention of our needless entanglement in the European conflict Americans must in all fairness condone the president's proclamation.

We would like to add one word, however, and that is with reference to the "unofficial War" in the Far East. This would be the proper time for the White House to make official moves with regard to clarification of our neutrality policy there. It now has a precedent upon which to base its assertions.

Objective Peace

IN THE college chapel on next Thursday morning at 7:15, Fr. Stanford will celebrate a special Mass for Peace in the name of Villanova students. This is something concrete in behalf of that much bandied about state of affairs, Peace. By this act of worship to the Prince of Peace the true perspective of the matter is held. Peace is rightfully an objective, something to be aimed at and attained, not just a means to something trivial, not just an excuse for having a conference of many thousands, no matter how dramatic and pretty the speeches may be. Peace is a real objective, not a flurry of frothy nouns and verbs. And what could be more in keeping with this idea than the perfect sacrifice of the Catholic Church, the Holy Mass, in behalf of Peace? Bear this in mind at Thursday's Mass, and lend yourself completely to the offering of this sacrifice for the return of Peace.

Action That Is Catholic Through Use Of Libraries

Catholics Are Encouraged Primarily to Use Public Library Facilities

By DANIEL P. FALVEY, O. S. A., A. B.
Professor, Library Science; Acting Librarian

DURING the past few years Catholic Action has revived Catholic lending libraries because of the interest created for Catholic literature. In the past many parishes had their own lending libraries of devotional books. Now these books are frequently preserved as historical relics, as they give very little evidence of being used. However, the libraries of this new movement are not being limited to devotional books, but they include all fields of human interest and, therefore, the books are being used. These new libraries are producing astounding effects insofar as Catholics are becoming acquainted with Catholic literature and the pleasure to be derived from reading good books. The end or purpose of these libraries is a noble and praiseworthy one, but is the means or manner just as effective? It seems possible that the same objectives could be obtained by encouraging Catholics to use the public libraries and then to establish study clubs or book clubs for the stimulation and promotion of reading Catholic literature from this common source.

Unburden Catholics

This last suggestion would seem to obtain the same effects through a more useful community enterprise. At the present time the conscientious Catholic is already carrying a capacity load in supporting public and parochial shools, the upkeep of the parish, the local charities and foreign missions, without taking upon himself the purchase of books and their administration that can more adequately be provided by the public libraries.

The librarians in the vast majority of our public libraries are very sincere in their function as public servants. They are eager to know the needs and wishes of their communities. Many of them have made surveys of their localities seeking to determine the reading habits and reading levels of their public. Although many of the public libraries were constructed by donations or grants by individuals, nevertheless they are supported from public funds. The librarian's duty is to spend these funds in serving the community. If a sufficient number of citizens request a Catholic book and the librarian knows that the book will be used, there is a good chance that the book will be purchased. However, if only a few people request a book, or if a book does not have a good circulation among the people of the locality, very likely it will not be acceptable to the public libraries. After the book has been placed in the library a demand must be created by giving publicity to the book through a book club or a study club.

Efficient Model

The July, '39, issue of "Columbia" mentions that the public library at Watertown, Mass., assisted the local members of the Knights of Columbus by compiling data on the early history of the Catholic Church in Watertown, Mass., and the librarian also arranged a bibliography of available books on Communism. The public library at Concord, N. H., has encouraged Catholics to present a list of books they would like to have in the library. It seems that this is action to be adopted by other localities. Recently the public library in a city of over 50,000 people published a list of new books added to the library. This list included at least fifteen books pertaining to religion and only one of these had a bearing on the Catholic point of view. This occurred in a city where 60 or 65 per cent of the population is Catholic. It seems hard to blame the librarian of that community; rather the fault should be attributed to the Catholics themselves for not taking a proper community interest in themselves.

Sound Reasons

The co-operation of the public library in this matter of books seems to be desirable for many reasons. Perhaps the first is the fact that Catholics would be relieved of the purchase and administration of the books. Once the books are in the library, and if they are used by Catholics, there is a great possibility that others who are not Catholics may desire to read these same books, since curiosity is a great factor in getting people to do things. Moreover, Catholics themselves might find other good books in the library. Another fact not insignificant is that the activities of the Catholics would be recognized and the community would be conscious of their presence.

Here at Villanova the Book Club has inaugurated an action that is Catholic in regard to literature and current events. The members have begun to index two Catholic newspapers, "The Tablet" of Brooklyn and the "Catholic Herald" from London. This activity has demonstrated its worth to the members of the club both for the information they absorb and for the practice they receive in indexing. The index cards are to be preserved in the library and made available to the student body for term papers and current events. It is hoped that this service will be at the disposal of Catholics and others in this locality and especially of service to the future research scholars. These few instances illustrate Catholic action through the library.

Turn On The Heat—Today!

IN spring a young man's fancy turns . . ." to everything but the work on hand.

Well, it is here again! Ah . . . yes, SPRING!

This year, however, this pleasantest of all the seasons has come like Byron's Assyrian and has dealt the unwary college lad a deadly blow, leaving in its wake chaos and havoc, where once the energy expended by industrious individuals rivaled the proverbial bee in the intensity of its activity.

Sweet Spring! Gentle Spring!

A long, drawn out yawn issuing from lips idly munching on a blade of grass, sighing — dreaming, dreaming — sighing like the dickens, "Oh, heck, I'll get on the ball tomorrow," and Joe College glories in the luxurious relaxation of the moment, spending his spare time looking for more spare time. Then he gets qualms of conscience and starts to work . . . figuring out how many weeks, days, hours, minutes, and even seconds are left to vacation time.

Glorious Spring!

But, really, there's no cause for alarm because the above is a normal reaction upon the first few days of pleasant weather. Now, however, that the enemy has come and we have tested his mettle, we can feel sure of overcoming spring fever with the cold analytical facts of textbook and study, or we fall ignominously on the field when the day of reckoning comes.

Get on the ball. Turn on the heat. In other words, let us not lay down on the job when the goal is within our grasp. Having come out of the fray victorious, imagine the joy of receiving at home, when we are vacationing, an all "A" report, or possibly "B."

Library's Service, History Justify Drive

REVOLUTIONARY ERA TIME OF FOUNDING

THE history of Villanova's library is unique among college libraries insofar as its foundation was laid during the period immediately following the Revolution. Its origin goes back to the beginning of Old Saint Augustine's church, which was started in 1796. During the course of two score years, according to authorities, this library was developed into the best ecclesiastical library in the country.

The life of this library, however, was comparatively short lived, for on May 6, 1844, Saint Augustine's was consumed in flames. In an endeavor to salvage the library, some of the valuable tomes were thrown from the building to the street. Many of these books were destroyed, others were taken home by some of the crowd of idle watchers, and some remained in the possession of the Augustinians.

The estimated damage to the library alone was over $13,000. The remaining books and the few that were returned—even to this century some are being returned to the rightful owners — were transferred to Villanova College, which was opened two years previous, in 1842.

These books were shelved with the combined college and monastery libraries on the third floor of the old Rudolph Farmhouse, Old Saint Rita's hall. In 1874, the college library was separated and moved to the second floor of the newly-completed college wing, Alumni hall. Here it remained until the new group of monastic and college buildings were completed in 1901, when it was moved to a large room on the southeast corner of the second floor of Mendel hall.

During the same year, the monastery library was moved to the second floor of the monastery. There the brethren, during their leisure time, shelved, recatalogued, and classified this library during a period of ten years. The accession book of the monastery library is still preserved and shows that the library expanded from 3,643 books in 1884 to over 10,000 bound volumes in 1919.

When Austin hall was completed in 1925, the libraries were moved and again combined in the east wing of that building. The library grew rapidly so that it now occupies the entire first floor of this hall.

Due to a recent move, it is no longer confined to this building. Just a few weeks ago, it invaded the basement of the Commerce and Finance School and has established additional quarters there.

Authorities state that college libraries increase their circulation annually from a minimum of 3 percent to a maximum of 6 percent. Considering for a moment these statistics, we can imagine how much time will expire before this last retreat has fulfilled its purpose. . .and then? The current drive for a new building fund, if successful, will alone answer the question.

The success of this move is in our hands.

Grateful Acknowledgement

All the facts compiled and the articles written on this page are the work of HOWARD A. McCALL, sophomore in the School of Arts and VILLANOVAN staff member. For the publication of authentic and authoritative material on the subject-matter treated in these articles a great deal of time and effort were required on the part of the compiler and author.

Building, Planned In 1935, Will Fill Long-Felt Need

SIMULTANEOUS with the founding of the college the Villanova library originated. Approximately a hundred years — a period marked with new and various sites necessitated by the ever expanding circulation—have passed, and now plans for a new library, designed by Alfred Panepinto, engineering class of '27, are in the process of being realized.

The plans for the proposed building, drawn in 1935, have already materialized in a miniature form. William M. Gorman, engineering instructor, and some of the students of that school have been working since last September on a model of the new library. It is now finished, and the result of their long efforts will be on display in the gymnasium during the Open House exhibit.

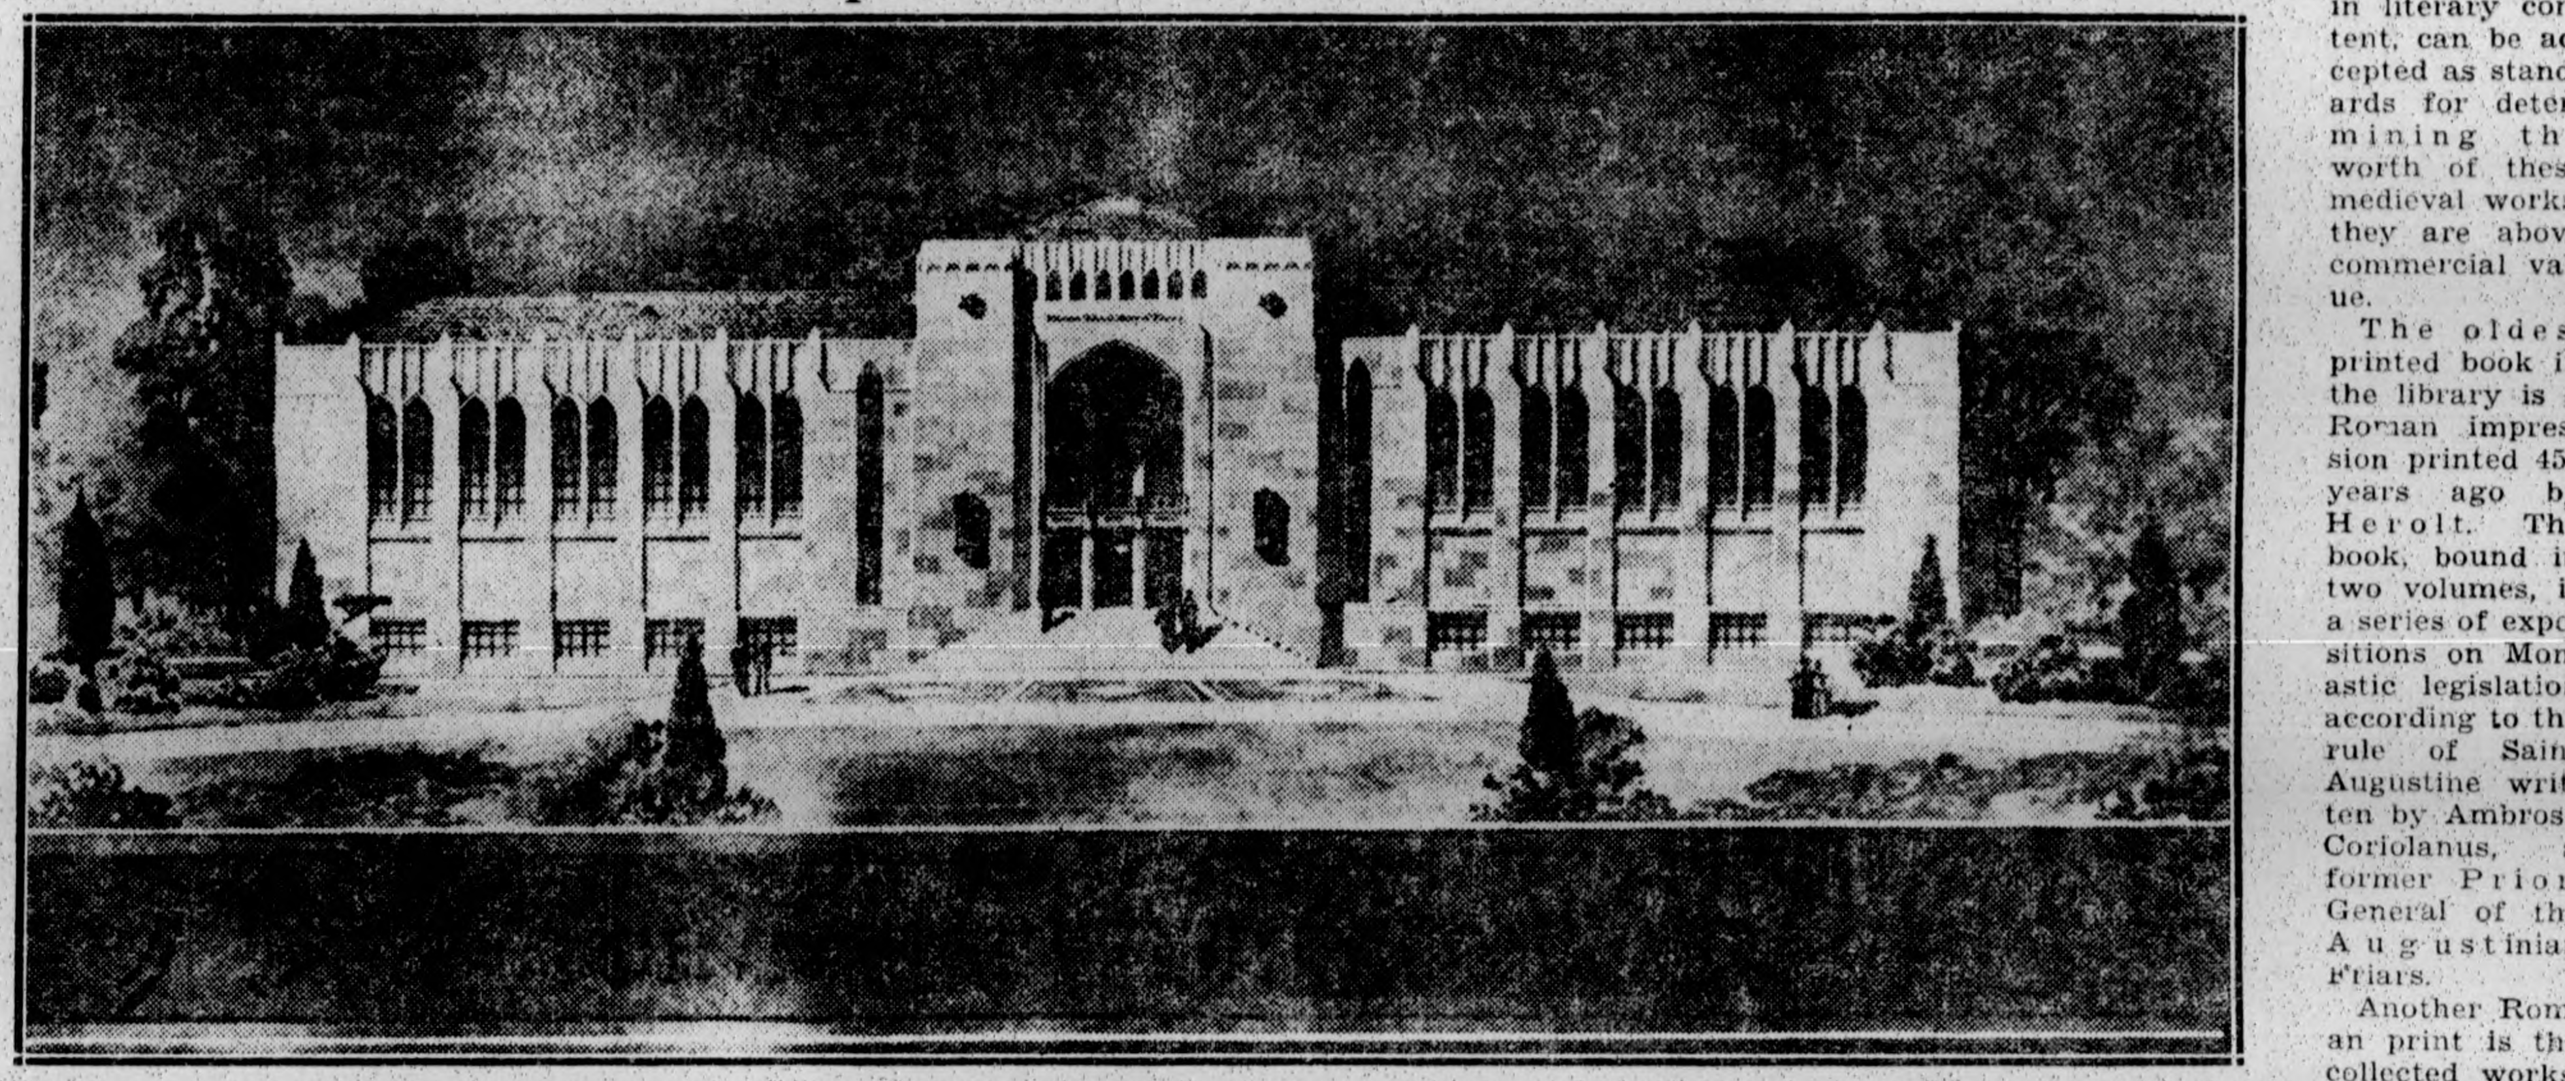
The detail of the present plan is Modern Collegiate Gothic in character and harmony with the latest building on the campus, the Monastery. The erection of a new library, an urgent need at present, will eliminate the dire lack of sufficient working room and save both time and effort.

Those familiar with the existing conditions fully realize the cramped and crowded quarters in Austin Hall. The stacks are filled to capacity; the building is itself small and scarcely adequate for the efficient operation of a college library; the storage rooms are bulging in every nook and corner; and the students already know that it takes a very small percentage of the total enrollment to make studying and research unbearable.

Only a few weeks ago the library, in its effort to make space for the books it has ready for circulation, played its last hand, and moved a large number of volumes to the Commerce and Finance basement.

With the prospect of soon erecting a construction that will remedy this deficiency, if the drive for a building fund for a new library is successful, we may some day in the near future possess at Villanova a library on a par with that of any college or university in the country.

To Grace Campus If Current Drive Is Successful



Letter Indicates Worth of Mark

THE Villanova College library recently made a valuable contribution to the Incunabula, a series of works up to 1500 A. D., by sending to the Annmary Brown Memorial the photostat of Jean Petit's printer's mark found in the library's copy of Bonaventure's "Breviloquim."

Below is a copy of the letter, which the librarian received from Frederick R. Goff expressing his appreciation:

April 4, 1940.

Thank you for sending the photostat of Jean Petit's printer's mark found in your edition of Bonaventure's "Breviloquim". . . . This appears to be the first state of Petit's third device which was used from May, 1498, to April, 1500. It would thus seem that this edition is a genuine incunable, although this edition is not described in the "Gesamtkatlog Der Wiegendrucke." We have been unable to locate any other copy.

(Signed) Frederick R. Goff.

THESES REMAIN ON FILE FOR STUDENT REFERENCE

THE names of the Villanova College alumni have not been effaced in the oblivion of time, nor has their work been forgotten and discarded, for the library has preserved their memory in the mass accumulation of theses which it has in its storage quarters.

Copies of all the theses presented to the college as partial fulfillment for a degree from Villanova are bound and on file in this building. A section of the main catalog marked "theses" contains the author and title entries for all these. Two copies of the majority of theses are in the library, and one of these may be taken out for a period of one week.

When Austin Hall was completed in 1925, the library established permanent location in this building, and it was in that year that the collection of these theses commenced. Since that date, every thesis has been deposited within its portals and, as a result, any member of the alumni can at any time visit and the library and see his thesis.

Insofar as each senior and graduate student is permitted to select his own subject and to treat any particular phase of the matter he decides upon, a wide and varied assortment of topics may be consulted in the thesis department.

The student body can thank both the alumni for supplying the college with this channel of information upon their graduation and the library for preserving and circulating this source of a general education.

Tax Petition, 1528, Is Now Translated

IN DECEMBER, 1528, a private document written by local authorities was presented to Charles V., King of Spain and Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. The purpose of this petition was to seek exemption from and the lowering of taxes.

This valuable manuscript, now in the possession of the college library, has been translated into modern Spanish and English by Jordan Olivari, class of 1938. It is only one of the rare manuscripts which will be on display at the Open House during Junior Week.

An Old Story

Texts, Manuscripts and Impressions Owned Were Printed as Early as 1481

A STORY very seldom, if ever, told around the Villanova campus is that one concerning the rare texts, manuscripts, and impressions, printed as early as 1481, which the college library now possesses.

If age and the scarcity of similar copies of these books, rich in literary content, can be accepted as standards for determining the worth of these medieval works, they are above commercial value.

The oldest printed book in the library is a Roman impression printed 459 years ago by Herolt. The book, bound in two volumes, is a series of expositions on Monastic legislation according to the rule of Saint Augustine written by Ambrose Coriolanus, a former Prior-General of the Augustinian Friars.

Another Roman print is the collected works, letters, poems, and treatises of John Anthom Campanus. The printer is Eucherius Silber (also Franck), but the type is Venetian, as is stated in the colophon. The year of the print is 1495.

A Bible, the Vulgate text, printed in Nurburg, Bavaria, in 1482 by Anton Koberger, one of the famous names of the early years of printing, has also een preserved. Though the type was set ten years before the discovery of America, the surface is still soft, white and smooth. Bound with the Old and New Testament is the text of a college or school handbook—a grammar and guide to the structure of the Latin language as it was studied and used in the schools of the fifteenth century.

Besides the above mentioned text book, the library has two editions of the famous Dictionary of Ambrose Calepini, the Vocabularium which was a recognized authority for the languages of Europe in the sixteenth and seventeenth century.

One impression was printed in Rome in 1570, and the other in Valse in 1582. The former gives the Vocabularium in five languages—Latin, Greek, French, Italian, and Spanish; the latter, in addition to the five languages of the earlier Roman print, also has the vocabulary of Germany and Belgium.

All the ancient works in the library, however, have not been printed on paper, for the bibliotheca has many manuscripts on vellum and parchment. Foremost among these is the "Vitae Sanctorum," by James De Voraigne. The library's copy, written on parchment, contains 208 leaves and was at one time the possession of Pope Pius the Sixth.

Another manuscript codex, written by an unknown scribe of the fifteenth century, is on beautiful white vellum. The subject of this book is "Historic Deorum et Herorum." The initials are done in blue and gold. A third manuscript on white vellum is also the work of a fifteenth century writer. Treatises of Saint Augustine, namely, "De Dona Preservantial," "De Beata Vita," "De Predestinatione Sanctorum," and other short tracts form the subject.

The library also has Babylonian Tablet written in Assyrian hieroglyphics up to 2000 B. C. These and many other rare and valuable works will be on display in the gymnasium during the Open House exhibit.

RESEARCH SEMINAR HEARS M. CAPUCCIO

Joseph Gambescia Scheduled to Make Next Paper Presentation

Last week's meeting was devoted to a paper presented by Matthew Capuccio, freshman science man, who spoke on the Life of the Termites.

"Life depends upon life," stated Capuccio, "and perhaps no better example can be given than that of the termite, who depends, for the vital life substance, upon the several animals which live in it and through whom the cellulose which the termite ingests is made assimilable. Should these minute, microscopic animals be removed from the termite, the latter would soon die of starvation, because its digestive system is so constructed as not to allow digestion and consequent assimilation of any cellulose consumed."

"Because of the peculiar and unique characteristic that the termite has, of ingesting cellulose," continued Capuccio, "millions of dollars worth of damage is suffered every year. An adequate means of control has as yet to be devised and it undoubtedly will serve to tax the ingenuity of many generations to come."

The meeting tomorrow will be devoted in the main to a paper to be presented by Joseph M. Gamgescia, entitle "Urinalysis." The lecture will include an explanation of the tests utilized in urinalysis, the substance present in abnormal urine, and their pathological significance.

L. K. D. FRATERNITY HOLDS ELECTIONS FOR 1940 - 41

Charles G. Martin, President of Lambda Kappa Delta, science fraternity, has announced that the annual election of officers will be held tomorrow, Wednesday, at 1:00 P. M. in room 112. All members must be present.

The following members have been nominated: for President, Joseph N. Santaniello, David G. Morse and Joseph B. Clarken; for Vice-president, Joseph C. Koch and Thomas F. Sheehy; for Treasurer, Natalino Di Petrillo, Robert Dugan, and James E. McCauley; for Secretary, Joseph M. Gambescia, and Joseph Turner; for Student Council, Joseph J. Camarda and Robert Kiley, and for Sergeant-at-Arms, Harry Goodman and Peter Yankauskas.

FIGURES PROVE EXPANSION

Statistics recently revealed by the college librarian, indicate that approximately 20,000 books have been added to the department during the past five years.

The computation released is as follows: From June, '35, to May, '36, 2800 books were added; from June of the same year to May of the following , 3472 books; from June, '37, to May, '38, 3753; from June, '38, to May of this year the amount, 10,000, is more than the sum of the former three years.

The library also receives close to three hundred periodicals. This group includes the principal newspapers and industrial, financial, social, classical, educational, political, religious and popular magazines and pamphlets.

NEWARK IS HOST TO ASME

The local chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will make an overnight trip to the Newark College of Engineering, Newark, N. J., on April 29 and 30 to attend the convention of all the Eastern Colleges in the national society. While there they intend to visit Newark Airport and also expect to inspect a mercury steam boiler at one of the plants in Newark.

John J. Seelaus, senior mechanical engineer, will present a paper entitled "Problems in Air Conditioning a Spinning Mill," at this convention.

At the last meeting of the Society elections were held. The presidential post went to Frederick A. Bergner. Edmond Hagan was elected Vice-President and Vincent J. Gordon was made Secretary-Treasurer.

DPE To Feast At Conestoga Mill

May 18 Date Chosen For Dinner; Members Elect Officers Tomorrow

Engrossed with the selection of nominees for next year's officer positions, at their meeting on Wednesday, April 24, the members of Delta Pi Epsilon took time out to choose the Conestoga Mill, Bryn Mawr, as the site of their dinner of May 18.

The names of those nominated for the six offices open were forwarded to the administration for approval; elections from the surviving candidates will be held tomorrow at 1:00 P. M. in the C & F Auditorium.

Along with this business, a long discussion was held on the type of fraternity pin or key to be selected for the members. Two distinct models were offered by a manufacturer; final selection was not made, as Morris J. Doyle, alumnus, forwarded the pin formerly worn. Though designs for a new pin are being drawn up, that of the old pin may be selected.

A committee, composed of Clifford J. Randolph, senior, John Pholeric, junior, and James Lattanza, sophomore, has been chosen to act on the question.

A Prom Prelude

Annual's Business Approaches 'Finis'

All photographs which were taken for the 1940 Belle Air will be on display in the Field House during Open House in connection with the Belle Air exhibit, Ed Jonik, Editor-in-Chief of the publication, has announced. These pictures will all be numbered in order to facilitate the placing of orders.

Also, every attempt is being made to have one or two completed copies of the yearbook back from the printer in time to be exhibited along with the pictures.

Except for the index and a few minor details, the work on the book by the staff has been completed. The printers have already run off the color process for the entire book, and several editions are now being run off in black print, which constitutes the final step in printing.

Editor Jonik has predicted that students may expect an early release of the annual.

ZEALOR MADE TREASURER

Murray P. Zealor, junior commerce student, was elected national treasurer of the National Federation of Catholic College Students at a regional conference held at Villanova last Thursday, April 25.

Delegates from eastern Catholic colleges met to elect officers for the ensuing year, to appoint committees, to discuss finances, and to approve the constitution. Gertrude Kirk of Dunbarton, was elected president.

Step Up-Meet The Band And- -Its Promenade Complement

By BILL MOWEN

GATHER around, students, let down your hair, and come get acquainted with one of the finest bands ni the land. Let's familiarize ourselves with a group of the most charming folks in the music business, the members of the Leighton Noble crew.

Leighton Noble's band is composed of twelve gentlemen and a lovely young lady. The Noble personnel: Saxes: (1) Bill Sperling, (2) Harry Morrisey, (3) Marty Epstein. Trumpets: 1) Paul Maged, (2) Bob Stephenson. Trombone: Gil Norman. Guitar: Bob Willms. Drums: Johnny Maurer. Bass and wind ass: Samp Epstein. Piano: Howard Anderson. Novachord: "Chick" Floyd. Leader and piano: Leighton Noble. Vocals; Miss Edith Caldwell, Bob Willms, Leighton, and the Noble Trio.

Subdued Swing

This is a clear-sounding, clean-looking outfit that plays pleasant dance music in fine taste. It's both easy to listen and to dance to, most commendable qualities when you judge an orchestra. When speaking on styles, Leighton says: "We specialize in sweet styling, although we naturally play subdued swing for versatility. Our arrangements are designed to please the musical desires of all our customers. People come to see our band primarily for the sweet music. Would it surprise you to know that most requests even those made of other band leaders, are made for the ballads?"

"Chick" Floyd and Leighton Nobel are partners. Edith Caldwell, "Chick," and Leighton can be described the the 'inseparable three' —they are always together! Edith hails from Birmingham, Alabama, "Chick" is a native of Morristown, New Jersey, and Leighton belongs to the "Never-Rains in Pasadena, California Club." Besides being exceedingly dexterous "these three" are personally the most amiable of people—the down-to-earth type we'd all like to know as friends.

Organist Floyd

That instrument which effects that pleasing background to Leighton Noble's music is operated by partner, arranger, and song writer Floyd. This electric organ-piano played by "Chick" is called a novachord; he says: "It is used in conjunction with our music. It sounds particularly good on the air and is used occasionally in intermissions. The volume and tone range of the novachord adds a fullness and an unusual quality to a rendition."

That far away look you will probably see in Edith Caldwell's eyes signifies that she is dreaming of that "cotton an' coon country" way down south. Just wait 'till you hear her sing: "Who's Your Little Who-zis?" and "South American Way"!

What will you have? A "Swing Classic," a ballad, a waltz, a tango, a beguine, a rhumba, a conga? Name it and the versatile Noble crew will satisfy your wants when it comes to any type of music.

After you have heard Leighton Noble and Company play and sing: "Liza," "Moonglow," "Tuxedo Junction," "Panama," "Indian Summer," "The Missouri Waltz," "Clap Yo' Hands," "A Night in the country" (An original tone-poem composed by "Chick" Floyd), "How Deep is the Ocean?", "Stompin' at the Savoy," "Begin the Beguine," "In an Eighteenth Century Drawing Room," "Say It," then you will appreciate what I have said.

And add to all the superlative points of Leighton Noble's music and output of his talented band's personnel the musically lucrative offerings of Van Alexander and his orchestra, mix well alternately for half hour periods over a span of five hours, and there is served a social to rival the best—the Villanova Junior Prom of May 10.

What? You want to hear a few tidbits about the Prom's second maestro, Van Alexander and Co.? Okay, Bill Toy, take it away! Folks, kindly follow this gentleman through the next two columns.

By WILLIAM J. TOY

A Suave, sleek looking individual ranging about six foot two inches above the ground and possessing a perennial smile and an amiable personality is the description adequately fitting our Junior Prom co-swing-master Van Alexander.

Originally starting in the business as an arranger, Van has worked his way up to leading his own outfit which seems to be headed toward the top of the heap. During his arranging days Van was connected with such notable bands as Chick Webb, Benny Goodman, Paul Whiteman, and others which may account for the fine arrangements played by him.

While not a large band in numbers, Van makes up for this in quality. A three man rhythm section combined with a four man sax team and three trumpets and a trombone is a good way to describe the band. Van and his boys feature the swing element in music and may be looked upon to take care of that score at the prom.

Sweet Tendencies

Although his orchestra has the reputation of being a swing band, Van revealed that he leaned toward the sweeter side of things. "Swing is all right, but I prefer mine sweet. On May 14 the boys and myself are moving into the Evergreen in New Jersey where we will broadcast ten or twelve times a week. While playing here we are going to change over to the sweet style."

When not worrying about his band Van finds time to write a few songs. Most of his efforts have been novelty numbers, and some have been quite popular. While arranging for the late Chick Webb, Van combined with Ella Fitzgerald towrite "A Tisket- A Tasket" which was a smash hit and has written numbers such as "Hot Dog Joe."

Charm Department

True, a band must have musicians, but it must also have charm. Phyllis Kenny supplies this department with a capital C. Not only possessing fine looks and a swell personality, Miss Kenny also sings which makes her quite an unusual vocalist. Unlike most band singers, Miss Kenny has a good voice and gets by on her talent and not her "looks" only.

After she had just completed a swell rendition of "Careless," Miss Kenny obliged us by giving out with some answers to our silly questions. When we asked her who she thought were the best singers with dance bands, Miss Kenny replied, "Thats' a pretty tough question since they're all good; but my favorites are Ray Eberlie and "Ginny" Simms. And as for bands, I would rate Tommy Dorsey tops on my list." And she couldn't go very far wrong on these choices, or could she?

For the past few weeks Alexander and his boys have been on a personal appearance tour with great success. Several colleges such as Mount Holyoke and Hood College of Maryland have been the scene of his music.

All Good

Van, a native of the New England States, has made his way up the ladder of success the hard way. Constantly rebuilding his band whenever an improvement is possible, Van has a well-balanced group who play well together. While there is no really standout performer, tenor man Harry Pilstein comes as close to this class as possible. His really fine "ad lib" choruses and good smooth playing stamp him as a saxophonist of high calibre. There are several other good soloists in the band, and Van himself makes a fine appearance while wielding the baton.

McLAUGHLIN PRAISED ON K. G. S. CHARTER WORK

Physics Club Plans Trip to Franklin Institute, Fels Planetarium

Recently Joseph M. Gambescia, President of the Physics Club, stated that the charter of the Society has finally been drawn up and now awaits the approval of the members.

"Francis McLaughlin has really accomplished a fine piece of work," said Gambescia, "and the cooperation of the entire committee contributed in great part to the final success of the plan. I also wish to thank publicly, in behalf of the charter committee, Father Crawford, without whose aid we would have been stranded on many occasions and who helped us so much in the finer points."

President Gambescia also wishes to announce that a trip to the Franklin Institute and Fels Planetarium will be taken this Thursday, May 2. Any student who wishes to accompany the Society is cordially welcomed. The group will meet outside the Institute at 1:00 P. M. For further details see the Science Bulletin Board.

At the meeting on May 8 a paper will be presented by Eugene Nelson, Sophomore science man, on Interplanetary Travel.

FR. STANFORD PRESIDES AT ASSOCIATION MEETING

The Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., Villanova's President was the presiding officer of the Friday, April 26, program of the regional conference of the Association of American Colleges, of which organization he is the president. The whole program was extended over a period of two days at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y.

During the afternoon session over which Fr. Stanford presided, "Social Security and the Colleges" was discussed by W. E. Weld, Wells College President; J. W. Lowes, Harvard University's Financial Vice-president; Clifton D. Gray, President of Bates College, and Brother Victor, president of Manhattan College.

"Program of the Arts" was discussed by Eric T. Clarke, Director of the Arts Program of the Association.

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

Trackmen Fail, Gridders Triumph In Tests

Sportorial

By Joe Barnes
Sports Editor

ED ALEX of Fordham University has been designated by those astute gentlemen known as the sporting writers of New York as the "most outstanding pitcher in college ranks today." Quite a broad statement is this—especially so when it is remembered that Ed is but a sophomore and has only hurled a few college games.

How good he may or may not be this column hasn't the slightest idea. In fact, we never heard his name mentioned until the startling dispatch came from New York that the demagogues of sport had picked their angel. We must, it is supposed, sit back and respect their word as canon law, because the New York sport writers are never wrong — at least that's what they told us.

But somehow or other we can't help but look back a long, long time ago (last year) to a time when those same astute gentlemen were singing the praises of another college pitcher, who also happened to be a Fordham lad. They told us of the prowess and unbeatable qualities of Hank Bowory, "the hurler so far ahead of other collegians that defeat was impossible for him to receive." Being good natured and gullible for anything but a tip on the horses we placed implicit faith in the impeccable words of the scribes. Sitting back awed at the words of the "big town" pen-pushers we groaned at the thought of Villanova's future meeting with the Rams. Our only hope was that the Fordham's would give us a break and keep Mr. Bowory on the bench.

Now Mr. Bowory hadn't lost a college game in three years so there was something else besides the words of the scribes to go on. It wasn't as if he were a "flash-in-the-pan" sophomore who had won a few ball games and possessed a name easy to fit into the headlines. Here was a gent that had borne the scribes' labels successfully for three years.. Woe betide us!

Came the day of the Fordham-Villanova game and the umpire pronounced Villanova's fate, so we thought, with the words "For Fordham, Bowory pitching."

Here was the unbeatable Bowory ready to slaughter another lamb on his way to stardom. But then something happened. It seemed that Villanova's batters didn't know that Bowory was red hot. It seems that they didn't read the papers regularly, the poor fellows. So the great Mr. Bowory found out real early in the ball game that his opposition wasn't standing up, taking their three cuts, and sitting down again.

In fact, the Villanova lads who don't read the New York papers, started getting into Mr. Bowory's britches early in the ball game and by the end of nine innings had amassed a healthy total of eleven hits and seven runs. Among the hits were four by Mike Lazorchak, who has not been called the "greatest hitter in college ball" by any scribe group. Three more were added by Jake Donaghue, a "mere sophomore stripling on the 'Cat club." And the 'Cat hits

BLUE BASEBALLERS AT LOYOLA TODAY, MEET FORDHAM SAT.

Rams Feature Soph Ed. Alex, "Best Pitcher in College Ball"

CATS SEEK SIXTH WIN

Having completed their current home stand, the Villanova College baseball squad takes to the road this week. Today and on Saturday the Cats play two of the six away games that are scheduled before they resume activities at home against Ursinus College on May 17.

This afternoon Doc Jacobs' men meet Loyola College in a game at Baltimore. Although it is a rule among baseball men to win today's game first and worry about future games when they arrive, still the boys cannot help but consider this game lightly and look ahead to Saturdays' fracas. For on Saturday afternoon the Wildcats journey up to New York City to meet the Fordham Ram in its own backyard on Rose Hill.

Top Ranking

Fordham has long been rated as one of the best college baseball teams in the country and this year once again they are running true to form.

So far this season the Rams have defeated Columbia, Georgetown, and Navy. Columbia is one of the favorites to win the Eastern Intercollegiate League title and Georgetown and Navy are both top flight teams, so it is quite evident that Fordham has more than nine men and a prayer. In losing a close game to Boston College and playing a tie with Seton Hall the Rams played good ball and with a few breaks both of these games might have been chalked up in the win column.

Three members of the first string backfield on Fordham's great grid team form the nucleus of Coach Jack Coffey's nine. Don Principe, batting in the cleanup slot and playing center field, is the

N. Y. U. Trounced By Cats In Football Scrimmage

Freshmen Star in Rout of New York Eleven; Blue Outscores Violets by Five Touchdowns Despite Absence of Basca

A double scrimmage highlighted the affairs of Spring practice the past week as Villanova engaged their trickery and power against two squads of seasoned strength, Franklin and Marshall and New York University.

Featured as one of New York's top teams of last fall, N. Y. U. proved to be the easier of the two opponents if official scoring had justified the outcome, for the Wildcats shoved over six scores while the Violets had one tally. Against F & M, Clipper Smith's squad were up against a team who upheld an unorthodox type of football, which proved hard to cope with.

Violets Score Once

The Saturday afternoon matinee against the Violet Squad, coached by Mal Stevens, employed Stevens system which could not show much effect in scoring strength. Although on one occasion, the Violets managed to score after a sustained drive of forty yards. Joe Frank went over for the score. Immediately after, Roxie Finn, Sophomore back for N. Y. U., was kicked in the head and then taken to the Bryn Mawr Hospital where his condition was reported that he might have sustained a possible fracture of the skull. Today he was reported as well enough to leave.

The Wildcats' scores were evenly matched throughout the tense drill. Gordon Shader accounted for two touchdowns on line plunges and repeatedly made made handsome gains on his powerhouse drives through center. Sal Rosatto, unveiled by Clipper as a successor to Andy Stopper, kicked, passed and ran with great skill and plunged over for one score. Joe Casale, frosh center, scored when he intercepted Fiel's pass ou the N. Y. U. twenty-five and slid through for six points. Steve Pritko, combining with Ad Worthington, set up the initial tally as Pritko took a thirty-yard pass from Worthington after a few minutes of play.

Honors for the longest run of the day went to Steve Eusko, running back, who wove and fought his way for eighty yards, skimming along the sidelines and then finally being brought down five yards from paydirt. Aided by some beautiful blocking, he set up the touchdown play which followed when Shader scored on a plunge.

Four Quarterbacks

Calling signals from the quarterback slot were Ben Morkum, Tom Morgan, Ben Danik and Frank Chaplar, who manipulated the 'Cats to their six touchdowns. Morkum, along with Worthington, Shader and Behot, were the starting backfield combination and then later were replaced as the Clipper saw fit. The entire unit worked well together and gave the Clipper an idea of the possible starting line-up for the P. M. C. opener next fall.

New York University used an "Arkansas" boom as their most potential play, gaining considerable yardage through the center of the line. In passing, the Violets lacked a good distance passer but managed to complete a few short ones of not much advantage.

Encountering F. & M. proved a difficult task for the Smith men for on numerous times the team fumbled their chances for scores and could not give a good account for any sensational plays. The F. & M. outfit used a double shift and style of play which was loose and spontaneous and proved to be a hinderance to the linemen.

"Clipper" Smith could not be reacehd for his comments on the performance of the Villanova squad. However, most observers were of the opinion that Saturday's showing was most satisfactory for a spring session.

MAHER TAKES THIRD IN CENTURY DASH AT RELAY CARNIVAL

Competition Too Tough for Villanovans as Relayers Lose Out

FROSH TEAM DISAPPOINTS

With Johnny Maher finishing third in the special invitation 100 yard dash, and the mile relay team finishing third in their college class the Wildcat trackmen returned from the Penn Relays, held last weekend at Franklin Field, disappointed with their showing.

Suffering a bitter disappointment in both sprint relays, the Villanovans did not qualify for the finals in these events. The unexpected loss of "Legs" Shedlosky proved too much a handicap to overcome. Shedlosky pulled a tendon on last Wednesday afternoon, but expected it to heal in time for the relays, but no such luck. The injury just wouldn't respond to the treatment given, causing a last-minute substitution to be made. Bill Carey ran in the second position instead, joining leadoff man Urbellis, Bill Guiteras, and anchor man Maher.

Too slow in receiving the baton caused valuable yardage to be lost when Carey took the baton pass from Urbellis. Urbellis came in strong, but after the exchange the Wildcats didn't have much of a chance. Even with this, their time was just two-tenths of a second short of qualifying for the finals.

Pitt won this event in the fast time of 41:5. In the half-mile relay the Wildcats were again halted by the poor baton pass, and again failed to qualify. North Texas State Teachers set a new record winning this event in the brilliant tiem of 1:25.4.

Maher after anchoring both sprint teams, breezed to victory in his trial heat in 9:8. But in the final that produced a finish that could be covered by a one foot blanet Johnny took third behind Ellerbe of Tuskagee and Williams

Billy Conn, Light-Heavy Champ, Spends Night In Fedigan, Engages In Bullsession

By JIM HAUGHTON

Billy Conn, light - heavyweight champion of the world, paid an unexpected visit to the Villanova campus over the week-end and created a minor riot among the student body.

Conn was sleeping in the back seat of his car, which was driven by a friend, John Ryan of Pittsburgh, when it collided Saturday evening with one driven by Edwin Dixon, Jr., of Sugartown directly in front of the college gymnasium. nobody was hurt.

Stan Stress, '41, and Clem Lavin, Both cars were badly damaged and '40, eye witnesses to the crash, invited Conn and Ryan to spend the night in Fedigan Hall. And it was here their arrival caused a furore. According to reports, everybody was up and attempting to crowd Lavin's room to meet and speak with the "champ." Billy graciously took all this recognition with a grain of salt and engaged in a regular bull-session with the boys till the late hours.

News Spreads

By Sunday morning news of his arrival had spread throughout the campus and after attending the student's Mass at 8:30 he was the cynosure of all eyes as he breakfasted in the college dining room. Billy was very much pleased with the food served and said, "Say, all you guys must do is eat. And I don't blame you."

Shortly before lunch Conn again appeared on the campus to watch an intramural baseball game and was the center of attraction. Probably everybody in the school was introduced to him. He signed autographs, posed for pictures and acceded to every wish of the enthusiastic student body.

Billy told the writer he has completely recovered from an attack of boils which caused the postponment of his recent bout with Gus Lesnovitch at Miami. He said the fight promised to be a sell-out because of the excellent Florida season and was disappointed at losing such a big gate. He plans to meet Gus sometime in June.

Crafty

Famous as one of the craftiest ring men in history, Conn is confident his jabbing tactics will lead him to a win over Joe Louis.

"It's purely a mental outlook," he said. "Most of the fellows who fight him think that as soon as he hits them they should fall down. I think I'm smart enough to go the limit with Louis and beat him.

"Take Godoy. He was so surprised and so happy at staying fifteen rounds that he hugged and kissed Louis. You must have confidence. Don't think I'm bragging, but when I get a little heavier I'll take on Louis and beat him."

The date for the Louis bout is not definite. After the Lesnovitch bout, Conn is booked to meet Lee Savold and the winner to take on the Brown Bomber. Conn is conceded an easy winner for the fight will merely be a build-up to the championship go. It will be held outdoors either in September or in June of 1941.

Two Weeks Rest

Right now Billy tips the beam at 182 and Ray Gadsby, local ring coach, drove him to Mike Jacob's estate at Rumson, N. J., where he will rest for two weeks before starting training for the Lesnovitch bout. Here he intends to eat, ride and sleep. And nothing else.

"Up at Jacob's home I have a great time. Gosh all I do is eat and ride horseback. I love horses. Not to bet on, but just to ride. My aim right now is make some money in the ring and retire and raise horses. You know, live the life of a gentleman."

Conn, a modest and unassuming chap, was extremely pleased with the reception he received here. He said he had never met a better bunch of boys and that everybody wanted to help him out. During a conversation in Fedigan Hall he expressed his urge to further his education and said he plans to take some special courses to help him in his many public appearances.

Billy was disappointed at not meeting Father O'Leary, an old friend of his whom he met at the seashore several years ago, but promised to visit the campus in the near future. He said he would mail a batch of autographed pictures to all the fellows who had asked for them.

Aisenbrey Leads Austin To Win With No-Hit Pitching

By WALT BROWN

The intramural baseball schedule was resumed last Thursday after a two week lapse. On Thursday Austin battled Alumni in a game which was originally scheduled for Sunday, April 14, but was postponed on account of rain.

In this game Austin secured its second victory in as many starts by defeating the Freshmen in a game featured by the brilliant no-hit pitching of Aisenbrey, Austin's ace. Although they were not able to get a hit, the Freshmen managed to get a run which came in the fifth inning on two walks mixed with two strikeouts and a fly out.

Austin started things in the third when they combined two hits by Cleary and Cerulo for one run. They came back in the fourth and scored two more on hits by Aisenbrey and Daly. Their final run came in the fifth when Cleary walked, stole second, took third after Cerulo flied out and scored on a deep fly by Fitzgerald. Lucas and Peterson pitching for Alumni only allowed four hits but the Austinites make every one count. The game was called at the end of the fifth on account of rain.

Alumni Winner

In the first game on Sunday Alumni managed to eke out a victory over Mendel 9-8. Each pitcher allowed eight hits but Alumni's proved more profitable. Mendel started out in the first half of the first and scored two runs on two walks and a hit by Elward. They added one more in the second, two in the fourth, and their last three in the seventh.

Alumni tallied their first runs in their half of the first when they scored three runs on two walks, a single by Skowron and a double by D'Ippolito. They produced one more in the second, two in the third and three in the seventh. Alumni scored the winning run when Skowron scored from third on a passed ball. Malone pitched the entire game for Mendel and was the losing pitcher while Lukacs went the route for Alumni and was credited with the victory.

Apostolica was the star of the day and so far this season getting four hits out of four appearances at the plate. He singled in the second, fourth and sixth, and tripled in the seventh with two men on. He, also, scored two runs and drove in two on his long triple.

Austin Loser

In the afternoon Austin lost its first game in three starts at the hands of Fedigan in a free-hitting game. Austin collected ten runs on 13 hits while Fedigan produced 15 runs on only eleven hits. Cerulo, who was relieved by Hines in the fifth, allowed eight of Fedigan's runs on five hits and was credited with the loss. Grigolanus pitched the entire game for the Gigoloes and receives credit for the victory.

Fedigan got away to a good lead in the first half of the first when single by McAloon and Stellar and a triple by Gillespie produced two runs. But Austin came back in their half of the first and got back one run on three hits. Daly opened with a single and after Mariana went out third to first, Cleary doubled scoring Daly but he was thrown out trying to make third. Crumb singled but Fitzgerald was thrown out for the final out.

Fedigan added two in the second and Austin came back in their half of the third to score five runs on only three hits to take the lead. However, Fedigan was not to be downed for in the fourth it pushed across four more runs to regain the lead which they never relinquished. The final score was 15-10.

Of the 24 hits in this game, seven went for extra bases. The Austinites collected four of these on two doubles and two triples so Fedigan had to be satisfied with one triple and two doubles.

Dayhops Organize

The C. & F. open their softball schedule last Tuesday when the mighty Juniors laced the Sophomores, 22-1. The Juniors packed plenty of power at the plate since every man got at least one hit, many of them going for extra bases. Afield the Juniors looked equally well, working like a well oiled machine. The Sophomores fell apart after the first inning.

The Juniors started a game with the Freshmen on Thursday and had a comfortable 5-0 lead at the end of the first inning but the Freshmen refused to finish the game on account of a little downpour. Again in this game the mighty Juniors shone and would have probably beaten the Freshmen equally as bad as they did the Sophs. The Juniors will play the Freshmen again this afternoon.

Eagles Sign Difillipo

Dave Difillipo, guard on last year's football team, has signed a contract to play professional football with the Philadelphia Eagles next fall. Difillipo will be the third Villanova man to ear a slot in the "big league" of professional football. Others are Johnny Mellus, '38, a regular with th New York Giants, and Andy Chisick, '40, who signed last week with the Chicago Cardinals.

ST. JOHN'S REDMEN SCALP CAT GOLFERS

Villanova lost its third match of the season on Friday when St. John's of Brooklyn handed out a 6-3 defeat. The afternoon was highlighted by the playing of Bob dePersio who took over the highly touted Joe Goward 3 and 2.

Bob played at the number-one spot for the first time and handled himself very creditably. Captain Cliff Randolph, moving back to number two in Jim Brown's absence, also turned in a win, defeating St. John's Tom Donovan 2 and 1. This foursome accounted for the last Villanova point by winning best-ball 2 and 1.

That ended Villanova's scoring for the day. In the second foursome, Joe Somonofski defeated Ernie Klappenbach 3 and 2. Dave Morse lost to Andy Lagnese, of St. John's 2 and 1. St. John's won best-ball 3 and 2.

Stenn Plays

Two newcomers to the team, Paul Stenn and Frank Abbott, handled themselves well and with a little more prace should give a good account of themselves. Paul lost to Bob Gill, of St. John's, 3 and 1, while Frank lost to Jack Schlesman, 2 and 1. St. John's took best-ball, 3 and 2.

Still seeking their first win, the team will travel to the Bala Country club next Monday to meet St. Joseph's in a return match. St. Joe's won in the first meeting of the two teams 6 to 3.

With a full week in which to practice, Captain Randolph is gunning for a win. The recent acquisition of Stenn and Abbott should help the team considerably.

Sportorial

weren't scratchy singles neither. Witness Lazorchak's triple which threatened to batter down the Empire State building.

Fordham, on the other hand, scraped up two runs, on seven hits from the offerings of Joe Desmond, who took it easy during most of the game and bore down only when necessary, despite the acknowleged high calibre of the Rams, who usually have one the top-notch college nines in the east.

Now all of this is meant to bring out the point that sports section heroes aren't always what they are cracked up to be. A statement that so-and-o, no matter who he is, is the "best pitcher in college ball" is pretty strong and must be taken with a grain of salt, especially when the man is only a sophomore. "There is many a slip, etc."

Pitching in college ball is a bad business. Usually the hitters are far ahead of the hurlers. Most of the latter are just rounding into form when the season ends in June. The Villanova nine will probably take advantage of this against Fordham as the 'Cats, one of the hardest hitting clubs in this sector, should be out to get Alex's scalp, if he pitches. They didn't have too much trouble against Bowory last spring and nobody can tell us that Alex ranks with Bowory this early in his career.

Publicity such as Alex has often puts two strikes on his opponents before the opening pitch. It may be likened to the case of boxer Joe Louis' opposition, if you would call it that, which reads the headlines before the fight and folds up during the handshaking ceremonies. We feel confident that Villanova will not develop this type of headline fear. Wonder if Rice reads the papers?

NETMEN BEAT SETON LOSE TO DELAWARE

Villanova's netmen split their tennis matches over the weekend with Seton Hall, and Delaware University, conquering the former, 4-3, by virtue of doubles defaults, and losing a close match to Delaware's "Blue Rocks."

The most outstanding player of the weekend was Fred Rappleyea, who won both his matches in both no. 1 and no. 2 positions and broke up Bartoshefsky of Delaware's Four game winning streak.

John Grey playing his first intercollegiate match in no. 4 position against Delaware won his match after testing his man the first set and steam rolling him in the second frame.

With the much longed for change in weather, the Catmen hope to get in some needed practice for their coming matches with the unbeaten duo of St. Johns and Loyola on home grounds Thursday and Friday. Men who will bear watching in these matches will be Sayres and Knell of Loyola and Fishbach and Gurin of St. Johns.

Television

Station W2XBS, of New York City, will televise the Villanova-Fordham baseball game to be held next Saturday at Fordham Field, New York City. The game will be aired and transcripted from 3:30 to 5:30 on Saturday afternoon.

This will mark the first time that any Villanova event, athletic or otherwise, has been aired via television.

"Silent Man" Guiteras Mainstay Of Runners

Damon and Pythias had nothing on a pair of Villanova athletes who have grown up together, have run together, have spent sixteen years together in the same schools, and have been as close as brothers could be. They are, of course, Bill Guiteras and Barney Bellew, of Coach Jumbo Elliott's track squad. Comes time to feature the life of Guiteras we could see no other course than to have it prepared by. . Bernard Bellew.

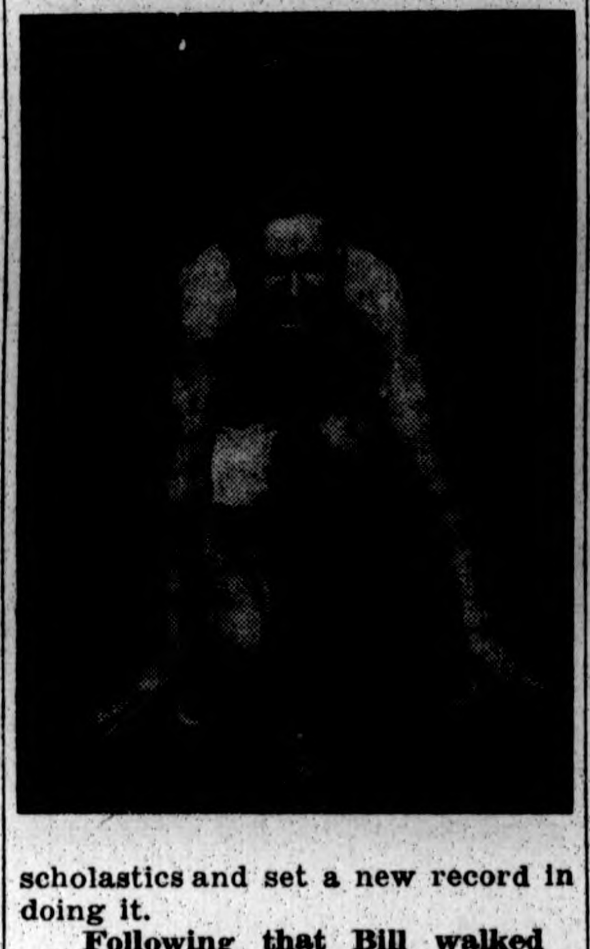
By "BARNEY" BELLEW

BORN on February 6, 1917, William A. Guiteras found out that those "famous to be" legs soon reached the ground. So for eight years at St. Stephen's Parochial School in Philadelphia, Bill exercised them in running around the neighborhood after school hours.

But upon reaching high school Bill decided to put his ability to task. He tried out for football and was soon playing regular. In his senior year at Northeast Catholic High, William started every game except the first, and was a great aid in winning the Catholic League Championship. He ended up on the All-Catholic team in Philadelphia in the position of tackle. He also received Honorable Mention on the All-Scholastic team.

Back to Track

With football over Bill again went back to track. He was anchor on the Mile Relay team that won the Catholic League Championship for the first time in North Catholic's young history. He also led the squad in gaining their first Interscholastic Championships at Delaware and Atlantic City. Then he won the 440 at the Villanova Interscholastics and set a new record in doing it.



Following that Bill walked off with the 440 in the Catholic League Championship Meet at which time North Catholic won their first league championship.

Chorus Boy

While at North Catholic Bill indulged in a little opera, appearing in the chorus of the "Mikado" and also in the choir at his Baccalaureate Mass. He is one of the few fellows who has floated a dance in the cathedral. Ask him about it, it's interesting.

So on to Villanova. Bill was the rage of all the Liggetts girls in his little dink and black tie and button. But his great acting ability managed to get him past the upperclassmen, especially when he would get caught listening to the radio in their cars.

William had to concentrate on track at Villanova but it seems that the boys in the Commerce and Finance School think he concentrated on reforming Ed. Leahy. Nevertheless Bill earnestly practiced and was rewarded by receiving the appointment of Captain of the track squad by his nemesis, Coach Jumbo Elliott.

Last summer at Ocean City, Bill lifted the title "Middle Atlantic A. A. U. Half Mile Champ" from his pal Bernard Bellew. The Penn Relays again find Bill running in three relays: quarter, half and mile. Bill's dominant characteristic is consistancy and he can always be depnded upon when he takes his mark.

With regards to his personal life of which I know litt. (? ? ? ?), this tall, blonde goodlooking chap wows them or should I say "her." His buddy, Fitz, says that Bill is as tied down as the writer is fickle, But Bill denies this and says that he is as free as a lark. Maybe so, but that lark's wings are clipped a little.

Seriously though, Bill is an easy-going lad who doesn't bother anyone with his troubles or aches; nor does he nurse them. He is more the strong silent type, especially when he gets S. A. He will not voice opinions unless asked and even then he is wont to be, shall we say, gossipy.

Bill will certainly get ahead and Villanova will be proud of him. So lots of luck Bill and may fair weather be yours always.

OVER THE BACK FENCE:

Nobody mentioned it, but about the only columnist who hasn't picked the probable finish in the major loops is Mrs. Roosevelt. Say, Eleanor, how about a grant for the Phillies and Browns. They need relief.

The coal region wash line brings news that Joe Andreco and George Cheverko, the Hazleton High "touchdown twins," will probably part company. The former is planning to enter the U. S. Military Academy while Cheverko is considering Villanova, Fordham and Tennessee in that order. He's the big basketball center whom many of you watched as Hughie McGeehan's boys practiced in the gym.

Watch out when the Fordham game rolls around for a lad named Ed Alex. Joe Williams, of the "World Telegram," has labeled him another Rube Waddell and says he is one of the best college prospects around. But Connie Mack has lined him up for future duty.

Alex hails from Shenandoah, Pa., and prepped at Seton Hall with several localads. Against Navy he struck out fifteen while limiting Middies to three hits. And he's only a sophomore.

Speaking of cash. The Mint has announced that it's making more money than ever before. Gents, it looks like the distribution system is a bit out of whack.

Metropolitan editors would be much more receptive to copy on the local nine if the games ended a little earlier. Claim the late start doesn't allow enough time to catch the late edition deadline.

From the travel bureau comes news that next Easter will probably see the local nine imbibing the Southern sun on a trek which will include the usual Dixie line-up of Duke, North Carolina, etc.

It still looks like the intercepted pass is the best play the Villanova eleven has. But it always produces.

The F. & M. boys insist the local club isn't as strong as last season, but claim their own outfit is much improved. Wasn't Basca playing baseball, Koritsky, Kasky, et al, viewing the proceedings from the stands. That accounts for it.

Next season's schedule for the Lancaster boys includes N. Y. U. and Dartmouth.

It never fails to happen. Shortly after the F. & M. scrimmage a few cry babies started to complain about the supposed weakness of the team. Remember, chums, it is only practice. And Clipper knows best. Doesn't the record book say something about twenty-nine wins and only four defeats in quite a span. Also, that the 'Cats rate among the first five over a four-year period. So sleep easy, my fran, for Clipper knows best.

Tip: Watch out for another campus sports figure announcing his intention to join the cash ranks shortly after graduation.

Three More Victims Added As Nine Continues Streak

Gettysburg, St. John's, C. C. N. Y. Fall Before Villanova Bats and Masterful Hurling of O'Leary and Howlett; All Cat Pitchers Go Limit

By SAM CANNING

"Doc" Jacobs' varsity baseballers extended their winning streak to five straight last Saturday in winning, 10-3, over the City College of New York nine.

Choquette was the winning pitcher, chalking up his second victory of the current campaign. Although he gave up 10 hits he managed to keep them fairly well separated so as to only allow three runs.

The game also produced the latest sensation of the 'Cat team in the person of Bob Pash, who received his first start as a reward for his splendid pinch-hitting during other games. Receiving his first starting post he rapped out three singles, a double, and obtained a walk for f hits out of four official trips to the plate. This gives him six hits out of seven times at the bat, which is really slugging. Besides his batting ability, Bob is a great outfielder and a fine shortstop, having once played in the infield.

Coach Jacobs switched him from right field to shortstop in the fifth inning of the game, when Mike Lazorchak turned his ankle while trying to pick a man off second. Filling this emergency position Bob turned in a fine performance, fielding errorlessly.

Also still pounding away at the ball is Lloyd Rice, who obtained two hits, one being his usual double and the other a sharp single. Lloyd is also covering lots of territory in left field and batting in fourth position.

The 'Cats drove out 11 hits, 6 being doubles, and obtained 9 walks. C. C. N. Y. obtained 10 hits, 1 double and 7 bases on balls.

O'Leary Tops Redmen

On Friday, Connie O'Leary, Wildcat ace hurler, set to work on the St. John's of Brooklyn team and shut them out till the fifth inning when the Indians managed to push across a run on two hits. O'Leary then clamped down and blanked the "Slickers" till the ninth inning when with two outs an error on a hit resulted in a home run with one man on to give St. John's two unearned runs. This was O'Leary's second win of the season.

The 'Cat attack was once more led by Reitmeier and Rice who each drove out two hits.

One of the outstanding performances of the day was the spectacular fielding of Joe Yednock. The Chief made two sensational catches of seemingly-uncatchable foul fly balls. One catch was practically impossible for anyone, but Yednock dashed behind the bleachers, hit his shoulder on the edge of a seat and fell, dropping the ball out of his glove and catching it in his other hand before it hit the ground.

The Blue and White amassed 9 hits, 4 being doubles while St. John's totaled 7 hits with 2 doubles.

Gettysburg Beaten

Allowing only five scattered hits and one walk, Howlett blanked the visitors from Gettysburg by a 13-0 score last Tuesday.

Co-starring with Howlett, playing the part of an Indian medicine man, was Chief Yednock, who "doctored" up his batting average with four hits out of five times at bat, one of these being a home run.

Also taking active parts in scalping two Gettysburg pitchers were Donahue and Balmore who each collected three hits out of four trips to the plate, with Balmore accounting for a double.

big gun in the Ram attack. Bill Krywicki, who was the able battery-mate of Hanl. Borowy last year, once again holds down the catching job, while Jim Blumenstok, a sophomore sensation, handles the third base assignment.

Borowy Graduated

Although Hank Borowy, ace of last year's mound staff, has graduated to Newark of the International League, Coach Coffey has a wealth of pitching material on hand. Gene Bowe and Ed Alex are the standouts on the staff.

Alex is only a sophomore, yet he is considered by many as being the best college pitcher in the east. He's a right-hander and stands six feet, two inches tall and weighs 195 pounds. It is likely that one of these two pitchers will take the mound against Villanova on Saturday.

of North Texas State Teachers. The winning time was the same as Johnny's heat, 9:8.

The mile relay quartet made up of Bellew, Bill Hooper, Yankauskas and Guiteras finished third to Seton Hall and Virginia State. The winning time was 3:22.

Jones failed to place in the high jump, as Art Murphy and Tim Waad did likewise in the broad jump. Yankauskas also missed out in the javelin toss.

The fresh mile team consisting of Nazian, Brown, Keefrider, and DiCarlo, after a slow start remained out of the money all the way. Despite the fact of their position, Johnny DiCarlo ran a brilliant anchor leg, but his attempt proved futile, as he had no chance at all

By WALT BROWN

The intramural baseball schedule was resumed last Thursday after a two week lapse. On Thursday Austin battled Alumni in a game which was originally scheduled for Sunday, April 14, but was postponed on account of rain.

In this game Austin secured its second victory in as many starts by defeating the Freshmen in a game featured by the brilliant no-hit pitching of Aisenbrey, Austin's ace. Although they were not able to get a hit, the Freshmen managed to get a run which came in the fifth inning on two walks mixed with two strikeouts and a fly out.

Austin started things in the third when they combined two hits by Cleary and Cerulo for one run. They came back in the fourth and scored two more on hits by Aisenbrey and Daly. Their final run came in the fifth when Cleary walked, stole second, took third after Cerulo flied out and scored on a deep fly by Fitzgerald. Lucas and Peterson pitching for Alumni only allowed four hits but the Austinites make every one count. The game was called at the end of the fifth on account of rain.

Alumni Winner

In the first game on Sunday Alumni managed to eke out a victory over Mendel 9-8. Each pitcher allowed eight hits but Alumni's proved more profitable. Mendel started out in the first half of the first and scored two runs on two walks and a hit by Elward. They added one more in the second, two in the fourth, and their last three in the seventh.

Alumni tallied their first runs in their half of the first when they scored three runs on two walks, a single by Skowron and a double by D'Ippolito. They produced one more in the second, two in the third and three in the seventh. Alumni scored the winning run when Skowron scored from third on a passed ball. Malone pitched the entire game for Mendel and was the losing pitcher while Lukacs went the route for Alumni and was credited with the victory.

Apostolica was the star of the day and so far this season getting four hits out of four appearances at the plate. He singled in the second, fourth and sixth, and tripled in the seventh with two men on. He, also, scored two runs and drove in two on his long triple.

Austin Loser

In the afternoon Austin lost its first game in three starts at the hands of Fedigan in a free-hitting game. Austin collected ten runs on 13 hits while Fedigan produced 15 runs on only eleven hits. Cerulo, who was relieved by Hines in the fifth, allowed eight of Fedigan's runs on five hits and was credited with the loss. Grigolanus pitched the entire game for the Gigoloes and receives credit for the victory.

Fedigan got away to a good lead in the first half of the first when single by McAloon and Stellar and a triple by Gillespie produced two runs. But Austin came back in their half of the first and got back one run on three hits. Daly opened with a single and after Mariana went out third to first, Cleary doubled scoring Daly but he was thrown out trying to make third. Crumb singled but Fitzgerald was thrown out for the final out.

Fedigan added two in the second and Austin came back in their half of the third to score five runs on only three hits to take the lead. However, Fedigan was not to be downed for in the fourth it pushed across four more runs to regain the lead which they never relinquished. The final score was 15-10.

Of the 24 hits in this game, seven went for extra bases. The Austinites collected four of these on two doubles and two triples so Fedigan had to be satisfied with one triple and two doubles.

Dayhops Organize

The C. & F. open their softball schedule last Tuesday when the mighty Juniors laced the Sophomores, 22-1. The Juniors packed plenty of power at the plate since every man got at least one hit, many of them going for extra bases. Afield the Juniors looked equally well, working like a well oiled machine. The Sophomores fell apart after the first inning.

The Juniors started a game with the Freshmen on Thursday and had a comfortable 5-0 lead at the end of the first inning but the Freshmen refused to finish the game on account of a little downpour. Again in this game the mighty Juniors shone and would have probably beaten the Freshmen equally as bad as they did the Sophs. The Juniors will play the Freshmen again this afternoon.

Eagles Sign Difillipo

Dave Difillipo, guard on last year's football team, has signed a contract to play professional football with the Philadelphia Eagles next fall. Difillipo will be the third Villanova man to ear a slot in the "big league" of professional football. Others are Johnny Mellus, '38, a regular with th New York Giants, and Andy Chisick, '40, who signed last week with the Chicago Cardinals.

ST. JOHN'S REDMEN SCALP CAT GOLFERS

Villanova lost its third match of the season on Friday when St. John's of Brooklyn handed out a 6-3 defeat. The afternoon was highlighted by the playing of Bob dePersio who took over the highly touted Joe Goward 3 and 2.

Bob played at the number-one spot for the first time and handled himself very creditably. Captain Cliff Randolph, moving back to number two in Jim Brown's absence, also turned in a win, defeating St. John's Tom Donovan 2 and 1. This foursome accounted for the last Villanova point by winning best-ball 2 and 1.

That ended Villanova's scoring for the day. In the second foursome, Joe Somonofski defeated Ernie Klappenbach 3 and 2. Dave Morse lost to Andy Lagnese, of St. John's 2 and 1. St. John's won best-ball 3 and 2.

Stenn Plays

Two newcomers to the team, Paul Stenn and Frank Abbott, handled themselves well and with a little more prace should give a good account of themselves. Paul lost to Bob Gill, of St. John's, 3 and 1, while Frank lost to Jack Schlesman, 2 and 1. St. John's took best-ball, 3 and 2.

Still seeking their first win, the team will travel to the Bala Country club next Monday to meet St. Joseph's in a return match. St. Joe's won in the first meeting of the two teams 6 to 3.

With a full week in which to practice, Captain Randolph is gunning for a win. The recent acquisition of Stenn and Abbott should help the team considerably.

Sportorial

weren't scratchy singles neither. Witness Lazorchak's triple which threatened to batter down the Empire State building.

Fordham, on th other hand, scraped up two runs, on seven hits from the offerings of Joe Desmond, who took it easy during most of the game and bore down only when necessary, despite the acknowleged high calibre of the Rams, who usually have one the top-notch college nines in the east.

Now all of this is meant to bring out the point that sports section heroes aren't always what they are cracked up to be. A statement that so-and-o, no matter who he is, is the "best pitcher in college ball" is pretty strong and must be taken with a grain of salt, especially when the man is only a sophomore. "There is many a slip, etc."

Pitching in college ball is a bad business. Usually the hitters are far ahead of the hurlers. Most of the latter are just rounding into form when the season ends in June. The Villanova nine will probably take advantage of this against Fordham as the 'Cats, one of the hardest hitting clubs in this sector, should be out to get Alex's scalp, if he pitches. They didn't have too much trouble against Bowory last spring and nobody can tell us that Alex ranks with Bowory this early in his career.

Publicity such as Alex has often puts two strikes on his opponents before the opening pitch. It may be likened to the case of boxer Joe Louis' opposition, if you would call it that, which reads the headlines before the fight and folds up during the handshaking ceremonies. We feel confident that Villanova will not develop this type of headline fear. Wonder if Rice reads the papers?

Villanova's netmen split their tennis matches over the weekend with Seton Hall, and Delaware University, conquering the former, 4-3, by virtue of doubles defaults, and losing a close match to Delaware's "Blue Rocks."

The most outstanding player of the weekend was Fred Rappleyea, who won both his matches in both no. 1 and no. 2 positions and broke up Bartoshefsky of Delaware's Four game winning streak.

John Grey playing his first intercollegiate match in no. 4 position against Delaware won his match after testing his man the first set and steam rolling him in the second frame.

With the much longed for change in weather, the Catmen hope to get in some needed practice for their coming matches with the unbeaten duo of St. Johns and Loyola on home grounds Thursday and Friday. Men who will bear watching in these matches will be Sayres and Knell of Loyola and Fishbach and Gurin of St. Johns.

Television

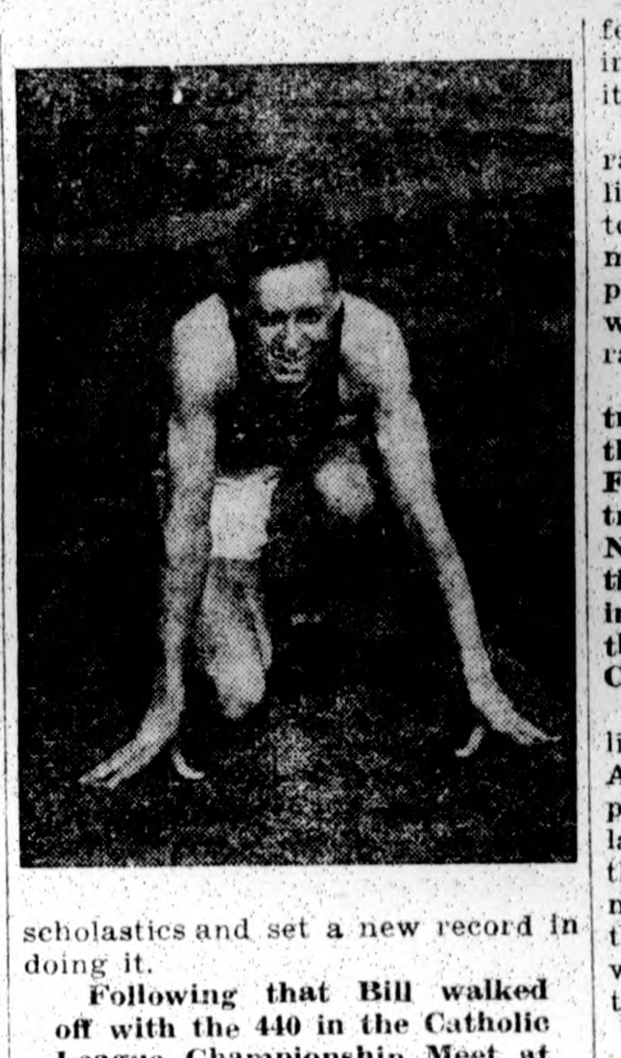
Station W2XBS, of New York City, will televise the Villanova-Fordham baseball game to be held next Saturday at Fordham Field, New York City. The game will be aired and transcripted from 3:30 to 5:30 on Saturday afternoon.

This will mark the first time that any Villanova event, athletic or otherwise, has been aired via television.

"Silent Man" Guiteras Mainstay Of Runners

Damon and Pythias had nothing on a pair of Villanova athletes who have grown up together, have run together, have spent sixteen years together in the same schools, and have been as close as brothers could be. They are, of course, Bill Guiteras and Barney Bellew, of Coach Jumbo Elliott's track squad. Comes time to feature the life of Guiteras we could see no other course than to have it prepared by . . Bernard Bellew.

By "BARNEY" BELLEW



BORN on February 6, 1917, William A. Guiteras found out that those "famous to be" legs soon reached the ground. So for eight years at St. Stephen's Parochial School in Philadelphia, Bill exercised them in running around the neighborhood after school hours.

But upon reaching high school Bill decided to put his ability to task. He tried out for football and was soon playing regular. In his senior year t Northeast Catholic High, William started every game except the first, and was a great aid in winning the Catholic League Championship. He ended up on the All-Catholic team in Philadelphia in the position of tackle. He also received Honorable Mention on the All-Scholastic team.

Back to Track

With football over Bill again went back to track. He was anchor on the Mile Relay team that won the Catholic League Championship for the first time in North Catholic's young history. He also led the squad in gaining their first Interscholastic Championships at Delaware and Atlantic City. Then he won the 440 at the Villanova Interscholastics and set a new record in doing it.

Following that Bill walked off with the 440 in the Catholic League Championship Meet at which time North Catholic won their first league championship.

Chorus Boy

While at North Catholic Bill indulged in a little opera, appearing in the chorus of the "Mikado" and also in the choir at his Baccalaureate Mass. He is one of the few fellows who has floated a dance in the cathedral. Ask him about it, it's interesting.

So on to Villanova. Bill was the rage of all the Liggetts girls in his little dink and black tie and button. But his great acting ability managed to get him past the upperclassmen, especially when he would get caught listening to the radio in their cars.

William had to concentrate on track at Villanova but it seems that the boys i the Commerce and Finance School think he concentrated on reforming Ed. Leahy. Nevertheless Bill earnestly practiced and was rewarded by receiving the appointment of Captain of the track squad by his nemesis, Coach Jumbo Elliott.

Last summer at Ocean City, Bill lifted the title "Middle Atlantic A. A. U. Half Mile Champ" from his pal Bernard Bellew. The Penn Relays again find Bill running in three relays: quarter, half and mile. Bill's dominant characteristic is consistancy and he can always be depnded upon when he takes his mark.

With regards to his personal life of which I know litt. (? ? ? ?), this tall, blonde goodlooking chap wows them or should I say "her." His buddy, Fitz, says that Bill is as tied down as the writer is fickle, But Bill denies this and says that he is as free as a lark. Maybe so, but that lark's wings are clipped a little.

Seriously though, Bill is an easy-going lad who doesn't bother anyone with his troubles or aches; nor does he nurse them. He is more the strong silent type, especially when he gets S. A. He will not voice opinions unless asked and even then he is wont to be, shall we say, gossipy.

Bill will certainly get ahead and Villanova will be proud of him. So lots of luck Bill and may fair weather be yours always.

OVER THE BACK FENCE:

Nobody mentioned it, but about the only columnist who hasn't picked the probable finish in the major loops is Mrs. Roosevelt. Say, Eleanor, how about a grant for the Phillies and Browns. They need relief.

The coal region wash line brings news that Joe Andreco and George Cheverko, the Hazleton High "touchdown twins," will probably part company. The former is planning to enter the U. S. Military Academy while Cheverko is considering Villanova, Fordham and Tennessee in that order. He's the big basketball center whom many of you watched as Hughie McGeehan's boys practiced in the gym.

Watch out when the Fordham game rolls around for a lad named Ed Alex. Joe Williams, of the "World Telegram," has labeled him another Rube Waddell and says he is one of the best college prospects around. But Connie Mack has lined him up for future duty.

Alex hails from Shenandoah, Pa., and prepped at Seton Hall with several localads. Against Navy he struck out fifteen while limiting Middies to three hits. And he's only a sophomore.

Speaking of cash. The Mint has announced that it's making more money than ever before. Gents, it looks like the distribution system is a bit out of whack.

Metropolitan editors would be much more receptive to copy on the local nine if the games ended a little earlier. Claim the late start doesn't allow enough time to catch the late edition deadline.

From the travel bureau comes news that next Easter will probably see the local nine imbibing the Southern sun on a trek which will include the usual Dixie line-up of Duke, North Carolina, etc.

It still looks like the intercepted pass is the best play the Villanova eleven has. But it always produces.

The F. & M. boys insist the local club isn't as strong as last season, but claim their own outfit is much improved. Wasn't Basca playing baseball, Koritsky, Kasky, et al, viewing the proceedings from the stands. That accounts for it.

Next season's schedule for the Lancaster boys includes N. Y. U. and Dartmouth.

It never fails to happen. Shortly after the F. & M. scrimmage a few cry babies started to complain about the supposed weakness of the team. Remember, chums, it is only practice. And Clipper knows best. Doesn't the record book say something about twenty-nine wins and only four defeats in quite a span. Also, that the 'Cats rate among the first five over a four-year period. So sleep easy, my fran, for Clipper knows best.

Tip: Watch out for another campus sports figure announcing his intention to join the cash ranks shortly after graduation.

Three More Victims Added As Nine Continues Streak

Gettysburg, St. John's, C. C. N. Y. Fall Before Villanova Bats and Masterful Hurling of O'Leary and Howlett; All Cat Pitchers Go Limit

By SAM CANNING

"Doc" Jacobs' varsity baseballers extended their winning streak to five straight last Saturday in winning, 10-3, over the City College of New York nine.

Choquette was the winning pitcher, chalking up his second victory of the current campaign. Although he gave up 10 hits he managed to keep them fairly well separated so as to only allow three runs.

The game also produced the latest sensation of the 'Cat team in the person of Bob Pash, who received his first start as a reward for his splendid pinch-hitting during other games. Receiving his first starting post he rapped out three singles, a double, and obtained a walk for f hits out of four official trips to the plate. This gives him six hits out of seven times at the bat, which is really slugging. Besides his batting ability, Bob is a great outfielder and a fine shortstop, having once played in the infield.

Coach Jacobs switched him from right field to shortstop in the fifth inning of the game, when Mike Lazorchak turned his ankle while trying to pick a man off second. Filling this emergency position Bob turned in a fine performance, fielding errorlessly.

Also still pounding away at the ball is Lloyd Rice, who obtained two hits, one being his usual double and the other a sharp single. Lloyd is also covering lots of territory in left field and batting in fourth position.

The 'Cats drove out 11 hits, 6 being doubles, and obtained 9 walks. C. C. N. Y. obtained 10 hits, 1 double and 7 bases on balls.

O'Leary Tops Redmen

On Friday, Connie O'Leary, Wildcat ace hurler, set to work on the St. John's of Brooklyn team and shut them out till the fifth inning when the Indians managed to push across a run on two hits. O'Leary then clamped down and blanked the "Slickers" till the ninth inning when with two outs an error on a hit resulted in a home run with one man on to give St. John's two unearned runs. This was O'Leary's second win of the season.

The Cat attack was once more led by Reitmeier and Rice who each drove out two hits.

One of the outstanding performances of the day was the spectacular fielding of Joe Yednock. The Chief made two sensational catches of seemingly-uncatchable foul fly balls. One catch was practically impossible for anyone, but Yednock dashed behind the bleachers, hit his shoulder on the edge of a seat and fell, dropping the ball out of his glove and catching it in his other hand before it hit the ground.

The Blue and White amassed 9 hits, 4 being doubles while St. John's totaled 7 hits with 2 doubles.

Gettysburg Beaten

Allowing only five scattered hits and one walk, Howlett blanked the visitors from Gettysburg by a 13-0 score last Tuesday.

Co-starring with Howlett, playing the part of an Indian medicine man, was Chief Yednock, who "doctored" up his batting average with four hits out of five times at bat, one of these being a home run.

Also taking active parts in scalping two Gettysburg pitchers were Donahue and Balmore who each collected three hits out of four trips to the plate, with Balmore accounting for a double.

big gun in the Ram attack. Bill Krywicki, who was the able battery-mate of Hank Borowy last year, once again holds down the catching job, while Jim Blumenstok, a sophomore sensation, handles the third base assignment.

Borowy Graduated

Although Hank Borowy, ace of last year's mound staff, has graduated to Newark of the International League, Coach Coffey has a wealth of pitching material on hand. Gene Bowe and Ed Alex are the standouts on the staff.

Alex is only a sophomore, yet he is considered by many as being the best college pitcher in the east. He's a right-hander and stands six feet, two inches tall and weighs 195 pounds. It is likely that one of these two pitchers will take the mound against Villanova on Saturday.

The mile relay quartet made up of Bellew, Bill Hooper, Yankauskas and Guiteras finished third to Seton Hall and Virginia State. The winning time was 3:22.

Jones failed to place in the high jump, as Art Murphy and Tim Waad did likewise in the broad jump. Yankauskas also missed out in the javelin toss.

BLAZER BALL PLANS GATHER MOMENTUM

Personnel of "Villanovans" Increased by Two Members; Programs To Be Given

The Blazer Ball, held annually in the college Field House during Junior Week activities, will traditionally introduce the social whirl of dances during this festive week of gaiety on Thursday evening, May 9.

William J. Appel, chairman of the affair, has announced that the Villanovans, the college orchestra, have increased their personnel with two new members, and that twelve musicians in all will be on hand to make the event a success. The orchestra has been constantly practising for this dance during the past few weeks, and a program of musical tunes has been carefully arranged.

Tickets $1.50

The members of the Senior class are invited to this dance as the guests of the Junior class. The Junior class will be present, of course, and the Sophomore and Freshman classes are also urged to join the parade. Conversation heard on the campus reveals that there is some uncertainty concerning the price of tickets. The chairman wishes to inform all the students that the admittance fee is $1.50 per couple. Tickets may be secured from any member of the Blazer Ball committee before the dance.

A novelty this year will be the souvenir programs that each person will receive. Plans are already under way to make the atmosphere pleasant, and elaborate decorations are being arranged. Students are requested to attend this affair and to bring their friends.

Fr. Handran Talks On Piano Technic; Closes Activities

Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., M. Mus., moderator of the college band and orchestra, will present the concluding lecture-recital in the present Music Seminar series, tomorrow evening in Simpson hall. The topic of Father Handran's lecture-recital will be "The Piano and What It Can Do."

Fr. Handran will first of all explain the structure and construction of the piano and will then proceed to show the various uses to which it can be put. He will also play different piano pieces to illustrate his points.

In the seminar held on Wednesday, April 24, Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Ph. D., professor of chemistry and chemical engineering, gave a lecture-recital on the musical terms used in symphonies.

First defining what a symphony is and describing the manner in which the movements are normally written, Dr. Haenisch proceeded to explain and illustrate the various tempos, modifying phrases, and styles of playing used in symphonic work.

Concluding the recital, the lecturer analyzed Tschaikowsky's 5th Symphony.

Alumni Clubs Boost Scholarship Exams

Several of the local branches of the Villanova Alumni Association are at present actively engaged in recruiting candidates for the Annual Competitive Scholarship Examinations which this year will be held at Villanova College on May 18.

The Trenton Club has been especially active in this regard, having brought several groups of Trenton high school seniors to the college for visits. On April 13, twenty-five seniors visited Villanova, were shown through the school, visited the gymnasium, and had dinner in the dining hall. On April 20, fifteen more were shown through the school.

The Richmond club of Richmond, Va., is making plans to furnish transportation to Villanova for a group of Richmond high school students who wish to take the competitive exams. These students will be selected on a merit basis, with no definite quota being set.

The Waterbury, Conn., club has established a scholarship to provide funds to assist a deserving student from Waterbury through college.

The Villanova Club of Rochester, New York, which has long been active in sending students to the competitive exams is also planning to send one or more students this year.

ers of Villanova life. Add to this inherent high quality of the photographs themselves the worthiness and necessity of the Library Fund Drive and you have the 'perfect cause.'"

A number of these color pictures will be on display during Open House, and contributions for the fund may be made then and the photographs obtained.

Three Scenes

Three representative scenes are respectively entitled "Grotto Panorama," "Campus View of Austin Hall," and the "Winter Scene." The first of these portrays the statue of St. Augustine erected at the fork in the station path, standing solemnly before the verdant background of the ivy-covered grotto.

The Austin Hall photograph is a view of the eastern wing and front section of the building looking towards St. Rita's Hall, and in the distance may be seen the towering steeples of the college chapel against a blue horizon, visible through a slight opening in the trees.

The "Winter Scene" is an open, front view of the chapel and the surrounding snow-laden campus, attested to be that of Villanova by the iron standard of the college on the lawn.

Special arrangements have been made to mail the natural-color photographs to those who will not be able to attend Open House.

DR. DENGEL

Dr. Anna Dengel, Superior of the Medical Missions will address the Interracial Council and the representatives of the local colleges at the annual meeting of the C. I. I. C. on Friday, May 5, at 2:30 P. M.

Dr. Dengel will be remembered as a former speaker of the Science Forum.

KIRK TO WORK IN DETROIT

Edward J. Kirk, senior civil engineer has been offered and has accepted a position with Cyril Burke, of Detroit, a dealer in contractor's supplies.

Mr. Burke, who graduated from Villanova in 1917 with a B. S. in Chemical Engineering, is one of Villanova's outstanding graduates, having received the Alumni Loyalty Award for 1938-39.

FROSH MEET

There will be a meeting of the Freshman Class in the Amphitheatre of Mendel hall on Wednesday, May 1, 1940, at 1:00 o'clock.

HOLYDAY

As this Thursday, May 2, is Ascension Thursday, no classes will be held. The day is a holyday of obligation, however, and attendance at Mass is compulsory for all Catholics under pain of mortal sin.

MOORE AT HEAD OF 'MERIT AWARD' MEN

Junior Artsman Receives Seven Certificates at Conferral Last Wednesday

(Complete List on Inside Pages.)

Leading the student body with seven certificates, Thomas J. Moore, junior artsman, was "high man" at the annual conferral of "Merit Awards," held last Wednesday, May 1, in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium.

In the presence of the faculty heads, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., M. S., LL. D., president of the college, distributed 456 awards to 240 students in recognition of their participating in extra-curricular activities and good scholastic standing.

Recipients took part in 59 activities under the supervision of 25 faculty moderators. The certificates given marked an increase of 22 per cent over the number of awards made last year and a 16 per cent increase in the number of students receiving them.

Second to Moore in the number of awards received was Loring A. Jones, freshman commerce man, with six. Seven students followed with five certificates each, while 231 received four awards or less.

Santaniello Made L. K. D. President

Joseph S. Santaniello became the new President of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity of the School of Science, the tabulated election results of last Friday showed. He succeeds Charles G. Martin, last year's President.

The remainder of the successful ballot included Joseph C. Koch, Vice-President; Robert R. Dugan, Treasurer; Joseph M. Gambescia, Secretary; Peter C. Yankauskas, Sergeant-at-Arms; and Robert W. Kiley, fraternity representative to the student government council.

Santaniello has long been active in the Fraternity's affairs and has been included on many of its executive committees, notably that of the Annual Fall Dance of the L. K. D. His ranking in his class has consistently been quite high, and he has been a staff writer of the VILLANOVAN for three years.

Those relinquishing offices include Martin, Kiley, Koch, Santaniello, Thomas, and A. Bongiovanni.

The L. K. D. Fraternity has long been active on the Villanova campus. Its membership is restricted to the students of the Science School, and once every year it engages in an initiation of new members whose qualifications must meet the stipulations contained in the constitution.

Flag, Socials Are Both In Ascendancy

Orchids To The Junior Class Executive Stalwarts!

DEDICATION:

To the "backbone" of Junior Week, the various Chairmen of the festivities of the Class of 1941, to their loyal assistant Committeemen, and to the entire Junior Class in this its own particular seven day period of celebration the staff of the VILLANOVAN dedicates this issue of the paper.

However humble this token of admiration and congratulations may be, it is nevertheless dedicated with all the sincerest of sentiments of which man is capable. All the heartfelt esteem and good wishes for the Juniors is contained in the offering. We are not offering gold, frankincense, or myrrh, but we do proffer as much loyalty, support, and regards as can physically be mustered.

For months now the various organizers of Junior Week and other Junior functions have really labored sincerely and unselfishly in prospect of this, their Week. With today's exercises their plans take concrete form, there heretofore aetherial blueprints are being constructed materially. Primarily, then, we salute the various Chairmen of this traditional week for their untiring labors. May all the finest of pleasures be theirs.

Next in line for unadulterated, deserved praise are the various Committeemen who cooperated so well with their respective Chairmen. Theirs is a more obscure position when glory is being passed out. But it is the intention of this dedication to expose them to their share of honors. We warmly wish them well and unprecedented joy and happiness in their Junior Week.

Since this is the week which spotlights the third year men, the whole Junior Class has a reserved nook in our journalistic hearts. To each and every bearer of the class title, Junior, we curtsy with unfeigned good will. Their Junior Week will most certainly be of a correspondingly high quality to match their value as a model class of Villanova College.

Last and yet first before all others, we pay tribute to Fr. John R. Dunne, O. S. A., Junior Class Moderator, who has borne on his shoulders the weighty "fulcrum" of all the involved "leverage" for this week-long celebration. His has been the responsibility, his the highest executive position, and to him goes our largest, most select laurels. A superlative, difficult, and fully-cooperative job you have accomplished, Fr. Dunne. Many Congratulations!

How To Go "Ritzy"

For the benefit of resident students unfamiliar with Philadelphia, we here outline the best auto and train routes to the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, site of the Junior Dinner Dance next Saturday.

1. Shortest and least complicated route: Leave Villanova on Lancaster Ave. and follow it through to 32d St., where it joins Market St. As you come to this intersection, bear left and go straight in Market to Broad St. (City Hall).
2. In Lancaster Ave. to City Line. Turn left, follow City Line to East River Drive where you bear right. Follow Drive, which eventually becomes the Parkway, to Broad St. (City Hall).
3. In Haverford Ave. to 63rd St. Turn right and follow 63d to Market St. Turn left and follow Market to Broad St. (City Hall).
4. Take P. & W. to 69th St. Then take "L" at 69th to 15th St., one block west of City Hall.

JUNIORS COMMENCE ACTIVITIES TODAY

Traditional Ceremonies Begun at 9:00 A. M.; Mother's Day, Open House Featured

By HOWARD McCALL

Junior Week was solemnly ushered in by the members of the class of 1941 today at 9:00 A. M. Mass in the chapel of the Monastery. The class moderator, Rev. John J. Dunne, O. S. A., officiated at the Sacrifice attended by the Junior class. Immediately after the Mass, Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., raised the flag aloft. Presentation of the flag was made by Daniel J. Keating, Junior Class President. This ceremony, a tradition at Villanova, was also celebrated in the presence of third-year students.

Traditional Rites

After the flag solemnities, the group participated in the planting of the Class Ivy at the west corner of the Monastery bordering the walk to Mendel hall. Joseph B. Clarken, Class Secretary, formally presented the ivy to the Dean of the School of Science, Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A. At the presentation and planting, brief speeches were delivered.

At 10:15, the last ceremony of the morning festivities ended. The Class Tree was planted on the lawn before St. Rita's Hall "in symbol of the growing affection, deep-rooted esteem, and hardy love borne Villanova by the 1941 class." Rev. James S. Reilly, O. S. A., Procurator, officially accepted the tree from the hands of James P. Collins, Chairman of the Junior Week activities. They, too, made formal speeches.

Mothers Day Today

Murray P. Zealor, chairman of Mothers Day, has announced that his program will open in the Field House at 1:30 P. M. today with the reception of the mothers and guests and a formal welcoming address by Fr. Albers and himself.

At 2:00 P. M., Belle Masque, the college dramatic society, will present a skit drawn especially for the benefit of the mothers. A half-hour later, the Villanova and Immaculata Spanish Clubs will par-

Modern Business Changes Reflected In Philosophy

Many Forces at Work Today Cause Adjustment of Principles

By REV. JOSEPH C. BARTLEY, O. S. A., Ph. D.
Dean of the School of Commerce and Finance
Dean of the Summer School

WE WHO teach the business courses are confronted not only with an ever-increasing array of facts and figures, but we are faced with the more difficult problem of constantly adjusting our basic philosophy of business.

Business courses, especially those which are based upon a theory, are also based upon a philosophy. No teacher of these courses can teach effectively without a conscious application of the philosophy underlying the matter. When the philosophy itself is shifting, when the main stream spreads out like a delta, as it has during the past ten years, often we have perplexed teachers of perplexed courses.

And how about the poor student? Well, he ends up by being perplexed too. To indulge in somewhat of little experience and had little responsibility. Not so the driver of an exaggeration, "if you don't know where you are or where you have been, you have just finished a course in economics."

Father Bartley

Graduated from Villanova in 1916 with A. B. degree; studied at University of Penna. during summers of 1917-1918; M. A. Villanova, 1919; Ph. D., Catholic University of America, 1922.

Has been teaching at Villanova since 1923; is a professor of business administration. He is dean of the School of Commerce and Finance, the Summer School and the Extension School.

Many Forces at Work

Let me present six of the many forces at work resulting in changes in the philosophy of business:

1. A rising tide of human problems. Probably never before in the history of the world have we been aware of so many material individual and group problems. All the social sciences teem with these problems and offer for some of them attempted solutions.

The nineteenth century was a drama of physical achievements the twentieth century shows that the gain is not all net. Matter was conquered, but men are affected. The driver of a horse and buggy needed a one hundred horsepower car.

Jostling Crowds

We tunnel rivers, but men get the bends; fewer children, but more unsocial conduct; more education, but more crime. The rising tide of human problems grows partly out of rising numbers. The battle with nature in sparsely populated areas has given way to the jostling of crowds of people.

The ease and speed of movement communication is with us. An ear and the unbelievable rapidity of communication is with us. An earthquake in Hong Kong, a tidal wave in Seattle, a gold strike in Johannesburg is on everyone's lips almost as soon as it happens. More problems than ever before, and everyone almost the world over knows of them as soon as they happen.

Democracy Doomed?

2. The spread of democracy through education partly accounts for these human problems. Men are less like animals. They are more like humans. The ballot box, freedom of speech and freedom of press—human rights in a democracy. If the government is democratic, why not industry? If the government takes care of us, why not business? Indeed, we are told, if economic democracy is not attained, political democracy will be doomed.

Social Sciences

3. Human problems arise from the educational process. Big universities and colleges, huge grammar and high schools — all are cooperative enterprises. Intense individualism finds modern education a poor soil in which to grow. The socializing influence develops early, and the student emerges with ideals and concepts far different from those of the self-made man.

These are the days of the social sciences. A generation of business men is now arriving which trained in schools of business and trained in the social sciences. Just as engineering resting on the natural sciences has been remade as the findings of physics, chemistry and biology have opened up new forces and new raw materials, so business resting on the social sciences is surely and swiftly changing many of its concepts.

More Data

4. Research and figures. Every instructor of business courses is aware of the vast mass of statistical data. Years ago, reasoning without facts and figures shaped our concepts. Charged data shifts our philosophy. Witness the popularity of the polls. Social scientists are eagerly awaiting the results of the 1940 census. Its flood of figures will Welcome, Mothers!

IN LESS THAN a week's time, the nation will once again commemorate Mother's Day, which has been established as a day of tribute to our mother, to that one most endeared to us, whom we respect, reverence and love more than any worldly possession.

The word "Mother" is precious in itself, and is a symbol of all that is good, pure, reliable, and true. In our affliction, joy, and in every crisis we constantly find genuine solace in one person alone, Mother.

The students at Villanova have likewise set aside a day in honor of their mothers. Today, with the inauguration of Junior Week, a special program of exhibits and entertainment has been arranged for their enjoyment. The authorities and the students have cooperated in preparing this program, and it is hoped that all the parents will participate in the spirit of the day and enjoy their visit to the college.

Today the parents may view both the progress of the college and the benefits which their sons are deriving from their education in a Catholic institution. In extending a warm and sincere welcome to the mothers on this occasion, the college trusts that "Your Day" has been a source of joy and that it will provide you with many moments of proud recollection.

On With The Dance

OF ALL THE memories which college graduates possess and fondly cherish, none are more vivid that the recollections of the galaxy of social events which occur during Junior Week. For three years, the Juniors look forward to this time, and for the rest of their lives, they look back upon it. Starting with an air of solemnity and academic ceremony and rising rapidly to the peak of social prestige enjoyed by the Prom and Dinner Dance, Junior Week stands alone and unique as a part of the collegiate program of every Villanovan.

Weeks and months have been spent in preparations which will insure a successful and enjoyable series of events in which every junior should consider it his own responsibility to cooperate. Not only is it important that these affairs be the social success that is almost inevitable, but the financial success is imperative. All Juniors who have been reluctant to contribute to the treasury of their class can do their part and get their money's worth by attending one or more of the dances.

The best of luck to the class of '41 and may their Junior Week be one that will be outstanding not only for them and their guests, but it may be singularly eventful in the history of Villanova.

In Re: Rome And Peace

LAST week the Interdenominational Relations Committee of the Methodist Church urged that the President recall Myron C. Taylor from the Vatican, stating that his appointment "has created a spirit of uneasiness and resentment" and is actually endangering peace instead of fostering it. In other words, this group believes that Rome is not qualified to act as a fit court of world peace.

One of the marks of the Church is its Universality. This alone, bringing together many and varied minds the world over who are motivated by one great Christian purpose — the salvation of souls, should indicate that of all centers the Holy See alone is capable of producing unbiased, unselfish, and Christlike judgments on all matters. Here alone can personalities be forgotten, and Greman, Frenchman, Englishman, and Italian, as part of the Catholic clergy, forget nationality lines and strive for world betterment.

Then, too, the present Pontiff can rank among the great diplomats of the present, not because of his position, but because of the intensive training he has received in diplomacy, making him more capable than any other man in Europe of keeping his hand on the pulse of current events.

They seem to forget that, besides being the spiritual head of the Catholic Church, the Holy Father is also the temporal ruler of an independent state, and that Mr. Roosevelt was extending a courtesy due another nation observed by most others in appointing a peace envoy to the Vatican.

If they followed their reasoning to its logical conclusions, they should then urge that the United States break off diplomatic relations with England, for the Crown is also the nominal head of the English Church. The absurdity of this can readily be seen.

As far as endangering peace goes, even a hasty analysis of the pages of history will disclose the non startling fact that the Church has been the only institution which has incessantly been an advocate of just Peace.

RACIAL INJUSTICE

YESTERDAY the Interracial Council of the Philadelphia area met at Villanova College to engage in its regular periodic meeting and to further plan its active campaign for the prevention of social injustice due to racial bias. Villanova heartily participates in this really worth-while mission, and the VILLANOVAN wishes to lend its voice to the propagation of this society. It pledges itself to all the divinely-inspired principles for which the Interracial Council stands.

College Chatter

By Joe McCabe

TODAY officially marks the opening of Junior Week, the long awaited, impatiently anticipated event in every college student's life.

As the first day of this week of social activity is known jointly as Mother's Day and Open House, it is to our honored guests and friends of Villanova that this column is respectfully dedicated.

Possibly some the the mothers have seen their sons' names mentioned under this heading and wondered whether their "little boys" were behaving. I apologize if I've caused any apprehension, as what is printed herein is all in fun and merely attempts to add a little spice to college days.

Who Does This Remind You Of?
What's Your College, Bud?

A college student is of a strange species
Whose characteristics are subject for theses:
For a definition of the average type
We includes the one who smokes a pipe;
Who is forever going to a fraternity meeting
And who has an aversion to others cheating;
Who owns a dozen Arrow shirts
And goes to class in fits and spurts;
Who wears a shabby reversible coat
And cannot wait until he's able to vote;
Who is ready for vacation at the end of September
And who wears white shoes in mid-December.

—The Old Maid.

It appears that in the latest issue of the "Immaculatan," under the column affectionately headed "Spice," there is a little note directed at this column. Saying, in effect, that mayhem would be committed should the College Chatterer put in an appearance at the noble institution.

The item places its cause of resentment on the fact that this columnist has shown distinterest toward the girls as being "too far away." "Why it it," they continue, "the Hawks and Explorers managed to find their way up hyar when located farther away?"

Not possessing first hand information, Miss Snoop, I rely on the reports of my spies who were among those aiding in the success of your Fashion Show. When such stalwart Villanovans as Andy Melton, Tom Lyons, Johnnie Burke, Bill Duffy, et al., receive invitations to act as escorts come Friday night. I should bow down and eat my words. Such being the case, my hat it off to all the fair lassies of Immaculata and apology is made. In the future, we shall be more careful as to what we say about those "too far away" poor girls! ! !

A sure sign that Prom time is once again at hand is the scarcity of cigarettes. At this stage of the game, one cigarette may be divided between two or three individuals before being discarded. . . . Why is it that Kull and Steller insist upon heckling Ed Steinhardt? Could it be that the boy has a disease, or is it just the "happiness boys" method of being "cute?" . . . Bernie McMonigle getting all "set" for the big dance up the road. He's looking for a double breasted "tux" in order to show off his V-shaped frame. Calling a "Howard Dandy!"

We hear that the dayhoppers who come out with Dave Reardon in his new Ford are protesting because he refuses to turn on the radio. According to the hackie, "Music is for when I go out at night; it only runs down the battery to turn it on in the morning for the entertainment of mere cash-paying customers."

Some of the boys advise that they held a reunion with the effervescent Ray Clemente at the Penn Relays. Seems that the former Villanovan, who now works for duPont's, attended Rutgers extension school for a while this year and is still paying off for damages inflicted on a laboratory when his fellow Penn's Grovites furthered a feud with students from a neighboring Jersey city.

Introducing

By JOSEPH A. BARNES
Sports Editor

Ex-Sports Editor Dunn, Villanova's True Son; Has Our Admiration

STEP UP!

"I was the smartest, most versatile, boy in high school . . ."

It was Fediganite Phil Dunn speaking in answer to a query for material for this crushing blow at journalism. Believing that we were getting horsed around, as usual, we ventured one more query, "what gave you most pleasure at Villanova?"

Now if friend Phillip had been honest we would have heard of lengthy trips to Germantown and the girl friend and other little juicy Winchellisms concerning the lives and loves of Phillip the Greater, ruler of 207 Fedigan, (knock twice and tell them that Joe sent you.) but it seems that our good fran was in a bit of a joshing mood for he answered to the effect that sport editing the VILLANOVAN held top spot in the vicinity of rib number three.

To anyone else Mr. Dunn could have handed this bit of blarney and gotten away with it, but this writer happens to know both friend Phil and the sport editing job too well to fall for such a line. Therefore we gave up attempts at third-degreeing Mr. Dunn and began questing information from his Fedigan brethren.

Cheesy Bribe

From those erudite gentlemen we learned many an interesting tale of our subject, and we were all set to print them but Phil done bribed us with a none-too-good cheese sandwich and so we won't tell. Ach, the ethics of journalism!

Phil rooms with "Heez" Dunnigan officially and Bill Gillespie unofficially meaning that Dunnigan pays for the privilege while Gillespie just comes around to enjoy the atmosphere and the bridge games at which Dunn is a self-styled expert.

Hailing from Harrisburg and that town's Catholic High School Phil possesses varied talents running from baseball to truck driving. In the former Phil says he can do anything but bat; in the latter he can do everything but tell whether a traffic light is red or green. Quite an expert lad!

No Foul Ball

However, Phil's baseball talents aren't as bad as he would have you believe. Four years ago he played on the Freshman nine and for the past three years he has starred in intramurals. The same can't be said for his driving though!

Other activities of the Harrisburg lad include a position in the student council, two years of service in the band, Holy Name Society president, Belle Air Ball Publicist and sport editing this noble weekly.

It was in the latter activity that Phil did his outstanding work. Succeeding Joe Pagano early in 1939, Phil took over the sport page reins until January of this year and elevated the pages to higher standards than they ever before reached. He transformed his pages from a weekly review to an up-to-the-minute news section, sparkling with freshness and reader-interest. His greatest thrill, he claims, was receiving a traveling kit from his staff members at the conclusion of his term of office.

Dunn In!

PHILLIP M. DUNN

Universal Beau Brummel

In connection with his VILLANOVAN career there is one bit of Winchellistics that must be passed on despite that cheese sandwich. Last Fall Phil and other staff officers of this paper travelled to Detroit for the Villanova-Detroit football game. Now all of us knew of Phil's way with the women. We knew he had them stretched across the state of Pennsylvania, but who was to expect the lad to turn up with a date in the wilds of Dearborn, Michigan. So while five would-be "lady killers" amused themselves in such thrilling ways as playing hopper-hopper (Ask Jim Collins how) and walking the streets of Detroit friend Phillip played the debonair gentleman and enjoyed the company of a comely Miss who seemed to have been anxiously awaiting the moment of Phil's arrival. This Cassanova guy was just a piker compared to Phil.

"When in Rome do as the Romans do" is Phil's motto and he practices what he preaches by dabbling in politics up home in Harrisburg, where the Republicans and Mr. Dunn are in their glory. Phil goes home every election day, "just to let the boys know I came up to vote for them." Cagey people these Fediganites!

It Worked!

A fellow C. & F.er tells us of the time Phil had an accounting problem in an exam and after pages and pages of detailed work he found himself a few cents short on the company's balance sheet. Nonplussed Phil merely added to the asset column: "Contributed by Phil Dunn . . . 6c!" The guys a genius!

Phil takes his sheepskin in June of this year which leaves Fedigan without its bridge star and Villanova without a swell guy, which is the best way of describing the gent.

As for his future Phil is not definite. Three fields are open to him and in any of the trio he would be a distinct asset to his boss. Number one is politics followed by journalism and accounting. He has the personality for the first, the natural ability for the second, and brains for the last so success is inevitable as long as he remains the same modest, jovial Phil Dunn.

STEP DOWN!

Equipment Room General Val Mighty Efficient, Everyone's Pal

By THOMAS MURASKI

SCENE 1—

Time: Any P. M. between 1:00 and 5:00 P. M.

Place: Down the cinder path to the red brick field house.

Action: Villanova's typical afternoon. Rush in, get a towel, and off again swimming, basketball or whatever you have up your "sleeve." We were there yesterday, we're doing it today and we will do it again tomorrow, with little or no thought of how we always get a clean suit, a clean towel, a clean locker room, and without any difficulty at all.

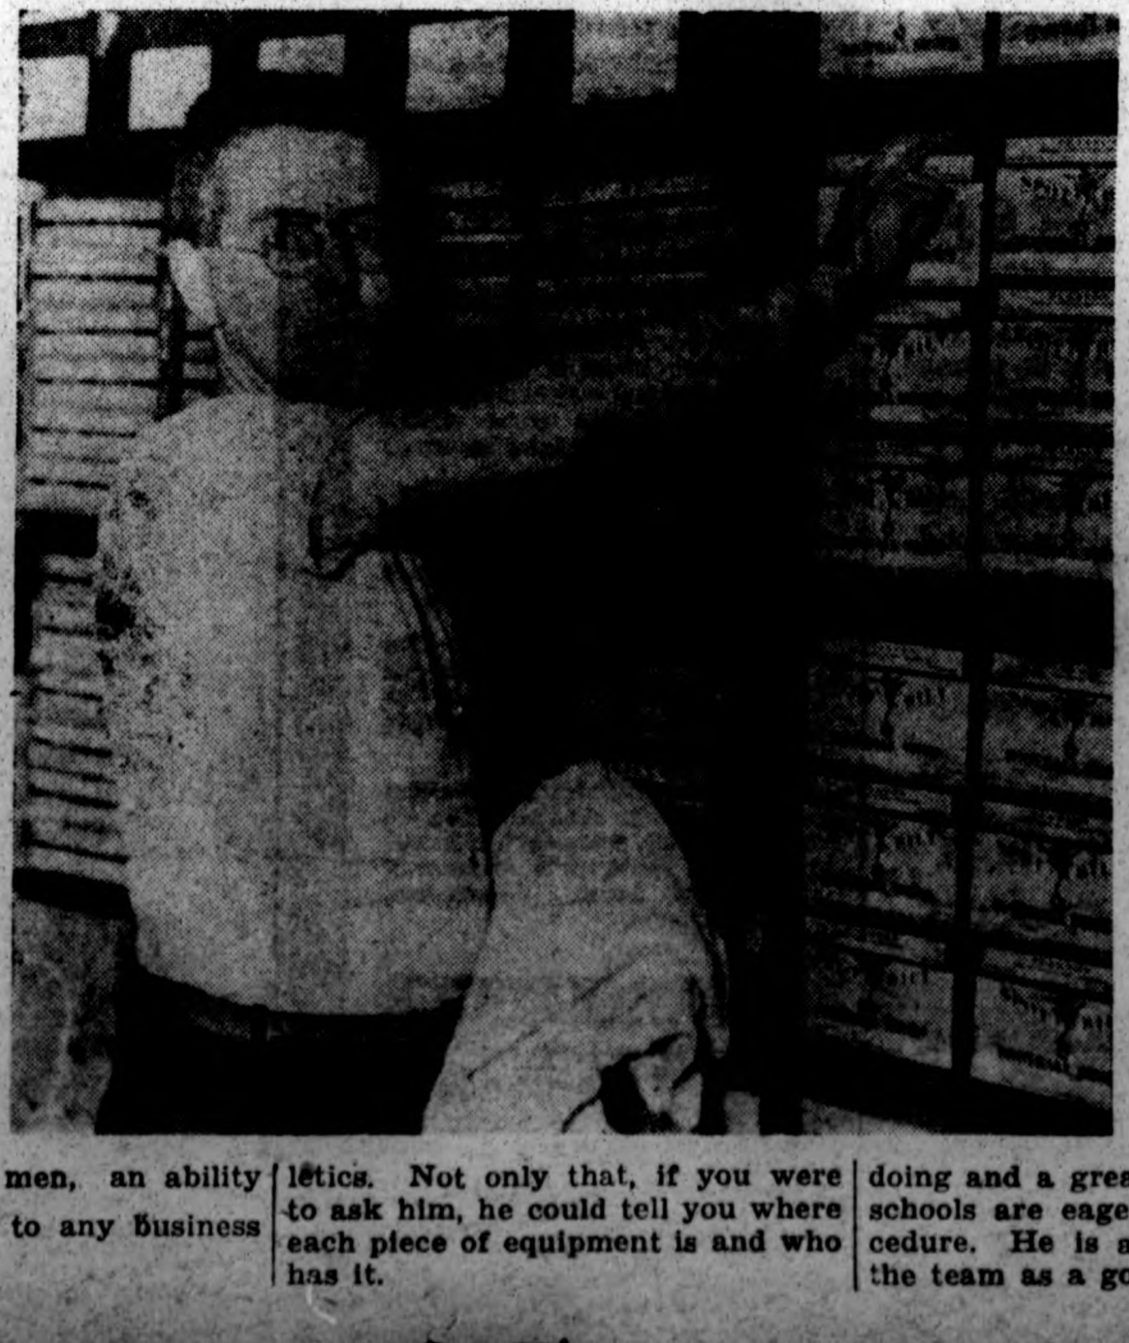
Let's backtrack and find more about the situation. "Oh! Yes! Here is the fellow from whom we get our suits and towels. "Hello Val. How are you? My name is the student body." "Hello Boys. Glad to meet you, my name is Val Berney."

We went to see what kind of fellow he is. This is answered by the jovial "hello" and the never-fading smile. "Clipper" Smith in commenting on his abilities expressed the boys' attitude on this point very well: "He has simplified his job and made it a pleasant task because of his ability to understand young men, an ability which is an asset to any business he may be in.

Let's see what he does. Notable among his daily tasks are cleaning drying on the average 130 towels, not counting suits, socks, etc. They are always clean. After "all out" he checks up to see that everything is in order, the floor clean, shower-rooms dry, etc. Before and after a game there is packing and unpacking, sorting and drying. Then when the season is over, the final cleaning is given and the moth balls are resorted to.

All this and much more passed over that little counter in the basement on the east side of the field house, the hub of Villanova's athletics. Not only that, if you were to ask him, he could tell you where each piece of equipment is and who has it.

Val started working here some two years ago, inaugurating a unique system of checking and rechecking in the issuing of equipment. When one receives full regala (equipment) he signs "out" for it on a card which Val files away in the proper place, but that isn't all, he keeps a list of all loaned equipment on a master file which tells at glance who has what. This together with an orderly arrangement of equipment on the shelves facilitates the process of checking up or of taking inventory.



More Praise

The condition of the room can be shown by the comment of "Bob" Whalen: "He is very efficient, and as a result of his fine work the equipment room is one of the show places of the Field House. We are always proud to take visiting coaches or other visitors down to look our place over."

Val, who hails from West Philly, meets nearly all the boys, and thinks them a nice lot. He likes his work and claims he "has no kick coming." In winding up his comment "Clipper" puts a grand finish to this story: "I am personally proud of the job he is doing and a great number of other schools are eager to copy our procedure. He is as much a part of the team as a good tackle."

the 'CATS' MEOW!

By Tom Moore

WITH the conclusion of the varsity debate schedule for the current season, plans are being formulated for a bigger and better campaign next year. Students are prone to discount the benefits derived from participation in debate both as competitors and spectators. Every one likes to play a game, and a mental game, such as debating, is the most interesting of all.

Next year it is hoped that Villanovans will come to a realization that debating is not just an ancient form of argumentation, usually on obsolete and valueless topics, but a game of skill, a game of the highest caliber which benefits both the contestants and the audience.

Pertinent and up-to-date subjects are sure to be chosen and anyone with a well rounded education should be versed in such matters. Let's hope that next year will witness an enlivened interest and participation in debating here at Villanova.

Statistics:

One person in forty has a college or university degree.

There are 1709 institutions of higher learning in the nation. (In describing some of them, we could dispense with the first adjective.)

A typical college student has a vocabulary of 60,000 words. (We might have a hard time convincing our English teachers of this.)

Good News for Seniors:

According to reports from a number of colleges which operate employment agencies, there is a marked increase in the demand for technically trained men in the various fields of engineering and business administration. It would appear that employers are becoming more "personnel minded."

The director of the N. Y. U. bureau of employment has even gone so far as to predict that by next fall there will be a 100% employment of his engineering graduates.

College Education Seems to Pay:

Statistics from the department of labor indicate that the average wage for a college man after his first year is about $1,300. After eight years it is about $2,400. For women the same figures show that after eight years, a co-ed can expect to make about $2,000. This is a general average and does not indicate the average in any particular profession.

PIANO RECITAL ENDS SEMINARS ON MUSIC

Fr. Handran Traces History of Instrument at Last Meeting of Year

Concluding the presentations of the Music Seminar for the present school year, Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., M. Mus., illustrated and explained the topic, "The Piano and What It Can Do," at the meeting of the seminar in Simpson hall last Wednesday.

Beginning with a short history of the development of the piano, Fr. Handran explained how and why the instrument came into being. He began with the desire for an instrument with a keyboard and traced the development through the clavichord, the harpsichord, and the 'piano e forte' to the present instrument.

Following his historical commentary, he demonstrated how the piano can be used to imitate other instruments and connote ideas through its sounds. This ability of the piano was illustrated by such things as an imitation of a train and the playing of the "Rustle of Spring."

Fr. Handran played a number of musical pieces written for the piano, such as Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," and then finished the lecture-recital by taking Stephen Foster's "Way Down Upon the Swanee River" and demonstrated how various composers such as Wagner, Liszt, Schubert, Strauss and Chopin would have composed it for the piano.

be interpreted and evaluated. We shall have more data about human problems.

Growing Markets

5. An ever-widening scope of business with greater interdependence. Local markets have given way to world markets, small scale to large scale production. As a result, new points of view have emerged. Horizons are broader; far more interests must be considered. Automatic controls are not sensitive enough; there are too many factors liable to get out of balance. Hence, a recognition that each part of the machine depends on other parts, and that no part can be an independent unit.

Higher Standards

6. Finally, a higher level of standards of living. The necessities are produced in superabundance. The amount of time required to turn them out is but a fraction of the total productive effort available.

This means that, as labor saving devices have multiplied, an ever-increasing portion of productive effort is devoted to utilities for the upper levels of living. More products in the comfort and luxury classes. All this changes greatly the degree of stability in business, increases the risks of unemployment, and changes the concept of what constitutes a decent living.

All these forces call for a newly-modeled philosophy of business.

Tid-Bits

Dividing the topic into discussions of the Origin and Implications of the Monroe Doctrine and the Pan-American Relations, the members of the International Relations Club discussed the "Monroe Doctrine" at their meeting last Wednesday in Simpson Hall.

Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., M. A., conducted the discussion and announced that there will be no meeting held during the next two weeks.

"Problems in Air-conditioning a Spinning Mill," were discussed in a paper presented by John J. Seelaus, senior engineer, at the national convention of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, held at the Newark College of Engineering on April 29.

The members of the convention were afterwards invited to dinner at the Newark A. C. There they were greeted by the president of Newark College and the national vice-president of the A. S. C. E.

While at the college, the members inspected the various mechanical engineering and chemistry laboratories.

"Analysis of urine, though of immense value in diagnosis, can never be taken as a specific cause for diagnosis," stated Joseph M. Gambescia, freshman science man, in a lecture given last Wednesday before the members of the Research Seminar.

"The body metabolism and the urine are so closely connected that any pathology present within the system or in specific organs soon becomes manifest in the urine. For this reason urinalysis becomes of prime importance," he stated.

The Second Annual Banquet of the Mathematics Club will be held on May 22 at Erskine Hall in Ardmore. Highlighting the occasion will be the presentation of keys to twenty-two members of the society, and a speech by the Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A.

At this time, Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, will be received as an honorary member of the club and will be presented with a key.

The Annual Alumni Banquet of the Chemical Society will be held May 18 in the College Dining Hall. At the affair a member of each graduating class will relate his experiences since graduation as well as those of his classmates.

On Wednesday, May 1, the senior members of the society made an inspection trip to the Link Belt Company, Philadelphia, makers of endless-belt conveyors.

William N. Way, junior artsman, will give a talk on "Epistemology" at the next Philosophy Seminar meeting. The seminar, directed by Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., Ph. D., will meet as usual on Thursday, May 9, at 1:15 P. M. in Simpson hall.

Due to the holiday last Thursday and to the senior comprehensive exams of the previous week, no meetings of the seminars were held for the past two weeks.

Debate Schedule Ends With Penn

Beta Gamma Starts Planning for Improved Competition, Membership Next Year

Villanova's varsity debate team concluded their schedule for the year last Monday evening when they met the University of Pennsylvania at the Philomuseum Club in Philadelphia.

The topic of discussion was, "Resolved: That the United States Should Furnish All Material Aid to England and France in the Present European Conflict, Short of Armed Assistance."

Representing Villanova were John J. Raney, senior engineer, and Thomas J. Moore, junior artsman, who upheld the affirmative. William Angeand Fred Griffiths upheld the negative side of the argument for Penn.

Plans are already underway for next year when Beta Gamma plans an improved schedule and an increased membership to promote greater activity and interest in debating.

A CAREER in Search of Men

Statistics show a decrease among practicing dentists in recent years while the number of professional men in other fields has increased. This can largely be attributed to advanced standards in dental schools.

The Marquette University Dental School is one of the 18 dental schools of the United States whose diplomas are recognized in all of the states.

The close relationship of the Dental and Medical Schools at Marquette University is an advantage to students.

Entrance requirements: Two years in a recognized College of Liberal Arts with satisfactory credits in biology, chemistry, and physics.

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

Sportorial

By Joe Barnes

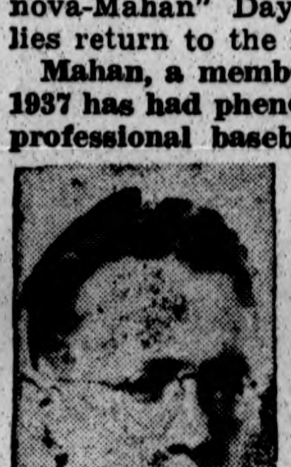
ARTIE MAHAN'S success in his first big league baseball game with the Phillies has prompted several of his followers on the Villanova campus to suggest that he be honored with a "Villanova-Mahan" Day when the Phillies return to the home terrain.



Mahan, a member of the class of 1937 has had phenomenal success in professional baseball and although at this writing he has had only 2 opportunities to play for the Phils he amazed all lookers in his first performances and dyed-in-the-wool baseball fans feel sure that Art will make the grade.

The "Mahan Day" idea strikes favorably in the eyes of this column. An entire section along the first base line (Art is a first sacker) could be reserved for Villanova students, friends, and alumni. The idea would be novel in that most "player days" are given by the man's hometown and rarely by his alma mater.

Why not use the idea as a fundraising plan for Father Falvey's library campaign. We feel sure that the Phillies would be willing. All that is needed is Villanova instigation. The Philies will return home around May 14th.

Spring practice for Clipper Smith's gridders reached its grand finale last Friday afternoon with the packing away of the moleskins until the opener with Pennsylvania Military College next October. The practice sessions gave some inkling of what is to be expected of the 'Cats next Fall. They will doubtless present a line-up far above average, but whether the line-up will be able to cope with the tough schedule arranged is another matter. Such clubs as Duquesne, Detroit, Baylor, Florida and the rest present formidable opposition and Temple, under new-coach Ray Morrissión looks pretty good in spring drills.

It bears down to a question of whether the Cats will possess those indefinable qualities that rest in Clipper Smith and which were a major factor in the startling success of the 1937 club. The papers call it being an "opportunist" which is just as good a name as any. The ability to lie in wait for an opponent's mistake and cash in on it for touchdowns has been the main forte of Villanova teams in past three years.

That this system is near perfect is unquestionable—when you have the players to make it work, the Olivari, Wysocki, types. The boys better be quick on the draw next fall for the opposition lined up by Clipper and the Vince doesn't make many mistakes.

One opponent mistake is usually enough for Clipper's boys.

Softballs are filling the air on every playing field on the campus lately with the C. & F. Dayhops and the P. K. P. fraternity boys organizing leagues to compete with that run by the residence halls. It is just another step in the advancement of the intramural system here.

Spring Practice Completed Gridders Relax Once More

Seven Week Session of Physical and Mental Practice Completed by Wildcats; Stress, Dhue, Kolenda, Only Injured Participants

Spring football practice, as a prevue glimpse of Villanova's gridiron strength next fall, officially reached its finis Friday, after seven weeks of intensive drilling under Coaches Clipper Smith and Vince McNally.

Until the return of the varsity men next fall, when practice again resumes, the two coaches will surrender their time to analyzing the way for an undefeated Wildcat team. A nine game schedule makes the Clipper shudder slightly as he reviews those nine weeks of gridiron pressure. This year's list of opponents presents Villanova's greatest card in Football history.

Birds-Eye View

The past seven weeks have imparted to Clipper and Vince a birds-eye view of the abilities of his group of aspirants. A decisive test was given to last year's yearlings emphasizing the adoption of his numerous and varied plays and formations.

Foremost in everyday instruction was the practice of fundamentals, pass defense, and blocking. Lack of these requisites proved to have damaging effects in some of last year's games, but now have steadily improved during this spring encounter.

Thursday was set aside as "movie-day," but not with the frolic of Mickey Mouse, nor the dramatic triumphs of Robert Taylor. Games of last year and previous years were reviewed closely and each play was singularized by Clipper.

Mental Tests Given

The mental I. Q. for the football squad given on Fridays, completed the third element of Spring prac-

OVER 400 ENTRIES ALREADY RECEIVED FOR TRACK MEET

Thirteen Events Scheduled for Annual Scholastic Meet; Sanction Received

With entries from most of the competing schools already in, Coach James F. "Jumbo" Elliott has announced that the Thirteenth Annual Interscholastic Track and Field Meet, sanctioned by the P. I. A. A., held under Villanova's auspices, will be "bigger and better than ever."

High schools and prep schools from five states have already entered over 400 athletes. The contestants will compete in thirteen track and field events in each of three classes: class "A," closed to Philadelphia Suburban High Schools; class "B" open to all other high schools; and class "C," open to all preparatory schools.

Seven high schools new to the meet have already entered, along with two prep schools which have not competed before. Indications are that at least three additional prep schools will enter, while a few more high schools are expected. Besides this, most of the 43 schools represented last year have returned.

Of the new schools entered, Mt. St. Joseph High School, of Baltimore, Long Branch, N. J., High, Pierre S. duPont High, of Wilmington, and Ridley Township High appear to have the best chances of upsetting the "old" entries in the chase for the class "B" championship. St. Benedict's Prep, of Newark, has a better-than average hope of winning the class "C" cup they did not compete for last year.

But, on the pre-meet figuring, it is the schools who were entered last who are favored to win the titles in their respective classes. This is especially true of the class "A" and prep school teams. Norristown High, which far outdistanced Ridley Park and other competitors in the Suburban class in 1939 in the point standings, has entered a full team this year. Seton Hall, which piled up 121 points to the 20 points of their nearest rival, Haverford School, will bring its team over from Jersey again and will rule favorite to repeat.

But the bitterest fight of the day will probably be waged in the class "B" division, where any of the several teams can come through. Overbrook, which beat out West Catholic last year on the slim margin of a victory in the mile relay, will make its bid to retain the

Rams End Wildcat Streak On Diamond By 5-4 Score As Blue Rally Falls Short

Villanova Nine Loses Despite Fine Pitching by O'Leary and Hard-Hitting by Flood; Loyola Nine Succumbs Easily to Cat Attack

By JOE BARNES,
Sports Editor

End of the line came for "Doc" Jacob's baseball express last Saturday afternoon at Fordham Field, New York City, when the Rams of Rose Hill squelched a valiant Villanova ninth inning rally and halted the blue by a 5-4 score.

Connie O'Leary did the hurling for Villanova while the loudly heralded sophomore star, Ed Alex, tossed for Fordham. O'Leary allowed the Rams eight hits while the Villanova batters touched the offerings of Mr. Alex for a total of seven bingles.

Fordham drew first blood in the second inning with two runs and held Villanova scoreless until the fifth when Yednock and Reitmeir crossed the plate to tie up the ball game.

The knotted count did not last long, however, for the Fordhams came back in their half of the fifth and nicked O'Leary for three more runs, their last of the ball game but enough to halt the Villanova winning streak after six games had been salted away as assets.

Scoring Stopped

Scoring was stopped and a pitcher's battle ensued until the Villanova half of the ninth inning when George Balmore, 'Cat outfielder, drew one of the three walks allowed by Ed Alex to start a Villanova uprising. Pash, who started the game in Nick Basca's right field slot, followed with a single to send the fleet Balmore to third helped by a Ram error.

Joey Yednock grounded out, scoring Balmore and chasing Pash to second. Flood's third single of the day brought Pash to third and he scored the second and last Villanova run of the evening on Nick Basca's fly out to right field. Basca was batting for pitcher Connie O'Leary.

The Villanova rally and the ball game came to a finish when Alex struck out Reitmeir for the Fordham hurler's eighth strikeout of the afternoon.

Outstanding at the plate for Villanova was George Flood who took nicely to the offerings of Alex and collected three safeties on four trips to the platter. Yednock, Pash, Donaghue, Lazorchak.

It was the first game of the year that Balmore and Rice failed to dent the scoreboard with at least one hit.

"Pet" Petrino, Fordham's hard-hitting clean-up man, led the Ram attack with four hits out of four trips.

Outstanding fielding play of the afternoon from a Villanova point-of-view was a slick double-play engineered by Bob Pash and first baseman Jake Donaghue.

Last Tuesday saw Connie Nicholas repeating his 1939 victory over Loyola College in Baltimore as the

New England Trip Begins At Williams

Western Maryland Host to Cats Wednesday Afternoon

By FRED CLARK

This week the baseball team enters into the most strenuous and also what may prove to be the toughest part of its schedule for the 1940 campaign. The varsity will play four games in six days and the fact that all these games are to be played away from home does not make the task any easier.

On Wednesday the Wildcats journey down to Maryland where they will lock horns with the "Green Terrors" of Western Maryland. After two days' rest Doc Jacobs' men do an about-face and head north for the badlands of New England where they will meet Williams College, Providence College and Boston College on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

These three colleges represent the cream of the college baseball crop up New England way and if the Cats can pull two of these games out of the fire they will be performing no mean feat.

Traditional Trip

This New England trip is fast becoming a tradition in the annals of Villanova baseball history and this is rightly so for usually on these trips the most exciting and closest games of the year are played. Last year the Cats met the same three teams and in two of the games one run was the deciding margin while in the other game there was only a two run difference in the final score. The Wildcats defeated Williams 2-0 and dropped decisions to Boston College and Providence by the scores of 5-4 and 1-0.

Boston College showed that they have a team worth watching when they defeated the highly rated Fordham University nine. The Friars of Providence College also showed plenty of class in going down to defeat before Holy Cross, the Red Sox Jay Vee's, by the score of 7 to 3. Losing to Holy Cross is no disgrace for any team.

"Baseball Still National Pastime," Says Villanova Coach "Doc" Jacobs

In the opinion of George "Doc" Jacobs, Villanova's renowned baseball coach, the diamond sport is still the national pastime of American youth, regardless of the statistics that might be presented as to other games making inroads and reducing the number of boys playing the game."

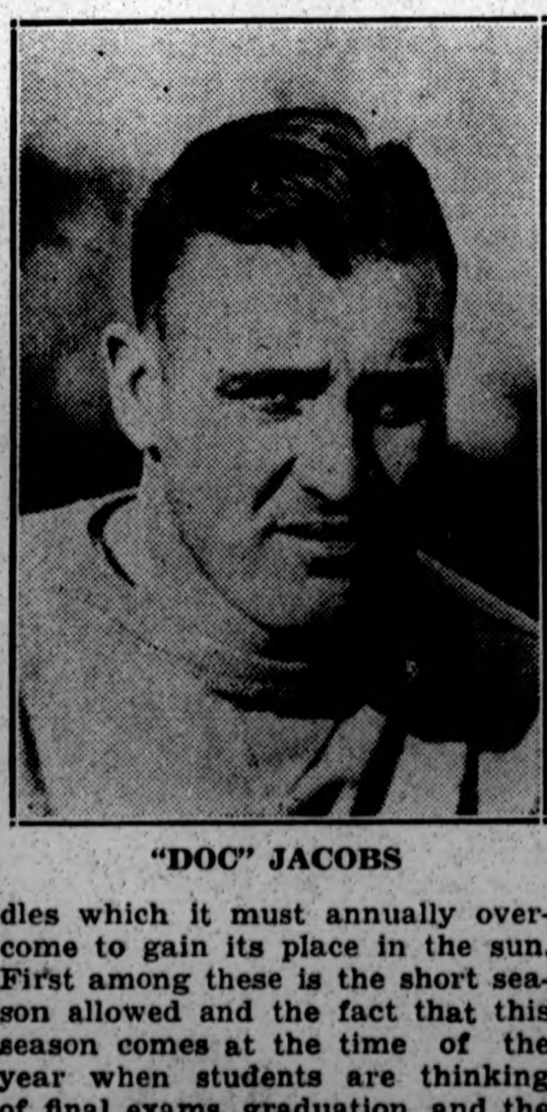
"Doc" believes that baseball today as yesterday, comes into its own when the season rolls around just as football, basketball and the rest enjoy top popularity in their own seasons.

High School Ball Popular

In support of this claim the Villanova coach brought out the facts concerning the popularity of college and high school baseball despite the many hurdles they must overcome, such as weather conditions, difficulty in finding suitable playing space, and competition with organized professional baseball. "In many sections of the country," said Jacobs, "high schools have their own leagues and hold playoffs at the end of the season to determine the sectional champion."

One New Jersey high school made a trip through the South during their spring vacation, meeting top-notch schools along the route, according to "Doc."

In speaking of college baseball Jacobs mentioned three great hurdles which it must annually overcome to gain its place in the sun. First among these is the short season allowed and the fact that this season comes at the time of the year when students are thinking of final exams, graduation, and the elusive summer vacation.



"DOC" JACOBS

Lack of Publicity

Secondly Doc says that college baseball loses some of its appeal because of lack of publicity in newspapers which devote ninety percent of their sporting pages to professional ball at this time of the year.

Thirdly Jacobs claims that college ball must view with the pros for spectator patronage and the baseball fan usually chooses the big leaguers for their entertainment.

Despite all this "Dic" brings out the fact that there are more colleges playing baseball now than there were ten years back. "In fact," says Jacobs, "within the state of Pennsylvania there have been several colleges which returned to the game after a lapse of a few years."

Professional baseball has also been growing (from fifteen organized leagues in 1931 to thirty in 1939) also so Doc's point that baseball has a greater hold on the attention of Americans than ever before is well brought out.

Enviable Spot for Blue

Speaking of baseball here at Villanova "Doc" mentioned the seventy-odd years of competition which the Wildcats have successfully gone through. He said that although he can't tell much about the early years of the sport here,

Fediganites Blast Alumni In Intramural Hardball

League-Leading Austin Hall Nine Also Winner in Nightcap of Thursday Doubleheader; Fedigan Holds Second Slot in Loop

By WALT BROWN

Last Thursday two intramural hardball games which had formerly been postponed were played. The morning game between Fedigan and Alumni proved to be a rout with Fedigan winning easily 21-2, but the afternoon game was interesting, being close right up to the last inning when intersting, being close right up to the last inning when Austin rallied and downed Mendel 7-2.

In the morning game Grigalonas pitched the entire game for Fedigan and allowed only four hits and two runs. This was Grigalonus' second win in as many starts. In the first inning D'Ippolito, the first man up for Alumni tripled, but failed to score because Geipe flied out, and on McFadden's slow roller D'Ippolito was caught at home; McFadden reaching first on the fielders choice, but Skowron was thrown out to end the inning.

Alumni Scores

In the second, however, Alumni collected their only runs of the game getting two runs on one hit. The first two men up flew out but Donnelly, Alumni's catcher, was hit by a pitched ball. Callahan, the next man up, doubled, driving in Donnelly. Callahan stole third and scored on an error. Peterson popped out to end the inning.

After the second inning Grigalunas held the Frosh to two hits, one in the fifth and the other in the sixth.

Fedigan jumped on Peterson, Alumni's starting and losing pitcher for four runs and they added at least two every inning until they massed a total of 21. Alumni used four pitchers in an effort to stop the Fedigan gun, but were unsuccessful.

Austin Comes Back

The afternoon game was a different story. Austin got one in the second but Mendel took the lead by getting two in the fourth. But Austin came back with two in the fifth to regain the lead and hold it. They added four in the seventh to put the game on ice.

Mendel's two runs in the fourth were the result of two hits, a walk and an error. Alplanalp, the first man up, got on base on an error. ed driving in Alpenalp and Apostotolica singled sending Alplanalp to third.

Fallon walked filling the bases with one down. Martin struck out by Disdier, Mendel's pitcher, singled driving in Alpanalp and Apostolica. Elward was thrown out to end the inning.

Cleary Scores

Austin scored their first run in the second when Cleary doubled and scored on Urban's single. Cleary opened the fifth by drawing a walk, Urban struck out, but Aisenbrey singled, driving in Cleary who had stolen second. Hines walked, stole second and took third when Aisenbrey was thrown out first baseman to the catcher. Hines scored a moment later on a passed ball.

This run proved to be the winning run but Austin made sure by collecting four runs in the first half of the seventh on two hits, two errors and a walk.

So far this season Steve Aisenbrey has proved to be the league's leading pitcher with three wins and no losses. However, he is closely pressed b, Grigalonus of Fedigan who has collected two wins in as many starts.

Malone of Mendel is third with one win and one defeat. By next week the leading batters will probably have been decided and they will be listed in this section.

REID, BOUDON STAR IN SOFTBALL TESTS DURING BUSY WEEK

Eight Games Played in I-M Competition, Austin Wins Three

There was quite a bit of action on the softball front last week since eight games were played in all. The Austin team took part in four games: Fedigan, Alumni, and Mendel—three each; and the C&F Day Student teams—one each.

Monday evening saw Austin scalp a Fedigan teame 15-8 behind the pitching of Jim Reid. Although he gave up thirteen hits, Jim spread them so that they did little harm and with his team hitting behind behind him, he had an easy time winning.

Jim, also, aided his team by getting two hits out of three trips to the pate Sidall's pitching for Fedigan allowed thirteen hits also, but errors by his team hurt and caused his downfall. The same evening Alumni had an easy time taking the Mendel team in camp 6-1.

On Tuesday, C&F Juniors met a highly improved C&F Freshmen team, but nosed them out 6-5. The climax came in the last of the eighth when Don McGurk blasted a home run with one man on, to change a 5-4 deficit to a 6-4 win for the Juniors. Errors were costly in this game to both sides.

That evening Austin nosed out Alumni in the same fashion, 10-9. Bob Boudon, who pitched well during the entire game, blasted a home run in the last inning, with a man on, to win his own game. King pitched effectively for Alumni but a big fifth in which Austin got six runs proved costly. Fitzgerald of Austin, had a perfect evening at bat and scored two of the winner's ten runs.

Also, Tuesday evening, Fedigan overshadowed a Mendel team 13-5. Fitzmaurice, the winning pitcher, proved effective from the beginning, by keeping the batters puzzled. Gillespie's home run was the best batting feat of the game.

On Wednesday afternoon, the C&F Sophomores took Austin in camp 15-1. However, this is not the team which competes in the other Austin games. Wednesday evening saw Jim Reid again show his stuff by holding Mendel to five hits and only one run, while Austin massed a total of nine hits and seven runs. Fallon, the Mendel pitcher, did his best to turn the tide, getting two of his team's five hits and scoring their only run. But Austin proved too much for him alone.

The Fedigan-Alumni game Wednesday evening was called off on account of darkness with the count knotted at six all. This game will be played again sometime in the near future.

JOE YEDNOCK LEADS BASEBALL HITTERS WITH .440 AVERAGE

Rice Second Among Batters; Nine Men Bat Over .300

Third baseman Joe Yednock, the ball-slapping sophomore from Phoenixville, leads the parade of hitters on the Villanova baseball team with an average of .440. To compile this mark Yednock has collected eleven hits in 25 trips to the plate. He has brought in seven Villanova runs.

Following Yednock is Lloyd Rice, hefty senior and former basketball player. Rice has hit 12 bingles out of 31 trips. Rice's 12 hits tie him with Wood Reitmeir for the leadership in that department.

The same pair lead in the run-getting department with ten counters apiece.

Third man in the hitting averages is George Flood with a .375 average. Until Saturday's game with Fordham Flood had ranked seventh among the team but his three bingles out of four trips moved his average up from .300.

Bob Pash enjoys a .643 average but he has played in a small portion of the games and has moved to the plate only 14 times. Traitz, substitute firstbaseman collected a hit in his only time at bat for a 1.000 average.

Team hitting follows:

tice. Rigid tests provided for a more accurate show of the thinking capacity and how the players could develop their field generalship. Clipper's system is a check and double-check whereby each player regords his position and his teammate's with reliable efficiency.

This year's tune-up was supplemented by two practice drills against Frankli and Mashall and New York University, here at the Main Line Stadium. The latter team, tutored by a former Yale enthusiast, Mal Stevens, gave way rather easily before the Wildcat charges.

Football took a small toll of injuries for missing from the ranks were Len Kolenda, Harry Dhue, and Stan Stress. Stress's hand was injured during the latter part of the session while Kolenda has been recovering from a knee injury of last Fall. Several minor mishaps were sustained during Spring practice but the players recovered in due time. Shifting their athletic ability to baseball, were Nick Basca, Bill Howlett and Joe Yednock, three "hipper-dippers" of commendable talent.

Opener Oct. 5th

In the Fall the entire ensemble of players will be on hand to face the nine opponents, with the opener marked for Oct. 5th, against the P. M. C. Cadets from Chester. Home grounds for the 'Cats will again be centered at Shibe Park. The following eight weeks will see eight more top schools bringing their fotball juggernauts against the omnipotent Wildcats.

crown. West Catholic is also entered in full force and hopes to gain the crown they missed last year. Other favorites for the championship will be North Catholic, St. Thomas More, Camden Co. Vocational, South Catholic, and Toms River High. Mt. St. Joseph's, always with a good team, is a favorite on the occasion of its first bid. Long Branch High is also rated at the top.

Records in many of the events are expected to fall, with a list of schoolboys who have bettered them in previous performances. Such names as those of the world record-holding Seton Hall relay team of O'Hearn, Fletcher, Collado, and Vincent, who will compete both as a team and as individuals in the middle distances, are present. Dunbar, of West Catholic, who turned in a 49.3 quarter at the Penn Relays, will compete in the half-mile. A teammate of his on West Catholic's record-holding relay team, McCarthy, will run in the quarter, as well as team up with him on the mile relay team.

Henry Hart, Northeast's miler, Randolph Ely, Overbrook's versatile runner, George Guida, sprinter from South Catholic, and noted track and field men of whom less is known around Philadelphia, will compete.

But when the meet is over, it will surprise no one to find comparative outsiders in possession of team championships and the favored runners and field men beaten in record times by men not figured in the scoring.

Brown Nine Tops Kittens After Pitcher's Duel, 2-1

In the opening game of their season the Frosh baseball team lost a heartbreaker to the Brown Prep nine, 2-1, in two extra innings. It was a scheduled seven inning contest but went nine innings.

From start to finish it was a pitching duel between Bill Wood and Max Patkin, Brown Prep's ace hurler. In fact it was Wood who kept the Kittens in the ball game when he singled in the last half of the seventh to drive in the tying run.

Going into the last half of the seventh the Brownies were leading 1-0. They scored in the third and Patkin had held the Frosh to one hit, a double by Famiglietti. The first two men up for Villanova flied out, the third man, Famiglietti, walked, stole second, and then scored on Woods' hot single in center.

In the eighth both teams went hitless and then in the ninth with a man on base Brown scored on a hit by Mitro.

When the Frosh came to bat they made a last effort to save themselves when with one man out "Jiggs" Hagerty, who played a nice game at third all afternoon, singled to left-center, but the next two men failed to do anything and Brown won the game.

Villanova had three hits to Brown's two. Each team had one earned run.

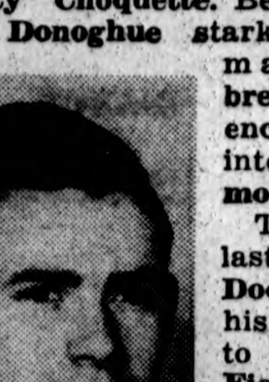
HERE and THERE

By JIM HAUGHTON

WE just can't seem to remember the name of the aesthetic gent who let out with the now famed phrase, "In the Spring a young man's fancy turn to what the gals have been thinking about all winter." But we do know quite well that Spring also brings with it tales, long and short. Especially about baseball and horse racing.

And so today our fancy turns to a bit of recounting. Reminiscing over a few tales which time has stored up and of which we're trying to keep track.

For instance you are all quite familiar with that erudite pitcher and diamond philosopher, "Cliff Shorty" Choquette. Besides driving Jack Donoghue stark wild, Cliff manages to break the silence with some interesting bon mots.



Jim Haughton

Take the time last season when Doc Jacobs took his nine visiting to Franklin Field. Joe Desmond, now with Baltimore, was on the mound for the locals and "Shorty" handled the third base coaching duties.

Desmond had the temerity to commit the cardinal sin of the pitcher's union by getting a hit. And what a hit. A booming wallop which looked like Desmond would have a nice journey home. But no. Coach Choquette stops him at third.

"Doc," wearing an amazed look, approached Shorty and demanded to know why he stopped Desmond. He blantly replied, "Don't you know I'm the only pitcher on this club who can hit home runs."

Then there was last Tuesday down at Loyola. Alf Skaf was warm-up catcher for "Shorty." Al, in his usual breezy style, flooded the air with some lusty "C'mon Shorty." "Breeze that apple in, Shorty." "Let's go Shorty."

Choquette, speaking from the mound in a voice just loud enough for the audience, politely put an end to things with, "Listen Skaf, call me Dynamite. Don't ya know there's liable to be a scout in the stands."

Bobby Pash also tells the tale of the player who was in the dressing room preparing for the game. "Doc" approached the player and queried, "Say kid, where's your sliding pants?" "Gee Doc," replied the player, "I don't have them on. I didn't think I was gonna do any sliding today."

So we also slide to the other side of the fence for the next few inches. To a true tale concerning two campusites who are devotees of the sport of kings. Day after day finds them handicapping the nags and betting among themselves. One lad was brought up near a track while the other is a convert since joining the local league.

But let's turn back to that memorable day last May when the Chesapeake Stakes were booked for Havre de Grace. For weeks these two disciples of the rail planned and saved to attend. Finally the day arrived.

Up bright and early, they grabbed an early breakfast and hustled to the 'Graw via public service. Time and cars passed them by till noon time found them miles from their destination. A few short rides helped, but the horizon looked gloomy. Finally a kind farmer found a spot for them among some old boxes and they eventually reached the track. A distance of eighty miles in seven hours.

The bankroll totaled around $10. So off they went to put their much practiced science into actual use. Originally they thought the "betting minimum was a dollar, but to their surprise the state solons set it at two bucks.

Audaciously they bet on the first race. And like a flash went two bucks. The second and third race found the clients taking the same currency licking. Maybe they better skip the fourth while they checked things over. Perhaps they could confide in lady luck to help them in the fifth. Yet she didn't hear them and away went two more dollars.

A quick check of the reserve fund revealed exactly $1.90. With still three more races to go. And they were strangers in the park. But standing over there was the farmer who brought them down. Why not borrow a dime from him to make up the two dollar minimum. He kindly consented. And their fortune went to the board.

It was the sixth race coming up. They had the stub. Here was the finish. Their horse finished in the money to pay $2.50. Well they might as well take another chance. But lady luck shined on them in the seventh and added two bucks more. At least they could get home. But here was the big race. Why not take a chance. Again lady luck shined. This time in a big manner to bring the total up to $14.

Linksmen Play Today At Bala

This afternoon, the Wildcat Golf Squad will face St. Joe's in a return match at the Bala Country Club. This is the second time this year that the teams have met. St. Joe's won the first match 6-3.

The match will start at 2:30 P. M. The 'Cat squad has been revamped and a more evenly contested match is expected. Captain Randolph will probably be at the number two position with either Bob dePersio or Jim Brown at number one. The number three spot will be filled by one of these two men.

Ernie Klappenback and Dave Morse are fighting for the fourth place, with either Paul Stenn or rank Abbot at sixth.

Tomorrow, Villanova will play host to Delaware on the home course. Delaware has a strong team this year. Captain Eddie Anderson is a strong man on the team as are Baynard Roe and George Anderson.

seems funny that that Philadelphia college which dropped football in order that they could present an extra-special intramural set-up gets so much publicity for the feat. People about town seem to be getting the idea that varsity sports strangle out the I-M competitions.

That this is a crazy notion is well proven here on the Main Line. There is no doubt but that the Villanova football, baseball and basketball teams are with very few exceptions the tops in their line in this section of the state and yet the intramurals are much more highly developed than those at other Philadelphia colleges.

he does know of the last thirty years or so and in those years the Blue and White has held an enviable spot in the collegiate baseball circle.

For years the Villanova club made annual southern trips and competed successfully against the nation's leading baseball schools. The traditional New England trip is still part of the Villanova schedule and the Wildcat has entered his niche on the eastern baseball hall of fame through annual fine performances before strange crowds. The crowds are not so strange to Doc however because he is another in the long list of New Englanders who choose Villanova for an alma mater.

Interest in Mahan

Doc also spoke of the long list of Villanova grads who have gone on to the "Big Leagues" and spread the baseball fame of Villanova. Latest of these is Artie Mahan, '37, who has just joined the Philadelphia Phillies. Jacobs expressed great interest in Artie's future and is highly anxious that his protege make good in the big time.

Of this year's team Jacobs is reluctant to speak in any great detail. He speaks of the record so far, which talks pretty loud for itself, and commends the teamplay shown by his boys. He refuses to single out any one player saying, "They are all doing their part."

The large turnout of candidates this year helped the team considerably, according to Jacobs. It permitted extensive intra-squad games and uncovered much hidden talent.

We could have given Doc Jacobs one very good reason for Villanova's diamond success, but it is doubtful that the genial, well-dressed, Dutchman would accept it. You see Doc is a Villanova man himself and believes in doing for Villanova and not for personal gain. That is why we would probably have felt a bat descend over our cranium if we had stated the fact that the big reason for Villanova's diamond success is — Coach George W. Jacobs.

ticipate in a play by Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., entitled "Lolita Wants to Learn English," and again at 9:30. The mothers will be served dinner in the college dining hall at 3:30.

Open House Also

Open House, held in conjunction with Mothers Day, will be presented twice today, and will be open to the public. Chairman Fred C. Steller revealed that one performance will be given from 1:30 to 5:30 P. M. and the other from 7:30 until 10:30 P. M. The program for Open House will be the same as that for the Mothers, with the addition of the Symphonic Band and Glee Club presentations at 4:00 P. M. and 8:00 P. M.

Added to these activities, numerous exhibits will be displayed. All publications, the history, social science and fine arts departments, as well as the library and intramural athletics groups, have arranged displays. These will be on exhibition throughout the day, and representatives of these various departments will be present to explain and describe the functions of their respective exhibits.

The social whirl of the week will be inaugurated in the Field House on Wednesday evening, May 8, at the annual Blazer Ball. This dance, open to the public, is an informal affair, and gives the Juniors the first public occasion to sport their blazers. The senior students will be the guests of the Junior Class, a traditional custom.

William J. Appel, chairman of the event, has announced that dancing will be from 9:00 until 1:00 A, M. The enlarged, improved college orchestra, "The Villanovans" will provide the music for the evening. Subscription is $1:50.

And Then—

Friday, May 10, marks the date for the annual Junior Promenade, the classic of this gala week. This dance, likewise open to the public, is the only affair held under the auspices of the Junior class that engages a first-class name band. This year, for the first time, chairman George W. Coupe has arranged a novelty by selecting two famous bands for this affair. Leighton Noble and Van Alexander, with their orchestras, will be the two maestros who will grace the platform on that eventful evening. Another innovation at the Prom will be an extra hour of dancing, which extends the dancing time from 9:00 P. M. to 2:00 A. M.

The grand finale of this festive week of gaiety will be the Junior Dinner Dance, held this year at the Ritz-Carlton Roof Gardens. The entire Roof Gardens will be at the disposal of the Juniors and their guests, John J. McGuire, chairman of the affair, announced.

Continuous music will be furnished by Stewart Murray and his orchestra who, last fall, played at the exclusive Philadelphia Ball. Dinner will be served promptly at 8:30 P. M., and the Juniors are requested to be on time.

Thus will end the much dreamed of and long awaited week of the Junior Class. Amid the rural summer atmosphere of the Roof Gardens they will dance away the last fleeting hours of "their" week

THOMAS J. MOORE CHOSEN EDITOR OF 1940-41 BELLE AIR

Moderator Names Arthur S. Somers Business Manager of Next Year's Edition

By THOMAS A. SULLIVAN

Succeeding Edward L. Jonik in the position, Thomas J. Moore, junior artsman, has been chosen editor-in-chief of the Belle Air, college yearbook, for the 1940-41 edition, Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., moderator of the publication, announced early today.

The appointment of Arthur S. Somers, junior commerce student, to the position of business manager of the annual for next year has also been disclosed by Fr. Falvey Other appointments to the editorial board will be made later.

Belle Air Chief

THOMAS J. MOORE

Moore, a graduate of North Philadelphia Catholic High School, is an honor student and has been very active in extra-curricular activities while at Villanova. Recently, he was the recipient of seven merit awards for his work outside the classroom and thus had the distinction of receiving more awards than any other student.

In addition to his diligent work on the Belle Air staff during the past three years, he has been active in Beta Gamma, campus debating society, and will be manager of that group next year. He was one of those responsible for the reorganization of Epsilon Phi Theta, arts fraternity, and was its first secretary.

Moore conducts the column, "Cat's Meow" in the VILLANOVAN, and is a member of the Sanctuary Society. In the field of athletics, he is a member of the varsity swimming team and the 150 lb. football squad, besides taking part in outside sports.

J. BONGIOVANNI IS '40 VALEDICTORIAN

Artsman Wins Honor by Defeating Six Rival Seniors in Contest

Joseph N. Bongiovanni, of the School of Arts, will be the valedictorian of the Class of 1940 at their commencement exercises on June 6. Bongiovanni was chosen from a group of six leading seniors who previously had been selected by their deans to represent their various campus schools in the final contest for the honor yesterday.

Valedictorian

JOSEPH N. BONGIOVANNI

Bongiovanni has consistently led the arts school graduates of the '40 class since their entrance into Villanova. His special study, both in regular classes and in outside research, has been that of philosophy.

Besides his high standard of classwork, he has participated actively in extra-curricular activities. In this, his senior year, he has been copy editor of the VILLANOVAN, a member of the Philosophy Seminar, International

'Villanovans' In Retrospect

By THOMAS A. SULLIVAN

In January, 1893, the "Villanovan Monthly," forerunner of the present day VILLANOVAN, first appeared on the campus. The monthly made its debut on the 50th anniversary of the college, and its opening editorial should prove of interest to present undergraduates and the alumni:

"We are in earnest, and heartily trust that when another 50 years, freighted with pleasures and cares, has decked Alma Mater's brow with the centennial crown of glory, won in the holy cause of Christian education, they will find our college journal still existing — not in its present state, but steadily advancing, with an established and well-merited reputation."

Literary Publication

The "Villanovan Monthly" was exclusively a literary publication, containing about 35 pages of poetry, editorials, essays, and solutions to math problems. Wm. J. Parker was the first editor of the Monthly, and John J. Farrell, O. S. A., the "business manager." Incidentally, there were only 94 students enrolled at Villanova in 1893.

The Monthly continued in its original form from 1893 to 1896, but in 1897, under the editorship of Henry T. Nelson, it changed to a smaller, more "modern" size.

After '97, the "Villanovan Monthly" went out of existence, but in November, 1916, Vol. 1, No. 1, of the "Villanovan Quarterly," with John V. Domminey as editor, and Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O. S. A., as moderator, was issued. The Quarterly, like the Monthly, was also a

Flannery To Lead Delta Pi Epsilon During Next Year

Banagan, Brown, Doyle, Crumb, McElligot Elected

George J. Flannery, Jr., junior commerce student, was elected president of the Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity for the 1940-41 term in an election held last Thursday. He succeeds Francis X. Connors in the post.

Other officers of the commerce fraternity elected were Edward Banagan, a junior vice president; Walter T. Brown, a junior, treasurer; Thomas H. Doyle, Jr., a sophomore, secretary, and Bernard C. Crumb, also a member of the sophomore class, sergeant-at-arms.

On the ballot last Thursday a tie for the Student Council post resulted between David N. Reardon and James McElligot, members of the sophomore class. At a special meeting held yesterday afternoon, McElligot merged the victor for the post.

President Flannery, formerly secretary of the group, was primarily responsible for the reorganization of the Delta Pi Epsilon this year and has actively participated in other extra-curricular activities, being a member of the freshman debating society in his first year; class secretary and member of the Orientation Committee in his sophomore year; and, during the current year, has served as a staff writer on the VILLANOVAN and the Belle Air.

At yesterday's meeting, the time set for the fraternity dinner, to be held this Saturday evening at the Conestoga Mill, was 7:00 P. M. Maurice Doyle, '31, a past president of the fraternity, has been procured as guest speaker.

J. M'GARRITY GIVES RARE COLLECTION

Many Valuable Items Pertaining to Ireland Presented to College Library

Mr. Joseph McGarrity, Philadelphia, recently donated his valuable and rare library to the college. This collection, containing over 10,000 items (pertaining to Ireland), has been appraised as the best collection in the United States on Ireland. Some years ago it was evaluated at $50,000 and since that time many volumes have been added to it.

The collection is known as the Joseph McGarrity Irish Library. and when the new Villanova library is erected it will be placed in a special room so that students and research scholars may have the benefit of this material. A catalogue of the items will be made public as soon as the library staff will have an opportunity to devote the required time to such a list.

A native of Carrickmore, County Tyrone, Ireland, Mr. McGarrity came to this country toward the end of the last century. On his arrival he organized the Clan-na-Gael in Philadelphia. In the defence of Irish Independence he published a newspaper called the "Irish Press," from 1918 to 1922. When DeValera was in this country, he visited the home of McGarrity, and he in turn frequently accompanied the leader on his tour of the States.

Desiring that his valuable library, accumulated over a period of 40 years, be preserved for posterity, he has presented it to Villanova. Among the many items in this collection is a 22 volume set of the Irish Parliamentary records fr 1300 to 1800, a complete file of the "Irish Press' and a set of the early laws of Ireland. Together with the many books are other items of interest such as periodicals, pamphlets, portraits, manuscripts, and the trunk of Roger Casement.

EXAM SCHEDULES POSTED

The Deans of Science, Arts, Engineering, and Commerce and Finance Schools have posted the schedules of final examinations on the bulletin boards throughout the various schools.

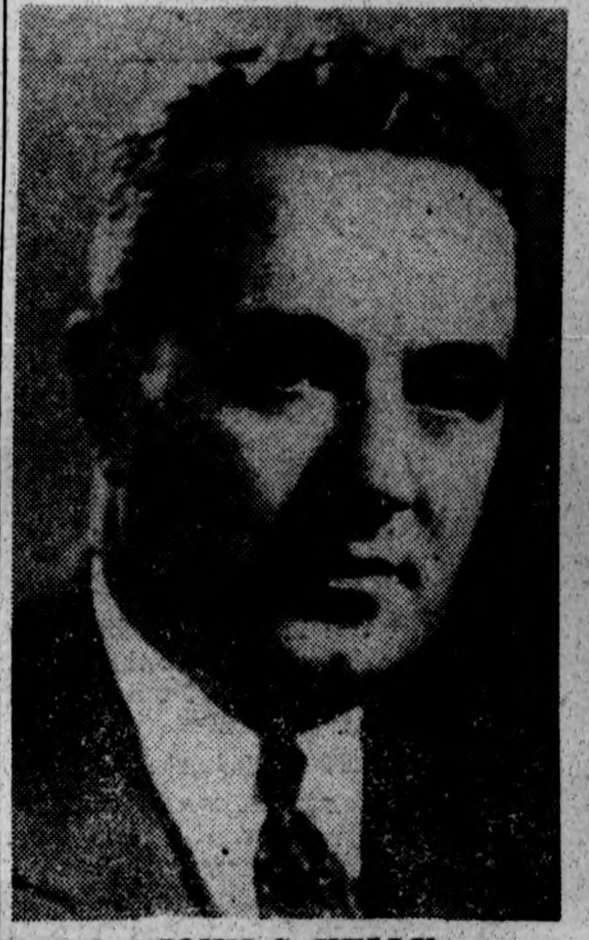
Degrees For John C. Kelly, Chief Justice Schaffer

Authorities Plan to Bestow Honorary Awards Upon Noted Pennsylvania Jurist and Alumnus Well Known in Advertising Field

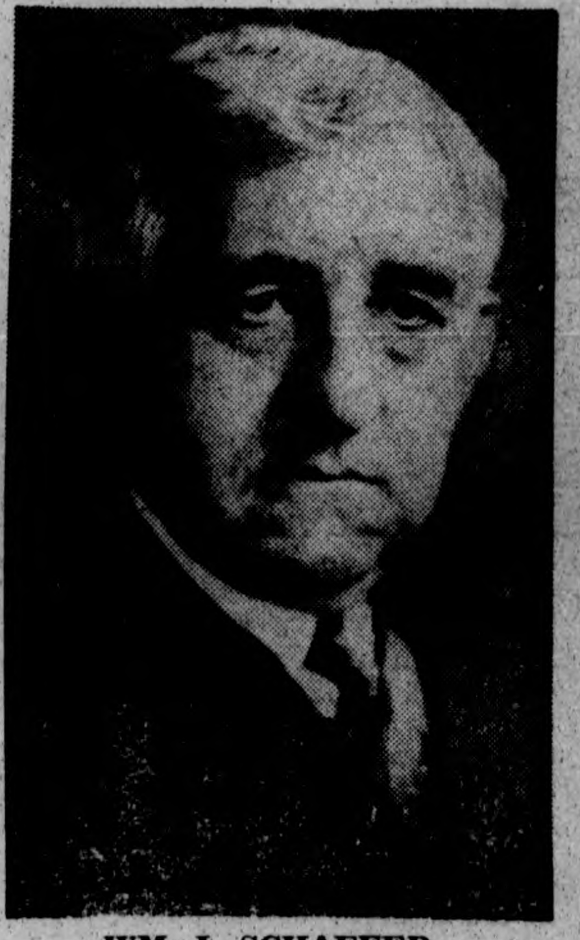
By HOWARD A. McCALL

Chief Justice William I. Schaffer, of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, and John C. Kelly, president of a well-known advertising agency, have been chosen to receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at the ninety-seventh annual commencement of the college on June 6. The Very Rev. John T. and the degreees will be conferred by the Very Rev. Edward and the degres will be conferred by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President.

Noted Men To Receive Degrees



JOHN C. KELLY



WM. I. SCHAFFER

On the morning of June 6, a Solern High Baccalaureate Mass will be celebrated in the college chapel by Fr. Stanford. The address will be delivered by Rev. John R. Cunnihgnam, who was graduated from Villanova in 1927.

The honorary degrees, which will be awarded at the conferring of degrees in the afternoon, are recognition of special achievement. The awards this year are bestowed upon two individuals whom the college deems worthy of merit for outstanding work in their respective fields of endeavor. The records of the two men selected attest to their qualifications for such an honor.

Chief Justice Schaffer has served his profession admirably during his long career. Born in Philadelphia in 1867, he entered the offices of Judge William B. Broomall at an early age. When only sixteen he passed the preliminary examination for the study of law. A decade later he became District Attorney for Delaware County and built up a large practice.

Attorney-General

In bar association affairs he was particularly prominent, and in 1917 in recognition of his work he was elected president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association. Two years later, Governor Sproul appointed him Attorney-General of the Commonwealth. Wide praise was given to his work as Chairman of the Commission of Constitutional Amendment and Revision in 1920.

On December 11, 1920, he was appointed a Justice of the Supreme Court, and later was elected to a full term. On January 2 of this year he became Chief Justice.

On the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of Chief Justice Schaffer's admission to the bar, the retiring Chief Justice, John W. Kephart, said: "I am speaking of his work in the forum, known as the consultation room, and I would like to emphasize that here our brother has exhibited the finest traits of a lawyer, of a statesman, and of a jurist."

Kelly, Class '15

Mr. Kelly, a graduate of Villanova, has won renown in the advertising world. He was born in Albany, N. Y., and was educated at St. Mary's Academy, Albany; St. Michael's College, Toronto; and Villanova, where he received his A.

"Engineer" Outlines New Library Plans

Fr. Vrana Describes Proposed Building; Issue Includes Engineer's Article

Featured in the May issue of the Villanova Engineer is an article by the Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., faculty moderator of the publication, entitled "The Proposed Library—A Critical Analysis."

In his article Father Vrana discusses the tentative plan of the library, interior and exterior, with regard to functional and aesthetic problems, Included in the analysis is a consideration of the site, plan, material construction, and interior arrangement and decoration. Father Vrana points out that this is merely a tentative plan and that all criticism is based on it as such.

For the second time this year an article by a professional engineer is included. Charles Klien, civil engineering alumnus, now in the employment of T. J. McCormick who is professor of Civil Engineering, discusses "Reinforcing Steel, Its Design for Concrete." In the article Klein points out the advantages of reinforced steel detailing, as one means of completing the practical training necessary for one who wishes to become a structural designer.

Continuing his interesting series, "How's Your Math," Professor Emil Amelotti, M. S., this month solves the problem of trisecting an angle. This he does by geometric and analytic methods.

Also included in this issue is a short story of the life of Charles Steinmetz, the electrical wizard. "Science and Industry" is an article dealing with the industrial application of x-rays.

LIBRARY FUND

Sale of the color pictures, representing four different views of the campus, which were on display at Mother's Day and Open House, was beyond all expectation. Because of enthusiasm shown for these pictures, all returns from which are to be used to establish a fund for the proposed library, they will be made available for purchase all summer, as long as the present supply lasts.

Church's Mother Tongue Has Preserved Its Unity

Latin, Early Adopted For Catholic Rites, Assures Purity of Worship

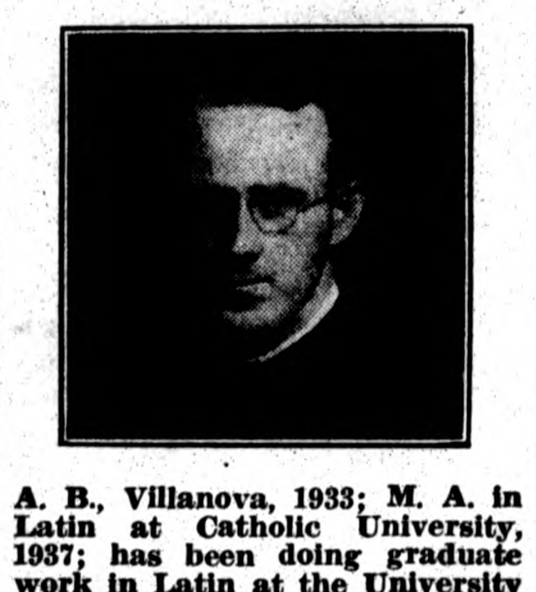
By REV. JOHN E. BRESNAHAN, O. S. A., M. A.
Assistant Professor, Classics

IT IS A FACT most commonly known the world over that Latin is identified with the Roman Church. For us to call it the Church's mother-tongue is surely appropriate, even though Latin was not the first official language of the Church, nor has it ever been the only language officially sanctioned in the Church.

For the first two centuries of our era, Greek was the language of Christian worship and of the sacred books of the Scripture. And when Latin began to assert itself into those spheres, it was from Christian Africa and not from Rome that the impetus came. The new trend took solidly along the western coasts of the Mediterranean, from where it was to be carried by missionaries throughout Europe and later to the New World. But the eastern Mediterranean held to its Greek tradition, and this it still maintains.

Missionary ventures to the east, south, and north of the Greek speaking peoples were such as accommodated themselves to the vernacular of the lands evangelized. Coptic to the south, Syriac and Armenian to the east, and Slavic to the north — these were the languages that most asserted themselves.

Fr. Bresnahan



A. B., Villanova, 1933; M. A. in Latin at Catholic University, 1937; has been doing graduate work in Latin at the University of Pennsylvania since 1937, when he commenced teaching at Villanova.

Two Rites Arise

In time, therefore, the East and the West grew into sharp contrast. Thus arose within the Church the distinction that we know as the Latin rite vs. the Oriental rites.

When it is considered that Latin-speaking missionaries were the instructors of the Gothic invaders of Europe in almost every phase of life (over and above the fact that those invaders had come to mingle with, and not destroy, a powerfully entrenched Roman civilization), it does not seem strange that Latin became the language of Europe and the resulting Holy Roman Empire. Even the Celts of the northern islands finally gave way and, throughout the length and breadth of greater Europe, Latin held sway as the language of officialdom and literature.

Survival of Latin

Though racial variances did beget the early differentiations that we know as the Romance languages, or did maintain, not without Latin influence, what has grown into the various Germanic tongues, it was, none the less, only the eve of the Middle Ages that saw distinct literatures come to light in the different national languages. And even then, Latin survived alongside the national languages in the literatures of every European nation until well into the modern period.

Beyond that, it continued as the vehicle of international diplomacy until French, though inadequately, took the lead. Esperanto, an "ideal" language of international relations, has never been able to assert itself effectually. Many political leaders still favor a return to Latin as the common language of nations.

Needless to say, Latin has thrived constantly in the Church, and not only as the language of worship, but also as the medium of official pronouncements—Bulls, Briefs, Encyclicals, etc.—and as the medium of study in seminaries and the language of treatises in ecclesiastical science.

Needed for Unity

The worth of Latin for the Church is incalculable. Not so much beacuse of worth inherent in Latin itself (though its exactness of expression is surely of great value for official pronouncement), but more because it actually stands for and instructs in, and even, to a degree, insures, Church unity.

Rome and its Bishop symbolize, and more than symbolize, the unity of Christ's Church: the use of Latin reminds of Rome and of the Holy Father there, as well as of all his predecessors in that See. Acknowledgment of the effectiveness of a language for such an end is to be seen in the eagerness of nations to foster their own literatures.

But the use of Latin in the Church begets a sense of supra-nationalism that even counteracts the hyper-nationalism which both did so much to make effective the revolt from the Church in the 16th Century and is doing so much to rend Christian civilization today.

Purity of Worship

One signal benefit that the exactness of Latin affords the Church should be mentioned before the present discourse is brought to a close. It is to purity of worship that I refer. Were the employment of the national languages in Church ceremony allowed, differences of race temperament and the shifting

Who Loses A War?

EVENTS of the past weeks have placed the Allies in a critical position. At the present, the ultimate outcome of the war is rather dubious, and the European democracies are quite anxious. It should be quite obvious to the American people that their next move is to draw these United States into the conflict in order to assure victory for themselves. Already the clever and intricate guns of the propagandists are being trained on these shores. Soon the mushy-mouthed sentimentalities of these human carrion will reverberate here and strive to engulf our American citizenry with cries of "Come on over and save the world for this and that", when all they mean is "Pull us out of this mess we got ourselves into."

Once before we entered the field of battle to save the world for democracy, and at what a cost? Irreparable in lives lost and the misery and untold suffering undergone. If that aim had been accomplished, then some of this sorrow might have been alleviated, but today totalitarianism is stronger than ever before in modern history.

Thus, it is easy to see that the real victims of war are not to be found in the higher circles of governments, for these institutions absorb the shocks incurred and adjust themselves accordingly. The mothers, wives, sisters, sweethearts, and relatives of the dead suffer the greatest, and their agony can never be atoned. They bear it with them to their dying day.

We, the American Youth, do not care to inflict this unwanted misery on our country. We do not want War or any of its consequences. The European conflict is not of our making or liking and, in the names of God and humanity, we ask Washington to watch and wait before it makes an decision which will endanger our peace.

Soon the nation will be observing Memorial Day. Let this day stand out in the minds of the people, not so much as a day for honoring the dead, but as a day which brings to mind thousands of vacant chairs in thousands of homes.

We Are Progressing

THIS is the twentieth century.

In this modern age, this age of electricity and steam, of telephone and radio, of automobiles and locomotives, man has advanced to a point never dreamed of in olden times. With this advancement, of course, ...

What about God, and religion, and morality?

. . . .our scientists have been able to disprove many old-fashioned ideas which used to prevail among the ignorant and uninformed. God is, after all, only a myth. You can't find God in a test tube. The Ten Commandments can't very well be applied to a society as marvellously changed as ours. Generally speaking, religion and morality are bad business policy. Men can now make millions in a few hours. . . .

How about your ever-increasing wars?

We can now travel 400 miles per hour. We can now travel mile after mile beneath both sea and land. We can dash in sound-proof elevators up and down gigantic sky-scrapers (reinforced concrete construction). You see, ...

After death what?

. . . .in this modern age. . . .

A Fond Farewell

FOUR years ago a group came to Villanova in the pursuit of learning and for the purpose of gaining a college education. That short period has lapsed and passed away, and now they are about to graduate and depart from the scenes and surroundings they have come to cherish. The course they embarked upon was guided and protected by competent and authorized leaders, but the journey they will soon set out on is perilous.

They will be called college men by all they meet, but we consider them in a different light. They are CATHOLIC college men. Their training has not been confined to merely academic, technical, scientific, and financial precepts. No, it extends further than that. They have learned the doctrine of love for God and love for neighbor, that precept which has been so negligently, and in some cases deliberately, excluded from the curricula of many of the nation's colleges and universities.

In this, the farewell address of the VILLANOVAN, we urge those men who are soon to leave us that they never forget or cast aside those principles contained in the Catholic Ideal of life. Rather grasp them with firmer hand so that you may wield them more fruitfully. And above all do not allow that arm to remain immobile, nor permit that hand to lose its grip. Apply and practice the things you have learned, otherwise they will have been of no benefit to you, and your college days have been wasted. The world needs men like you.

May happiness always be with you. And it will if you grasp the clutching hand of the less fortunate.

Congratulations

NOW THAT the hustle and confusion of Junior Week are over and the activities have resolved themselves into fond memories to be cherished in future years, we think that a word of congratulation and commendation is due the Class of '41, first for the success of the affairs they sponsored, and secondly for the fine Villanova spirit of comradeship which permeated all the functions.

College Chatter

By Joe McCabe

JUNIOR WEEK has once again come and gone but, like all truly good things, the memories linger on. During this short period of one week, crammed with social activitiy and otherwise, many of the "boys" were seen in different and sundry situations, so let's take the events in chronological order. . . .

Open House, held in the gym, furnished a handy field for operations. The presence of young ladies at the exhibits furnished those gentlemen explaining the various phases of college life an opportunity to put on just a little more "sales talk" in order to hold attention.

JIM HALPIN, taking charge of the Book Club exhibit, found his early location too hidden, whereupon he moved his exhibit to the main floor of the field house and proceeded to discourse. . . .

The most popular of the exhibits was the lie-detector machine, which afforded many the opportunity of finding out where she was the last time he tried to get a date. . . .

The Symphonic band which, in spite of the limited number of practices held, proved to be the best entertainment of the program.

QUESTION OF JUNIOR WEEK: Why was it that so many of the Juniors attended the Blazer Ball resplendant in their new raiment in the company of girls other than those whom they escorted to the Prom? ? ? ? ?

Joe Connors has finally derived some benefit from his business course. It appears that Joe, in company with another individual, has opened an Esquire Men's Shop in West Philadelphia. At the opening held last Thursday night they took in $53 and spent $79 the deficit coming from the fact that, instead of the usual souvenirs, champagne was served to all the customers.

The climax of last week came at the Prom, held in the Field House on Friday evening. Amid the setting of a tropic night with swaying palms, realistic ponds, and a bandstand simulating a ship's prow, the happy couples danced (?)

The majority of students had invited the number one girl friend home and it was surprising to see the number of strikingly beautiful young ladies in the company of some of the more prominent Villanovans.

ERNIE KLAPPENBACH, who bided time throughout the earlier part of the week, danced with stars in his eyes and her in his arms. . .

The bridge at the entrance startled some who had trepidition of ever getting across but, summoning courage, they finally dashed to safety. . . .

Bill Mowen happily telling his date that he and Leighton Noble were old friends. . . .

When the curfew was sounded, it was with a bit of sadness born of the realization that the big event was over too soon that the Juniors and all others in attendance wended their respective ways homeward and "otherwiseward."

With the success of this year's Junior Week evident to all, the boys of the Class of '42 are already looking forward to next spring when, as juniors, they'll stage their version of the traditional activities. While it is too early for them to lay any definite plans, we are informed that a "much bigger and better" time than ever before is being planned.

As this is the last issue for the present year, it is fitting that your columnist take leave of his many (?????) readers and express a deep sense of appreciation of their patience and interest. To all who have at sometime or another been mentioned under this head, may I say seriously that no harm was intended and that it was all meant in the spirit of fun. With best wishes for success in final exams and a farewell to our noble seniors, au revoir, as they say in France, until September.

Introducing

By HOWARD A. McCALL

Hats Off to John Harrington, Ex-Editor, VILLANOVAN, Sincere, Analytic, Thorough

RUSHING into the office of the VILLANOVAN the other afternoon, I spied the subject of this article nonchantly perched on the window sill viewing the beautiful landscape and our picturesque campus surroundings. It was with a display of that inevitable confident and calm bearing that he received the usually jarring news that he was "on the spot"—that he was the subject of the "Introducing" column.

His name is John J. Harrington, former Editor-in-Chief of this publication. Together we admired the scenery, while John spoke and unraveled the history of his active association with the things of this world. In this way, we passed a pleasant hour on the small confinement of a single window sill, and not even the mild and anxious interruption of one tardy junior looking for a last minute date to the Prom ruffled or annoyed this complacent individual.

Aims at Betterment

John is one of those chaps that the world so badly needs. Ever since his high school days John has had one thought directing all his effort and work. He has aimed to better himself with the end in view that at some time he will be able to apply his learning and knowledge to the advancement and elevation of humanity.

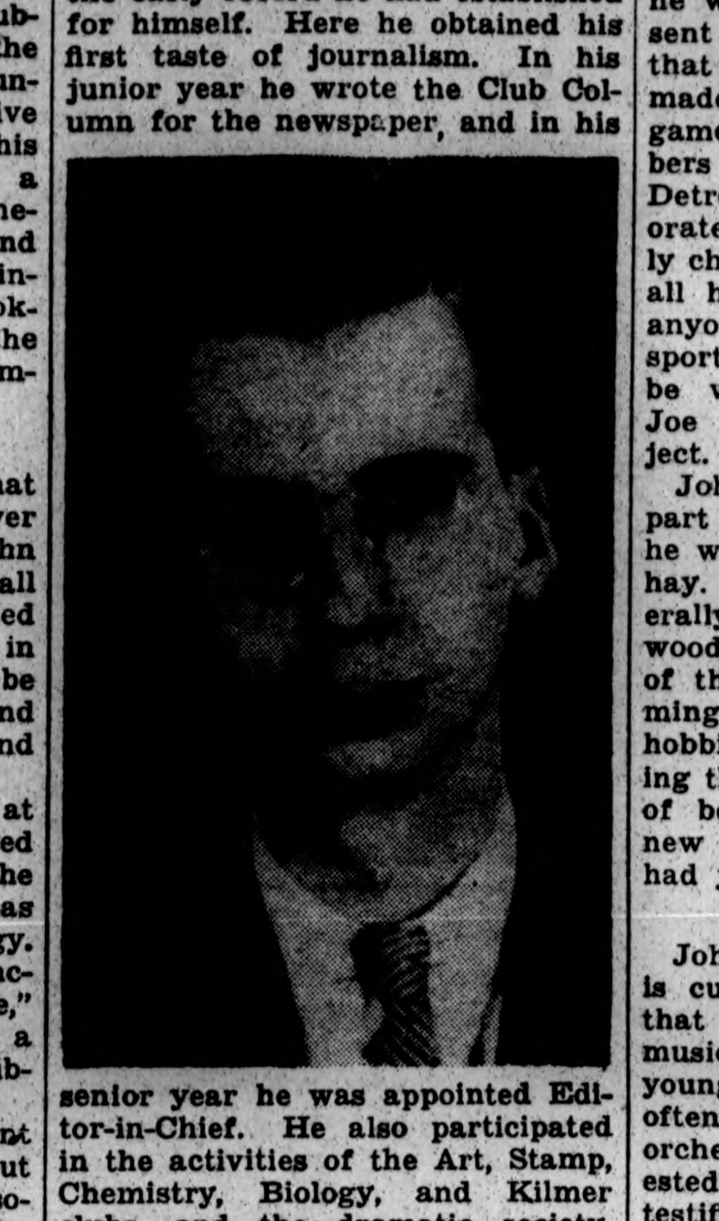
Beginning with his first year at Villanova, John became interested in social problems and, in the course of his college days, has made a special study of sociology. His thesis is entitled "The Function of Present-Day Social Life," and is a philosophical as well as a sociological treatment of the subject.

The evident need of intelligent men in this field was brought out by John in a little story he associated with his interest in the study. It seems that on a certain radio program some time ago a sociology professor from a certain college was asked by the announcer: "Do you think man has reached his peak, or is he still progressing?" The professor pondered over the question for a moment or two, and then, in a confident, authoritative tone, answered, "Well, as a scientist I would say that it's doubtful!"

"Information, Please"

John was born in Philadelphia in 1917 in the Transfiguration Parish, although he attended grammar school at Saint Agatha's in mythical "Cork Town." Here he compiled quite a record for himself. Before graduation he received an edition of "Tom Brown's Schooldays" for good conduct, of all things. During Boys' Week, he was top man in a spelling bee sponsored by some firm or other and won a dictionary—again, we say, of all things. Oh yes, and just to show that he knew his dates, he walked off with the Knights of Columbus medal for United States history.

At West Catholic, where he spent his high school days, he kept up the early record he had established for himself. Here he obtained his first taste of journalism. In his junior year he wrote the Club Column for the newspaper, and in his senior year he was appointed Editor-in-Chief. He also participated in the activities of the Art, Stamp, Chemistry, Biology, and Kilmer clubs, and the dramatic society. The Kilmer Club, a public speaking organization, elected him vice-president.



Success Story

In grammar school his main ambition was to win a scholarship to a school of higher learning, but, unfortunately, he failed to achieve this end. However, his dream was merely postponed for a little while, for when he graduated from West Catholic he competed in the scholarship examinations held at Villanova and won one on this trial.

The crowning point of all his accomplishments at Villanova was the Editor-in-Chief position on the VILLANOVAN, as we have said before. He was also active in the International Relations, and German club, the Philosophy Seminar, the Epsilon Phi Theta fraternity, and Student Council. He also served on the Orientation Committee, and in his sophomore year he was Publicity director of the dramatic society.

As to Travelling . . .

During his college days, John has represented Villanova on various occasions in distant cities. He attended the Catholic Press Conference in New York. This year he went to Atlantic City to represent the debating team. One trip that was off the records was that made last fall to witness a football game. John and a few of the members of the VILLANOVAN went to Detroit in "Barnes' Hack Incorporated." This journey John meekly chalks up to experience. That is all he would say about it, but if anyone will consult Mr. Barnes, sports editor of this weekly, he will be well rewarded, provided that Joe feels free to discuss the subject.

John goes "country boy" during part of the summer months, when he works on a farm getting in the hay. The remaining part he generally spends at the shore—Wildwood, to be exact, "the garden spot of the Atlantic seaboard." Swimming and walking are his favorite hobbies, and he used the latter during the recent vacation as a means of becoming acquainted with the new surroundings into which he had just moved.

Many Fields Open

John appreciates anything that is cultural, and we may presume that this is the motive behind his musical interest. Since he was a youngster he has played the violin, often performing in a symphony orchestra. He is particularly interested in Old Gaelic Folk songs, and testifies that their melodies are beautiful. Frank O'Connell, senior engineer here, also has the spirit for this type of music, and both aid one another in their study.

In a few weeks John will receive his Bachelor of Arts degree, and will graduate from Villanova. Three fields have attracted him, but he has not decided which one he will adopt for his career. Newspaper work, advertising, and teaching are his primary interests. He has taken many additional subjects outside his arts course and has enough credits to teach, although he has had no experience practice.

Regardless of what field John chosses, we feel sure that his personality, learning, and generosity will carry our former boss and constant friend far!

Tony Is Popular Bundle Of Energy Down At Gym Where He Insists Everything Be Neat And In Trim

By MARTIN LANGWEILER.

"Hey, get off that floor you don't have any gym shoes on." Every frequenter of the Villanova Field House is familiar with that cry and the person who shouts it—Tony Finisdore, genial caretaker and conditioner of Villanova's gym, football field, baseball field and what have you.

Tony, or "Two-Ton" as he is sometimes called, first came to Villanova in 1933 and ruled supreme over the equipment room for four years until transferred to his present duty as conditioner of the Villanova athletic fields.

Besides taking care of the playing fields, he is also in charge of the Field House, assisting in the preparation of the gym for socials, stage productions, athletic contests, etc.

Tony is a family man and the father of six children — three girls and three boys. It is his one ambition to see his three sons attend Villanova College and be in charge of conditioning the basketball court on which they will play, because, as he says, "My oldest boy already can play a heck of a good game of ball."

During the World War Tony was in the United States Navy doing convoy duty and saw frequent action. He has one vice and that is, in the words of Paul the painter, "Always bumming cigars off me."

Tony, who is built on a miniature of 'Tony the Galento,' can lay claim to being acquainted with every Villanova letterman of the past seven years and takes pride in narrating thrilling stories of past athletes.

Athletic Historian

He remembers the time Villanova beat La Salle in a basketball game that was not decided until the final second of play and how he picked up Jocko Hurley, who had scored the winning point just as the gun sounded, and threw him into the swimming pool. He likes to tell of the footballing of Johnny Mellus, whom he considers the best football player ever turned out by Villanova; of the boxing of Tony Sala, and of—it could go on for hours, as Tony takes great joy in talking of the feats of "his boys," as he calls them.

Among the football players, Tony is remembered for his classical imitation of the "Clipper" as he paces up and down the sideline rubbing his chin and hitting the side of his leg. To the freshmen, Tony is known as a former star guard on the Villanova football team of 1912-15. It seems that one of the chief delights of our caretaker is telling the first year men how he and Louie, of the Pie Shop, played as members of

ONE of the problems to be figured out around Villanova and one which would be worth while solving, is why the track team doesn't have more meets. It seems a shame that the fellows on the team, who are capable of competing with the very best, should be deprived of an opportunity to do their part for the team and for Villanova. Invitation meets are all very nice, but a dual meet gives the majority a better chance in their respective events; a successful campaign would do much to enhance the prestige of the Wildcats in the track world.

The student publication at Emory University says that, since professors divide students into classes, they should do the same to their profs. Among the types suggested were:

The Hard Rock type: You have to be more than a good musician to hit high C under him. If he were a movie critic, he wouldn't give the United States flag forty-eight stars.

The Nomad type: Like a Nomad in the desert he loves to wander, and what he wanders over is as dry as the desert.

The Killer type: He wants to kill off the lower third and thinks the best way to do it is by overwork.

With the coming of graduation and the awarding of academic plumes, the time seems ripe to ask the question, "Why don't graduates of Catholic colleges get recognition in a national honor fraternity similar to the Phi Beta Kappa; or, for that matter, what is wrong with that fraternity?"

Students of our school and others like it should be rewarded for their work just as are the outstanding graduates of non-secular institutions, and a key denoting membership in the PBK or a similar institution might be worth having.

All good things must come to an end, and even if this column does not merit the aforementioned adjective, it too must end. There is just one word that yours truly would leave with anyone who might read this.

With the increasing activitiy on the European War front, and the voluminous and insidious propaganda which is flooding the country, it is more important than ever that our citizens be careful not to become aroused over something that does not necessarily concern us. Don't let the sound of martial airs and tramping feet arouse our citizens and involve us in another horrible and unnecessary wa.r

PAPER CLOSES SHOP UNTIL NEXT YEAR

With the current issue, the VILLANOVAN completes its schedule of publication for the present collegiate term. The date of the next issue in the autumn has not been definitely set because of the pending advertising contracts; it most probably will appear sometime during the first two weeks of October.

This, the twenty-third publication of the 1939-40 year, is necessarily the last of the year because of the approaching final examinations for all the underclassmen. These latter begin during the week of the 23rd of May, but since many undergraduates are scheduled to take examinations with the Seniors next week, the paper must give way. Being merely an extra-curricular activity, the VILLANOVAN rightfully relinquishes its staff writers to exam preparations.

The contract with National Advertising has been closed for the next year. As a result, the Collegiate Digest, the colored rotogravure section, will again be distributed with the weekly VILLANOVANS.

Thus, until next October, there just will not be any more VILLANOVANS.

He served in the United States Army during the World War as a private, second lieutenant, and first lieutenant. After graduation he became connected with the estate of Anthony N. Brady. Here he acted as confidential assistant to Nicholas F. Brady and remained there until Mr. Brady's death in 1930.

In 1931, Mr. Kelly was elected president of the Tucker Advertising Agency, Inc., now Kelly-Nason, Inc. He is also a director of Bowman-Biltmore Hotels Corporation, and of the Catholic Youth Organization, as well as a trustee of the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum.

Many honors have been bestowed on Mr. Kelly during the course of his career. On April 1, 1937, the decoration of Knight of St. Gregory was conferred on him by the late Pope Pius XI, and in January of this year he became a Knight of Malta.

Mr. Kelly, who resides at Scarsdale, N. Y., is a member of the Villanova, Winged Foot Golf, Westchester Country, and Rockefeller Centre Luncheon Clubs. In addition to these he is on the Board of Governors of the Centre Club and the National Catholic Alumni Federation.

SCHOLARSHIP EXAMS SAT.

Scholarship examinations in history, English, mathematics, and modern language will be held here at the college on Saturday, May 18.

Three scholarships, valued at $1,000 each are awarded annually to Catholic students who are in their senior year in high school. The choice of recipients is made on the basis of need for financial aid and the results of the examinations.

character of languages in popular use would make likely a departure from authentic meaning in the language of worship.

Latin, as a "dead" and comparatively fixed language, offers less likelihood of this danger. The importance of this feature to the Church will be the more appreciated as one realizes the more the value, and even the necessity, of a worship worthy of God and His revelations.

English?

In recent years, there has been a revival in the country of a movement begun in England about two decades ago. Members of the Anglican communion have agitated among themselves for a return, in a body, to union with the Church of Rome. There has been much enthusiasm over the possibility; the one great drawback being that the Anglican parties concerned have held out for the receiving of certain privileges. One privilege that is strongly sought is the retention of English as the language of worship.

There is much to be said in favor of this concession, but also, in the light of the statements made above, much to be said against it. One serious consideration is that it would lead all other English speaking peoples, and perhaps the people of other nations, to desire the same privilege, with the consequent danger of losing the advantages of the Latin unity that now prevails.

The parallel of the differences of language among the Oriental liturgies could be invoked for precedent, but it must be remembered that those differences are only tolerated in view of the difficulties that would be met in trying to uproot custom of such long standing.

Using the Missal

It is realized that the use of Latin in our worship does present a difficulty. But it is thought that the use of a Missal with the Latin text faithfully paralleled in the vernacular is a means of simultaneously retaining the advantages of the Latin and removing its difficulties. The use of such Missals has been widely propagated in our own and other countries to good effect.

For my own part, I have often considered how fortunate it would be if only the great number of Catholics who have given considerable time in their student years to the study of Latin would turn the fruits of that study to an interest in the comparatively easy Latin of the Missal. The initiative for such an effort would, of course, depend on one's appreciation of the worth of an intelligent participation in the Church's worship of God.

Five Games Remain For Wildcat Nine

Blues Idle Until Friday Game With Ursinus College Team

With only five games remaining on the schedule, the baseball team this week enters the last lap of the current college race.

Four games will be played in the next eight days and then after time has been called for examinations, the Penn Athletic Club will be met on June 8. Upon the conclusion of this game the bats and gloves will be packed away until next spring and another successful season will have been added to the already illustrious records of Villanova baseball teams of the past. These five games are all to be played on the home diamond.

The Wildcats open hostilities for the week on Friday when they meet Ursinus College. This will be the second meeting of these two clubs this year; Villanova defeated Ursinus last Thursday 6-3 in a game that had been rained out earlier in the season. In that game Ursinus showed one of the best teams the 'Cats have faced this year and they might pull an upset on Friday.

Meet Loyola Saturday

On Saturday afternoon Doc Jacobs' men will meet the Greyhounds of Loyola College and this is also a return game, for the Cats handed these same Greyhounds a 12 to 2 defeat back in April.

For the fourth time this year Villanova will face a New York City opponent when they visit the Jaspers of Manhattan College. The Jaspers have been an in and out team this year. They have lost more games than they have won but they came up with an 8 to 7 victory over Seton Hall who in turn held Fordham to a tie.

Coach Johnny Balquist has two men on his team who will make any pitcher wince when they step up to the plate. They are Hal Mazer and Bill Thompson. When last heard from Mazer was batting well

Tennis Team Loses Pair

Last week the "Wildcat" racqueteers dropped two matches to La Salle college and Manhattan college tennismen.

On Wednesday they were defeated by the former 6-3 and on Saturday afternoon they lost to Manhattan 6-2. The final doubles match with Manhattan was called off because of rain.

Sophomore Dave Daly was the only Villanova man to win his singles match against La Salle. He defeated Quinlan 6-1, 6-4. The doubles team made out better by taking two out of three matches. Banagan and Orloff defeated O'Hanlon and McKeegan 7-5, 6-3, while Dunne and Rappleya won over Breen and Mafferty 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

On Saturday the "Wildcats" again won only one singles match. This time it was Fred Rappleya playing number one man. Fred vanquished Harry McGrath, former Villanova played and now star of the Jasper squad, 6-4, 6-0. Right from the beginning he forced McGrath's hand with his slashing drives, and kept the pressure on until the last point was scored.

In other singles matches Dave Daly won the first set 6-4 but dropped the next two 6-2, 6-3 to Frank Murphy of Manhattan. Carterson, Set For A Circuit Clout!

The camera catches George Balmore, hard-hitting outfielder, seconds before he clouted his home run in the game against Ursinus College last week. Balmore is one of the most consistent hitters on the Villanova club and is an outstanding fielder as well. He bats in the number five "slugger" position, but is more renowned for sharp, sure singles than for long distance hits.

Graduation Day To Take Heavy Toll In Athletes

By BOB FUNABASHI

To Messrs. Smith, McNally, Elliott, Jacobs, Severance and Leahy, graduation will be such sweet sorrow. For when that long list of names is called out amid the sorrowful setting of graduation day, it will be the Coaches day to weep.

After four years of tendering, and drilling, till each player has reached the pinnacle of superiority and playing ability, the let-down comes when it is time to graduate. Graduation is a major problem of worry to all Coaches.

This June after their four years of service, a group of about forty gentlemen will step to the platform to receive their degrees. The caps and gowns will not distinguish one from another, for the days will have passed when No. 10 or any other number was prominent in that last second touchdown, or lifting those tired arms to throw in a long basket from mid-court for another Wildcat court victory.

The long list of meritous acts of each athlete can not be compiled in the space of this column but the real sense of gameness lies in their own heart.

On the football front with Clipper Smith and Vince McNally directing proceedings and after just completing a seven week session of Spring practice, it has been rather noticeable that fifteen men who were out there last Fall have diminished from the ranks. Putting the facts on paper we find that the mainstays of last year's squad are due for graduation.

Well-known to all, Handy-Andy Chisick, Villanova's claim to All-American, will be missing when the team starts on its football campaign next fall. The bruising blocks on unsuspecting rivals that resound throughout the entire stadium will not be so prevalent as Walt Nowak, regular end for the past three years, leaves with his other teammates.

For smart signal-calling, no one was more adept than Harry Mazzei and for long and accurate punts in disturbing times Buzz Howlett and his famed toes proved no match hereabouts. Other backs

School Marks Fall In Meet

Seven meet records were broken and two others equaled in the 13th annual Villanova Interscholastic Track Meet with 600 competing in the stadium Saturday. Ridley Park, West Catholic and Seton Hall won team championships.

Ridley Park's team, competing in Class A, scored 46 points to nose out last year's winner, Norristown, by a single point.

In Class B, West Catholic's victory shunted Overbrook into the background for the first time in three years, the Burrs rolling up 34 2-3 points to the Panthers' 34 1-6.

Seton Hall Victor

Seton Hall spread-eagled the Class C field, amassing 76 points as Valley Forge Military Academy placed second with 32.

New marks were set in the Class A 120-yard high hurdles, one mile run, 440-yard dash; Class B mile and 440-yard dash, and Class C shotput and high jump. Records were equalled in the Class A pole vault and Class C 100-yard dash.

Two features were the Class A and B mile runs. In the Class A, Ridley Park's Jack Birney was pitted against Upper Darby's Warren

Blue Nine Tops Boston College, 5-3

Big Fifth Inning Helps O'Leary to Register Win

With Connie O'Leary doing the hurling and allowing only six hits, Doc Jacobs' baseball club beat out their twelfth victory of the season yesterday. Boston College was the victim by a 5-3 count.

The game was played at Newton, Mass., and provided the climax of a most successful New England trip for Villanova.

Ronnie Corbett, renowned sophomore ace of the Boston hurling staff, did good work against the 'Cats but a bad fifth inning put him in a tight spot.

The score was tied 1-1 in the fifth when the Wildcats reached Corbett. A double by George Flood, single by Mike Lazorchak and an error by Corbett accounted for the damage.

O'Leary's three hits in four trips to the plate provided the best batting performance of the day. Jack Donaghue followed closely with two out of five. Balmore and Flood connected for doubles, the only extra base wallops for Villanova.

Joe Sawyer, Boston firstbaseman, smashed out a home run from the O'Leary offerings in the eighth with one man on base.

FROSH BEAT URSINUS

The freshman baseball team also won yesterday, registering their second victory of the season over the Ursinus College Cubs. The final score was 3-2 after a two-run Villanova rally had overcome a 2-1 lead for Ursinus.

Chaplar and Purzyski did the pitching for the Kittens. Tony Calandra drove in two of the Kitten runs with sharp singles at needed times.

Linksmen See Action Today

With the last match just within sight, the 1940 Golf season ends on Friday at St. John's, Brooklyn. Before that, however, the team meets Haverford today at the Merion Cricket Club's West Course. Tomorrow, Penn invades the Main Line.

The team is still gunning for its first win, having lost five matches. Matches were lost to St. John's, Delaware, Fordham and two to St. Joe's. The chief trouble this year seemed to be in finding a winning combination.

Players who won their matches one day, lost the next. It is hoped that this year's record will help instead of hinder the Villanova spirit. The losses should inspire still more the will to win.

The line-ups for the remainder of the matches will probably find Bob dePersio and Jim Brown at the number one and two positions, Captain Cliff Randolph and Paul Stenn at three and four, Dave Morse and Ernie Klappenback at five and six.

Plans are already taking shape for next year. All opponents of this year may be met with the possible exception of Penn. It is hoped, however, that golf relations between the two schools will continue. Next year it is hoped that a meeting between Villanova and Temple will be arranged. Attempts to include them on this year's schedule met with little success.

Deadlock For First Place Expected In Hardball Loop

Fedigan and Austin in Virtual Tie for League Honors; Austin Clinches Intramural Trophy for Fourth Consecutive Year

By WALT BROWN

With Fedigan and Austin in a virtual tie for first place, the intramural hardball schedule is rapidly nearing its end.

Austin has played one more game than Fedigan, thus giving them a half a game lead and an advantage in percentage but the way Fedigan has been going, it looks like a sure tie.

Since only two games were played last week, one between Austin and Alumni and the other between Fedigan and Mendel, there still three left on the schedule to be played. Austin has only one game left and that with Mendel, while Fedigan must face both of the freshman outfits.

Of course, both Austin and Fedigan must win their remaining games to maintain the tie or both will have to drop one. If Fedigan should drop one of its games while Austin wins her last one, Austin will clinch the crown. But should a tie arise, since there is not time to permit a play-off, the two teams will divide the first and second place points, insofar as intramural cup competition goes.

Austin Wins Trophy

Incidently by taking a second place in hardball, and that's the least she can do, Austin will win the Intramural cup again this year for the fifth time and her fourth straight in the eight years the cup has been given.

In the first game last week Fedigan topped Mendel in a one-sided battle 16-2. Grigalunas and Disdier, the winning and losing pitchers respectively, each had ten strike outs. These proved costly to Mendel but did not stop the Fedigan charges.

Gillespie had a perfect day at the bat having two hits for two trips and scoring three runs. Sandor did good stick work collectnig three hits out of five trips and scoring three runs. Apostolica and Martinez proved to Mendels hitting stars each collecting two safe blows out of four trips and each scoring one tally.

The other game of the week was a forfeit to Austin by Alumni

A week from tomorrow the Wildcats play a game which in the eyes of Villanova fans is the most important contest of the season, for on that day the "Owls" of Temple U. Journey out to the Main Line to do battle with the Cats.

The "Owls" are led by their star battery of Andy Tomasic on the mound and Eddie Dunn behind the plate. In his last start Tomasic pitched a one-hitter against the U. of Delaware while in the same game Dunn had a perfect day at bat with 3 for 3.

FIREMEN DEFEATED IN SOFTBALL TEST BY ALUMNI FROSH

Austin's First Loss Causes Tie In Mural Softball Standings

As the intramural teams swing into the last half of the softball schedule, the race becomes closer. This week Austin suffered her first defeat at the hands of Alumni thus enabling Fedigan to move into a tie for first place.

Alumni still has an outside chance to take first place if they should win all the rest of their games and if Austin and Fedigan drop two of their remaining four games.

The remaining games will be played this week with the final games being on Thursday night if rain does not interfere with the schedule.

In last weeks games which were four in number Fedigan won both its games, while Austin and Alumni ache had a win and a defeat, and Mendel suffered two more setbacks.

In the first game Austin downed Mendel 14-6 behind the splendid itching of Boudon and the timely hitting of Steve Aisenbrey. Aisenbrey had two home runs in this game both coming at sorely needed times. Alplanalp was Mendel's hitting star.

Fedigan continued its winning streak extending it to three straight afterdropping the first game to Austin. They downed Alumni 9-1 by getting away to a fast start and never relinquishing their lead.

Fedigan took the second game in stride downing Mendel 16-10 for their fourth straight win and Mendel's fifth straight defeat. The game proved to be a free-hitting affair with each team collecting plenty of runs but Fedigan managed to collect a majority of them.

In the first doubles match McGrath and Reilly proved too strong for Rappleya and Chet Pajolek winning 6-3, 6-4. Grey and Daly won their match over Murphy and Carterson 7-5, 6-4. Saul Wallach and Ed Banagan were winning their match 5-2 when it was halted by rain.

Wednesday the team entertains Rider College here and the following day they go to La Salle for a return engagement with the intent of avenging the defeat of last week. Saturday they play Moravian away. This and the Rider match are considered to be the toughest of the season.

Runners Meet Rider Here Tomorrow; Maher Injured

By BILL CAREY

Opening their dual meet season this week the Wildcat Trackmen meet Rider College at home on Wednesday afternoon, and travel to Lancaster on Saturday to take on the Diplomats of Franklin and Marshall.

Victorious against both these teams last year the Blue cindermen are favored to repeat their triumphs.

Led by Captain Bill Guiteras, the Wildcats may have to do without the services of their ace dash man Johnny Maher. Maher has a torn cartilege in his knee. This will prove to be a serious blow to the team as Johnny was planning on entering three events, both dashes and the broad jump.

Another man hampered by an injury is hurdler Bill Carey who last week pulled a tendon in his leg. However, it is responding to treatment and it looks as though he'll be a sure starter.

Wildcats Favorites

Favorites to win points for the Wildcat squad are Tim Waad in the javelin, discus, broad jump, and maybe the low hurdles, Pete Yankauskas in the half mile and javelin, Buddie Jones and Art Murphy in the high jump; Fred Gerland in the shot put, and Brad McManus in the pole vault. The dashes will be well taken care of by Whitey Urbellis, while Elliot looks for victories from Guiteras and Bellew in the quarter and half mile. Bill Duy will run in the mile and two miles.

Mentor Elliot will depend on these same men on Saturday, when both Bill Guiteras and Barney Bellew will get a chance to even an old score with their Franklin and Marshall foes. Guiteras was nosed out of a victory in the quarter mile when LeCrone of the Diplomats was judged the winner. Both men had the same time of :51 flat. Bellew in attempting the mile for the first time met defeat at Lancaster, and is now anxious to turn the tables.

Van Ingen, while the Class B mile found Henry Hart, Northeast's Public High champion, outrunning Tony Mancini, St. Thomas More.

Van Ingen took the lead at the start and led all the way, but he was forced to finish with a sprint as Birney challenged on the home stretch. Vin Ingen broke the mark he set last year by galloping the distance in 4.34.1.

Displaying the same qualities that have made him virtually unbeatable, Hart outraced Mancini around the final turn and won by 30 yards in 4.30 to better the mark set by Amerman, Altoona, in 1936.

Not satisfied with this victory, the Northeast lad came back against West Catholic's famed Dixie Dunbar in the Class B- 880-yard run and won going away in 2.03.8.

In the Class A 120-yard high hurdles, Jim Eisman, Upper Darby, erased the mark set by Nuss, of Norristown, last year when he cleared the timbers in 15.5 seconds.

Kitten Nine Trounces Ursinus

The "Kitten" nine scored an 11-4 victory last Friday over the Ursinus Frosh in a hectic last inning that saw a very close ball game swell and surge into a complete rout.

With the game at [illegible] the Frosh came to bat in the seventh and last inning and smashed out hit after hit to tab eight runs; then they held the "Bears" scoreless in their turn at the plate. Bill Woods pitched the Frosh to victory.

The game was featured by the appearance of some of the Frosh footballmen in the line-up and they showed that they can play baseball as well as they can toss the pigskin around. It was Dan Casey who knocked in Simonsen for the tying run in the last inning. Teddy Bykewitz looked very good behind the plate. He has a powerful arm. He also had the longest hit of the game, a triple.

Calandra, Hagerty and Woods had twohits apiece to lead the batting for the "Kittens."

By JIM HAUGHTON

BROTHER BARNES sat smirking over the Alex incident. And well had he reason to be. For the Ram soph hurling ace all but made our esteemed boss eat his typewriter. Then to add insult to injury, Tom Doyle reminded him that half his duties are over with this issue. In other words, "He's half a bum" now. Then he brought the same fact to our attention.

Jim Haughton

So because of this catastrophe of the calendar, which forces us to put our journalistic endeavours into cold storage for the summer, we are forced to inaugurate a new feature in this bureau. But not without much thought on the subject.

It seems that just because we passed Logic some of the patrons, instead of trying to work our their own problems, have passed them on to us. Not being equal to the task we found someone else to pass the puck to. So there is a solution to the rapidly filling mail box.

Yes chillun, thanks to our Aunt Esmerelda Handlelong, of the Frackville Handlelongs, the problem is solved. Having "Lived alone and hated it" for some few administrations she knows all the answers. So take it away auntie!

Dear Aunt Esmeralda:

Mine is a great problem. It seems I just can't hit anymore. Gosh I started off like a whirlwind but the last few games have found me missing badly. Maybe it's like my neighbor, Prof. Finn, says, that I can only hit against "chump" pitchers. But won't you please help me. I'm especially lousy on curves.

Hopingly,
JACK DONAGHUE,
Outfielder.

P. S.—I just got a rabbit's foot for good luck.

Dear Jack:

It couldn't have been that you wrote just to "hit the ink," as you say. But yours is a sure a case. You say you're lousy on curves. What kind, blondes or brunettes? As for getting a rabbit's foot, didn't the rabbit have it for quite a time and no luck came his way. But we suggest you call on your friend, the eminent Mr. Finn, and we're sure he'd recommend some exercises which should aid your slump.

AUNTIE ESMERALDA.

Dear Aunt Esmeralda:

The other evening I went to the Prom with a Villanova football player. Now he's a nice guy as far as Villanova guys go. But like them all, he has his faults. It seems he's a great one for telling jokes. And are they lousy? But that isn't bad enough. Everytime he tells a joke he laughs himself silly and lets go with a terrific back slap which lands pronto on my frame. Now that might be ok with those "Greek" babies, but me, I'm getting fed up with it. But being as I still need a date for our Prom this week I'm undecided as to whether or not I should invite him. Maybe you could give me some solution to stop his hilarious antics by Friday.

Hopefully,
A ROSEMONT LASS.

Dear Rosemont Lassie:

Gal did you ever hear of Carrie Nation. Well Carrie got herself an ax and cleared things up. And that's just what you should do. Next time this chump tells one of those rotten jokes why just step back and feint him out of position, thus skipping the brunt of his whack. Or better still, if this fails. Just forget your lady-like manners and get tough with the egg. When he lets fly with a punch just move up to him and say, "Listen bum, hit the road. Who in the (you know what) do you think you're getting wise with."

And we're sure that will help him. Have a nice time. And if he don't go Friday just send me his phone number.

AUNTIE ESMERALDA.

Baseballers Win Four

Extending their win column to ten games, Villanova marched through four more opponents the past week when they beat Western Maryland, Ursinus, Williams and Providence.

"Wild Bill" Howlett started off the campaign by defeating Western Maryland 8-2, allowing only 3 hits. But "Wild Bill" walked 5 men and hit three with pitched balls. The Cat attack was led by Flood, Lazorchak and Rice who each collected two hits.

Next in line was Ursinus who bowed to the score of 5-3. Ursinus started off with a bang in the first inning getting a triple and a home run off Connie O'Leary. But Connie settled down and only allowed one more run while his teammates were piling up five runs featured by the two home runs by Pash and Balmore. Quite a dispute arose over the homer by Balmore with Rice in second by means of his double. George's drive bounced off the left fielder's glove and flew over the fence. The officials ruled it a homer much to the Chagrin of Ursinus.

Pash Hits Homer

To prove the Wildcats do not need the left fielders help for their homers, Bob Pash stepped into the box and hit the longest ball of the year which sailed high over the left field fence for an undisputed home run and sealed the game up for Connie O'Leary and the Wildcats.

Williams College offered a bit more trouble than most of the Wildcats' opponents and it took eleven innings before Lazorchak drove in the winning run on a long fly. Connie Nicholas chalked up his second victory of the season holding Williams hitless after the sixth inning. Slugging Bob Pash drove out another home run which kept the Wildcats in the ball game and forced it into extra innings.

The tenth win was at the hands of the powerful Providence club who succumbed to an 8-6 defeat by Choquette, accounting for his third straight game.

Graduation Toll

that completed the hipper-dipper on its way to gridiron fame were Tom McMahon; smashing fullback of 200 lbs from next door, Bryn Mawr, Whitey Urbellis; top sprinter of the host of backs, Bill Romanowski and Mike Sabrinski, a combination of successful passing and running attacks.

Line Losses

The forward wall that rocked the opponents line and backs will lose Dave DiFillipo, now with the Philadelphia Eagles; Tom Casper and Vic Cook, twins of scholastic and athletic fame, George Kamen, a big and smashing tackle of rare ability, Al Shedlosky, the Nanticoke speedster, Ronnie Tornwall, hard-working center and Sam Monaco silent-end who folded the interference into two.

Courtmen Hard Hit

The saying that all good things must come to end has its effect upon Al Severance's court aggregation. For three regulars will leave their colors behind them, namely, Mike Lazorchak, "Duke" Duzminski, and Lloyd Rice.

In his three years here Lazorchak had fitted into every campaign and when he has gone Severance will have to find another spirit of fight which Lazorchak demonstrated. For a sure-shooting eye, Duke Duzminski was tops as he captured titles for points scored around the Quaker City.

Lloyd Rice came up from nowhere and then stayed because of his fight and defensive play.

Five Baseball Men

Probably the happiest of the lot will be Doc Jacobs who handles the varsity nine. Even though he loses George Flood, Mike Lazorchak, Lloyd Rice, Bob Pash, and Cilff Choquette the squad is seasoned with sophomores and juniors who hold down the majority of the positions.

Flood doing his first and last year's work by acting as backstop combined his hitting and defensive work to stay in there. Lazorchak shifted from his successful year in basketball and now holds down the shortstop position for the Jacobs' nine.

Pash and Rice are the sluggers of the year lifting the ball far and aplenty driving in the winning runs for Villanova. Cliff Choquette, the southpaw moundsmen, has not lost a game this year and has every trick with the white pill.

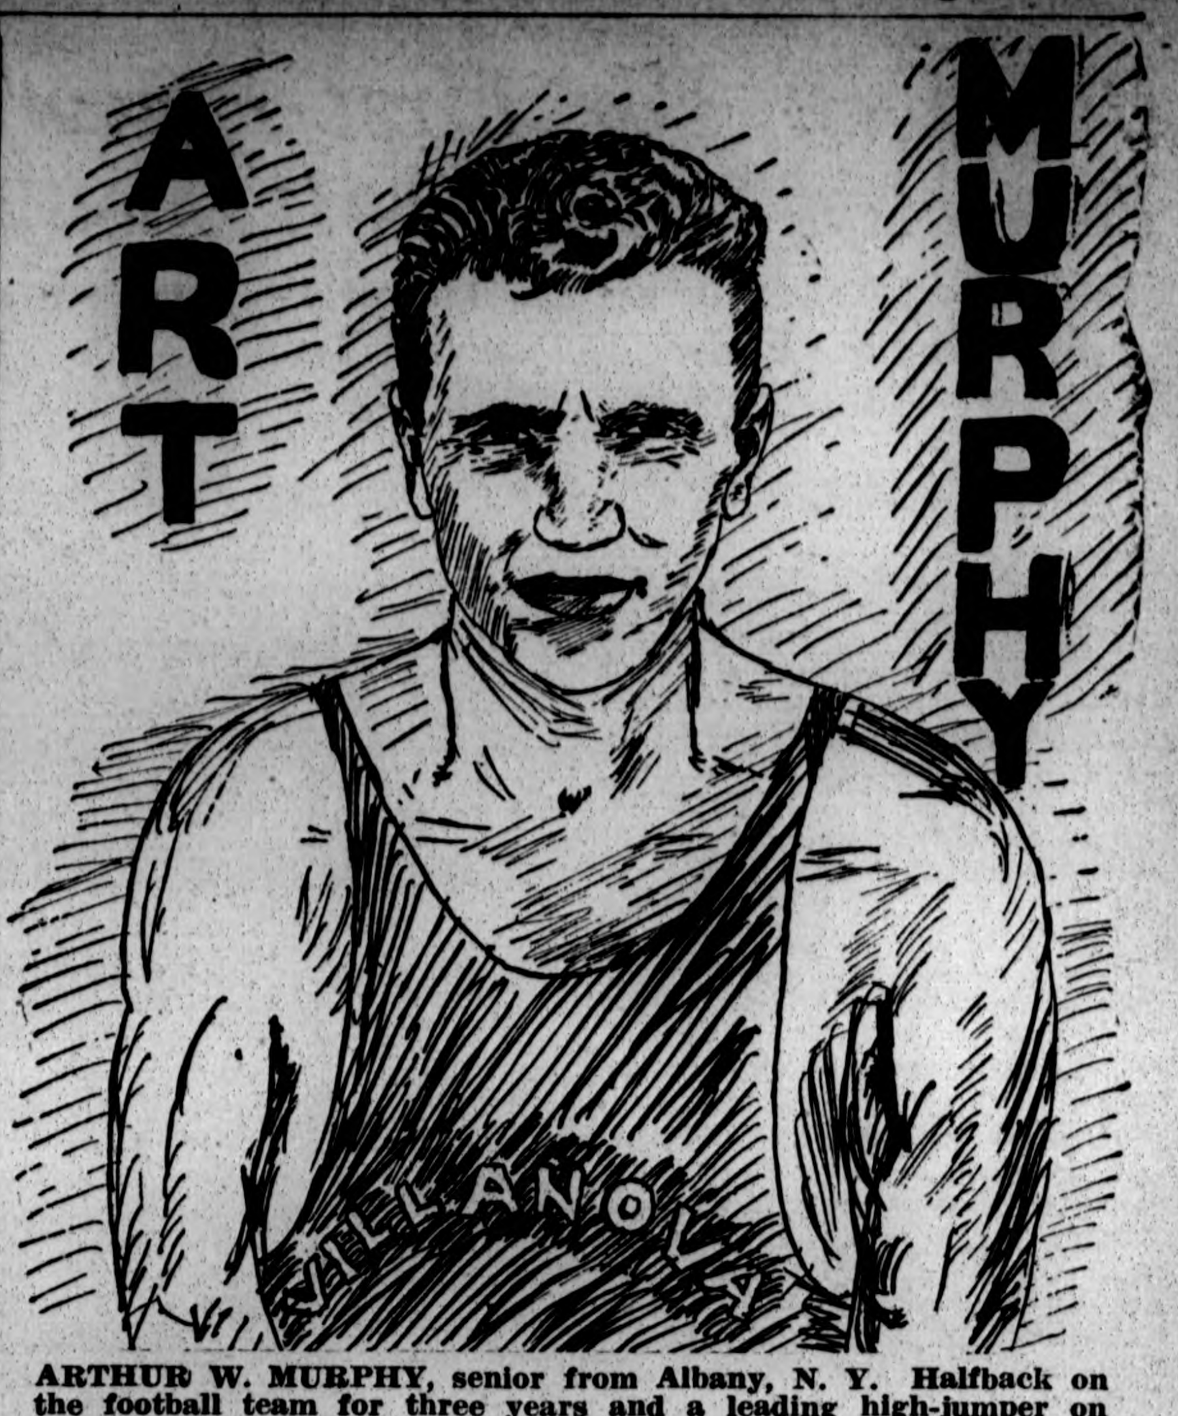
Four swimmers will receive their degrees which will weaken the aquatic squad quite a bit. Coach Leahy will lose his brother, Bill, Charlie Timmins, Charlie Barrett and Paul Fitzmaurice. Timmins was the top diver of the outfit while the remaining three were sprint and medley relay swimmers. Up and coming Freshmen will fill their places and Walt Kelley and Bill Hooper will be back in the fold for another year, enhancing Villanova's swimming reputation.

Track Team Hit

Graduation will deal a mean blow to Jumbo Elliot's track squad for eight members will depart. Capt. Bill Guiteras, Barney Bellew, Tim Waad, Art Murphy, Brad McManus, Whitey Urbellis, Bill Duffy and Al Shedlosky will all be lost after this year, and thus cause a bit of concern for the welfare of next year's promising schedule.

Guiteras, Bellew, Shedlosky and Urbellis comprised the mile relay team and the dashes while Murphy, Waad, McManus and Duffy had the general run of the field events. By the showing in the Indoor Meets, the Freshman relay team looks very well and should fit well into Elliot's scheme next year.

The minor sports of Tennis and Golf lose very few men and indications of a very successful year are prevalent. Schemmerhorn and Wallach will be absent next year while the Golf Team, under the Captaincy of Cliff Randolph seems to suffer no serious losses.



ARTHUR W. MURPHY, senior from Albany, N. Y. Halfback on the football team for three years and a leading high-jumper on the track team. He will graduate in June of this year.

Frosh Runners

Getting the jump on the varsity the Wildcat Kitten track squad opens their season this afternoon against Penn Frosh on Franklin.

This will be a strong test for the Fresh since their entry list will be low.

FROSH DEBATERS FINISH AGAINST ROSEMONT TEAM

Freshman debaters will engage the first year forensic team of Rosemont College on Thursday, May 16, at Rosemont.

The debate will be held at 4:00 P. M. and will concern itself with the resolution, "Resolved: That the basic blame of the present European war is upon the Allies." Supporting the affirmative for Villanova will be Edward Borden and Ward Guncheon, commerce men, and Joseph Mahoney, of the School of Arts.

The Rosemont debate will close the regular 1939-40 season of Villanova's freshmen debaters after one of the largest schedules in the society's history. Credit is due to Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., M. A., the society's moderator, and to the thirteen members who have devoted much of their time to the activities.

Valedictorian

Relations Club, and Epsilon Phi Theta, arts fraternity.

Two representatives from each of the four campus schools competed in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium yesterday at 1:15 P. M. for the honor of filling the 1940 Commencement's Valedictorian position.

This selection contest required a three or five minute speech from each contestant upon the given topic, "Education and Peace" or "How Education Is or Can Be Conducive to Peace."

Father R. Sullivan, O. S. A. moderator of the Belle Masque Dramatic Society and of the Speech-Arts Society, had charge of both the qualifying round and of the finals of the contest.

Representing the School of Arts in this preliminary contest were Joseph N. Bongiovanni, and Joseph M. McNamara, who this year won the annual Oratorical Contest and with it the Murtaugh Medal for Public Speaking. In his sophomore year McNamara also won this award.

Ronald Tornwall, varsity football player, and Frank Pimpinella, assistant infirmarian and Vice-Chairman of the student government body this year, were chosen to represent the Commerce and Finance School.

The engineering school selected John J. Seelaus, president of the engineering school's honorary fraternity, Chi Mu Epsilon, and Frederick A. Rappleyea, a member of the varsity tennis team, to compete in this contest.

Peter E. Hanlon, Senior Class president, and Burton L. Wellenbach, of the varsity tennis team, were entered in the Valedictorian selection contest on behalf of the School of Science.

These men were selected by the Deans of the various schools which they represent on the basis of their high honor ratings in studies, their capability for leadership, and for general excellence.

CATHOLIC AUTHORS

Monday, May 20th, is the last day for entry of essays on Catholic Authors.

The contest open to all students, has for its prize the annual award of the Mercier-Newman Medal, founded by Dr. C. M. Magee, former member of the Villanova faculty.

Rev. John J. McShea, O. S. A., English Instructor in the School of Arts, is in charge of the contest, which has for its purpose the stimulating of interest in the work of Catholic Authors.

RESEARCH MEN HEAR ENI

"The Common Seaweed-Fucus Vesiculosus" will be discussed in a paper presented by Nicholas Eni, freshman science man, at the Research Seminar meeting tomorrow in Simpson hall.

The paper will include a discussion of the various uses of fucus vesiculosus and its many properties and characteristics.

Elections for next year's chairman of the group will be held after presentation of the paper.

APPEL IS C. E. M. HEAD

William Appel, will head the Chi Epsilon Mu, the honor engineering fraternity, next year. The vice-presidency and the secretary-treasurer jobs will be filled by Raymond Vener and Frank Smith, respectively. These new members will succeed in their posts, John Seelaus, George Wilson and Dan Troy, respectively.

literary endeavor, rather than a newspaper.

First Newspaper

It was not until Oct. 30, 1928, that the first real VILLANOVAN newspaper went to press. This issue contained four large size, six column pages of news, columns, and editorials. At this time the VILLANOVAN was dedicated to Leo Goodreau, a Villanova student who was killed during football practice that year. Edwin J. Lovatt was the first editor of the newspaper, and Rev. Eugene Mauch, O. S. A., acted as faculty advisor.

In 1932, the VILLANOVAN assumed its present form. During that year Charles J. Antonaccio was the editor and the Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., the present moderator, first assumed his post. Through Father McKee's untiring efforts, the growth of the VILLANOVAN has been rapid.

Many Awards

The VILLANOVAN has reaped many awards and honors in recent years. In 1927, it received a meritorious certificate in a world-wide competition conducted by the Vatican. The years in which the paper gained its widest acclaim, however, were 1935, '36, and '37, when it merited both the All-American award, bestowed by the National Scholastic Press Association, and the All-Catholic award, given by the Catholic Press Association.

The All-Catholic rating was again received in 1938 and '39, and the VILLANOVAN was judged worthy of a first class honor ratiny by the National Scholastic Press Association in those two years.

Extensive Circulation

This paper which was once printed with a hand-press, and sold on the Bryn Mawr news stands at 5 cents a copy, now has a circulation of 3,100, and is sent to England, France, Germany, Spain, Italy, Cuba, Central and South America, and the Orient, these sections of the world all being on the college exchange list.

The VILLANOVAN has a staff of more than 60 students, including a large editorial board, and is printed on the presses of the "Main Line Times." Since last year the editorial staff has changed with the calendar year. Previously, the new editors had assumed their positions in April.

John J. Harrington, senior Artsman, retired as editor-in-chief at the end of 1939, and turned over to James P. Collins, present editor, the direction of this paper.

In 1943, the same year that the present freshman class graduates, 50 years will have passed since the "Villanovan Monthly" first appeared. We trust that 1943 will find the VILLANOVAN "still existing," and "steadily advancing, with an established and well-merited reputation."

the 1912-15 Villanova footballers, starring as guards and being nicknamed "charm guards" by the sports writers.

Baseball, Fishing—Ex-Hobbies

Tony once had two hobbies—baseball and fishing. The first one was given up after he had passed from his youthful build into his present "two-ton" style, though he was quite a star left-hand pitcher for the Wayne Men's Club back in 1922-23. His other hobby, fishing, Tony has completely discarded after being a victim of high and rough seas on his first, and incidentally, his last, fishing trip.

In the seven years that Tony has reigned as headmaster of the Villanova Field House he has won himself a deep place in the hearts of the students and faculty with his easy-going nature, great sense of humor and everlasting willingness to lend a helping hand. In that short time he has become a landmark of the campus. There is only one way to sum up this character and that is with the words, "a swell guy."

CHEMICAL BANQUET

The second annual banquet of the Chemical Society of the Engineering School will be held this coming Saturday, May 18th. The banquet will begin at 7:30 P. M. in the college dining hall. Several members of the alumni have been invited to speak at the affair.

Non-Residents

8:30 A. M.—Mass and Papal Blessing

All students are to attend all the services. Special attention should be given to the revised schedule of exercises. It will be noted that the times are on the half hour instead of the hour. Punctuality is requested in this respect and attendance cards will be collected regularly.

Confessions will be heard every morning before Mass, after conferences, and after evening Benediction.

Every retreatant is expected to receive Holy Communion during the course of the retreat.

Mass will be celebrated on Thursday for the intentions of the students and on Friday for the living and deceased parents of the students.

Faculty Gains Five New Members

REV. F. X. BOYLE, O. S. A.

REV. FRANCIS X. BOYLE, O. S. A., (above), graduate of Villanova and brother of the college Chaplain, returns to his alma mater as instructor in religion. His studies at Oxford were interrupted by the war.

MR. JAMES V. QUAGLIANO (below) has been appointed temporary instructor in chemistry after receiving his M. S. degree from Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute last June.

JAMES V. QUAGLIANO

WILLIAM W. HAGERTY

REV. J. J. GILDEA, O. S. A.

Appointed instructor of modern languages, REV. JOSEPH J. GILDEA, O. S. A. (above), graduated from Villanova and received his master's degree from the Catholic University of America this year.

A third addition to the faculty who graduated from Villanova is MR. JOHN P. GALLEN (below). An engineering instructor, he has many years of practical work behind him.

JOHN P. GALLEN

3 Profs Return To Alma Mater

By B. J. TALVACCHIA

Five additions to the faculty have been announced with the beginning of the new school year. The new members include the Rev. Francis X. Boyle, O. S. A., John P. Gallen, Rev. Joseph J. Gildea, O. S. A., William W. Hagerty and James V. Quagliano.

The college has accepted the resignation of Mr. Thomas J. McCormick, former assistant professor of engineering, who resigned to take a position in the field of engineering practice, and has granted a leave of absence to the Rev. Joseph W. Paquette, O. S. A., who is pursuing graduate work at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Fr. Boyle, brother of the Chaplain, is returning to Villanova as instructor in Religion. After receiving his Bachelor of Science degree here in 1933 he attended the Catholic University of America, getting his master's degree in 1937.

Oxford Student

To further his scope in education, Fr. Boyle journeyed to the University of Oxford, England. The present European war necessitated his sailing home last June. He completed his examinations at Swarthmore College in conjunction with Oxford authorities, however, and expects to receive the official stamp for his A. B. degree soon.

John P. Gallen, instructor of engineering, received his B. S. in C. E. from Villanova College in 1927, and his professional degree of Civil Engineer in 1929. He returns to his alma mater with several years of experience in both the engineering and educational fields. Mr. Gallen has been associated with the Roman Catholic High School in Philadelphia and Malvern Prep School. His engineering work included specification writing, highways and design.

A Linguist

Rev. Joseph J. Gildea, O. S. A., instructor in modern languages, earned his Bachelor of Arts degree at Villanova in 1936. Higher work beckoned the then new graduate. He matriculated at Catholic University to prepare for his master's degree, which he received in 1940. Fr. Gildea, a native of Lawrence, Mass., admits that French is his favorite language with Spanish running a close second.

William Hagerty, instructor in mechanical engineering, comes to us fresh from the Army Air Corps. A recent graduate of the University of Minnesota, he resigned his post at Dayton, O., after three months of service to accept his present position. He is a newcomer to the East, having spent his life in the mid-West. In conjunction with his work at Villanova, the native Minnesotan intends to pursue graduate studies at the University of Pennsylvania.

James V. Quagliano, temporary instructor in chemistry, studied at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. He received his Bachelor of Science degree in 1938 and obtained a teaching fellowship at the institution to continue his education. He received his Master of Science degree last June.

Fifty Will Be Active In Sanctuary Society

Inaugural meeting of the Sanctuary Society was held on Monday evening, September 23, in the Amphitheatre following Chapel services.

Approximately fifty members signified their intentions of being active for the current year. Among these twenty were freshmen, some of whom requested to be taught the correct method of serving the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass.

Hugh J. Boyle, president of the society presided. Charles Callahan, secretary, assisted in handling the business at hand. Reorganization and induction processes were discussed at length.

The Holy Name Society will hold its first meeting in the very near future, Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., moderator of these societies announced.

Singers Selected

With a membership of 42 students, selected in vocal tryouts last week, the Choral Society is already engaged in preparations for the coming year.

Formerly known as the "Glee Club", the group became an organized society with the official recognition of the college at the close of the last school term. Continuing its activities under Rev. Ralph P. Handran, O. S. A., moderator, it is the first such society to be organized at Villanova. The officers, William J. Appel, president; Hugh J. Boyle, vice president; and Gerard F. Belz, secretary-treasurer, were elected at the time of reorganization.

Elaborate plans are being made by the moderator for the coming school year and the program for the Villanova-Rosemont combined recital of December 8 is already completed.

Twenty-six freshmen appeared at the first meeting of the society last Tuesday, September 24. Of this number, fifteen were selected for membership, along with twenty-seven upperclassmen.

Walsh To Direct Soph Cotillion Friday Evening

Social Season Begins at Annual Affair; "Villanovans" Featured for Three Hour Dancing Party

The Sophomore Cotillion, opening event in the social calender of the college, will be presented on Friday evening, October 4, in the Field House from 9 to 12.

James Walsh, sophomore commerce student, chairman of the Hop, has stated, "It is our purpose to make this—the first dance presented by Villanova's Centennial Class—the biggest and best Soph Hop that Villanova has ever known. With this aim in mind, and with the traditional view of allowing the freshmen to become acquainted, arrangements were made to take the freshmen to tea dances at Rosemont, Immaculata, and the College of Chestnut Hill. The Soph Cotillion is their first opportunity to enjoy the social life of the college."

Plans to decorate the gym in a more ornate manner than has been customary in recent years and to provide soft drinks and refreshments at the Field House are being carried out.

Tickets have been priced at $1.50 as is customary and the Villanovans—the college dance orchestra—will furnish the music.

Chairman Walsh has also issued a call for all freshmen who desire dates to get in touch with one of the members of the dance committee. Arrangements will be made to take care of them.

Assisting Walsh in the arrangements are Bert Collins, Donald Cryor, James Donnelly, John Quinn, Willard Raffetto, Arthur Smith, of the engineering school; William Friel, Roy Lind, William Menseck, James Nunemaker, Commerce and Finance students; Joseph Gambescia, Chester Pajolek, James Thompson and Joseph Turner of the School of Science; and arts students Joseph Mahoney and Jacques Mauch.

Villanova's Chapel Experiences Material Progress In Renovations

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

In reality one might say that Villanova has obtained a new chapel, so great is the contrast between the chapel of last year and today's chapel. The complete renovation of the new building took place in a few short months.

A complete new flooring has been laid, made of the prized terrazza. The entire lighting system has been changed, and clear-story lighting has been installed as has fluorescent lighting. The marble work has been refinished, and new holy water fonts have been installed. The pews have been finished in Flemish Oak, and the kneelers are rubber-cushioned.

New Windows

One of the most striking improvements is the stained glass windows, which, incidentally, are all new and contain an array of artfully blended hues.

One of the several new additions is found in the confessionals. Not only have they been sanded, and refinished in oak, but they have also been equipped with a special lighting system. As one enters the confessional, a light enables very clear vision and so eliminates groping around in the dark. As one kneels the circuit is broken, and the light goes out.

The rear sanctuary and the choir are as yet incomplete, although several things have been restored. The organ has been improved, and new equipment has been added to the sacristy.

Natural Lighting

Not only have all the walls been replastered, but the Stations of the Cross have been enclosed in plaster. New cornices have been added and the wainscoating has been completely changed. Also, four openings have been placed at the dome of the chapel through which light can enter plentifully.

It is to be especially noted, however, that these changes are only a part of a huge plan. It was not deemed feasible to remodel the chapel completely because it is very probable that in the near future plans for enlarging the chapel will be begun, which would, in consequence, nullify any renovation effected at this time.

If plans for enlarging the building are carried out, the present program lays emphasis on work in the rear of the church, with the possibility of a new wing behind the altar. For this reason, the walls and accoutrements of the sacristy were not done in the same degree as was the rest of the building.

Paper Rated "All-Catholic"

Last week the VILLANOVAN received a certificate indicating that the publication was adjudged worthy of "All-Catholic" honors for the fourth consecutive year.

This rating was decided by the annual survey conducted by the Catholic School Press Association at the Marquette University College of Journalism on September 1, 1940.

The college newspaper also received a certificate for outstanding achievement in the field of Catholic college journalism for the academic year of 1939-1940. The award was decided by a survey of the Catholic Intercollegiate Press.

In this latter survey, the publication was judged in individual departments, the ratings being as follows: news stories, superior; editorials, excellent; columns and sports stories, good; and features, average.

Among those on the committee which made the award were such critics as John Kieran of the New York Times and "Information Please", Cholly Knickerbocker of the New York Journal-American, Stan Lomax, sports editor and radio announcer, "Believe It or Not" Robert L. Ripley, and Westbrook Pegler.

Another Award

Last May the VILLANOVAN received a First Class Honor rating from the national Newspaper Critical Service of Associated Collegiate Press. This award was presented by the Department of Journalism of the University of Minnesota.

These awards, accompanied by criticisms made on technical aspects of collegiate journalism, are intended to improve the field of student publications as a whole, as well as to encourage college publications in their effort to constantly raise their standards.

COLLEGIUM AUGUSTINIANUM DE VILLANOVA

TUESDAY - - - OCTOBER 1, 1940

Hello, '44!

ONE of the many traditions at Villanova is the annual welcome extended to the incoming freshmen class. The VILLANOVAN wishes to participate in this greeting and hereby extends to you, the class of 1944, a warm welcome.

College is a new and distinct part of your educational advancement. Many opportunities will unfold during your days here which were heretofore lacking. You, and you alone, can make the most of them.

Your respective courses lay at your disposal as a means of acquiring knowledge through numerous channels. Class rooms, lectures, laboratories, research seminars, and many other facilities of the college will develop your intellectual faculties. Athletic schedules, extra-curricular activities, and social programs will balance your days and maintain that balance so beneficial to a college student.

Aside from and above these mental, physical, and social provisions, Villanova emphasizes the importance of spiritual instruction. Students are taught the Catholic Ideal and its application to everyday life so that when they graduate and depart from this college they may live better and help others to do the same.

If you accept the teachings you receive, you will derive benefits from your college days. If you fail to comply with the requirements and rules at Villanova, your stay here will afford you nothing.

Freshmen who disregard the traditional regulations outlined in the student's handbook will accordingly be brought to trial by the Orientation Committee before the Student Council.

Penalties for infringement of these rules will be imposed. Punishments will include suspension from all class offices as well as from all recognized extra-curricular activities for the duration of the freshman year.

Whatever actions the Orientation Committee deem contrary to the complete fulfillment of its program will be tried by a selected jury and the lawful authorities. The court will commence sessions in the near future in room 117, Mendel hall, and the sentences will be in proportion to the misdeed committed.

H. J. McC.

Pusillanimous Politics

WITH the coming of a presidential election year, the campus is again the scene of the inimitable arguments that take place every fourth year. Whether or not a student is able to vote; whether or not he knows much about the issues of the campaign, whether or not he particularly cares who is elected, he (about 90 per cent of the student body) argues for one party or the other. Sometimes he is really trying to convince others to vote for "his man", but more often he argues merely for the sport of it, getting a peculiar satisfaction out of being known as a violent Republican or Democratic supporter.

This seems a little foolish to us, and a bit tragic. It appears that many who are to vote in November for a man to lead the country through the four crucial years that lie ahead, really known very little about the candidates and their programs.

Unlike intelligent college voters, they do not sit down to study the issues, read and listen to the political and non-political campaign speeches, and read the arguments of both parties as viewed by newspapers and magazines partisan to each party; they do not study the past and the present, and correlate every bit of accurate information to predict the wisest course for the future. Rather, it seems, they will vote for the man with the most stirring voice and the handsomest profile, or for the candidate of "their party".

It is to this large percentage of college voters that we appeal: now is the time, not "to come to the aid of the party", but to come to the aid of the country by selecting the candidate for whom you will vote intelligently; by picking the man who should be President after judging impartially, and not blindly or by any sham adulation.

T. H. D.

"Out Of The Depths — "

FROM the wilderness of a chaotic disorder which seems about to envelop the universe, for the most part embroiled in the fiendish machinations of a vengeful Mars, a voice is crying out to mankind to listen to its messages, only to find its cries falling on the shell-shocked ears of a materialistic world which refuses to heed.

". . . for more things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."

This message of love for God and neighbor, of charity and justice in all things, this message of peace among men, is, and has been, the constant exhortation of Christianity. But today these doctrines seem to have fallen out of favor. Still they must be restored to their original abode in the hearts of men if we expect to preserve this civilization of which we are proud.

Prayer! Prayer for peace! This is the only means we have of petitioning the Almighty to wipe out the hatred that is so rampant among nations.

We, who live in a land not yet defiled by the ravages of war, should lead this crusade of prayer for peace.

More particularly, we, who enjoy the fruits of a Catholic education, should realize that only through united prayer can a weary humanity raise itself from the dregs of war to the blessings of peace. We know that wars do not benefit the social order, that the principles of Christian charity and justice will.

FACULTY COMMENTS

The Letter Home

By FR. BOYLE, Chaplain

Friday, September 27, 1940.

Dear Dad,

Your letter reached me this morning. Thanks a lot for the five. I can make good use of it for books and the Cotillion next week. Well, I am settled at last—and no homesickness this year. I got through the reexam and can go on for a new year. That's never going to happen again. Gosh, was I worried till the Dean let me have the glad "Passed"!

It's great to see the old faces again. Most everyone is back. I miss Jack Austin. As expected he has to work this year to scrape up enough to finish. The new Freshmen are a pretty nice lot. Those I've had time to speak with seem to have gotten into the true Villanova spirit a lot quicker than I did. I sat with one at table yesterday. He's worried about his math. I don't know whether I helped any, but I told him to keep on worrying now. That would keep him at the books. If I had done some serious worrying in September last year, I wouldn't have been sweating through the summer trying to make up for wasted time. Talking with him made me think what I would do if I were starting over. Then the idea struck me I AM making a fresh start—you can be sure this term I will aim higher than a mere "pass".

Oh, by the way, I hope you and Sis didn't forget Mother. Gee, Dad, it's just one year today. What a pal she was! I can still taste those hot biscuits of hers. Do you remember how she had to hold me up till you said the grace. I'll bet if the angels get biscuits, Mother's doing the baking. I went to Mass and Communion for her this morning. And say that's something for me. With the regular weekday Mass yesterday, today made two days running. I think I'll try to go more often this year. There are a good number, I found out this morning, receive daily.

I've been thinking over your words at the train last week. I suppose I did keep too many late hours during the vacation. But now that I'm back here I'll be able to get into the habit of more regular living.

Don't forget your promise to make the Temple game. There'll be someone I want you to meet—she's Rose Immaculata Hill.

Your wiser son,
Tom

FLASH! FLASH! FLASH!

On Wednesday, September 25, word was received that RAY MERRIGAN ex-member of the Junior Class became the proud father of a seven and a half pound son. And so to Ray goes the honor of being the first father of the class of '42 and with this distinction also the congratulations and best wishes of all the members of his class. To RAY JR. (? ? ?) goes the title "class baby"—Oh! how time does fly.

. . The above item, being of such a momentous nature, was put first in the reopening of this keyhole (?? ?) of information but now that the worry of school is once more upon us the groove is set and the boys are in. And so saying we start in for another year hoping that all who might possibly be subjected to scrutinization herein will "take it" in the same spirit in which it is given or written—to give a little gossip and entertainment to all.

A Bit of Verse Dedicated to the Frosh:

Welcome Frosh,
We're glad you're here,
Your smiling faces
Bring us cheer.

But we don't mean
We'll take your guff,
Or turn our cheek
When you get tough.
So just be nice,
Thru your first year;
Welcome Frosh
We're glad you're here.

LOGAN (MEATHEAD) PHILLIPS is certainly hitting a new high in popularity with a little lass who calls Trinity her Alma Mater. Not content with sending her "Romeo" a letter or two the little lady helps pay the defense tax with four special deliveries, three telegrams and if that isn't enough, right after one of the telegrams a long distance call from Washington. This information should make one reader in particular very happy and cause another to have a case of high blood pressure.

THISA AND THATA:

What it is no one quite seems to know, but every year the members of the Freshman Class always manage to find their way, almost as soon as they arrive, to the famous "ranch"—El Greco in the heart of that thriving little town of Bryn Mawr—it must be the music! . . . JACK FERRACI has finally come from hibernation and found an interest in the opposite sex. Meeting a young lady from one of the local institutions on a blind date, in New York, "Biscuit" was so interested that he went back for another and there may be more. . . . The tales of summer vacations are busy making the rounds of the various rooms and some of them are very tall. Employment ranged from construction laborer to parking attendant with any number of "beach adonis'" thrown in. . . . Rumor has it that, although it's Leap Year, the fair members of the opposite sex think differently and as a result many of the gentlemen are looking for "new fields to conquer." Possibly the old adage about the grass being greener in the other backyard could be applied.

Last year, if you recall, this column was the object of a bit of indignation on the part of the young ladies of Immaculata College. The difficulty, I hope, has been ironed out and to show there's no hard feelings we pass on this bit of information. Our spies report that the new freshman class, "up the pike" is replete with attractive girls. So saying, may a word to the wise be sufficient. After all l'amour knows no bounds.

WALSH, THOMPSON & CO., members of the Soph Cotillion Committee, lost no time in contacting feminine charm for their coming dance. In a whirlwind tour they managed to get them all in, so the Frosh are in for a few socials unparalleled in recent years.

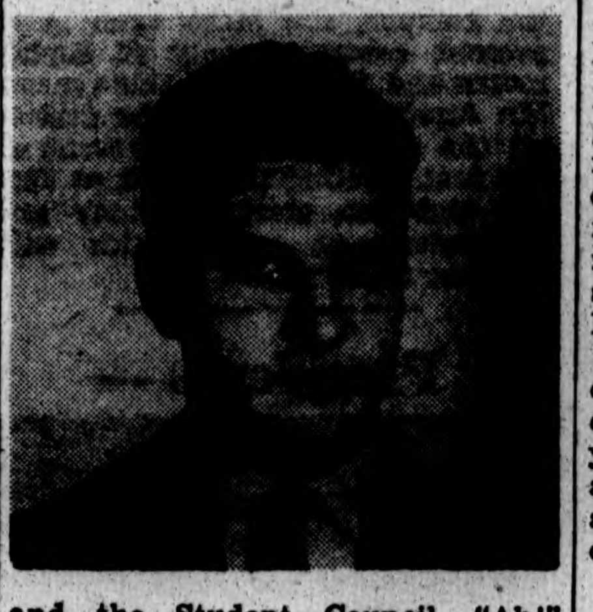
Meet The Boys: C. Randolph For Eichman, And Vice Versa, Too; They're Smoothies and Roomies True

By ROBERT J. McINTYRE

PEOPLE, meet the "Big Boss" of the Orientation Committee, the nemesis of the Frosh, the "Great Lover" of Fedigan hall, Cliff Randolph, vice-chairman of the Student Council, and chairman of the Orientation Committee.

Cliff, although he hails from Brooklyn, was born on May 7, 1918, in the booming little town of Plainfield, N. J. After he had attended three years of grammar school in Plainfield, the family decided to try big-city life and moved to Brooklyn, where Cliff finished elementary school.

From there he moved on to Brooklyn Prep where he was a member of the golf and track teams and the Student Council. "Ah!" sighed Cliff as your correspondent interviewed him, "them was the days, when I was head Romeo and didn't have to worry about competition from somebody like Eichman."



A Frosh Porter

But to get on with our thumbnail biography, Clifford made the "Trunk Carrying Team" and the golf team at Villanova in 1937. He liked the authority the boys in the white hats seemed to have and, in his second year, succeeded in acquiring one by being elected to the Student Council. Hah! Did he get fooled? He served on the Soph Cotillion Committee and also saw service with the golf team.

The junior year was his big one, inasmuch as he was reelected to the Student Council and acted as Chairman of the Blazer Committee, and captain and manager of the golf team. Although his senior year has just commenced, Cliff has already gotten away to a fast start by being elected vice-chairman of the Student Council (which means he is also chairman of the Orientation Committee) and once again will head the golf team.

A Barrymore

So much for his leadership abilities and now for the social series. Cliff is not called the "Great Lover" for nothing. It goes on record that he has never brought the same girl twice to any of the dances. He claims that he is a firm believer in early marriage. Perhaps the reason for so much variation is that he hasn't found the proper mate yet. Although 'tis rumored that a certain young school teacher in New Rochelle has him groggy and on the ropes.

Cliff has roomed with "Doc" Eichman for three years, two of which they spent in the Austin Penthouse before moving to Fedigan this year. During this time his favorite occupation, besides those already mentioned above and studying, has been trying to raise the roof of our beautiful campus, aided and abetted by Eichman, Heley, Meskel, and Klappenbach.

In closing, let me say, dear students, that Mr. Randolph is reported to have had more fun at last year's Senior Ball without having actually attended the affair than any other man in the history of the college.

AS YOU good readers probably realize, these interviews were conducted at the same time, so that when we asked Doc to give us the facts of his life such as when and where, Cliff Randolph was right there to pop out with, "Him? He wasn't born; he was invented. There is only one Doc Eichman, Villanova's Ambassador of Good Will to all the girls' colleges in the vicinity."

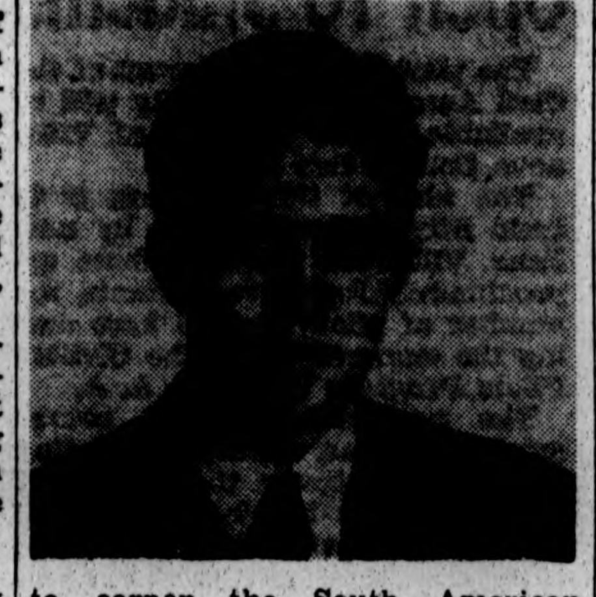
With that Doc hit him on the head with a typewriter, knocking him out for a few minutes so that we were able to proceed.

Just Plain Born

Upon probing deep into the past of our relucant 'interviewee', we found that he had been born (not invented) in Roxborough on March 18. 1919. Of his early life Doc would say nothing but told us that he went to St. Joseph's Prep upon finishing grammar school. There, in addition to becoming one of the Prep's well known "sharpers", he was an active member of the debating and track teams. He also served on the Dance Committee and was a member of the Glee Club.

One thing he told your correspondent and wouldn't qualify was that he had had a hectic career at the Prep. Now, was it because of the faculty or else? ? ? (Draw your own conclusions.)

"Doc" started his "hectic" career at Rosemont in his first year, at the annual tea dance before the Cotillion. In his second year he acted as chairman of the Cotillion and seemed to have been set for the Junior year but here, "Doc" claims he was sabotaged by Mr. Dougherty (statistics had something to do with it). This year as a result of studying the stock market, he is trying to corner the South American market in "Latin beauties." "Doc" is a firm believer in the improvement of Pan-American relations.



Ed For Wendel

"Doc", always an ardent politician, has elected Klappenbach and himself to head a very active "Willkie for President Club." This has, of course, resulted in the inevitable oppositon of the Roosevelt supporters. (Double duty for the infimary.)

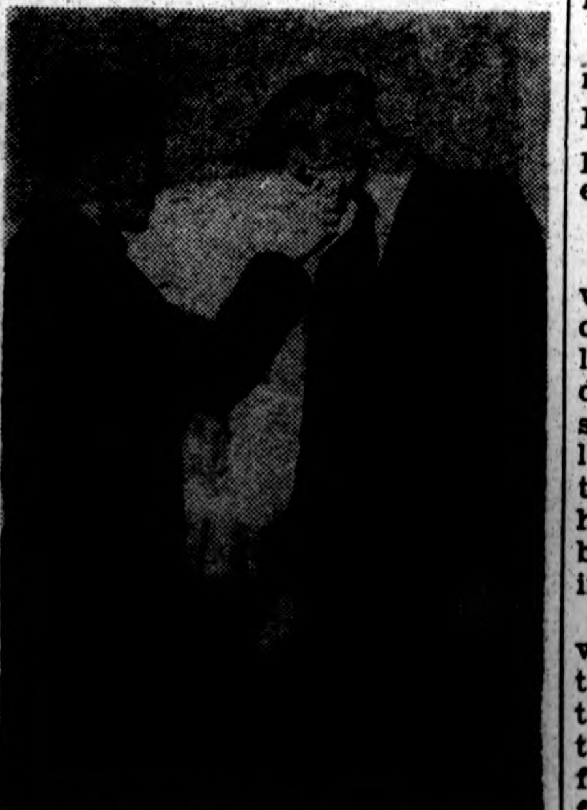
Mr. Eichman's favorite sport is a "bull session" at any hour, much to roommate Clifford's disgust and we quote him: "I want my sleep!" These "bull sessions" at all hours have resulted in making "Doc" a confirmed night-owl. Rumor has it that "Doc" has seen more sunrises than any milkman alive.

This Is No Dream

By R. YOUNG

WITH a final sigh of determination to muffle the rapid tatto of knee against knee and tooth against tooth, Clarence enters the door of Mendel hall.

A gruff "Hi Frosh!" greets him and several burly upperclassmen seize the newcomer, commanding him to free himself of his trousers. Others hack away his hair with hedgeshears, paint his face in a kaleidoscope of colors and put him through a mill of well-armed muscle-bound men. Finally after a parade on the campus with only a barrel to uphold his modesty, he is shoved into his room.



'Hellish Hazing'

But this is not the end. The ensuing days are a maze of torturous persecution and hazing:

"Frosh, shine my shoes! Brush my clothes!"

"Hey Freshman, clean the windows of my room! Wax the floors! Get my trunk!"

No longer does this young fellow feel like sitting down, no longer does he dare to walk the campus. Ah! sweet misery of life, the life of a Villanova Frosh. To be relegated to an endless succession of paddings, menial work, and study-interupting hazings.

Only A Dream

But wait, you Villanova men! Cease the slang; uncurl those frowns; muffle those grinding teeth, for Clarence is just now awakening from a blood-curdling nightmare.

He shakes his frowsy head and reviews the Freshmen Orientation Program of the past week in comparison to what he has just dreamed.

A Dignified Program

From the time of registration he was guided by the advice of white-capped upperclassmen. A series of lectures and meetings described his duties towards his religion, his studies, his teachers, and his fellow students. Yes, he carried a few trunks, sang a few songs and wore his "regs" but no persecution ever bothered him and nobody broke into his room.

Rather, this freshmen program was instructive, friendly and for the purpose of enumerating to him the priveleges of a Frosh. Through this program he acquires a liking for his fellow students and a love for the school, at the same time being gently disciplined.

"Darn that piece of pie!" mumbles Clarence as he climbs into his clothes, thinking of the previous night's "binge" in the Pie Shop.

Reflection

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

Last night as I sat immersed in thought
They all came back to me,
Those dreams and plans of yesterday,
The man I'd hoped I'd be.

They paused a moment inquiringly,
And then passed on their way;
They didn't seem to be satisfied
With the man I am today.

WELCOMING the freshmen is a customary thing in the first issue of every college paper, but it is not without due cause. The step from high school to college is one that should have many profound effects upon those whose privilege it is to take it.

In contrast to the rather sheltered and planned existence one experiences in the secondary school, college calls for much adjusting of one's personality and habits. This will, no doubt, dawn upon all those concerned in the near future, but the sooner these changes come about, the better the results will be.

Many and varied reactions take place while a freshman is fitting himself into college life. You may be an All-American in your home town, but you're just another Frosh here until you prove otherwise.

If a little advice would not be too much like "carrying coals to Newcastle" let me say that college is a career in itself. It should not be an end in itself but at the same time it has unmeasured rewards for the ambitious.

Don't be overawed by the vast educational opportunities suddenly cast before you, but at the same time don't expect that the completion of a college course makes you a much sought-after, and financially valuable, cog in the machinery of this country. The truth lies in just the opposite direction. As President Hutchins of the University of Chicago has aptly stated; "A sheepskin is something in which a college graduate may clothe his intellectual nakedness."

Varsity Comment

The strictly democratic "Plainsman" from Auburn informs us that the Tigers are looking forward to a highly successful season. (Villanova is sorry to have to disappoint them). Their ace backfield man, McGowen, (who made an exhaustive survey of the Villanova territory lying between the line of scrimmage and the goal line last year), is reported to be in rare form. The Plainsman also mentions that Auburn led the collegiate world last year in the kicking department

Shades of Rube Goldberg

When Harvard University's Widener Library is closed, students use an ingenious system for returning books. (This saves fines and obviates the necessity of making excuses to the librarian.) The gadget works in this fashion: Student slides book (A) through slot (B) down slide (C) to tray (D). When enough books are on the tray a photoelectric beam (E) is intercepted causing jack (F) which supports a tray to sink to floor. Dropping of the tray sets off alarm clock (G) which rings and calls watchman (H) who collects the books.

Sunflower

Favorable comment:

Despite the fact that Auburn has one of the toughest schedules of any college team they flatter us by calling us the "powerful Villanova Wildcats." Here's hoping our team is successful.

Lest anyone who is elegible for the draft get impatient and get himself involved in some premature matrimonial venture, the advice of a wise poet might be pertinent:

For folks well able to discern,
Who know what 'tis to take a wife,
Say 'tis a case of such concern
A man should think on't—all his life.

Cheer Up, You Dateless Frosh!

STAGS get set! Freshmen, you, who are intending to attend the Soph Cotillion unaccompanied, should appreciate some sound, fatherly advice on how to acquire a few dances for yourselves next Friday night. So here goes.

Primarily, dust off your bifocals and select a suitable lassie, even though she be in the clutches of another. Thereupon, stalk said beautiful creature until the opportune moment arrives. This you will naturally sense. Wend your lonesome way through the cavorting dancers. Circle your prey, all the while making mental notes of the biceps of her smug partner. Then pounce—that is if your mental notes do not hit high C. Lightly tap the fellow on the shoulder, just as if you were laying a foundation for a 20th century Colosseum. This is the critical moment, now. Don't wait for response to the mauling you gave your late opponent; just assert yourself and waltz away with your captive lady. That's all there is to it. But, personally, we're going to take a date ourselves!

Belle Air Edition Wins All-Catholic

Moderator Announces Awards Gained by 1940 Yearbook

All-Catholic rating has been awarded to the 1940 edition of the Belle Air, college yearbook, according to the Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., moderator. Announcement of All American rankings has not as yet been made.

Work has already begun on the 1941 Belle Air. Last Wednesday, Sept. 25, a meeting of new candidates and former members was held, at which Thomas J. Moore, editor-in-chief, outlined the work for the year. Moore has announced that anyone who wishes to join the staff may still do so by reporting to room 51, Mendel hall.

This week, meetings of the various staffs are being held under the direction of the staff editors. John Bader, senior engineer, is the college editor; Joseph A. Barnes, senior in the commerce school, heads the sports staff; and William N. Way, senior artsman, is photography editor.

This year, assistant editors will also be appointed in each department in order to better organize the work.

The position of copy editor is still open. This office will be awarded on the basis of a competition to be held in the near future. The student putting forth the best effort will be selected for this pivotal post.

K. G. S. Organizes

The Kappa Gamma Sigma Society, recently organized physics club under the direction of Rev. John H. Crawford, O. S. A., moderator, will hold its first meeting on Wednesday, October 5, at 1:00 P. M. This meeting will be held primarily to ascertain a meeting time and place agreeable to all concerned.

According to president Joseph M. Gambescia, the society, though inactive during the summer, has progressed considerably. Contracts have almost been completed for the making of a key, and the constitution is now in its final stage and ready for submission to Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., Vice-President.

One of the innovations of the society, the first of its kind in the school, is the distribution of a letter to all freshmen members of the arts and science schools, explaining the purpose of the existence of the society and the many advantages to be gained by membership.

All members and prospective members are invited to attend the meeting to be held tomorrow, at 1:00 P. M. in room 214. An hour will be set for future meetings and, should time permit, the program will be planned for the first semester.

L. K. D. ADVANCES

Members of Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity will meet this week to forward preparations for their annual fall dance, held this year in the Field House on October 18. Although the chairman of the affair has not yet been announced, the organization is already engaged in preparations.

Aviation Course Open To Students

The pilot training program of the Civil Aeronautics Authority will be available to the students of Villanova College this fall.

The aim of this program is to train fifty thousand pilots by next June. Villanova will contribute approximately forty-five students, the number of pilots trained here during the summer under the Civilian Pilots Program of the C. A. A.

The applicant for the course must fill out an application stating that he is "between the ages of 19 and 26;" that he "has completed one full year of college work and is a fully-matriculated degree candidate." The applicant must also pass a physical examination for a student pilot certificate with a commercial CPT rating and pledge himself "to apply for flight training in the military service of the United States."

The program to be given to students of Villanova College will include seventy-two hours of ground school instruction in meteorology, aerial navigation, air traffic rules and regulations. Mr. William G. Driscoll, assistant professor of mathematics and physics, will teach the ground school course at Villanova.

The flight instruction part of the program will include not less than 35 hours of flying time and not more than fifty hours. This enables the student who completes the course to obtain his private pilot certificate. Flight instruction will be given in land planes at the Main Line Airport in Paoli and, in seaplanes, at the Philadelphia Skyport in Philadelphia.

The total cost to the student for this instruction which will start during the first or second week of October and end on or before January 15, 1941, will be fifty dollars.

DELTA PI EPSILON

The Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity will hold its initial meeting of the year today at 1:05 P. M. in the Commerce & Finance auditorium. All members please attend.

Calpin, Lukens Hold Competitive Scholarships

Scholarships in the annual competitive examinations sponsored by the college at the end of the 1939-1940 scholastic year were won by Thomas J. Calpin, Reading High School, Reading, and Robert J. Lukens, West Catholic High School, Philadelphia.

The competition, which attracted 133 high-ranking students representing forty high schools in five states, set a new high in the number of participants. Of those who competed, twenty per cent are now in attendance at Villanova.

Fr. Handran Gives Second In Series Of Organ Recitals

Tonight after chapel services, Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., will give a recital on the organ in the college chapel.

For his program this evening, he will play three selections: variations on the "Mother of Good Counsel Hymn" by Leonard, "In a Monastery Garden" by Katelby, and the stirring "Pilgrim's Chorus" from Wagner's opera "Tannehauser."

Tonight's recital will be the second in a series which will continue through the school year. Fr. Handran will play every Tuesday evening at the conclusion of Chapel, choosing his selections from the classics and lighter classics as well as from devotional music.

Flying Club Holds First Meeting Friday

First meeting of the Villanova Flying Club will take place on Friday, October 4, in room 106, Mendel, at 1:00 P. M. The purpose of the meeting will be to welcome new members.

The final duty performed by the club last year was the election of officers. Francis J. Mambretti, '43, Thomas C. Muraski, '43, and Charles W. Schaumann, '42, were elected President, Vice-President, and Secretary-Treasurer, respectively.

SENIOR PICTURES

Senior pictures for the 1941 Belle Air are being taken this week. Each senior has already received a card stating the time when his picture will be taken and lists containing this information have been posted on the various bulletin boards.

William N. Way, photography editor, emphasizes the necessity that these portraits be taken at the time appointed.

Math Club Faces Election of Officers

Mr. Emil Amelotti, assistant professor of mathematics and physics and moderator of the Mathematics Club, has announced that the club will soon initiate activity for the current school year. The first duty facing the members will be the nomination and election of officers.

One of the youngest groups on the campus, the Math Club is at present composed only of sophomores and juniors. For this reason, Mr. Amelotti states that he desires all the members to be present at the first meeting this week so that the club can start its study and discussions on mathematics with little or no delay.

Enlarged Band To Play Saturday

P. M. C. Game First Appearance; Group to Appear in Jersey City Parade

Practice sessions for the college band began last week in preparation for the coming football season. This year's band will be somewhat larger and will contain a greater number of experienced members than it has in the past few years.

The first public appearance of the band this year will be at Shibe Park on October 5 when the Villanova varsity meets Pennsylvania Military College. On Sunday, October 13, the band will participate in the Jersey City Holy Name parade. This parade will take three hours to pass a given point and in the line of march will be some twenty-five bands and drum corps. Most of these organizations will be made up of professional musicians; the Villanova contingent will be the only college band in the parade.

Villanova will represent the Fireman's Holy Name Society whose chaplain, Fr. Carlin, pastor of St. Joseph's church in Jersey City, has long been one of the band's staunchest supporters.

Director Teel and Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., moderator, look forward to a highly successful year for the band. Jack Eldracher, veteran drum major, is expected to repeat his twirling achievements of the last three years.

Among this year's additions to the band are the following freshmen and transfer students: Dolan, Gavin, Swan—trumpet; Barthmaier, Hosey, Lebischak, Maloney, Rossi, Ryan, Shaffo—clarinet; DeRevere, Phillips, DiRenza—drum; DiSanto, Deery—accordion; DeVoldre, alto horn; Micelli, piccolo; Laffan, baritone horn; Tortoreto, trombone; Winiarski, glockenspiel; Scott, bass drum; Moscariello, alto saxophone.

These three men, elected last May, will guide their respective classes through the present scholastic year.

Caspar Expects Banner Season For One-Fifties

New Coach Optimistic as 60 Candidates Report; Lombardo, Nihill, Brown Loom as Team's Backbone

By BOB FUNABASHI

Appearing in an optimistic mind, Coach Tom Caspar, newly-selected tutor for Villanova's 150 lb. team faced his squad of sixty candidates Thursday afternoon for the first time.

Caspar as a member of Clipper Smith's prominent elevens for the past three years, recently filled the vacancy left by Harvey Buek, another ex-Wildcat. A stellar guard, he performed for three years on the varsity eleven after an outstanding gridiron career at Radnor High School.

For the past three years Villanova has been the doormat of the lightweight league, which features the Ivy league schools of Princeton, Penn, Cornell and Yale and two other schools, Rutgers and Lafayette. Caspar's selection comes at a time when the Wildcats are ready to advance their name into the upper bracket.

Large Squad

The new squad, probably the largest in history. lists nineteen backs and approximately forty-one linemen, although Coach Caspar will shift and convert as he sees fit. Graduation has given Caspar only slight disadvantage for nineteen veterans are returning to the folds.

Replacements in every department are plentiful as Vic Dominick and Charles Timmins were the only starters last year who graduated. Until the season progresses into its later stages and until the opener against Princeton on October 11th, Caspar has time to list his potential starters. His principal efforts will be stressed upon a good defensive line and one that is hard-charging. Much time will be used in elementary blocking and tackling.

Possible backfield starters include Bill Brown, Frank Lombardo, Bill Sykes, Jack McMahon, Dick Anderson, Joe McMahon and Tom Moore. Brown and Lombardo were the twin keynotes on last year's

Baseball Nine Led Villanova Sports

George "Doc" Jacobs' baseball team took top honors among Villanova athletic aggregations for the 1939-40 season, a VILLANOVAN survey showed yesterday. Doc's minions won 16 of their 17 encounters for a .941 percentage.

Villanova teams as a whole won 44 of their 67 clashes to finish up with a .656 average.

Basketball, with the loquacious Al Severance at the helm and sporting such stars as "Duke" Duzminski, candidate for All-American honors, and Mike Lazorchak, an All-State guard, won 17 of 19 games for an .895 average and second place among the school's athletic representatives.

Third ranking goes to football with six wins and two losses and a .750 average. In the previous two seasons football had led the parade with 1.000 percentages, but last year's two losses knocked the Smithmen from the top of the heap.

Only two Wildcat aggregations fail to make a .500 or better average. Tennis and golf finished with .143 and .000 percentages respectively.

Ticket Rates Set For Grid Games At Home And On Foreign Fields

Ticket prices for home football games this year will range from sixty cents for general admission to $1.75 for reserved seats at the Shibe Park Stadium. Besides the two extremes there will also be a large quantity of seats available at a $1.20 rate. All prices include city, state, and federal taxes.

Games included at these prices are those with P. M. C., Florida, Detroit, Kansas, and Duquesne. Thus, using the 60c rate, a Villanova patron may attend all home games for only three dollars.

Ticket rates for away from home games vary from a $1.10 minimum for the Manhattan game to a $3.42 tops for the traditional Temple tilt. The October 19th night fray with Baylor University at San Antonio, Texas may be seen from general admission seats for $1.65. Reserved seat prices are $2.20 and $2.75.

As in the past all seats are reserved for the Temple meeting. Prices are $1.71, $2.85, and $3.42. Student tickets will be $1.14.

The Manhattan game at New York City's Polo Grounds may also be seen from reserved seats only. However prices are a little more reasonable, the scale being $1.10 and $2.20.

Reserved seats for the Auburn game, to be played at Birmingham, Alabama, will cost $2.50.

Applications for ticket reservations should be sent to Bob Whelan at the Field House Athletic Office. Remittance in full must accompany all applications, both for home and away games. Tickets will be delivered to the purchaser about one week before the game.

Grid Games Aired Over Station WIP

As in previous years, Villanova varsity football games will be handled by Philadelphia radio stations. Station WIP will handle all the games played in this vicinity. Through the facilities of the National Broadcasting Company, WFIL will take care of all the games played away from Philadelphia, namely, Manhattan, Auburn and Baylor.

As before Byrum Saam will very capably handle the announcing of the game. He will be assisted by Lee Vines. This pair with Taylor Grant have handled 'Cat games in past years.

There is no one better able to announce Villanova's game than Byron Saam. He has called the plays of the Wildcats for the past few years, and understands the brand of football played by the Wildcats.

Trackmen Begin Fall Drills

Track coach "Jumbo" Elliot issued a call for all track candidates last Wednesday afternoon in the Field House to discuss plans for fall conditioning. Many cindermen reported, the majority of whom were in excellent physical shape.

For conditioning purposes. Jumbo will put his charges through daily workouts on the campus cross-country course beginning this afternoon. These drills will continue until the Christmas holidays when the men will take a brief rest before opening their indoor campaign.

SPORTORIAL

By JOE BARNES, Sports Editor

BEGINS the Battle of Villanova . . . and the beginning of the end for us stately seniors. For three long years we impatiently awaited this day, and now for the life of us we can't understand why! We wanted to give advice to the freshmen, but they are big enough to pound their own trail. We wanted to "Peglerize" (Cf. Files Writer Westbrook Pegler v. Racketeer George Scalise), somebody but we can't find anything sufficiently wrong to merit vicious adjectives. And so we'll just ramble around the Villanova sports trail with a word or two here and there.

—V—

New coach for the 150 football club is the well-known Tom Caspar, who played quite a little bit of guard for "Clipper" Smith during the past three autumns. Tommy promises great things, but those great things can only come about with the help of all Villanova. We know that Tom will do his best, and the boys like Bill Brown, "Guy" Lombardo, Bill Nihill, Bill Phillips, and the rest have always given all that is in them against terrific odds.

It's high time that Villanovans realized that the one-fifties play a pretty fair brand of ball. The least Villanovans could do in return is to fill the stadium stands for the home contests, the first of which is October 11, with Princeton as the party of the second part. We'll see you there!

—V—

Little Harry Mazzei, last fall's mitey quarterback, blew back into town yesterday afternoon, looking fit as a fiddle and none the worse for his contact with the outside world since last June.

We didn't have much time to talk with the amiable North Bergenite due to the approaching deadline for this sheet, but as always Harry provided us with good copy. He's playing with a newly-organized Long Island professional club now and seems to be making out pretty good. When asked if it was tough going in pro-ranks Mazzei expressed the opinion that it was much tougher in "Clipper" Smith's league.

Harry always did possess great admiration for the Clipper and it seems this admiration has not yet died out for Harry met his first "worldly" problem in a recent game and his first thoughts were to rush back to Villanova and the "Clipper" to get the right answer. Therein, in our estimation, lies the secret of Villanova's great gridiron elevens. The pupils' respect for the teacher is so great that even after graduation he keeps contact. That puts the "Clipper" into the class with two other great "teachers," Knute Rockne and Connie Mack.

"Smithfried Line" Primed To Halt Chester Cadet Invasion Saturday

Shibe Park Scene of Opening Grid Battle With P. M. C. Saturday Night Under Floodlights; Shavetails Present Strong Reserves in "Stop Basca Drive"

By FRED CLARK

Late War Bulletin—With five weeks of intensive training and hard practice safely behind them, 'Clipper' Smith and his 1940 version of "Swing Cats" are digging in to withstand the first enemy offensive of the current football season.

Although the attack is to be launched at night there will be no blackout when the Wildcats of Villanova College and the Shavetails of Pennsylvania Military College meet in battle on the gridiron this Saturday evening at 8:30 P. M. The scene of battle is Shibe Park and all those who prefer peace and quiet to the booming of punts and the zing of bullet passes had better take to a nice quiet bomb shelter.

"Kaydets" Ready

The latest official communique from Chester, the home base of the attacking forces, advises that the "Kaydets" are prepared to use their big guns against the Wildcats on Saturday night. The Shavetails proved that they possess a versatile attack and plenty of defensive savvy when they trounced Hartwick College to the tune of 40 to 0 in the opening game of the season Last Saturday they weren't so fortunate, losing to a powerful N. Y. U. team.

The outstanding weakness of last year's P. M. C. eleven was a lack of reserves but this seems to have been overcome this year with the addition of ten stalwart freshmen.

Field Marshal Si Pauxtis will probably make use of three or four of these frosh in his starting lineup. Vince Bartolomeo and Gil Gekoski, both freshmen, played a bang-up game against Hartwick and undoubtedly will see plenty of action against the 'Cats. Tom O'Malley and Bucky Hartnett, veteran backs, who sustained minor injuries in the Shavetails initial encounter of the year are expected to be in the front line forces during Saturday night's battle.

Basca Hot

Meanwhile the Wildcats of Villanova are prepared to defend their side of the fifty yard line against any invasion, whether it be by air or by land. It is rumored that "Clipper" Smith is preparing a

Frosh Gridders Show Fine Talent

From all indications and outward appearances Doc Jacob's 1940 Freshman team will be true to the form of his other great elevens and it is possible that his array of high and prep school players will do yeoman work on the varsity squad next year.

Hailing from every section of the Eastern seaboard, the new entrants, although comparatively small in size, make up for it in speed and ability and show promise of becoming one of the best Frosh combinations representing the Blue and White in many a year.

Since the first week in September the yearling squad has had a busy campaign behind the stadium and Doc Jacobs boasts a pleasing smile from their workouts. The Kittens boast such stellar performers, as Joe Pezelski and Al Postus, two outstanding backs. Pezelski hails from New York Military Academy, where a former Wildcat star, Ray Stoviak, is now coaching. He was high scorer for two years and set a new scoring record at the academy by scoring six touchdowns in 15 minutes, in a championship game.

Postus A Casualty

The only real casualty to the squad was Postus who broke his leg during scrimmage. He will be unavailable for the rest of the season. Jacobs also has a good prospect in John Hanzel, a guard who shows promise at this early stage of the game. As his other guard the "Doc" places confidence in Fred Simonsen who prepped at Admiral Farragut Academy. He is the brother of Roy Simonsen, a

Courtmen Start Drills Tomorrow

With the loss of virtually the whole starting combination of 1939, this year's basketball team will embrace only two veterans together with a wealth of sophomore material.

Facing a schedule that promises to be the toughest in the College history, mentor Al Severance will have his share of worries before presenting a combination to equal the success of his recent cagemen.

Opposing such teams as Carnegie Tech, Ohio U., Kansas State, Loyola of Chicago, and other leading teams of the country, the Wildcats will have to keep in top shape from the first game to the last.

Two Regulars Back

The two regulars returning from last year are Nugent and Yund. These two boys will be accompanied by Dick Gray, Fred Gerland, and others. Also last year's frosh sensations, Art Spector, Bob Kelty and Bill Wood, will be in there anxious to make their Varsity debut well-noticed and successful.

But even with the wealth of material from the underclassmen, Severence has one big worry, and that is putting an inexperienced team against veteran aggregations which for the most part form his schedule.

To offset the troubles one at a time Al plans to get an early start by calling his men out to their first practice tomorrow afternoon at the Field House, and in this way he'll let his men take their kinks out gradually and ease them into the fact that they have a very tough year ahead.

Dayhops and Residents to Play in Separate Leagues Under New System

In order to promote greater interest in intramural sports and to allow for its rapid growth, the intramural program this year will undergo an important change. In place of the old basketball league which was made up of six teams, four resident and two day-students, there will be two leagues of four teams each.

One league is to be made up of the four resident halls while the other is to be composed of fraternity teams, representing the day-hops of the four schools. This change will make it possible for more day students to participate in the program this year than any other year since they are to have a league of their own.

This new program will be tried out this year and its success will depend greatly on the interest and cooperation shown by the day students. If the innovation does not promote any great interest or does not operate satisfactorily, the program will be returned to its former basis.

Difficulties Expected

The moderators of intramural sports do not expect this new system to work perfectly at first, in fact several difficulties will arise, especially in arranging satisfactory schedules for the fraternities.

Another reason for placing intramurals on a fraternity basis was to promote greater interest in fraternities among the students, especially the freshmen. For the time being, non-fraternity men will be eligible to play. This is to give the freshmen, who are not eligible for fraternity membership this year a chance to take part in the sports. The resident members of the several fraternities are not eligible to participate in the day student league.

Each league will operate indepently of the other and playoffs between the league winners of the various sports will be arranged. In both leagues the scoring will be as follows: ten (10) for first place; seven (7) for second; four (4) for third; and one (1) for fourth. There will probably be all-starr teams in basketball picked in each league and possibly an exhibition game will be arranged between them.

Two Teams For P. K. P.

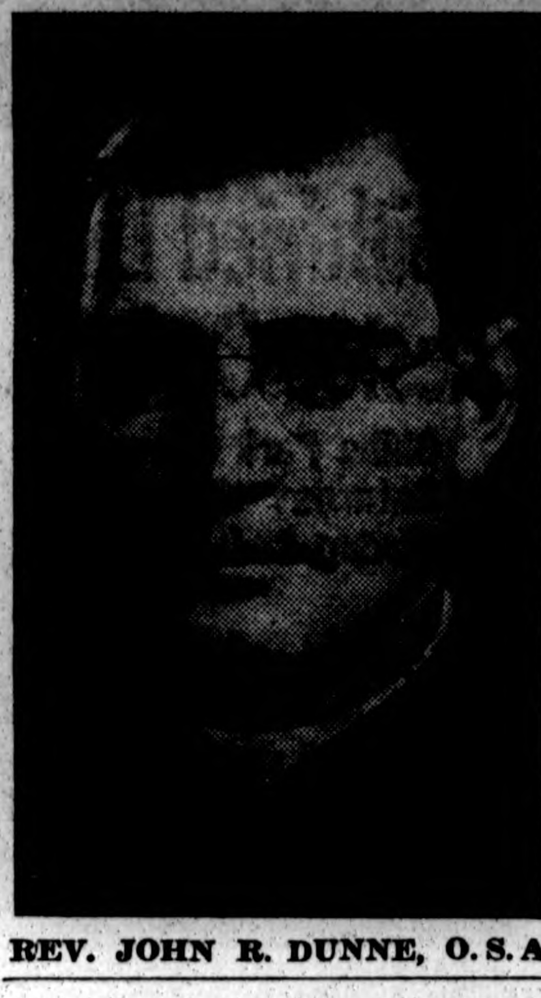
The teams making up the resident league are Austin, Fedigan, Alumni, and Mendel; while the day student league will be composed of an "A" and a "B" team from Phi Kappa Phi, the engineering fraternity, one team each from the Delta Phi Epsilon, and the Lambda Kappa Delta, C & F and Science fraternities respectively.

Since the Arts fraternity, the Epsilon Phi Theta, is not large enough or any too well organized as yet, it will not be represented this year but its members are eligible to participate on either of the two teams of the Phi Kappa Phi.

Since difficulties will aries in any new system, a committee made of the moderators of intramurals, and representatives from each fraternity will meet frequently in order to settle any disputes.

The court season is scheduled to start October 15th and the first half will continue until the start of Christmas vacation. The second half will run from January 7th to February 7th.

Mural Head



REV. JOHN R. DUNNE, O. S. A.

Fr. Dunne Begins Full Mural Duties

With the beginning of the eighth year of Villanova's streamlined intramural system comes the announcement that full charge of the sports program for the coming year will rest in the capable hands of the Rev. John R. Dunne, O. S. A., who was initiated into mural work last year by becoming co-moderator with Father McKee, renovator and seven year head of the system.

Pressure of outside duties has compelled the ultra-efficient Father McKee to drop the reins for one year, but he is expected to again take charge with the beginning of the 1941-42 school term.

Father Dunne, a graduate of Villanova in 1930, is also moderator of Alumni Hall and for the past three years has been the cog in Alumni's successful I-M campaigns. He is well known to every student in the college and through last year's affiliation with Father McKee he demonstrated a thorough ability to keep the murals on the same high plane they have reached during the past few years.

Work has already started for Father Dunne, as he has begun the annual Fall Tennis and Golf tournaments and has started work on the basketball schedule under the new two-league system.

DI FILLIPO A COACH

Dave DiFillipo, stellar guard on last year's football eleven, was recently appointed line coach of the St. Thomas More High team in Philadelphia. Dave also plays semi-pro ball with Passyunk Square.

Meet Nick Basca, Pinochle Player Extraordinary Who Can Also Play A Little Football At Times

Pride of Phoenixville Prefers Quiet to Fanfare Despite Outstanding Deeds on Several Gridirons

By JIM HAUGHTON

This is not intended as a panegyri. Yet is could easily be one. But Nick Basca wouldn't like it that way. That is not his manner.

We could comb through our thesaurus selecting adjectives to describe the deeds of Nick, the lad who has put nearby Phoenixville on the map with his gridiron play. Yet he would much rather if we told what a great pinochle player he is. How he and his roomie, lanky "Lindy" Kolenda, engage in matching wits with the cards.

It could be easily be told how "Clipper" Smith regards him as the "perfect player" with a "sixth sense" in football play; how his perfect attitude and coolness under fire makes him a coache's dream. Still Nick wouldn't tell you these things. You would have to find out for yourself, like thousands of grid fans who have watched him perform.

Quiet and Reserved

Nick Basca is a quiet and reserved youth. Some people may even regard him as being aloof. But that's just his way. Praise of thousands of experts from coast-to-coast has had no effect on him. He would much rather sit around with his pals, Paul Stenn, Paul Nugent or Kolenda, and chew the fat.

He is probably the greatest ball carrier in Villanova history. Great backs have worn the blue and white, but none as great as Nick. Expert after expert has picked him as the 'class.' He can run, pass and kick.

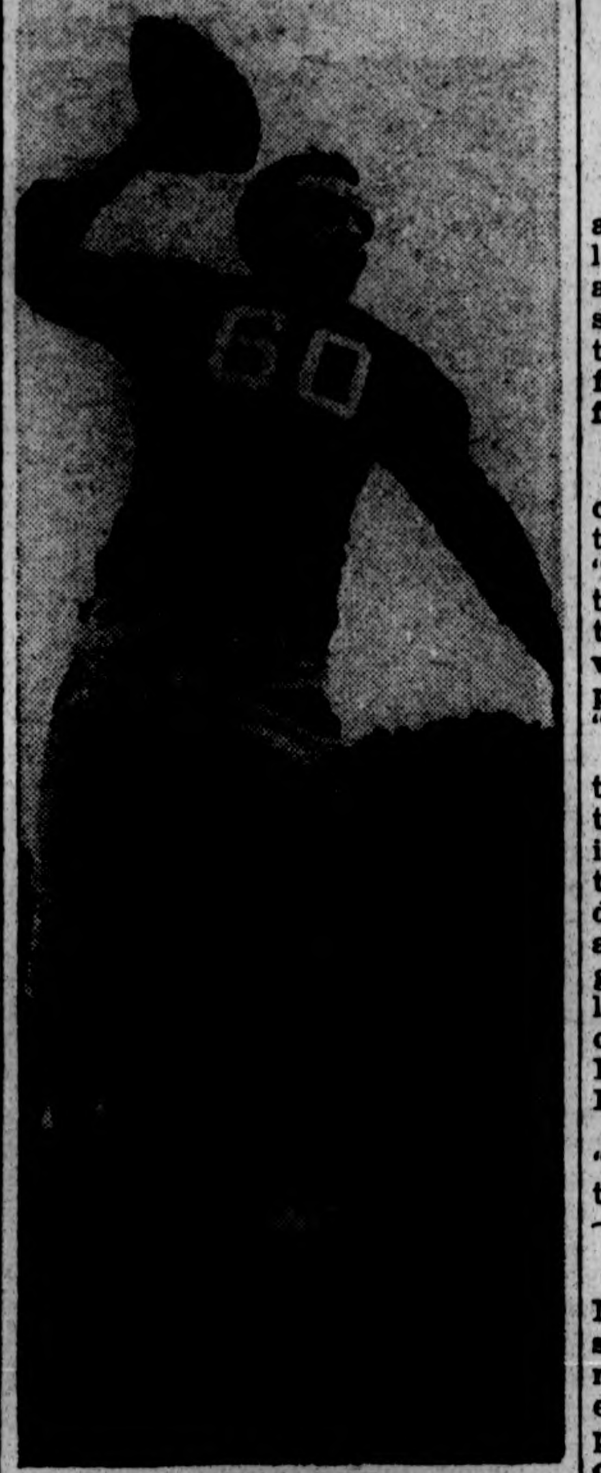
Nohting New

Yet being an athletic hero is nothing new to him. He was the talk of the Suburban Conference with his play in football, basketball and baseball while at Phoenixville High. Then at Pennington Prep he coninued his scintillating work in three sports.

Since enrolled as a student in the School of Education, he has limited his athletic endeavors to football and baseball, being an outfielder on the local nine. During the past summer he played with the Limeport entry in the East Penn Conference.

Family Affair

Nick is a Phoenixville native, having been born there on December 4, 1917. He is not the only member of the family with grdi inclinations. His brother Steve, who is a senior in high school, pust last week-end kicked a field goal for P. H. S., which gave Nick quite a bit of satisfaction. His other brother, Paul is also a member of the team.



NICK BASCA

During his stay here Basca has played with some star gridders but he holds Bill Cochrane as the best because "he was the smartest." Nick has also come face to face with strong opponents and picks Detroit as the hardest hitting eleven, with big Ed Kolman of Temple getting his vote as the best individual player.

Naturally Nick's fine play has attracted scouts from the play-for-pay circuit and he admits that he might take a try with the pros next fall. But he hasn't definitely decided, yet.

Regarded by "Clipper" Smith as the "Perfect Player" and a "Coaches' Dream" in Grid Action

Statistically speaking Nick is but average in size and age for a college senior. He tips the Fairbanks at a none-too-huge 165 pounds and stands five foot, eight inches above the terra firma, neither of which figures make him any lumbering football giant by any means.

Sixth Sense

Nick's, or Michael's (as he was christened), success seems to lie in the previously mentioned uncanny "sixth sense" for football. He has the elusive knack of doing the right thing at the right time all the time, whether he be running, kicking, or passing—all of which he does in the "All-American" style.

Enrolled in the School of Education, which means toes on the line to make the academic grade, Nick is no slouch when it comes to the textbooks. Not a grade "A" student, he is however above average and has little trouble in making grades despite his far flung athletic activities. The same was the case in Nick's pre-college days at Pennington Prep and Phoenixville High School.

Thus is Villanova's Michael "Nick" Basca. All-American selectors please note.

FOOTBALL SELECTIONS

Beginning next week the VILLANOVAN intends to carry a football selections feature. Athletic department notables, such as team coaches, trainers, etc., will be asked to pick the winners of the ten leading college games of the week. The feature will continue weekly until the end of the grid season.

BILL GRIMBERG TRANSFERS

Bill Grimberg, star end on Villanova's football clubs of the '36 era has left his job at Pittman High, New Jersey, and has assumed a more lucrative position at Audubon High in the same state. Grimberg was at Pittman High for a one year term.

Here and There

By Jim Haughton

MR. MAURICE J. "Clipper" Smith is a serious gentleman with a tenacity of purpose. He has definite ideas about certain subjects, especially football, and loves to put them into practice. Last Spring he had the idea his '40 edition of the Ballet de Villanova Grid Fantasy would be quite a show. In fact, one of his best.

Yet time, which is a wonderful master, has finally mastered Mr. Smith and his aide de camp, Vince McNally. So much so that they have now reached the point of doing rash acts, like taking the "swift shift" out of Villanova football. Smith, who is Catherine Littlefield's only rival, just can't seem to get his current crop of glamour pants into the swing of things and is considering dropping the cadence movements for which the 'Cats and Smith have acquired a nation-wide reputation.

Now swing is to Villanova football what 57 is to Heinz; a Model T to Henry Ford or fans to Sally Rand. Yet the chances of the local collegians losing their perfectly timed movements have reached the possibility stage because this group of swingsters all seem to have left feet.

Why must it be dropped? "Well," Clipper told us the other day, "this year's squad just can't get onto it. We never had this trouble before. But this team will probably end up by merely walking to the line like any other team, pass the ball and that's all there'll be to it.

"There are only two or three boys who have been showing any real interest. Paul Stenn, Stan Stress, Bill Piscione and Nick Basca are the kids doing the work and showing the spirit. The rest, well you can forget about them.

"This boy Basca is about perfect. If I had eleven men like Nick I'd be the happiest man alive. (Who wouldn't). He has the right attitude on and off the field and has little trouble catching on."

This little conversation with the ballet master of the gridiron took place the other afternoon, shortly after he had finished one of his daily grid classes in Mendel Hall. He was more than willing to admit that Francis Wallace's Grid Preview of 1940, in a recent Satevepost, might have been correct about Villanova having a "well balanced squad," but Wallace also mentioned that the teams to be met were among the strongest in the nation.

For any team which must run the gamut of P. M. C. to Auburn has a difficult task. "Take Baylor," Clipper said, "they are supposed to be the dark horse of the Southwest. We'll just have to get an early start on them. Texas A. & M. got it on us but this year it will be our turn."

As to this opening game with Penn Military, Clipper realizes the Cadets will attempt to pull a blitzkrieg. They have a fast, mobile outfit and the past few years has seen them make steady advances in grid warfare. With Si Pauxtis in command, they plan to continue the march.

Many scholastic stars now wear the military grey. There's Bob Sheppard of Southern High, for instance. He was a Quaker City star and George Munger's face beamed when he enrolled at Penn and became a frosh sensation. But Sheppard up and sauntered off for the life of a soldier boy and Penn is still lamenting the fact. And maybe a few blue and white gridders will wish he had stayed at Penn when they face him this week-end.

I-M Golf Tourney Opens Tomorrow

The intramural golf tournament, which was to have been played last Wednesday, was postponed on account of inclement weather. The tournament will be played tomorrow afternoon at St. Davids Golf Course and all who wish to compete are free to do so.

The tennis tournament is little more than underway. Austin and Alumni are probably the furthest advanced in the hall playoffs. In Austin, the probable victor appears to be George McFadden who has already assured himself of a place in the quarter finals. Since Alumni is made up wholly of freshmen, it is hard to say who is a serious contender until the hall playoff has advanced a little farther.

Both Alumni and Austin had eighteen men in the intra-hall playoffs at the start of their competition.

To date Fedigan and Mendel have not had any matches played in their intra-hall tournaments. However, the moderator of intramurals, Father Dunne, hopes to have the intra-hall tournaments and the final interhall playoffs played before the end of this week if weather permits.

mainstay of last year's freshman squad.

Big Carl Vogt, a massive 220 lb. boy from Jersey City looms as a likely starter at tackle. He also lends his hand at throwing the shot and discus for the trackmen.

At center, Dick Baraldi will man the line of defense. Last year Dick was a member of the Philadelphia City Championship team, St. Joseph's Prep. Coming up from Seton Hall are Lou Di Paolo and Tony Gaillo, an end and fullback respectively. Other backs who fortify the team are Sullivan, Ray Stanzcak, Kay Kazinski, Bill Kupraski, and Gabe Mosca. Stanzcak and Mosca are two North Jersey boys who were All-State for two seasons in a row.

Paul Guiteras, brother of Bill Guiteras, former track star at Villanova looks good as a potential lineman after playing his school days at Northeast Catholic.

All in all everything appears bright for the yearling squad as they await their first contest.

Caspar Expects

squad and figure as good bets in this year's running. Tom Moore also faces his last year on the lightweight eleven along with Brown and Lombardo and will loom as a possible starter.

Veteran Tackles

Charles Lozowski and Logan Phillips are two veteran tackles who will return to the line this year. Both are Juniors and figure in giving their opponents a tough session across the line. The guard positions will have two experienced men leading the way, George Famiglietti and Vincent Gordon. Both are returning from last year.

The strength of the end and center positions is undetermined as yet due to insufficient practices but going back to last year's squad Gene O'Brien and Stan Kazior fitted well into Harvey Buek's eleven. Also Bill Nihill at the center post seems a certainty on the opening day eleven.

With al. these players in mind Caspar figures that the Wildcats should go places this year, barring the injuries. In fact, he will have intensive blackboard drill everyday along with field practice.

This year the committee of the 150 lb. league has devised stricter limitations upon the players' weights. Four pounds will be given above the 150 lbs. and each player is required to weigh in before the umpire.

James Halpin will manage the team for his third consecutive year.

Cadet Invasion

counter-attack of his own. The spearhead of this attack is Nick Basca, senior triple threat halfback and tabbed by many experts as a sure-fire All American choice this year. Basca was terrific as a Sophomore, colossal as a Junior, and who knows an adjective that should adequately describe his performances this year?

Although the Cats will miss the services of such stalwarts of last year's team as Chisick, Mazzei, McMahon, Nowak, and Di Fillipo, still there are many veterans returning. Morkum and Morgan will likely share the duties at quarterback, while Yednock and Yankauskas will see plenty of action in the backfield. The forward wall will be well fortified with experienced troops.

Just in case any of the veterans should fall victim to enemy snipers, "Clipper" Smith has a fresh division of shock troops to send into the fray. These troops are composed of the members of last year's powerful Frosh squad. Rosato, Eusko, Bray, Pritko, Christman, and Pursycki, to mention a few, will see front line duty many a time this year.

Well, the two camps are armed to the teeth, the men are ready for action, and just a little spark such as the blowing of a whistle on Saturday evening will start the big guns booming.

Routes To Shibe Park Outlined For Villanova Football Followers

Shibe Park, site of all Villanova's home football games this year is easily accessible from any point in Philadelphia or suburbs.

From Villanova the most direct route is by specially provided school buses running from the college direct to the Park, and return. By automobile from Villanova the best route is down Montgomery Pike to City Line and over City Line to the River Drive. Turn right on the Drive and then left on Hunting Park Avenue to 21st Street where a left turn is made. Continue down 21st Street direct to Lehigh Avenue where the Park is located.

Trolley Routes

Trolley and Bus routes from points in Philadelphia to the Stadium are as follows: Trolley—"21", "33", or "54". By Bus—Route "C" to Broad and Lehigh, then transfer to the "54" trolley.

Shibe Park is the property of the Shibe Estate and the Philadelphia Athletics baseball club. Other sporting clubs using the park are the Phillies, Bert Bell's football "Eagles" and a few major high schools for special games.

Excellent System

The park is equipped with what is believed to be the finest lighting system in the world. Vast tiers of huge bulbs light the field with better visibility than is even obtainable in the daytime. It is very modern, having been installed in the summer of 1939. The system will be in use for the P. M. C. game Saturday night and the Florida and Kansas games on future dates. Shibe Park at night is a sight that no visitor to Philadelphia should miss. It is one of the marvels of electrical engineering and an asset that the city has a right to be proud of.

Ample parking space for fans driving to the game is provided directly across from the Park at reasonable rates.

Future Grid Foes Do Well In Tests

With the opening of the 1940 football campaign, Villanova's future rivals rolled up large scores against their respective opponents.

Heading the high scoring list were the Temple Owls who defeated Muhlenburg, 64-7. The Owls showed great strength in scoring ten touchdowns but it must also be said that Muhlenburg did not offer much resistance. It must also be remembered that Villanova discontinued Muhlenburg from its schedule this year. Andy Tomasic led Temple's scoring with three touchdowns, one on a 73-yard run.

Manhattan followed with second high score trimming St. Bonaventure, 45-0. Detroit was next with a 42-7 victory over Wayne.

Then followed P. M. C. with a 40-0 triumph over Hartwick last week only to suffer a 28-6 defeat at the hands of N. Y. U. over the past week-end. Villanova meets P. M. C. at Shibe Park to open its season Saturday.

Auburn, who edged out a 10-9 victory over the Wildcats last year, downed Howard University, 27-13.

Gadsby Quits Amateur Boxing Officiating

Ray Gadsby, former amateur boxing champnon and later a pro, made his final appearance as an AAU referee after offciating in each of 10 matches at the Olympia Friday night.

"Pressure of business" was the only reason Gadsby would give in announcing his retirement.

Gadsby is trainer for the Villanova football squad and former boxing coach here. He is also in charge of the teaching of intramural boxing and has refereed in several intercollegiate boxing matches.

STATE KINGS

Last spring's Villanova baseball team was officially recognized as state champions by the Associated Press in their final rankings. The 'Cats record of sixteen wins and one loss, (to Fordham), was unparalled by any college or university in the state of Pennsylvania. Wins over Penn and Temple clearly established Villanova's claim to the mythical Philadelphia district crown also.

ON THE OTHER SIDE

George Kamen, varsity tackle last fall, and Matt Kuber, famed guard on the '37 and '38 elevens, are enrolled at the Temple University School of Medicine. Both assure us that they will be sitting on the right side of the field on November 9.

"DOC" JACOBS SIGNS

The Philadelphia National League baseball club has announced that Doc Jacobs will manage the Phils' farm club, Moultrie, Ga., in the Georgia-Florida league next summer. Jacobs is Villanova's baseball and freshman football coach.

Students Told Of Need To Sacrifice At Opening Mass

Fr. Stanford Stresses Necessity of Christianity for Real Internal Security

Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, followed by a brief address by the celebrant, the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, marked the official opening of Villanova's 98th academic year on Friday, September 20.

In his talk following the Mass, Fr. Stanford warned the student body, "that the danger to national security with its threat to personal freedom has awakened new appreciation of man's fundamental rights and has aroused the conviction that these and all worthwhile things in life can be preserved only at the cost of self-sacrifice."

Continuing Fr. Stanford said, "I do not doubt that billions of dollars spent for armaments and millions of men trained to operate these armaments will avert from America, for some years to come, the catastrophe that has befallen Europe. But there can be no real internal security for this or any other democratic country without wholehearted return to the principles and practices of Christianity."

In the Solemn High Mass preceding his address the celebrant was assisted by the Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., deacon, the Rev. Francis X. Maguire, O. S. A., sub-deacon, and the Rev. James S. Reilly, O. S. A., Master of Ceremonies.

During the Mass the Augustinian scholastic choir rendered numerous vocal excerpts in the famed Gregorian Chant.

Classes commenced on Monday, September 23 with a slightly larger enrollment than last year.

A. S. M. E. RESUMES

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers convened yesterday at 11:40, for its first meeting of the year. The organization headed by Frederick Bergner, with Mr. Oakey as moderator, admitted new members and discussed the program and plans for the coming year. This program will be printed in the next issue of the VILLANOVAN.

Evening School Begins Classes

Opening session of the Villanova College evening school was held last night at Hallahan High School, 19th and Wood Sts., Phila. The Saturday school, which will be conducted both on the campus and at Hallahan, also resumes classes this week.

The evening school was begun in 1928, and offers courses in accounting, general business, and nursing education. These courses are conducted for the benefit of regular students who wish to obtain a diploma in Commerce and Finance, or who are pursuing courses leading to degrees of Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science in Economics and for special students who seek higher education. Classes are held on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday evenings.

The Saturday School, which has been in existence since 1918, is conducted each Saturday morning from October to May, from 9.00 A. M. until noon. Courses in Education, English, History, Greek, Latin, Library Science, Mathematics, Nursing Education, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, Religion, Sociology, and modern languages are held at Hallahan High. The courses offered at Villanova are Biology, Chemistry, and Physics.

Students who wish to attend the evening classes must register by October 17; those who expect to enroll in the Saturday sessions must do so by October 12. Both schools are co-educational.

Chemists Lay Plans For May Convention

Since Villanova will this year play host to the Intercollegiate Students Chemists' Convention, plans are already being laid for the May event. In accordance with the rule that the student chapter holding the convention publish the society's monthly magazine, the local chapter will handle the publication of the "Photon" this year.

Plans for the coming year were discussed and several committees were appointed at the first meeting of the local Chemical Society, held on Monday, September 23.

Research Seminar To Meet Tomorrow In Simpson Hall

First meeting of the Research Seminar under the direction of Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., will be held tomorrow, October 5, at 4:00 P. M. in Simpson hall.

No definite program has as yet been established, although several members of the School of Science are already preparing papers to present at the seminar. The aim of the seminar this year will be to include in its scope of lectures a diversity of subjects of biological nature and thereby to present each member with an opportunity to present a paper.

Membership in the seminar is open to all students of the School of Science and all are invited to attend. Freshmen are particularly invited to attend these meetings.

Brady Makes Plea For Senior Assessments

"All senior assessments," states James T. Brady, senior class treasurer, "must be in as soon as possible. The paying of dues is absolutely imperative, because the failure or success of the Belle Air Ball hinges upon the amount of money on hand. We can not possibly procure a good dance orchestra if we do not have sufficient funds."

SPANISH CLUB

Today, at 1:00 P. M., the Spanish Club will convene in room 104 Mendel to hold an organization meeting. Students interested in the Spanish language and customs are invited to join.

Alumni To Begin Library Drive

An alumni drive to equip the proposed library was organized last Sunday, September 29, at the first quarterly meeting of the Villanova College Board of Alumni Governors, held in Mendel Hall.

Twenty-five members who were appointed by the president, John P. Keffer, and one representative each from the clubs in Baltimore, Washington, York, Trenton, Philadelphia, Montgomery County, and Atlantic City were present at the meeting.

The drive is to begin on February 1, 1941, and to terminate in 1942 or 1943 at one of the centennial celebrations. The Board expects to be able to present to the president of the college a check of $40,000 to buy equipment for the proposed library.

The Board discussed how to go about the drive and chose as their theme the following sentiment: "In 1942, our alma mater, Villanova College, is having a birthday party and, regardless of what is happening in the outside world, we will be present with a gift to our 'second mother'."

Martin J. McLaughlin, '14, former president, is at the head of the "Drive Committee"; F. X. Robinson will be the executive director of the drive, and Leo Lynch, '18, is the chairman of the "Special Gifts Committee" which will begin to operate immediately.

The officers of the board are John P. Keffer, '25, president; Gene Reiley, '29, 1st vice president; Lou Marechal, '35, 2nd vice president, and W. G. Slaughter, '37, secretary.

Placement Bureau Gives Partial List Of '40 Class' Jobs

Data obtained from the files of the Alumni Association indicate that the class of 1940 has been more than able to take care of itself.

Buck Maley and George Wilson, electrical engineers, of the class of '40, are at present working for the General Electric Company in Philadelphia.

Don Brennan, C&F, is a cadet in the Army Air Corps. He is at present in the second of the three training stages and is stationed at Randolph Field, San Antonio, Tex.

Other graduates have entered many diversified fields in their search for employment.

Henry Mazzei, star quarterback of last year's "Wildcats," is playing professional football for the Long Island Indians, a recently organized pro team. George Wengryniuk has entered the University of Michigan and hopes to obtain his Master's degree by next June.

John Raney and Frederick Rapplyea have entered the field of aviation. John is a radio control tower operator at the Philadelphia Airport and Fred is aeronautical engineer with the North American Aviation Company of Inglewood, California.

Daniel Troy, Alexander Kristaponis, and Francis O'Connell have become respectively a junior chemist in the Frankford Arsenal, analyst in Process Control Lab, and a chemical engineer with General Chemical Co.

Authors Will Talk Before Book Club

Revived Society Meets to Plan Discussion Schedule for Coming Year

Activities of the Book Club, revived last year to assist in developing and fostering among students the habit of reading good literature, will commence next week on a day and at a time convenient to the majority of the members.

At this meeting, plans for the year will be discussed and new members enrolled in the society. This organization, dormant since the beginning of the twentieth century, was formerly known as the Villanova Literary Institute of Villanova College. In the constitution and by-laws adopted in 1892, is revealed the motto of the institute: "Sapientia melior est quam vis."

That the purpose of the society may be fulfilled, discussions on the current popular publications will be held at the meetings. In addition to these conferences among the students the club plans to invite individuals experienced in the literary field to help acquaint the members with writers and authors of note.

The members who will receive new candidates and represent the various schools and halls in this movement are: James Halpin, Austin hall; Fred Clark, Fedigan hall; Jack Gallagher, commerce and finance; John Kirchner, engineering; William Hooper, science; and Howard McCall, arts.

Pictorial Now!

Following the Chinese proverb that "A single picture is worth ten thousand words," the "Villanova Engineer," official monthly publication of the engineering school, will this year be composed mainly of pictures instead of the more conventional printed word.

In announcing this change of policy, Rev. John J. Vrana, O.S.A., moderator of the magazine, stated that it was caused by the difficulty in obtaining well-written technical articles, together with the dryness of the subject material. It is believed that the use of pictures will alleviate this situation and give a wider appeal to the material.

Charles J. Schafer, editor of the "Engineer," has issued a call for all members of the engineering school who have cameras to join the staff, for pictures are needed in order to insure that the initial issue of Villanova's first picture magazine will be ready for distribution by the end of October.

Faculty Welcomes Five New Colleagues

A formal dinner, given as an official welcome to the new members of the college faculty, was held on Friday evening, October 4, at 8:00 P. M., in the monastery refectory.

All members of the administration and teaching staff both clerical and lay, as well as the wives of the latter, were present.

The Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, delivered the principal address of the evening. Fr. Stanford spoke on, "Villanova College and Its Part in National Defense."

At the conclusion of the dinner, the majority of those present adjourned to the Field House to attend the annual Sophomore Cotillion.

Those members who formally joined the faculty at the dinner are: Rev. Francis X. Boyle, O. S. A., Rev. Joseph J. Gildea, O. S. A., Mr. John P. Gallen, Mr. William W. Hagerty, Mr. James V. Quagliano.

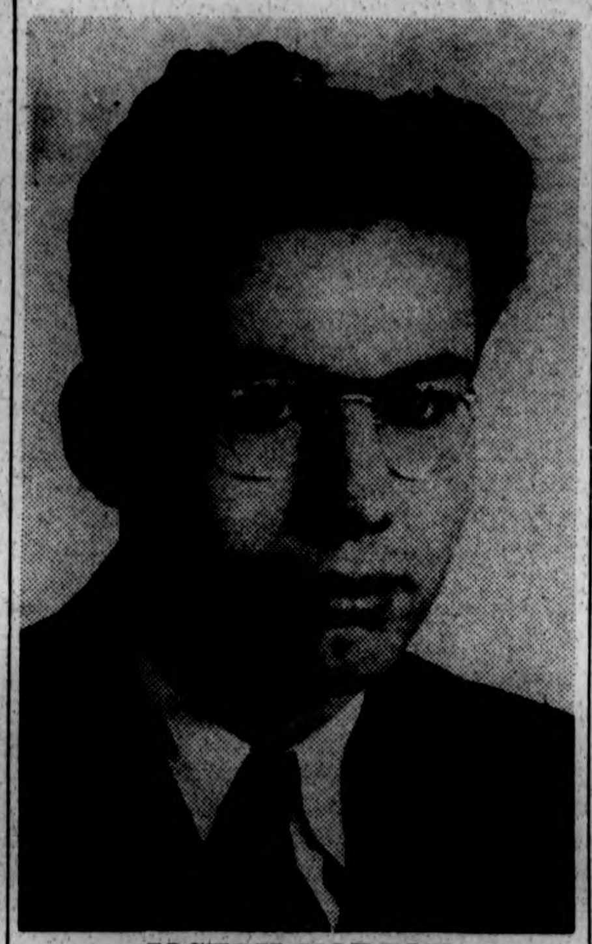
Fall Dance To Be Under Their Guidance



JOSEPH NORTON

JOHN MAGUIRE

Maguire, Norton Owl Hop Leaders

John Maguire, senior civil engineer, and Joseph Norton, senior chemical engineer, have been appointed co-chairmen of the "Owl Hop," annual dance conducted by Phi Kappa Pi, by Raymond Vener, president of that fraternity.

Norton has been an active member of the engineering fraternity for the past three years and served on the initiation committee last year.

Maguire has also been active in Phi Kappa Pi during his three years on the campus, and has been a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Maguire and Norton will be assisted in their work by R. Boudon, H. Boyle, J. Skelly, K. Vogel, F. Abbott, D. Dalina, and J. Light, seniors; R. Ayerle, E. Hagen, V. Gordon, J. Muench, and T. Shallow, juniors; and D. Boyle, M. Boyle, J. Donnelly, T. Muraski, and J. Quinn, sophomores.

The "Owl Hop" is scheduled for the evening of Nov. 22, with dancing from nine till one to the music of the "Villanovans."

Students Note Results Of Work In Mendel And Gym

Many repairs and installations of major importance have been recorded throughout the college.

The central heating plant has been extended to Simpson hall, Fedigan, Mendel, Alumni, and the Monastery, plus the above addition, are now supplied by the central heating plant. The Commerce and Finance building and Austin hall are, in part, controlled by the plant.

In connection with the heating situation, another innovation is found. The moderator system, as distinguished from the thermostat method, has been installed. The main feature of this system is that it anticipates any change in the weather and automatically functions in accord with the rise or fall of the temperature outside.

Mendel hall has received more attention in this construction campaign than any of the other resident halls. The dormitory has been painted on the outside, and this marks the beginning of a plan to completely paint the hall. Besides this, new showers have been laid and a cement walk constructed in back of the building.

Shrubbery has been planted in numerous places on the campus. The most noticeable flower spot is both sides of the walk leading into Mendel hall. Many bushes were removed near Simpson hall and a hedge, bordering the Lincoln Highway, has replaced them. The shrubs in front of the Field House have also been rearranged, and some new ones planted there.

'Neath The Spires' Makes 2nd Appearance Today

"'Neath the Spires," a bulletin written by the Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., college chaplain, makes its second appearance of the year on the bulletin boards today.

"The aim of the bulletin," according to Fr. Boyle, "is to offer suggestions for the welfare of the student."

The principal purpose of the publication is to remind the students of their religious duties, but other problems confronting the college student are also treated by Father Boyle.

No Fooling!

Council to "Crack Down" on Frosh Who Violate Regulations

Announcement of the meeting of the Student Council on Thursday, October 10, will be of particular interest to the class of 1944. Chairman Murray Zealor, warns the Frosh of the committee's determination to penalize all offenders.

He calls attention to the laxity observed in reference to the wearing of regulation apparel within the prescribed area (Article 4). Also apparent is the unusual indifference to the "rule of assembly" as pointed out in Article 7.

"Disregard for rules made by the Orientation Committee as outlined in pages 32 and 33 of the Student's Handbook constitutes a major offense" emphasized the mild-mannered Murray. "And," he continued, "the penalties will not be spared."

It is well for the new students to remember that disbarment from the extra-curricular activities on the campus is a bitter pill to swallow. Especially so when the individual concerned has worked hard to earn what little recognition is to be gained in a particular organization.

Among the plans being considered is the publication of the names of all freshmen who have been brought before the committee for the infraction of the rules. The body will also consider means of achieving a more effective reaction even to the extent of more stringent rules.

C & F FRAT

Second meeting of the year of Delta Pi Epsilon will be held in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium on Thursday at 1:05 P. M. All members must be present.

Engineering Dept. Lists Two Major Improvements

Students in the engineering school are enjoying two major improvements this term. The first and foremost of these is the change from micro to semi-micro qualitative analysis, while the second is the provision of an instrument room for the benefit of the civil engineers.

Semi-micro analysis, a process in between that used by the first experimenters in the field and the micro-analysis developed by biologists. It employs virtually the same type of equipment as is used in micro-analysis, but on a much smaller scale. It has many advantages over the old process in that it cuts down the time required for filtration, and the individual reagent racks make the materials handy and eliminate the usual contamination of the reagent bottles.

The largest expense involved in the change was the purchasing of two centerfuges for each desk.

This process was tried last year by a selected number of students and was finally adopted because of the resultant speed, accuracy, and neatness.

The new instrument room will enable different groups of students to do advanced or make-up work in their spare time. Each group of three students has all the equipment necessary for their work, and each group leader has a key to the equipment room. Formerly, this equipment was kept by the instructor and the responsibility was completely his, but now each group must care for its own instruments.

McLaughlin Is K. G. S. Pro-Tem Treasurer

Francis McLaughlin, sophomore science man, was appointed acting treasurer of the Kappa Gamma Sigma Society last Friday. This step was necessary because of the failure of the former treasurer to return to school.

The permanent time and place of meeting of the group was set at Friday, at 10:45 A. M., in the physics laboratory. All freshmen of the arts and science schools are invited to attend. A paper will be presented at this time this week by George Weber, sophomore science man.

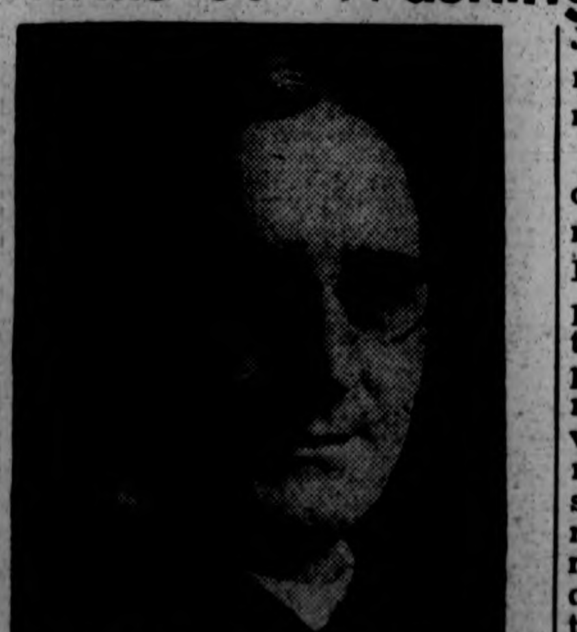
Dr. Hickey Recalls Thrills Of "Washington" Incident

By JAMES P. COLLINS

Editor-in-Chief

VERY REV. JOSEPH A. HICKEY, O. S. A., the Assistant General of the Augustinian Order of English Speaking Nations and former President of Villanova has become a member of the faculty of the Canon Law Department of Divinity School of Catholic University. His duties in this capacity will begin immediately.

Doctor Hickey is the very same who underwent one of those harrowing experiences which happen only once in a life time and thereby displease no one. He was aboard the S. S. Washington last June when it had a bit of a quarrel with a German submarine in mid-Atlantic.



DR. JOSEPH A. HICKEY

Dr. Hickey was in Rome at time of France's entry into the war and made his way from there through France to the port of Bordeaux, the point of the Washington's departure. At this time France was practically overrun by the Belgian refugees, hastily leaving their invaded country. "The scenes of misery and confusion," Dr. Hickey said, "were very pathetic to witness — children lost from their mothers and the mothers a picture of frantic anxiety as they sought the various members of their

Junior Class Head Trys New Plan

Volunteers Asked for Ring Committee; If Successful, Idea May Be Extended

A new method of making class appointments was presented at the first meeting of the junior class, held last Thursday in the Mendel hall amphitheatre.

Under this new system, students will be asked to volunteer to serve on the various committees, and appointments will be made from these volunteers. Thus the president of the class would not have the power to make committee selections without first consulting the class.

The plan is being tested in the appointment of the ring committee. Last Thursday, twenty juniors asked to become members of that group. About ten of these volunteers will be chosen to serve on the committee.

If the plan proves to be successful, it will probably be used in the selection of all junior committeemen this year.

Class members were reminded by president William J. Howlett, junior in the commerce school, that the class assessment may be paid at any time. Howlett stressed the idea that the earlier the dues are paid, the better the Junior Week entertainment will be.

Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., junior class moderator, stated that it might be best to make early arrangements for the blazer contract, in view of the fact that prices will probably rise by spring because of army contracts.

Time To Duck!

"Zzzzzoooommmm." With an ear-splitting roar the Army pursuit ship hurtled down over the campus building and pulled up out of the dive just in time to avoid an apparent crash on the practice field behind Mendel early Saturday afternoon.

While 100 per cent of the students on the campus jumped suddenly and rushed out to see whether the plane had dropped its bombs or crashed on the grounds, one man, remembering similar ominous roars during the first World War, acted instictively and did the first thing that occurred to him.

Charley, waiter in the dining hall, didn't bother to find out what was happening. In accordance with his training with the A. E. F. in 1917, he simply dove for the cellar when the plane zoomed. With no attempt at levity and simply following the almost-forgotten reaction of self-protection, he went where he would be safe when the "German" bombs hit.

Belle Masque Group Seeks New Members

The Belle Masque, college dramatic society and one of the oldest organizations on the campus, will hold its first meeting of the 1940-41 school year on Wednesday, October 9, in room 102 Mendel hall at 2:30 P. M.

A call has been issued for all students who are interested in dramatics in any form to be present at this meeting.

The principal topic to be discussed will be the annual "Dramateurs Reception," which will be held this year on November 26. The "Dramateurs" is the presentation of a series of five one-act plays written and directed by upperclass members of the society, but featuring freshmen in the main roles. Its purpose is to discover and encourage acting ability among the members of the freshman class.

LET'S VOTE

A petition from Villanova students to Fred Waring to have a school song written in time to be played on the eve of the Manhattan game will be posted this week at a prominent place on the campus. All students are requested to affix their signatures thereto.

Mighty Cheap!

THE reception during the past week bestowed upon Mr. Wendell Willkie, Republican nominee for the presidency of the United States, was a disgraceful and shameful exhibition of what political prejudice and black partisanship have developed in our nation.

Even when we avoid the fact that he is a candidate for the presidency, we can not dismiss the distasteful imprint that the demonstration leaves. He is a man, an American citizen. He is entitled, above all else, to the respect of his fellow-man.

How much more intolerant does that display seem when we recall that he holds a position that has always been honored by the American people! He, who may be the future leader of our nation, was received with raucous epithets and at the climax of his visit drew an ovation of legume and poultry missiles.

It has been reported since that mischievous youngsters were responsible for the latter salutations. This, however, does not excuse the act. It only serves to augment the shame which is rightfully attached to the deed. It is a direct reflection on the parents of these children and accuses them along with the adults who took part in this display of uncouthness.

May actions of this nature never bespeak the characteristics of true Americans. They violate everything that our democracy holds sacred.

Silent Spirit?

EVIDENTLY the freshman class has not been imbued with the traditional spirit at Villanova College. The football game last Saturday revealed their limp enthusiasm in the support of their team. The cheering was far below the standard set by previous yearling classes, left much to be desired. It was disheartening to hear "whispering cheers" turn into "silent encouragement" and the team must have felt it.

Apparently the class has not learned the cheers which express our vocal support at these contests. They are urged to study and practice them with more zeal than they have done, and to back the team with more vigor in the future.

Hands Across The Sea

THE recent alignment of Japan with the Axis Powers can be put down as a mar against the diplomatic record of the United States. In fact, it can be said without fear of much exaggeration that Washington's treatment of the American-Japanese differences in the Pacific has actually hastened this latest "face-saving" move from Tokio.

Realizing that American intervention in Europe on the behalf of England, even if only economically, would play havoc with their plans for an early conquest of the British Isles, the Rome-Berlin strategy board sponsored this new Alliance with the main purpose in view of keeping the United States preoccupied with the fear of Japanese trouble to come, should this country go too far against the interests of the Axis.

Now that Japan has declared its position and attitude officially it is about time that the propaganda-inspired "jitters" of a Yellow Invasion be dispelled. We know what to expect, for sympathetically, at least, the Land of the Rising Sun is lined up against American principles.

However, this does not indicate that our diplomatic corps should stand by and allow ill-feeling to grow between the two nations. There is yet time for an amicable understanding. It would not be out of place if we suggest that Washington take up the suggestion made last week by Roy W. Howard of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, proposing that this country send a mission to Tokyo to seek a friendly settlement of the Pacific question.

It is highly possible that this could be achieved if selfish and unscrupulous interests were forgotten. Then, too, the situation is not of such a nature that the United States could not arrive at a friendly agreement with Japan without compromising its honor.

Instead of creating further breaches between the countries, it would be well if our officials attempted to lure Japan away from the dictators by a renewal of a good will policy.

Play Ball!

UNDER the new system of intra-mural competition, two distinct leagues will be formed in order to stimulate interest in intra-mural competition. One league is composed entirely of fraternity day-hop teams, the other of resident teams representing the respective dormitories. Eight teams in two distinct leagues instead of five teams in one league means that more players can take an active part in sports instead of being mere substitutes or spectators.

The winner of the day-hop fraternity league will play the winner of the resident hall league in each sport to determine possession of the championship.

Although past participation by students in intra-mural athletics has been good, there is now a splendid opportunity to achieve even better results. Freshmen should come out for the intra-mural teams instead of putting it off until their sophomore year. Their participation in this program will mean that they will have a better opportunity to make friendships that they will cherish even after college days are only a memory.

FACULTY COMMENTS

We Told You So!

By FR. GILLIGAN

YOU don't have to go to church to hear a sermon nowadays. All you need to do is listen to columnists and political commentators. After the fall of France, one could enjoy the homiletics of Dorothy Thompson, Westbrook Pegler, Boake Carter, and even the prophet who discovered America last year. Young men and women who complain that they hear a little too much from their various mentors about the ills of modern youthful societies, the corruption, decadence, idleness, and general worthlessness of the modern "jeunesse doree," would do well to avoid the effusions of such as these. Cynical and skeptical youngsters who are fed up with talk about the obligations of patriotism, the sacrifices incumbent upon the youthful hope of America, would be wise to go to church. There they might hear an old-fashioned sermon on sacrifice which would be mild by comparison.

They're Right

Now it is rather ungracious of us to speak disparagingly of these earnest and sincere writers, especially when they are saying something which we cordially endorse. When they say that the ship of democracy has slipped its moorings and is floundering in a sea of indecision, doubt, defeatism, political corruption and bureaucracy — we can applaud. When they say that pure democracy is impossible in a society composed of humans, and needs to be implemented with safeguards, sanctions, controls, — we are grateful. When they say that freedom of speech must not become license, that freedom of political creeds must not tolerate subversive communist or fascist fifth-columning, that democracy in education must be carefully watched lest youth be spoiled by pampering or flattered by an inordinate regard for small - fry intelligentia—let our praise be unstinted. However, we do not argue that they are not right.

What we fear is that they are right too late; and we take a perverse delight in reminding them that we were right first; that they were wrong when we were right. Where else but in the Catholic Press and Literature could you ever find any criticism of Communism? Who but us deplored the ultra-liberalness of stage and screen, magazines, book-reviews, and general literature? What other schools but ours refused to swallow the educationist nonsense of the last twenty years in American school principles?

Modern Education

Take this "democracy in education" for example. Unless I am grossly deceived and have misjudged the temper of the times, I should say that the educational theory at present contains the following elements and principles of democracy. First, the students must be free to decide for themselves what to study, and how to study. That they will usually choose the easier way, the way of idleness and self-indulgence seems not to matter. Second, our youth must have freedom of expression, freedom to give vent to their juvenile cliches and silly imbecilities. Third, our boys and girls must have freedom to decide what to read and what not to read; freedom to read if they preferred—and they often did so prefer—only the philosophers of pessimism and anarchy, and the filthiest of novelists. Fourth, young men and women were to be free of inhibitions, restraints, discipline. Let them decide their own decency, make their own moral code, learn life for themselves by living it in all its seamiest sides.

It is comforting to know that other people decry these things now. We might ask the Catholic students of America if they ever heard any of the above in a Catholic school. Did they ever hear a Catholic teacher directing their youthful steps toward Marx? Did they ever see a Catholic teacher listen with starry eyed wonder as they, from the depths of their ignorance and inexperience, solved the world's problems? Did they ever meet a religious or priest or prefct who condoned their immoralities?

We Told Them

Fortunately for the homicide rate, people usually manage to control their I-told-you-so complex. Sometimes, however, it is irresistible, as it is in this case. When our divided brethren learn that man is composed of body and soul, when they discover the ten commandments, when they discover the discipline of sacrifice, they must excuse our lack of surprise. When, at some future date, they discover the multiplication table, we can tell them: "Don't say we never told you."

Rev. Thomas F. Gilligan, O.S.A., professor of modern languages, received his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1926 and Master of Arts degree in 1927 from Villanova. He did graduate work at the University of Fribourg, Switzerland, from 1927 until 1930.

College Chatter

By Joe McCabe

DUE to the early deadline required of this "peep hole," it is necessary that events and doings which occur over the weekends in and around this verdant paradise are reviewed a week later, but then the reviews are mere notations of the doings of individuals so here goes a bit of retrospection—

THRU THE DOORS AT THE ROSEMONT TEA DANCE •

Ostensibly given as a means for the social debut of members of the Freshman class this little gathering has found favor even among the austere members of the upper classes who trooped over in groups to look over the new "blooming Rosebuds" . . . The bevy of beauty was almost overwhelming but BOB KONESS managed to snare one of the more beautiful little "dolls," whose home is in Pittsburgh and whose boy friend is none other than the heavyweight BILLY CONN . . . A cause of great interest was a very, very attractive young lady, initials K. H., who seemed unofficial "queen of the party." However all the attention was to no avail for she already had a date in the person of freshman BILL FENTON who was so certain of the little lady that he nonchalantly went home over the week-end, ignoring the party completely — ah! such unswerving trust. . . All the members of the "Day Hop Team" who have been "striking out" of late were busy trying to make time without success . . . Even MURRAY ZEALOR, "the pride of St. Davids," was present to lend an official (??) air to the occasion.

JOHNNIE "PERMANENT WAVE" BURKE has caused speculation among his cronies due to his mysterious solo wanderings around the vicinity. The "lone ranger," apparently, is busy trying to learn the whereabouts of the local femininity. Accompanied by a freshman confederate he's been seen ducking in and out of confectionery stores, etc . . . Beware the Blonde Adonis!

VILLANOVA STORY •

..Another "I do" ceremony took place last Saturday in the College Chapel wherein PAUL WADE '39 deserting the bachelor ranks took Miss Ella Craessman "for better or for worse." The ceremony was performed by Father Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A. Paul was a drummer man in a back edition of the "VILLANOVANS" . . . There's a certain member of the sophomore class who has gained a bit of unfavorable notoriety around the campus because he walks around with a chip on his shoulder most of the time. If he wishes the esteem of his classmates it would be a good idea, for him, to "refrain from pugilism and practice pacifism" . . . BOB HURSH is a walking advertisement for Welch's Grape Juice and Irene Rich. During the summer he managed to fool the scales and attain that "svelte-like figure" which is the envy of all . . . Although "STEP" REILLY claims he can't account for it, nevertheless, the fact remains that all the girls manage to twist up a smile and coo a sweet "Hello Fenton"—What price popularity? . . . HUGH BOYLE and JOE NORTON apparently like the atmosphere found at Immaculata.

And that's all for now.

VILANOVAN'S Ex-Editor, Reilly, Two Other Alumni, are Recently Wed

Edmond Paul Reilly of the class of 1935, former editor-in-chief of the VILLANOVAN, will be married to Miss Majorie Lee Williams on Saturday, October 19, at St. Rose of Lima Church in Haddon Heights, N. J.

Harold "Scoop" Keating, Villanova alumnus who is at present filling the position of sports editor on the "Main Line Times" will also enter into holy wedlock in the near future.

Donald Mackowski, president of the class of 1938, was wedded on Thursday, September 12, to Miss Mary Anne Daly at Bradford, Pa.

Meet The Boys: Two Noble Lads, Who Love To Toil; Presenting Murray Zealor And Hughie Boyle

By DAVID N. REARDON

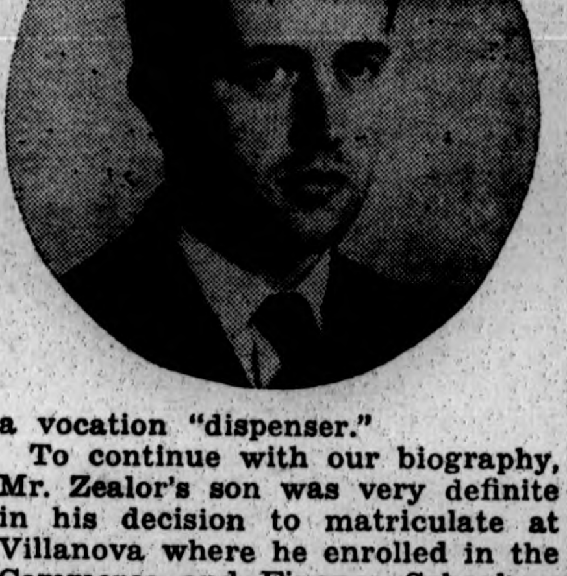
MURRAY PHILLIP ZEALOR, the dapper debonair from Rochester, N. Y., is the campus' man of the hour. Possessor of a scintillating personality, Murray commands the immediate friendship of everyone with whom he comes in contact, from the lowly "frosh" to the mighty senior.

Any morning at 7:30 he may be seen hustling his papers from one end of the campus to the other, for he is Villanova's literary censor (paper-boy to you).

Chronologically speaking, M. P. Z. was exploded from a bombshell back in the blitzkrieg days of '17 up in Rochester. This devastating piece of shrapnel evolved into a brilliant flare. About his early education he recalls little due to the fact that his family changed their residence frequently during this particular stage of his existence. (The neighbors couldn't stand his squealing).

Vocation Dispenser

Much to everyone's surprise, Murray entered St. Andrew's Seminary to prepare for the priesthood. Deciding he was meant for other fields he emerged and enrolled at Acquinas Institute, back in his home town. Rumor has it that more girls have entered the convent after meeting Murray than anyone can imagine. Maybe he is a vocation "dispenser."



To continue with our biography, Mr. Zealor's son was very definite in his decision to matriculate at Villanova where he enrolled in the Commerce and Finance School as a Pre-Law major.

Wow! Count 'Em

Commencing in his freshman year, Murray managed to participate in more extra-curricular activities than could be printed on this page. We enumerate just a few activities which have been blessed with Murray's assistance during his stay here: Four years on the staff of the VILLANOVAN, Literary Editor of the same in his junior year and Managing Editor in his senior year; three years on the Belle Air staff; manager of freshman football; President of Frosh debaters and since then a member of Beta Gamma; and chairman for three years, a member of Student Council, Secretary-Treasurer in his junior year, Chairman this year; President of his sophomore class; acted one of the dramatic leads in "Winterset" given three years ago; member of the International Relations Club and has traveled extensively representing this organization; a member of the Music Seminar and Study Club; three year member of the Orientation Committee; chairman of last year's Mother's Day and operator of the Mendel Hall switchboard in his spare time.

For additional activities in which he is engaged, please consult your handbook.

Gets Around

The Empire State "newsie" is quite a social lion. He is frequently tabbed as Villanova's official ambassador to Rosemont, Immaculata, and Chestnut Hill. His chaperoning at the tea-dances supports his right to this title. In particular his interest is centered about a little Miss in St. Davids, Pa.

Rochester's Gift

Despite his varied activities he manages to maintain high grades in his studies. His favorite dish is spaghetti; his hobby, collecting books, which now total an 800 volume library, many of which are first editions. A new wing has just been added to his library (his room). Ask Ray Valentine who sleeps beneath his room-mate's papers.

As a salesman, he can't be equalled. He intends entering business following the completion of his college course. Whichever is his chosen field, he is bound to succeed with such an amiable character.

IN the heart of the anthracite district, Hazelton to be exact, Hughie "easy to get along with" Boyle was born on April 24, 1919. This well-liked senior is an electrical engineer, very quiet, and to top it off, a serious thinker.

He inaugurated his education at St. Gabriel's School in his home town, a combined grade and high school. Villanova's proximity and reputation as an outstanding engineering school influenced Hughie's selection of his alma mater.

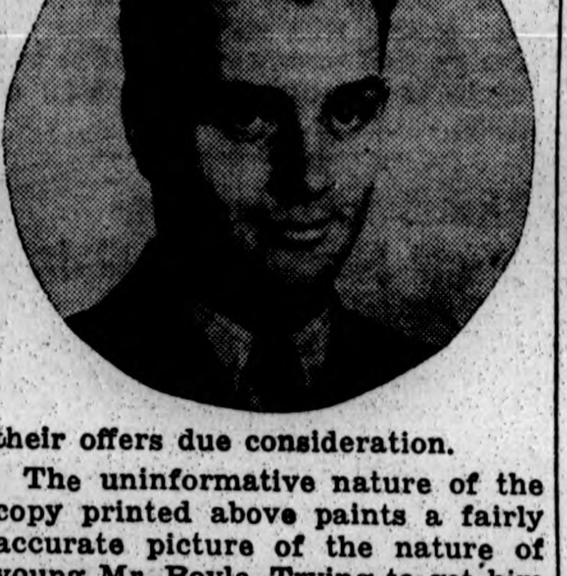
Daily Mass and Communion have been an essential part of Hughie's life since his matriculation. So intent has his interest been in this respect that he has been elected President of the Sanctuary Society, after being a member for four years. The Holy Name Society and the Band claim him as a member of four years standing.

Many other extra-curricular activities have attracted this outstanding senior. Among them are the Glee Club, in which he has sung bass for four years, during the last two being a member of the famed Villanova quartet; Phi Kappa Pi, the engineering fraternity, for four years; A. I. E. E., two years, of which organization he is Vice-Chairman this year; and a member of last year's Blazer Ball Committee. He was also Secretary of the now extinct Wilkes-Barre Club for two years.

Hughie was loath to admit of his social life, but his roommate tells us that one Mary Frances, a Hazelton belle, is his chosen partner at all the dances.

Our interviewee declares his indecision concerning the future but admits that he would like to become affiliated with some large electrical concern like General Electric, Westinghouse, or R. C. A. Radio production particularly interests him.

Companies mentioned above are free to submit their applications to Hughie; he will be glad to give their offers due consideration.



The uninformative nature of the copy printed above paints a fairly accurate picture of the nature of young Mr. Boyle. Trying to get him to tell of his various activities both before and after his arrival on the campus for his four year sojourn, is like trying to get an oyster tell you whether or not it has a pearl. Indeed we fear that if roommates had not been "invented" our tale would never have been told.

If we are to judge by results, however, it would seem that Hughie's particular type of reticence is a great aid to success.

Mary, Teach Me

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

OH, Mother of God, conceived without stain,
Oh, sweetest balm for every pain,
Hear my prayer, singular vessel of love,
As to thee it is borne above.

* * * *

Oh, Mother of Sorrows, a woman of woe,
Purer and whiter than fresh-driven snow,
Lend me your hand as I trod life's way,
Lead me from Stygian night to day.

* * * *

Show me the Love that for me did expire,
The heart that holds love's eternal fire,
Be my love, my counsel and guide,
Teach me to e'er in His heart abide.

* * * *

Oh, mystical rose, Oh, House of Gold,
Teach me to see and each mystery unfold,
Lean towards this sorrowful sinner who finds
Sweetest refreshment in bread and wine.
Teach me to love Him each day more and more,
Virgin of Virgins, thee I implore.

Will Willkie Win? Who's THE Band? Annual Poll Tomorrow Will Decide

By WILLIAM J. TOY

HEAR ye, hear ye, the annual Villanova College Forum of Student Opinion is now in session! We are gathered here to solve the problems of the day with expert advice which will probably come from the frosh—those three-week men who act like three-year men.

"So you like Roosevelt! Oh, you meant Willkie." These are the words that will be heard by our anxiously awaiting student body as our wandering reporter corners one of their group in some out-of-the-way spot and starts shooting questions at him.

Thusly, my bewildered young frosh, you see how the annual poll at Villanova is conducted. But have no fear, my son, you will be protected by the fatherly upperclassman who administers the forum. No undue advantage will be taken of your bewildered state of mind to coerce or use any undue influence upon your opinions, even though it may hurt the innermost parts of your reporter.

Wednesday Next

Beginning tomorrow, at the crack of dawn, ballots for the poll will be available at the VILLANOVAN office and each student will be permitted to arm himself with ONE—and I don't mean two, three, etc. You will then take them to the privacy of your room, delve into your mind, and come up with some logical answers, we hope.

In this year's poll an innovation will be made. Instead of the usual hackneyed idea of using only one topic, we are going to revolutionize poll-taking with a survey of not two, three, four, or five themes, but will list six topics of either public or student interest.

The foremost question of the day seems to be "Who is going to be elected President of the United States?" Since this question is so important and should be considered seriously by every college student, our poll would hardly be complete without it.

Our Neck's Out

In our next inquisition we place ourselves directly behind the eight-ball by asking your frank opinion about the VILLANOVAN. By this we mean not only anything you like about the paper but also whatever you find could be improved, together with suggestions about how this improvement could be accomplished and an opinion of the paper as a whole. This is what is known as "heroic journalism," but never let it be said we lacked the courage to hear our mistakes. Let's hope they're at a minimum.

Also in this inquiry of your tastes we will include the age-old question of what band would you like to have play at the Belle Air Ball. However, this year you will not be free to vote for any band but will be forced to choose from those orchestras which will be available for the senior dance. The higher priced bands such as Tommy Dorsey, Glenn Miller, etc., are out of the question as far as obtaining them for the school proms is concerned. So, knowing this, pick the outfit whose music you would most enjoy, yet whose price is within the limits of our budget. Examples: Leighton Noble, Dick Stabile, Al Kavelin, and other bands of high ability but small publicity.

These foregoing topics and three others will be listed on the ballot and distributed to ye of Villanova for your consideration. All that we of the staff ask is that you answer these questions seriously and truthfully, with the thought of helping out by your answers and not merely to write anything and sign your name to it. These ballots will be carefully compiled by your writer, personally, and the results will be printed when they are completed.

Soph Cotillion Pleases Everyone

The centennial class of 1943 launched the current social season last Friday evening in the Field House when they held the annual Sophomore Cotillion. A capacity crowd was on hand to enjoy dancing to the scintillating rhythm of the Villanovans, student musical organization.

Praise was in order for the melodic arrangements offered by this recently reorganized orchestra. Joe Rozum and Fred Kull were instrumental in this work. Vocals were ably taken care of by Daniel Savini.

Huge ecru draperies, hung from the ceiling, improved the acoustics and added effect to the occasion. Shaded lamps and chairs were spaced around the floor contributing to the informality of the affair.

The orchestra was situated on a bandstand in front of the stage. Directly in back of it hung a huge blue and white Villanova banner, while on a backdrop was pinned in sparkling white letters "1943."

Noticeable was the absence of freshmen stags at this dance. Congratulations were given to chairman Jim Walsh and his committee for effecting negotiations with neighboring girls' colleges so that the first-year men could enjoy the social life on the campus.

Freshman Engineers Attend PKP Smoker; Fr. O'Leary Featured

Freshman engineering students were guests at the annual Phi Kappa Pi smoker held last night in the blue room of the field house. Remarks by Rev. John S. O'Leary, O. S. A., highlighted several speeches in a program planned by John MacNamara, senior mechanical engineer.

Other features of the entertainment included an impromptu student orchestra and several soloists. The advantages of membership in the fraternity were pointed out for the benefit of the freshmen.

Refreshments, as well as cigars and cigarettes, were provided for all attending.

Museum Wants Gifts

An appeal has been made for new exhibits for the Villanova Museum, which is now temporarily housed on the first floor of Alumni Hall.

The request is made at this time because the museum will be transferred from its present location to the new library, as soon as plans for that edifice have materialized. When this transfer takes place, the museum will be enlarged and rearranged, so that there will be room for many new articles.

Anyone possessing an article of historical value who would like to have it on exhibit in the new museum is requested to send it to the VILLANOVAN, Box 1, Villanova, Pa. Articles pertaining to early Villanova and American Missionary Material will be especially welcomed.

BELLE AIR

Mr. William Cook, representative of the Clark Printing House, was present at a meeting of the associate and assistant of the Belle Air on Friday. A dummy copy of the 1941 annual was shown, and the plans and principles of the yearbook were discussed.

Music Seminar Opens Tomorrow Evening; Tschaikowsky Heard

Students are invited to attend an all-Tschaikowsky recorded program which will feature the initial meeting of the Music Seminar tomorrow evening at 7:30 P. M. in Simpson hall.

The musical program will include: "March Slave," "Symphony No. 4 in F Minor," "Capriccio Italien," "In a Three Horse Sleigh," "Sleeping Beauty Ballet," "Waltz of the Flowers," and "Waltz from String Serenade," all by Tchaikowsky.

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch will supplement the musical program with critical remarks intended to aid in the appreciation of the music.

A short biographical sketch on sound film of Tchaikowsky's life will be presented during the evening by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the seminar.

Flying Club Will Hear Able Speaker In Field

Francis J. Mambretti, sophomore engineer, president of the Villanova College Flying Club, has announced that plans to bring a series of guest speakers prominent in the field of aviation before the members of the association are progressing rapidly.

Announcements have also been made that trips to various airports in and around Philadelphia have been planned and that a committee to arrange these trips and speakers will be appointed at the next meeting, on October 18.

Mr. William M. Gorman, moderator, states that the members of the group will soon start on the design and construction of a two-cycle model airplane gasoline engine.

Unofficial Figures Show Enrollment Gain

Unofficial figures on this year's registration indicate an increase over previous total enrollments. In spite of the recent draft legislation, which was expected to affect prospective college entrants, the increase in this year's total is approximately fifty students.

The official figures will be printed as soon as they are completed by Paetrus F. Banmiller, Registrar.

CEM To Discuss Plans

Mr. John A. Oakey, M. S., moderator of Chi Epsilon Mu, honorary engineering fraternity, has announced that the first meeting of that group will be held in the near future, at which time tentative plans for the year will be discussed.

Following the initiation-banquet last spring, the fraternity elected William Appel, M. E. '41, president; Raymond Vener, Ch. E. '41, vice president; and Frank Smith, Ch. E. '41, secretary-treasurer.

ASME Candidates To Meet Monday

All applicants for admission into the local chapter of the American Society of the Mechanical Engineers are requested to attend a meeting to be held next Monday, Oct. 14, in room 209 Mendel at 11:40 A. M.

In order to cover expenses of the annual smoker and to defray the cost of a subscription to "Mechanical Engineering," a monthly publication, each new member will be charged a fee of $3 at the time of his admission into the society.

Secretary Vincent Gordon has announced that the smoker will be held on November 14. A committee consisting of Parkin, Ehmer, Walsh, Boudon, and Hardwicke will make the necessary arrangements.

AIEE Chapter Refuses Invitation To Convention

At the inaugural meeting on Monday, Sept. 30, of the Villanova branch of the American Institute of Electrical engineers, Frank Abbott, chairman of the society, informed the members of a letter received from the Ohio Branch inviting them to attend the annual convention to be held at Cincinnati on October 9, 10 and 11. The members decided not to undertake the trip however due to distance required in making the journey.

At this same meeting, several members of the junior class were accepted into the society and a schedule of papers to be read on topics in electrical engineering was given to the members.

Organ Recital Tonight

Following chapel services tonight, Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., will play the third in his weekly series of organ recitals.

His selections for this evening include Gounod's "Ave Maria," Thunder's "Magne Peter Augustine," and variations on the hymn "Peace Be Still." All students are invited to remain after the services for the recital.

Holy Name Officers Attend Archdiocesan Meeting in Phila.

Officers of the local unit of the Holy Name Society attended the quarterly meeting of the Archdiocesan Unit of Philadelphia during the past week-end. The meeting was held in St. Agatha's Auditorium and was presided over by Rev. Joseph P. McKenna. At the meeting plans were discussed for the coming year.

The first general meeting of the college unit will be held tonight in the chapel at 6:35. New members are invited to attend. There will be a review of the purposes of the organization for the benefit of newcomers.

The Holy Name Society has as its object spiritual rather than social activities and attempts to promote reverence for God, clean speech, and monthly Communion.

Band Heads For Jersey City Parade

Next Sunday, October 13, the college band will travel to Jersey City to participate in a large Holy Name parade held by that city.

In preparation for such appearances as this one, the band has been holding frequent practices and now has a repertoire of eleven numbers, including such marches as "King Cotton," "On the Mall," and "The Thunderer."

The assistant manager of the band during this year will be Anthony Di Santo, a sophomore in the science school, who was appointed last week.

Sportorial

By Joe Barnes

WE crawled into bed Saturday night very, very, tired and also very, very, sorry that we had drunk that last malted milk (ahem). So it came about that instead of pleasant slumber we did a little night-riding via the well-known nightmare.

All we could see all night was the swallows coming back to Capistrano and every one of the pesky creatures was throwing forward passes at a horde of Wildcats along the path. And, by golly, every one of the passes was completed. First of the swallows seemed to come from down Florida way. Then some Texas swallows (very huge) got into our fantasy. Then they flew out of Detroit, Kansas, New York, and Pittsburgh. All of them completing passes despite heroic efforts of the Wildcats in their path. Worst of all was when a swallow with a cherry and white "T" on his chest started to give us the works. That was when we fell out of bed trying to help the Wildcats attempt to bat down the passes filling the air.

It was about six o'clock in the morning when we finally got clear of the fog by catching up with a little Cadet swallow which had started the whole works by tossing the first successful passes. We caught the little bird and feasted on a mental swallow-a-la-king. No wonder the sausage tasted so lousy Sunday morning.

All of which was probably brought on by Saturday evening's marathon affair at Shibe Stadium when the pluckiest band of outclassed Chester Cadets ever to hail from Pennsylvania Military College gave the 'Cats one or two little football lessons in the art of forward passing, especially in the initial half when the Cadets were not so battered up by the terrific offensive lacing dealt out by Clipper Smith's powerhouse.

It is evident that the Clipper does have another fine football machine. Naturally they were none too polished Saturday night. That will come along later in the season. However, the 'Cats did pack power and plenty of it. They seemed to be the most powerful club that Smith has yet produced, although not yet ranking in slickness with teams of the past three years.

Most pleasing of the night's demonstration were the classy reserves produced by the Clipper. Eusko in particular gave a nice demonstration, as did Bill Howlett, Steve Pritko, Bill Prohovich, Vince Carlesimo and a host of others. We would of course include Sal Rosato or Pete Yankauskas, but we can't figure out which one is the sub, they both rate first team.

However, and now we begin to

Basca And Rosato Feature In Wildcats' Initial Victory Saturday

Villanova successfully opened the 1940 season Saturday evening, defeating Pennsylvania Military College 53 to 14 before 15,060 at Shibe Park.

The Wildcats began their parade of touchdowns late in the first period, but not until P. M. C. had startled the Villanova followers with a spectacular 52-yard touchdown play in the early minutes of the game.

Following Nick Basca's punt which put the ball on the P. M. C. 48-yard line, Bartolomeo shot a short pass to Joe Glenn, who, with fine blocking by his team-mates, raced across the Villanova goal line. Bartolomeo converted the extra point, leaving the crowd wondering if an upset was in the offing.

Villanova soon came to life. Steady ground gaining by Basca and Yankauskas set the stage for the first Wildcat touchdown. A pass, Basca to Behot, good for 22 yards, produced the score. Basca's conversion knotted the count.

The 'Cats scored three times in the second period. Three running plays, two by Basca; one by Rosato, placed the ball on the ten-yard line, from where Nick carried it over. Soon after, Joe Behot made a great running catch of Basca's bullet pass and went to the three-yard line for a gain of 30 yards. Rosato went over in two plunges.

Immediately following the kick-off, Rosato intercepted a pass and ran 35 yards for a touchdown.

P. M. C. struck through the air for their final score near the end of the half. The pass, Bartolomeo to Gekoski, was good for 60 yards.

"Clipper" Smith substituted freely during the second half, but the 'Cats continued to score. Basca and Rosato plunged over for two third-

Frosh Win Opener Over St. Benedict

Keeping their three year winning intact the Freshmen gridders topped St. Benedict Prep at Newark last Friday night to the tune of 7 to 0.

The charges of Doc Jacobs, who, incidentally, gave way to 150-pound coach Tommie Casper for the evening, performed in a rather uncertain style in achieving their one touchdown victory over the Preppers.

A couple of fumbles and a lack of experience prevented the Kittens from scoring at least two more touchdowns. However, their blocking improved towards the close of the game and began to look well enough to please Casper.

The only score came in the third period when left halfback Jack Dzitko passed from the enemy 45-yard line to end Lou De Palo, who took it on the twenty and raced the remaining distance unmolested. Dzitko converted for the extra point.

Playing the game in Benedictine territory for the most part, the Frosh only had to punt twice. Passing was also neglected as the burly Blue and White line continuously opened holes for the backs. The line, by the way, is one of the biggest in years, with the starting seven men averaging near the 190-pound mark. Consistently the backfield ripped through for considerable gains and skirting the ends for yardage at will. The failure to take advantage of breaks nullified a more prominent victory for the Kittens.

Leading the way on the defense was center Dick Baraldi, while Pelzelski and De Palo sparkled on the offense.

Trackmen Work Out On Cross-Country Course In Preparation For Indoors

Although the Indoor season does not start officially until after Christmas Holidays, James (Jumbo) Elliott already has the squad working out on the two and one-half mile cross-country course.

As yet, no schedule has been released but plans are underway to enter the team in all the important meets which will probably include the following: Millrose Games, New York A. C., and Knights of Columbus Meet which will all be held in Madison Square Garden.

Also there is the Penn A. C. Meet held in Convention Hall, Philadelphia, the Catholic University Meet in Washington and the Seton Hall Games at Seton Hall, New Jersey.

This year will be different from the preceding years in that "Jumbo" is inaugurating a new system whereby each man will keep a daily report showing his weight before and after practice and other essential information. This report also will show the attendance of the runners at practice.

Florida 'Gators Here Friday Night For First Clash With Wildcats

Southerners to Bank on Pass Attack Against Smithmen in Shibe Park Battle Under Arclights; Strong Running Attack Also Featured by Lieb Team

From Florida's famed marshes comes Villanova's Friday night football foe in the season's second game under the arclights of Shibe Stadium. The 'Gators of Florida University, thirsty for Wildcat blood, are the opponent and fresh from a decisive win over Tampa University they are fully confident of hitting pay dirt Friday night.

The southern lads, who have an uncomfortable habit of winning when they are supposed to lose, feature a new coach this year in the person of one Tom Lieb who will be remembered as coach of the Loyola (Cal.) team which faced Villanova in 1937. Lieb will make his Philadelphia bow when his Florida band takes the field at 8:30 P. M.

Taking their cue from Villanova's showing against P. M. C. the Florida lads are expected to shoot the works through the airlanes against the 'Cats. Their passing attack is far above average and Lieb figures that it's good enough to give the Smithmen plenty of uncomfortable moments.

With such backs as Pat Reen, Bud Walton, Archie Bagwell, and Bob Johnson going behind a line featured by giants from end to end the 'Gators also present a fine running attack, one that packs enough dynamite to hit for touchdowns from any spot on the field.

From Villanova's viewpoint the game will be a test to show if the power symbolized by Saturday night's fifty-three points is really there.

With Sam Bray, soph center, the only casualty of the P. M. C. game, Smith will present practically full strength. Some changes in the line-up are expected, but not yet definite. The backfield will probably stay intact with Basca, Morkun, Behot, and either Rosato or Yankouskas starting. However, due to the reserve wealth, no starter is absolutely sure of his job, with the exception of Nick Basca, the East's premiere back.

Friday's meeting will be the first Villanova-Florida affair and the second meeting between rival coaches Smith and Lieb. Both teams have played night ball before this year.

Probable Captain

The 'Gators choose an individual captain for each game and word from the south indicates that Mike Bucha, a senior who plays center, will probably captain for the game Friday night, due to his outstanding record and to the fact that he hails from Bridgeport, Pa., only a few miles from Villanova.

Kick-off will be at 8:30 P. M. The game will be broadcast over Station WIP by Byron Samm and Taylor Grant, the same pair which handled the P. M. C. game.

Bucha Feted

Mike Bucha, Florida center and probable captain for the game Friday night, will be feted between the halves by friends from his hometown, Bridgeport, Pa. Bucha will be presented with gifts from well-wishers from both Norristown and Bridgeport. The program is to be sponsored by the Norristown "Times-Herald."

One-Fifties Open With Princeton

Casper's Gridders Set for Opener Friday Afternoon at Home Stadium

Tom Casper's 150-pound football team, super de luxe 1940 edition, will make its debut in Eastern Intercollegiate Lightweight League this Friday afternoon against Princeton University.

Princeton is the loop's defending champion, having won the crown last year. Cornell and Rutgers finished second.

Last Saturday morning the one-fifties scrimmaged informally against Malvern Prep. No scoring was permitted but the session gave Casper an opportunity to iron out several flaws and to determine starting line-ups for the first league game.

Frank Lombardo, senior from St. Joseph's Prep in Philadelphia where he attained 'All-Catholic" rating, performed yeoman work at fullback Saturday and is a certain starter against the Tigers. Other backfield men were Bill Brown, also a senior, who played quarterback as he did last Fall. The two McMahons, Jack and Joe, seemed set at the halfback slots.

In the line Saturday were Menseck and Urie, two new-comers, at end; Phillips, Taraci, and Lozowski, at tackles; Hinaki, and Sacchetti at guards, and veteran Bill Nihill at the center slot. Coach Casper will probably pick his starters from this group, although possible changes may be made before Saturday's battle.

Only casualty of the year thus far is Tom Moore, a senior from Philadelphia's North Catholic High School. Moore suffered a broken bone in his foot during the Malvern affair, and will definitely be out for the rest of the season. He was depended upon as a sure starter and a team mainstay so the loss will be severly felt.

The Villanova band is expected to play at the opening game. All freshmen should attend.

Alumnus To Honor 150 Gridder Again

The "Alumnus Award" for the most valuable member of the one-hundred and fifty pound football team will again be made this year at the conclusion of the season.

This award was inaugurated last year by a prominent alumnus of Villanova who takes a great interest in the sport, although he was never a player. First recipient of the prize (last year it was a beautifully inscribed Bulova watch), was Victor Domenick of Radnor, Pa., a regular end on the lightweights.

All Eligible

Any member of the lightweight squad is eligible for the award, regardless of whether or not he was a regular, a star or otherwise. Principal requirements of the winner are that he display great interest in the team, that he support the club whole-heartedly, and mainly that he shall above all display the qualities inherent in a true sportsman.

Tommy Casper, team coach, is planning a special point system to aid in selecting the winner. This together with the final vote of the squad-members will determine the winner.

NINE MEETINGS

Villanova and Detroit University have met nine times in football with the 'Cats winning five, losing two, and two games resulting in ties.

POSSIBLE ALL-AMERICAN

Dick McGowen, Auburn halfback who gave Villanova so much trouble last year, is being mentioned for all-American honors this fall.

Soph Cotillion Pleases Everyone

The centennial class of 1943 launched the current social season last Friday evening in the Field House when they held the annual Sophomore Cotillion. A capacity crowd was on hand to enjoy dancing to the scintillating rhythm of the Villanovans, student musical organization.

Praise was in order for the melodic arrangements offered by this recently reorganized orchestra. Joe Rozum and Fred Kull were instrumental in this work. Vocals were ably taken care of by Daniel Savini.

Huge ecru draperies, hung from the ceiling, improved the acoustics and added effect to the occasion. Shaded lamps and chairs were spaced around the floor contributing to the informality of the affair.

The orchestra was situated on a bandstand in front of the stage. Directly in back of it hung a huge blue and white Villanova banner, while on a backdrop was pinned in sparkling white letters "1943."

Noticeable was the absence of freshmen stags at this dance. Congratulations were given to chairman Jim Walsh and his committee for effecting negotiations with neighboring girls' colleges so that the first-year men could enjoy the social life on the campus.

Freshman Engineers Attend PKP Smoker; Fr. O'Leary Featured

Freshman engineering students were guests at the annual Phi Kappa Pi smoker held last night in the blue room of the field house. Remarks by Rev. John S. O'Leary, O. S. A., highlighted several speeches in a program planned by John MacNamara, senior mechanical engineer.

Other features of the entertainment included an impromptu student orchestra and several soloists. The advantages of membership in the fraternity were pointed out for the benefit of the freshmen.

Refreshments, as well as cigars and cigarettes, were provided for all attending.

Museum Wants Gifts

An appeal has been made for new exhibits for the Villanova Museum, which is now temporarily housed on the first floor of Alumni Hall.

The request is made at this time because the museum will be transferred from its present location to the new library, as soon as plans for that edifice have materialized. When this transfer takes place, the museum will be enlarged and rearranged, so that there will be room for many new articles.

Anyone possessing an article of historical value who would like to have it on exhibit in the new museum is requested to send it to the VILLANOVAN, Box 1, Villanova, Pa. Articles pertaining to early Villanova and American Missionary Material will be especially welcomed.

BELLE AIR

Mr. William Cook, representative of the Clark Printing House, was present at a meeting of the associate and assistant of the Belle Air on Friday. A dummy copy of the 1941 annual was shown, and the plans and principles of the yearbook were discussed.

Music Seminar Opens Tomorrow Evening; Tschaikowsky Heard

Students are invited to attend an all-Tschaikowsky recorded program which will feature the initial meeting of the Music Seminar tomorrow evening at 7:30 P. M. in Simpson hall.

The musical program will include: "March Slave," "Symphony No. 4 in F Minor," "Capriccio Italien," "In a Three Horse Sleigh," "Sleeping Beauty Ballet," "Waltz of the Flowers," and "Waltz from String Serenade," all by Tchaikowsky.

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch will supplement the musical program with critical remarks intended to aid in the appreciation of the music.

A short biographical sketch on sound film of Tchaikowsky's life will be presented during the evening by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the seminar.

Flying Club Will Hear Able Speaker In Field

Francis J. Mambretti, sophomore engineer, president of the Villanova College Flying Club, has announced that plans to bring a series of guest speakers prominent in the field of aviation before the members of the association are progressing rapidly.

Announcements have also been made that trips to various airports in and around Philadelphia have been planned and that a committee to arrange these trips and speakers will be appointed at the next meeting, on October 18.

Mr. William M. Gorman, moderator, states that the members of the group will soon start on the design and construction of a two-cycle model airplane gasoline engine.

Unofficial Figures Show Enrollment Gain

Unofficial figures on this year's registration indicate an increase over previous total enrollments. In spite of the recent draft legislation, which was expected to affect prospective college entrants, the increase in this year's total is approximately fifty students.

The official figures will be printed as soon as they are completed by Paetrus F. Banmiller, Registrar.

CEM To Discuss Plans

Mr. John A. Oakey, M. S., moderator of Chi Epsilon Mu, honorary engineering fraternity, has announced that the first meeting of that group will be held in the near future, at which time tentative plans for the year will be discussed.

Following the initiation-banquet last spring, the fraternity elected William Appel, M. E. '41, president; Raymond Vener, Ch. E. '41, vice president; and Frank Smith, Ch. E. '41, secretary-treasurer.

ASME Candidates To Meet Monday

All applicants for admission into the local chapter of the American Society of the Mechanical Engineers are requested to attend a meeting to be held next Monday, Oct. 14, in room 209 Mendel at 11:40 A. M.

In order to cover expenses of the annual smoker and to defray the cost of a subscription to "Mechanical Engineering," a monthly publication, each new member will be charged a fee of $3 at the time of his admission into the society.

Secretary Vincent Gordon has announced that the smoker will be held on November 14. A committee consisting of Parkin, Ehmer, Walsh, Boudon, and Hardwicke will make the necessary arrangements.

AIEE Chapter Refuses Invitation To Convention

At the inaugural meeting on Monday, Sept. 30, of the Villanova branch of the American Institute of Electrical engineers, Frank Abbott, chairman of the society, informed the members of a letter received from the Ohio Branch inviting them to attend the annual convention to be held at Cincinnati on October 9, 10 and 11. The members decided not to undertake the trip however due to distance required in making the journey.

At this same meeting, several members of the junior class were accepted into the society and a schedule of papers to be read on topics in electrical engineering was given to the members.

Organ Recital Tonight

Following chapel services tonight, Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., will play the third in his weekly series of organ recitals.

His selections for this evening include Gounod's "Ave Maria," Thunder's "Magne Peter Augustine," and variations on the hymn "Peace Be Still." All students are invited to remain after the services for the recital.

Holy Name Officers Attend Archdiocesan Meeting in Phila.

Officers of the local unit of the Holy Name Society attended the quarterly meeting of the Archdiocesan Unit of Philadelphia during the past week-end. The meeting was held in St. Agatha's Auditorium and was presided over by Rev. Joseph P. McKenna. At the meeting plans were discussed for the coming year.

The first general meeting of the college unit will be held tonight in the chapel at 6:35. New members are invited to attend. There will be a review of the purposes of the organization for the benefit of newcomers.

The Holy Name Society has as its object spiritual rather than social activities and attempts to promote reverence for God, clean speech, and monthly Communion.

Band Heads For Jersey City Parade

Next Sunday, October 13, the college band will travel to Jersey City to participate in a large Holy Name parade held by that city.

In preparation for such appearances as this one, the band has been holding frequent practices and now has a repertoire of eleven numbers, including such marches as "King Cotton," "On the Mall," and "The Thunderer."

The assistant manager of the band during this year will be Anthony Di Santo, a sophomore in the science school, who was appointed last week.

WE crawled into bed Saturday night very, very, tired and also very, very, sorry that we had drunk that last malted milk (ahem). So it came about that instead of pleasant slumber we did a little night-riding via the well-known nightmare.

All we could see all night was the swallows coming back to Capistrano and every one of the pesky creatures was throwing forward passes at a horde of Wildcats along the path. And, by golly, every one of the passes was completed. First of the swallows seemed to come from down Florida way. Then some Texas swallows (very huge) got into our fantasy. Then they flew out of Detroit, Kansas, New York, and Pittsburgh. All of them completing passes despite heroic efforts of the Wildcats in their path. Worst of all was when a swallow with a cherry and white "T" on his chest started to give us the works. That was when we fell out of bed trying to help the Wildcats attempt to bat down the passes filling the air.

It was about six o'clock in the morning when we finally got clear of the fog by catching up with a little Cadet swallow which had started the whole works by tossing the first successful passes. We caught the little bird and feasted on a mental swallow-a-la-king. No wonder the sausage tasted so lousy Sunday morning.

All of which was probably brought on by Saturday evening's marathon affair at Shibe Stadium when the pluckiest band of outclassed Chester Cadets ever to hail from Pennsylvania Military College gave the 'Cats one or two little football lessons in the art of forward passing, especially in the initial half when the Cadets were not so battered up by the terrific offensive lacing dealt out by Clipper Smith's powerhouse.

It is evident that the Clipper does have another fine football machine. Naturally they were none too polished Saturday night. That will come along later in the season. However, the 'Cats did pack power and plenty of it. They seemed to be the most powerful club that Smith has yet produced, although not yet ranking in slickness with teams of the past three years.

Most pleasing of the night's demonstration were the classy reserves produced by the Clipper. Eusko in particular gave a nice demonstration, as did Bill Howlett, Steve Pritko, Bill Prohovich, Vince Carlesimo and a host of others. We would of course include Sal Rosato or Pete Yankauskas, but we can't figure out which one is the sub, they both rate first team.

However, and now we begin to

Villanova successfully opened the 1940 season Saturday evening, defeating Pennsylvania Military College 53 to 14 before 15,060 at Shibe Park.

The Wildcats began their parade of touchdowns late in the first period, but not until P. M. C. had startled the Villanova followers with a spectacular 52-yard touchdown play in the early minutes of the game.

Following Nick Basca's punt which put the ball on the P. M. C. 48-yard line, Bartolomeo shot a short pass to Joe Glenn, who, with fine blocking by his team-mates, raced across the Villanova goal line. Bartolomeo converted the extra point, leaving the crowd wondering if an upset was in the offing.

Bray Out

Sam Bray, sophomore center, who was injured in the first half of the game Saturday night, suffered a severely torn ligament in his leg and will be out of action for an indefinite period.

Villanova soon came to life. Steady ground gaining by Basca and Yankauskas set the stage for the first Wildcat touchdown. A pass, Basca to Behot, good for 22 yards, produced the score. Basca's conversion knotted the count.

The 'Cats scored three times in the second period. Three running plays, two by Basca; one by Rosato, placed the ball on the ten-yard line, from where Nick carried it over. Soon after, Joe Behot made a great running catch of Basca's bullet pass and went to the three-yard line for a gain of 30 yards. Rosato went over in two plunges.

Immediately following the kick-off, Rosato intercepted a pass and ran 35 yards for a touchdown.

P. M. C. struck through the air for their final score near the end of the half. The pass, Bartolomeo to Gekoski, was good for 60 yards.

"Clipper" Smith substituted freely during the second half, but the 'Cats continued to score. Basca and Rosato plunged over for two third-

Frosh Win Opener Over St. Benedict

Keeping their three year winning intact the Freshmen gridders topped St. Benedict Prep at Newark last Friday night to the tune of 7 to 0.

The charges of Doc Jacobs, who, incidentally, gave way to 150-pound coach Tommie Casper for the evening, performed in a rather uncertain style in achieving their one touchdown victory over the Preppers.

A couple of fumbles and a lack of experience prevented the Kittens from scoring at least two more touchdowns. However, their blocking improved towards the close of the game and began to look well enough to please Casper.

The only score came in the third period when left halfback Jack Dzitko passed from the enemy 45-yard line to end Lou De Palo, who took it on the twenty and raced the remaining distance unmolested. Dzitko converted for the extra point.

Playing the game in Benedictine territory for the most part, the Frosh only had to punt twice. Passing was also neglected as the burly Blue and White line continuously opened holes for the backs. The line, by the way, is one of the biggest in years, with the starting seven men averaging near the 190-pound mark. Consistently the backfield ripped through for considerable gains and skirting the ends for yardage at will. The failure to take advantage of breaks nullified a more prominent victory for the Kittens.

Leading the way on the defense was center Dick Baraldi, while Pelzelski and De Palo sparkled on the offense.

Mural Tennis Finals This Week; Golf Tournament Postponed

Inclement Weather Halts Linksmen, Until Spring; Card To Be Completed

The latest developments in the golf and tennis tournaments are as follows: Golf—some of the matches were played but the tournament was stopped because of inclement weather. The tournament will be played in the early spring and the intramural scores will be determined then.

Tennis—Most of the halls and frats have completed their eliminations. Final playoff this week.

Because of inclement weather the golf tournament had to be called after a few of the fellows had completed their eighteen holes and others had reached the ninth. About twenty-five men were present to participate in the tournament but many more would have liked to participate but did not appear because of the threatening weather.

Golf In Spring

Since the golf course cannot be secured a third time for the tournament, it will be dropped for the present. However, in the spring the best representative from each of the resident halls and from each fraternity will be picked and will have a tryout for the varsity and at the same time play off the tournament.

Of the the rounds played Casey of Mendel turned in the best score. He proved to be a good golfer, shooting an 82 on the wet course in a slight rain. Other outstanding performers were Jimmy Dykes, Premed, and Rozum of Austin who is the defending champ.

The tennis tournament has advanced as far as the playoffs which will be completed this week. The playoff schedule is as follows: The Mendel and Austin representatives will play off while the Fedigan and Alumni finalists will battle and the two winners will play for one of the berths in the finals. The same idea will be followed for the other four representatives. The C & F and Engineers winners will meet while the Premed and Arts finalists play and the two winners will struggle for the other berth in the finals.

Bill Carey will represent the C & F while George McFadden, W. Gagen, Bob Di Persio, and J. Skinners will represent Austin, Alumni, the Premeds and the Engineers respectively. The Fedigan, Mendel, and Arts representative are not yet known.

feel very sad, where was the pass defense? The Cadets pulled 19 passes during the evening. Most of these came in the late part of the game and were of the "prayer" variety which seldom work, especially for a team so battered and tired as the Cadets. The Cadets' first period passing had the 'Cats a trifle bothered to say the least. What's going to happen when Baylor, Detroit, Duquesne, and that crowd start filling the air with footballs in a much more polished manner than small P. M. C. could hope to do? We hope it was merely first game shabbiness, but still that pass business bothers us.

On ground defense the 'Cats could also have been better, especially due to the spotty tackling. Many a P. M. C. player was more amazed than we were when he slipped out of a sure tackle and got away for a few extra yards. Extra yards by a team hopelessly outclassed mean little, but extra yards by the big boys will mean the difference between victory and defeat.

The Spoils . . .

Four Foes Win In Week-End Tests

While the Wildcats trimmed P. M. C. Saturday night some of her future pigskin opponents were faring as well in their scheduled contests over the week-end. Out of the eight foes remaining four won, three lost, and one, Duquense, did not play. This gave them a .571 average. They amassed a total of 78 points while their opponents scored 63.

The largest score ran up was by Florida, next opponent of the Blue and White who garnered 23 points while shutting out Tampa U.

Auburn Tops Tulane

Auburn made a fine showing in setting back the Green Wave of Tulane 20-14, and Gus Dorais' Detroit eleven beat a scrappy Catholic U. team, 13-0, for their second win of the current season. The "Titians" are considered a very dangerous aggregation this year.

Baylor beat Denver 14-7 without being hard-pressed.

Less fortunate foes were Kansas, Manhattan, and Temple. Iowa State scored in the second period against Kansas and then halted several desperate drives in the last quarter to win 7-0.

Every team on the Villanova schedule will see action this week in the following games:

Friday—
P. M. C. vs. West Chester.
Florida vs. Villanova.
Manhattan vs. Boston U.
Duquesne vs. South Carolina.
Saturday—
Kansas vs. Drake University.
Baylor vs. Arkansas.
Detroit vs. Mich. State Teachers.
Auburn vs. Miss. State.

period touchdowns, while Pete Yankauskas and Bill Howlett broke away for touchdown runs in the final quarter.

Sharing the spotlight for Villanova were the veteran, Nick Basca, and a sophomore, Sal Rosato. These two just couldn't be stopped. Nick thrilled the crowd with his amazing all-around performance. Rosato gained consistently with his power drives through the line.

Vince Bartolomeo starred for the Cadets. His accurate passing was directly responsible for P. M. C.'s two scores.

Villanova gave its followers a pleasant surprise by going into their "swingtime" shift which, it was feared, would be discarded. As the 'Cats swung, the crowd roared its approval.

OLDEST OPPONENTS

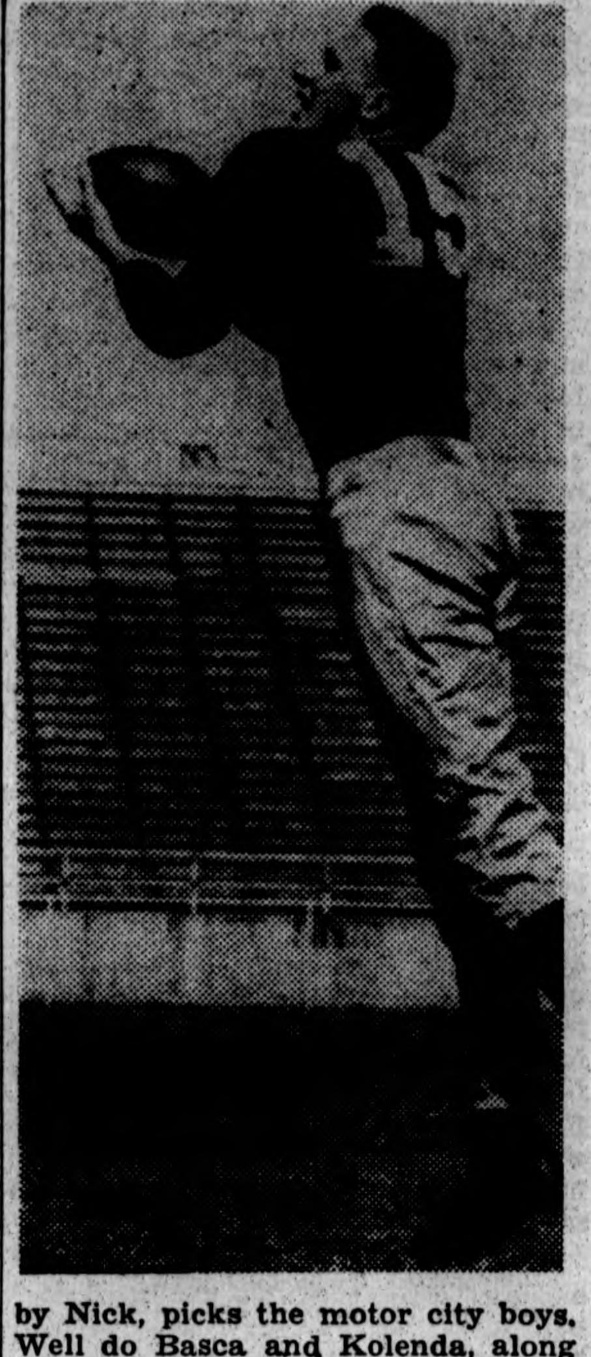
Temple and Manhattan are the most frequent opponents on this year's football schedule. The 'Cats have met the Owls and Jaspers 12 times on the gridiron. Pennsylvania Military College is the most ancient rival, having first met the 'Cats in 1896, one year before the initial Villanova-Manhattan meeting.

PRO GRIDDER

Bernie McMonigle, end on last year's Villanova team, has signed to play semi-pro football with the Nazareth Scholastics of Nazareth, Pa., for the balance of the current season.

"Personality Kid," Lindy Kolenda, Hopes To Shake Injury Jinx

By BOB FUNABASHI



Using the old adage that the best time to approach a man is after he has eaten breakfast, the tete-a-tete session with Leonard Kolenda, varsity end for Clipper Smith's 1940 eleven, proved a constant delectation.

The affable Mr. Kolenda, seated in his favorite chair, his 6 ft. 4 in. frame sprawled in restful fashion, then raised his hand indicating the affirmation that he was ready for the D. A. Also in the parlance and answering the questions of even "Lindy's" personal history was Nick Basca, co-owner of Room 227 Fedigan and pinochle player-extraordinaire. What "Lindy" didn't know or care to know, then Nick reluctantly intervened.

As most football players go, in the way of stature, Lindy follows with a perfect fit. The amiable and boyish-looking gentleman, is a big-boned six-footer and tips the beams at 205 lbs. Basca being the opposite formulates a perfect Mutt and Jeff combination.

Son of Nanticoke

Why so big? Well, Lindy hails from Nanticoke, where they grow them as big as the corn in Kansas. Nanticoke takes its setting in the Anthracite region and more than once has contributed her loyal sons to Villanova.

Some people get their share of the good and the bad and Lindy seems to fit in the latter, when wearing the football shoes. Last season when Clipper was in need of a good scoring end, Lindy was on hand to fill the request, that is, until the season started. A few weeks before the opener, against Muhlenberg, he suffered a broken collar bone. The rest of the Saturdays he spent on the bench until the Owl affair and then on the opening kick-off of the Temple game, the clock recorded just 50 seconds for Leonard Kolenda and he was out again with a torn cartilage in his foot. That's the share of bad luck.

The hope of this year is that a Basca-Kolenda combination will feature the headlines. After all, Nick and Lindy are room-mates, partners in pinochle, roman dinner friends and plan a life partnership in business in Phoenixville.

Personality Kid

Kolenda is strictly the personality kid, with a broad smile and a staunch "hello." Yet the manner of dress is conservative as is his talk. He laughs with you and for you and then settles down in a conscientious mood. Little wonder why his goodwill tour to Ann Arbor, Mich., pays such big dividends.

If one polled the answers to the question of who was the toughest opponent in past few years, Detroit U. would most likely draw the top peg, for Lindy, quite convinced by Nick, picks the motor city boys. Well do Basca and Kolenda, along with 25,000 others remember Ed Palumbo and his teammates down in the Quaker City in 1938. That was the Sunday afternoon Palumbo put a half-dozen kicks within the five yard line.

As the future is not far off, Lindy assumes that he will be coaching for a small high school and at the same time carrying a teacher's payroll. Headlines and bylines have little effect on Lindy for all his reserve is put into his studies in the School of Education in the pursuance of History and Social studies. Thus the gentleman under discussion defines his success in constant plugging and a whistle in his work. He is not a typical Joe College, which is rather passe, but there still is a Betty Co-ed, for every athlete.

All in all Lindy Kolenda is the "Bestah of the Bester."

Here and There

By Jim Haughton

COME Friday and the cover will be knocked off another 150 pound football season when the lads from "Ole Nassau" do battle with the local league entry. To some it may be just another opening game, but to others it is the future of the 150's at stake. For there have been rumors that authorities may drop the sport if this year's squad fails to produce.

The lightweights have had a somewhat spotty existence on the Main Line. During our stay we can recall a few of their relapses. Yet several names still shine in the books of lightweight history. There were good men like Paul Kerrigan, Brad McManus and Charley Timmins always attempting to force a little brightness into a rather shaky life.

Take Paul Kerrigan, for instance. Only the Seniors will recall him because he graduated in '38. If ever there was a lad who fostered 150-pound football here it was "Streaky," as they called him. Day after day found him working his head off and urging his mates on to new heights; day after day found him seeking new material for the squad and game after game found him at his fullback post like a beacon in a sea of distress. His fine play even attracted the varsity mentors.

He can easily go down on record as the "Father of 150 pound football at Villanova." He happens to be an acquaintance of ours and his teachings probably inspired us to do this essay. But what other alternative do we have? Why every time we meet him he asks, "How are the one-fifties? Do you think they will have a good year?" This same fellow takes time from his business to travel many miles and watch the local club in play. And he graduated three years ago.

Yet several hundred students, who could stand the exercise, fail to put in an appearance. Still they are the first critics. They complain about the club, coach and players. But fail to provide any constructive support.

The important point of the game on Friday will be the support shown. Everybody who can possibly make it should be out to lend a hand. Why not have the band and cheer leaders present to provide a little music and aid with some cheers? They could use it as a practice session for the evening's game with Florida. Why not have all Frosh present to practice their cheers and introduce them to a swell sport.

This is Villanova's year to reach the top rung in the league. An experienced, well-rounded squad is available. There are veterans like Bill Brown, Frank Lombardo, Bill Nihill, Logan Phillips and Charley Lazowski to carry the work.

And above all, there is a new coach who has a real interest in the squad. Tommy Caspar gave up a lucrative high school coaching post to take over the reins of the campus club because he felt the team would be a winner. He is staking his career on the squad. And the squad won't let him down. That's what you have to like about them. They may meet with little success but they always give a good account of themselves. This Friday will find them not only providing a good show, but coming home the winner.

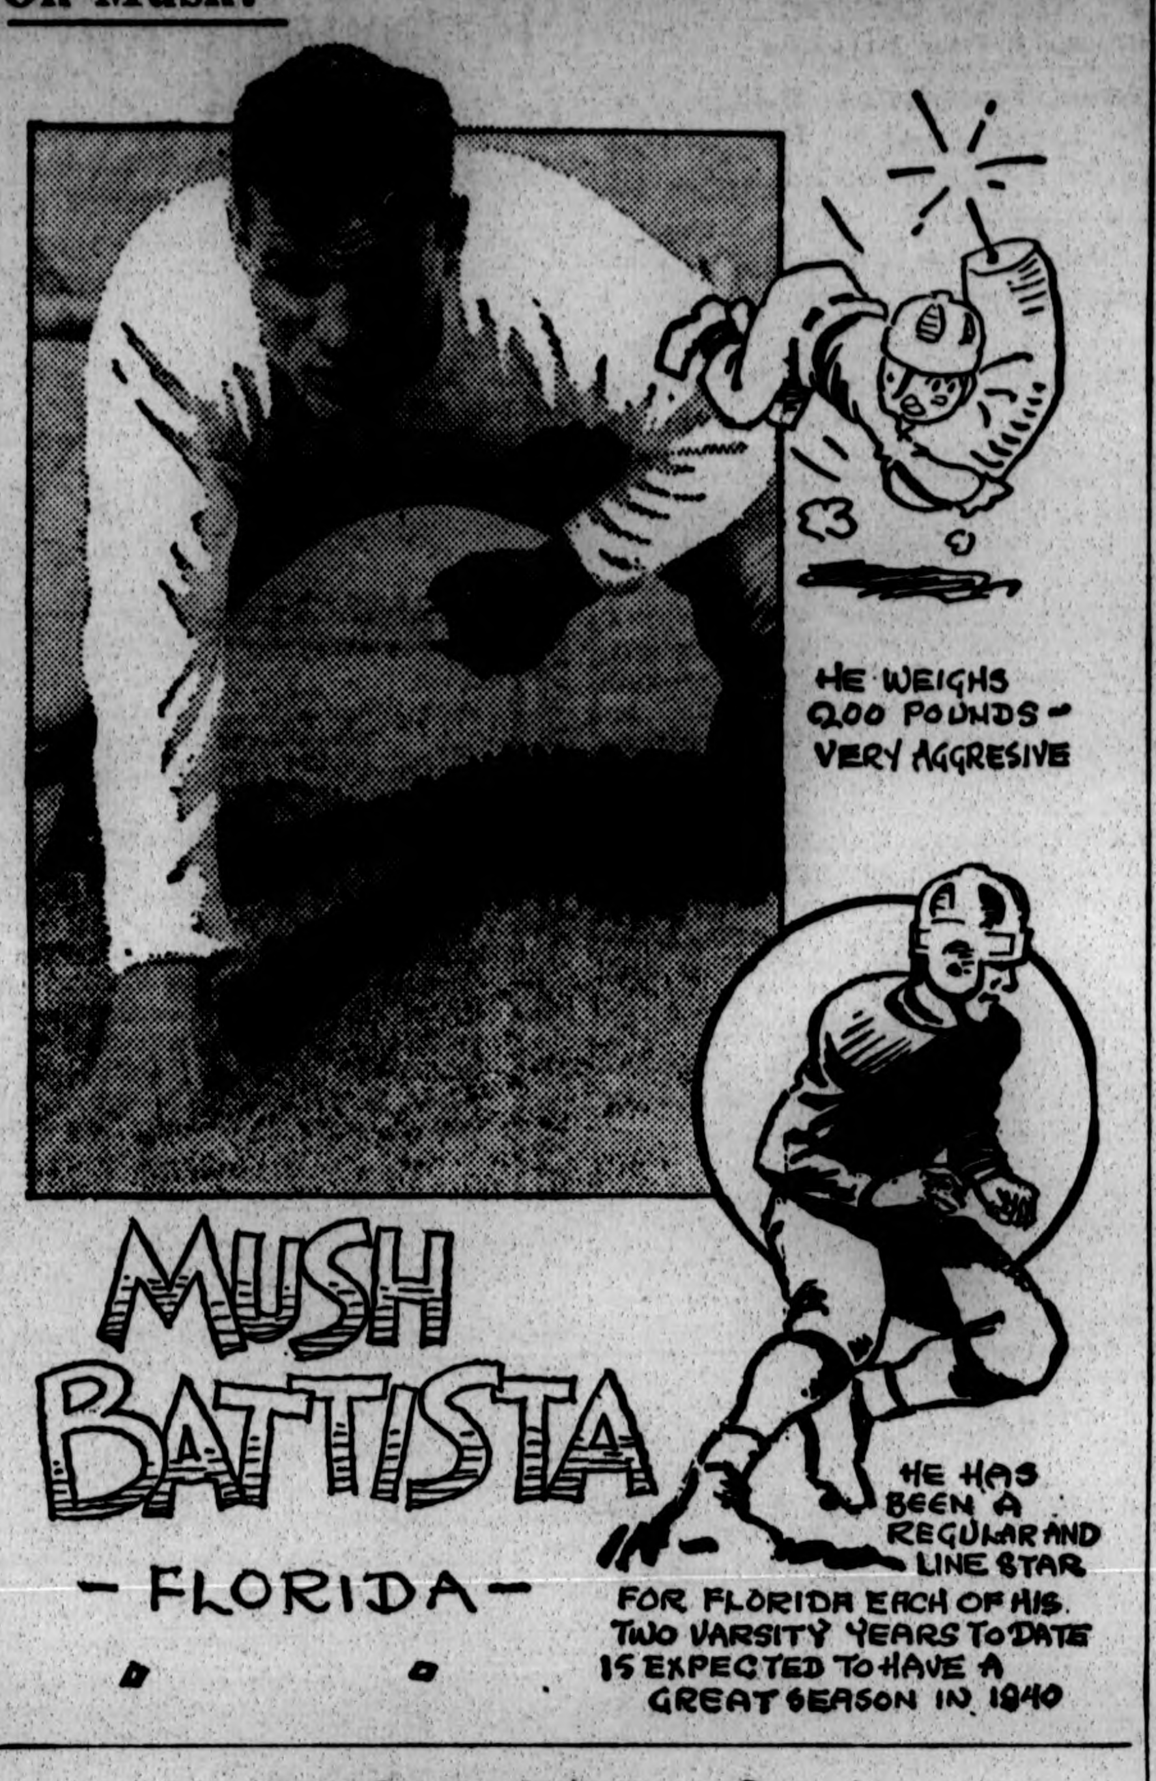
LONE STAR STATE? ? ?

Ed Korisky, varsity center, is the only member of this year's grid squad from the state of Connecticut. Most gridders come from New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and New Jersey.

THREE NEW ONES

The football team meets three opponents for the first time in history this year. They are Florida University, Baylor, and Kansas.

Oh Mush!



Ex-'Cats Make Good

On every side of the athletic world Villanova graduates are making strides and continuing the fine work they did while on the Main Line.

At the present writing, one Wildcat is holding down a post on a major club with the possibility of many more coming up next season. Art Mahan, '36, handled the initial sack for the Phillies and had an excellent fielding year. Although he finished the season with a .246 average, his lowest since beginning a pro career, Art's average was high among the club hitting.

Mahan combined with youthful Bobby Bragan to make one of the most talked of fielding combinations in the majors. When the Phils were meeting with such success early in the season it was this combine which sparked the drive. Art's fielding was on par with any first baseman in the league and he feels his hitting will improve next year.

Etten vs Mahan

There have been rumors that Nick Etten, now with Baltimore, will be brought up next year to battle it out with Mahan for the first base post. Nick attended Villanova for a year before entering baseball. He came from St. Rita's in Chicago.

Lenny Merullo, '39, who is the property of the Chicago Cubs, had a great year with Tulsa in the Texas League. The colorful Dizzy Dean called him 'one of the best shortstops around." Dean also played with the Tulsa club for part of the season. Len will in all probability go to camp with the Cubs and stands an excellent chance of taking over the shortstop job with the Chicago team next season.

Lloyd Rice, '40, one of the hardest hitting players to ever wear the blue and white, took top batting honors in the Eastern Shore League with a .362 average. The majority of his hits were of the double and triple variety and he had a fine record for runs driven in. Lloyd, who is the property of the Athletics, moves up to the Wilmington club in the Inter-State loop.

Pash Plays

Bobby Pash, also '40, played for the Federalsburg club early in the season and later moved up to the Centerville team in the same league. Pash expects to play with an Eastern League team in 1941.

Joe Desmond, '39, is still the property of the Baltimore entry in the International League but he did very little pitching this season. He injured his arm early in the year and was sent home to rest it. He plans to be back in harness next spring.

Turning to the gridiron, we find the 'Cats still occupy a prominent place with many grads holding down posts on teams throughout the country.

Chisick With Cards

Andy Chisick, '40, is a member of the Chicago Cardinals and is playing understudy to the great Ki Aldrich of Texas Christian fame. "Handy Andy" has played in almost every game and is making quite a reputation his first year in the pro circuit.

Harry Mazzei is playing with the Long Island Indians in the American League.

Blocking, Tackling Against P. M. C. Poorest In Years — Smith

BY CLIPPER SMITH
(Head Football Coach)

Looking back upon Saturday night's game with P. M. C. I find myself disappointed with team play as a whole although several individuals, notably Basca, Rosato, Eusko, and Howlett on offensive play did good work.

On the line Collins and Piscione looked good as did Bill Prohovich. End play however was a bit on the sorry side, although I was glad to see Le Kolenda get in there and get the "feel" of the ball. We are counting on Kolenda later in the season.

Downfield blocking against P. M. C. was the worst I have had since I came to Villanova five years ago. The tackling was also inferior to that of past years. Kicking was also the poorest exhibition I can remember at Villanova. We were somewhat deluded in believing that we had great punters. However some of this deficiency may be traced to the fact that most of our kicking was done deep in P. M. C. territory, making a low kick necessary to attempt to hit the corners. This of course is difficult.

Sam Bray, the only casualty of the game, will be out of action for a while—probably at least three weeks—but he showed some fine work while in there for his short stay.

Potential

Our second team seemed to me to possess more pep, power and finesse than the varsity.

All in all there seems to be a lot of potential power in the team although Vince and I were far from satisfied after Saturday night's exhibition. Next week we hit up against much tougher competition and the game being Friday night doesn't give us much time to iron out the many flaws present.

You know Tom Lieb is coaching down at Florida this year and Tom has it "in for" Villanova. He will be out to prove his long contention that we were lucky in beating his Loyola team in 1937 at Los Angeles. Tom's anxious to make good his first eastern appearance and he would like nothing better than making us the victims.

In order to beat Tom we must develop our passing attack, which is a long way from being effective, and we must become more grounded in fundamental blocking and tackling.

Due to Bray's injury I contemplate one change in the squad. I may shift Ken Whisner to center and move Dick Casale from the third team up to Bray's second team slot.

You know the going is tough from here on in. We face the heavy part of our schedule from now on and it doesn't let up until the last game with Auburn.

In closing I would like to compliment P. M. C. on its fine coached squad. Their tackling was excellent and they had plenty of spirit. I think they will have a successful season from here on in.

Elliott Replaces Gadsby As Football Trainer

Jim Elliott, head coach of the track and golf teams, has added the trainer post of the football eleven to his duties at Villanova. Elliott took over the position, formerly held by Ray Gadsby, at the P. M. C. game last Saturday night.

Elliott is a graduate of Villanova, one of the greatest runners ever to wear the Blue and White, having won several quarter and half-mile championships. He is still holder of the college record for the quarter mile.

As track coach he has developed such stars as Johnny Maher, Bill Guiteras, Barney Bellew, and a host of others.

Gadsby left to assume the position of assistant to "Spike" Webb as coach of the Navy boxing team. He is expected to eventually take over head coaching reins.

DUZMINSKI SIGNS

George Duzminski, '40, All-State forward on Al Severance's basketball team last year, will play pro ball with Norristown in the Tri-County League for the 1940-41 season.

households, oblivious to their own discomforts and dangers."

More Evacuees

From Bordeaux the line of journey veered to Lisbon, Portugal, from which the already heavy passenger lists were swelled by more evacuees. And as the liner pointed its huge nose out into the Atlantic, the passengers numbered about 1800 to 1900, according to Dr. Hickey, whereas normal capacity would have been approximately 1200.

An instance of the abnormally-crowded conditions is seen in the fact that Doctor had to share his cabin with four others. All available space was utilized for sleeping purposes, even the ship's erstwhile swimming pool.

Lisbon was left in the evening, and all went well with the Washington on its widely publicized sailing course until early morning. Then, before dawn even had a chance to yawn, at five o'clock the signal horn of the vessel sounded in a sleep-rending blast. Ship officers and men went among the passengers, calmly telling them to dress, fasten their life preservers on, and to board the life boats.

Strangely enough, and yet not so strangely when one considers the training and discipline of naval men, there was no confusion at all and only a minimum of lost time. Even though the passengers did not know what it was all about, they did what they were told in very orderly fashion.

Women, Children First

Adhering to the perennial, maritime adage, the officers first accommodated the women and children in the lifeboats and then the others. Dr. Hickey, after a time, took his place in one of the boats, still bewildered about the cause of the precautions.

"Two possible solutions presented themselves to me. I asked myself, 'Has there been a collision?', and 'Has a fire started aboard ship?' I saw no evidence to support either of these theses and discarded both, still not aware of the trouble.

"Suddenly, upon scanning the horizon, I noticed tiny pin points of light flashing on and off. These flashes were my key, for I knew then that we had been stopped by another vessel. I gathered that it was a submarine because of the low position it held in the water. I did not see the actual submarine, but only the dots of light emanating from it."

"Generous" Extension

Afterwards, it was learned by Doctor that the German submarine, after halting the Washington, signalled Lieutenant - Commander Manning of the Washington to evacuate ship within ten minutes. Answering messages were flashed back, asserting the nationality of the liner—if that had needed to be given, since the American flag was painted in every conceivable advantage spot on the ship. The immediate result was merely an extension of ten minutes for the time allowed for evacuation by the commander of the submarine.

Although constant contact was had with the challenging craft by means of the light signals, nevertheless, the submarine was always maneuvering for a better position from which to fire its deadly torpedoes. Life boats were still being filled, and the gnawing power of self-preservation was arising in those who had not the happy faculty of losing themselves in the care and comfort of others, Dr. Hickey observed.

Whew!. All Over

At long last, tension was relieved by the countermand of the original order to man the life boats. By this time most of the passengers had occupied places in the boats, but they were relieved by the discontinuance of such work. They realized that immediate danger was past.

Having suddenly been given the signal to proceed, the Washington took advantage of this and sailed full speed into the breaking dawn, moving in a zig-zagging course as a precaution against any change of mind the submarine's commander might have had.

Later, Dr. Hickey says, a petition to change the course of the ship by several passengers was considered unwise by the commander because of previous guarantees of safety given the Washington by the belligerents, if she followed this particular course. And thus Ireland, and then New York were reached in due time with no repeat of such thrills.

Library To Continue Newly Inaugurated Rental Circulation

The rental library, inaugurated last year, will begin circulation tomorrow, October 9, through the exchange desk of the college library.

In reopening this service the Villanova Library is following the modern trend in collegiate circles. This plan enables the student to obtain and read the new and popular books of the day which may not otherwise be available to him.

A blanket fee of $1.00, which is honored for the entire scholastic year, will permit him to withdraw books from the rental collection. Only one book may be taken out at a time, and the student will be expected to return the book within the week allotted.

Those who do not wish to pay the admittance fee may also use the collection. They may withdraw books for a period of three days for ten cents. It is advisable, however, that the student follow the first method, for if one employs the second means the rent for ten books will amount to the original fee, and he is only permitted to keep the book three days.

THE MORNING MILK

The Villanova Alumni of New York has introduced a monthly publication "The Morning Milk." Offering interesting news about the Villanova graduates of New York, this publication is worthy of active support from our fellow students. A small fee for mailing costs is the only charge. Anyone wishing to subscribe, please see John Gallagher, Class '42, our Villanova agent and distributor.

Retreat-Master Urges Application

In the keynote of the one-day annual retreat, held last Thursday, October 3, retreat-master Rev. John J. Anderson, O. S. A., extended a cordial welcome to both upperclassmen and freshmen, and advised both groups to make the most of their days at Villanova.

The upperclassmen were urged to keep up their good work and to make themselves worthy of the sacrifices made by their parents in order that they might benefit by a college education.

The retreat opened with the celebration of Mass in the Chapel on Thursday, and closed with Mass and Holy Communion on Friday morning. Day students who received Communion were given breakfast in the college dining hall.

All students who made the retreat received the Papal Blessing, a privilege which the Augustinian Order is permitted to extend on such occasions.

Flannery Appoints Board To Select DPE Members

At a meeting last Thursday of Delta Pi Epsilon, commerce school fraternity, a membership committee was appointed by president George J. Flannery, and nominations were made for members of an initiation committee.

The membership committee will pass judgment on all students desiring admission to the fraternity. This year students will not be admitted to the fraternity solely on scholasic ability, as was done last year. Those appointed to the committee were Robert Donovan William Epifanio, Thomas Devinney, and John Weber.

George Coupe, William Murphy, David Reardon, James Jernee, Daniel Haley, James McMenamin, William Epifanio, Thomas Sullivan and "Scotty" McAlloon were nominated to serve on the initiation committee. An election will be held at the meeting this Thursday to determine which six of these ten nominees will become members of the committee. All fraternity members, new and old, will be subject to the initiation by this committee, since no initiation was held last year.

President Flannery expressed the desire that a dance might be sponsored by Delta Pi Epsilon on January 17, and that the fraternity might become a national Catholic business fraternity. In order for these plans to materialize, however, dues must be collected from all members during the year and sufficient funds must be in the treasury.

Crack Down On Frosh

At a meeting of the Orientation Committee last Wednesday, Cliff Randolph, chairman, stressed the fact that Frosh must wear their "regs." Placing the responsibility of enforcement on the members of the committee, he told them to take the names of the flagrant offenders so that they might be called to account before the Student Council.

"No longer can the guilty Frosh plead that he has lost his hat," Cliff told the committee. "The new shipment of hats has arrived and will be distributed to those who apply for them."

Zealor is anxious to make this the greatest rally in the history of Villanova and it cannot be unless students respond 100 per cent.

Propose Greeters Club

Forming of Organization Would Assist in Welcoming Individuals or Groups Visiting the Campus

For many years there has been lacking on the Villanova campus an adequate system for greeting visitors both to our campus and our athletic contests.

While it is true that members of the faculty meet all visitors, this is not sufficient. Due to other duties which detain them, the priests and instructors, who are moderators of the different affairs, cannot find time to properly greet our visitors.

This leaves but one alternative for us to follow so that visitors to our campus may be properly impressed with our institution, the formation of a greeters club, composed of students whose duty it will be to salute the different delegations which enter upon our campus. In this manner the work of the various moderators will be greatly lightened and they will be permitted to devote more time to their own activity, rather than be forced to put in an appearance with the visiting delegation.

For a very practical example of this, let us look at the affairs of the band. Whenever a visiting band comes to town, Father Handran could greet them and spend a large amount of time with them. However, he cannot afford to do this since our own group demands his attention. Hence, he cannot properly devote his time to either one but must divide it between both of them.

Conditions such as we have stated would not exist if we had an officially designated group formed on the campus whose duty it would be to care for these events. Certain members could be delegated to greet certain groups and would be in a position to devote their full time and cooperation to the fulfillment of these duties.

Last year in the VILLANOVAN there appeared an article along these same lines. At that time it was given official endorsement and lauded by the faculty as a noteworthy objective. However, for some unknown reason, the student body never took any action. This year we hope there will be a different outcome. Not only does it relieve the faculty of excessive duties but will afford those committee members an opportunity to meet the students of other colleges.

Here we have a chance to perform something both for our own good and the good of the school. Let's get on the job!

College Draft Registration Held Tomorrow In Gym

Those Between 21 and 35 Must Sign in Accordance With Law; Necessity for Traveling Home Obviated

Over three hundred Villanova College students are required to register for the United States Selective Service draft tomorrow.

As this day will not be a college holiday, arrangements have been made by college authorities for professors, resident and day-hop students, and college employes who have reached the age of 21 on or before Oct. 16, 1940, to register in the College Field House any time after 8:00 A. M.

No Immediate Call

Their registrations will be sent to their home localities and consequently it is unnecessary for them to register at home. Those students who register will not be liable to call until July 1, 1941. If they are called they will report to their local boards where they will be deferred. Those who become 21 after Wednesday will probably not have to register for one or two years and possibly not at all. Part-time students will be deferred if college authorities consider them subject to full-time attendance at the college.

After their numbers have been called, draftees will report to their local boards where they will be placed in accordance with the government's needs and the draftees' education and occupational experiences. Those who volunteer after their numbers have been called will have no choice and will be placed by the authorities, along with the others. Physical defects which will eliminate drafted men will be found in Section 1B of the Conscription Act. Regardless of physical defects, these men will have to register.

The administration wishes to make it clear that not only resident students are eligible for this registration. Day students too are permitted to take advantage of this convenience.

In charge of the registration will be three registrars from the county and nine from the faculty. Those faculty members who will lend their services are: Mr. Harry S. Bueche, Mr. William M. Gorman, Mr. Raymond J. McKeon, Mr. John A. Oakey, Mr. Leo H. Schaefer, Mr. Alexander G. Severance, Mr. William G. Slaughter, Dr. John A. McClain, and Mr. Paetrus F. Banmiller.

Local Men Serve

College officials in order to cooperate with the National Defense Program applied for Army and Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps (R. O. T. C.) this summer.

Plans between Mr. Studebaker, of the United States Office of Education and Villanova College for short courses in engineering to develop engineers for government service are in the making.

Lucky Fellow!

Andy D'Angelo, senior artsman and literary editor of the VILLANOVAN, will choke the first person who tries to sing "Happy Birthday to You" tomorrow.

For tomorrow happens to be Registration Day and it's his 21st birth anniversary and all those who are 21 on or before October 16 must register for the draft; if he had been born a day later he wouldn't have to register for at least a year, if at all.

Richard Gray Heads Committee Selecting Junior Class Rings

Howlett Names First '42 Class Chairman; Work on Contract to Start Soon

By HOWARD A. McCALL

Richard Gray, junior artsman, has been chosen Ring Chairman of the class of '42. This selection, announced early today by William J. Howlett, president of the third-year men, is the initial appointment of the junior class.

With this release, the names of those who will serve on the committee were also announced. They are as follows: Thomas Harford, arts; Maurice Keating, Edward Frank, William Hayes, commerce and finance; Jack Dalton; Thomas Lyons, science; and Thomas Hushen, William Lynch, engineering.

The chairman and his committee represent the college in selecting a firm which will make the rings. Besides making the contract, he and his assistants arrange for the measurements of cherished gems.

When Gray learned of his appointment he said: "I am both surprised and very happy. The committee and I will strive to make the class proud of their selection. We have made no definite plans as yet, but will start to work on the contract in the near future."

Gray was a member of the varsity basketball team last year and showed his ability on the court on many occasions. Aside from his best liked sport, he has been interested in other extra-curricular activities and has held prominent positions in many of them.

He was elected vice-president of the sophomore class at the end of his freshman year, is now vice-president of the Sanctuary Society, and last term held the office of secretary in this organization. He is assistant sports editor of the Belle Air for the ensuing year and has recently joined the Glee Club. Lest we neglect his social activities, Gray was a member of the Sophomore Cotillion Committee.

Enrollment Gains Five Per Cent Over Last Year

Registration Figures Show 974 in College, 321 Freshmen Registered; Engineering School Makes Gain

By BRUNO J. TALVACCHIA

Official figures on the 1940-41 registration were announced yesterday by Paetrus F. Banmiller, registrar of the college, showing an increase of five percent in the total enrollment over last year, as compared to a gain of only one percent in 1939 over 1938.

Accounting for this gain, the freshman class enrolled 321 students, as compared to 300 enrollees last year, a gain of seven percent, while 38 other new students were admitted to advanced standing. The present total of 974 full-time students points toward the 1,000 mark for 1941-42.

Technical Trend

With the exception of the School of Arts and Education, every school on the campus has increased its student body. The trend toward technical knowledge is apparent in view of a 17 percent increase in the School of Engineering, which has a record freshman class of 106.

The School of Commerce and Finance again heads the list in total enrollment with 346 aspirants for the degree in Economics. With a slight increase over last year, the School of Science ranks third behind the business and engineering schools with a total of 204 men. The decrease in the arts school is very slight, as the present figure is 153 students as against last year's 155.

184 Seniors

Class listings show the usual order, descending from the freshman class to the seniors. The senior class has 184 potential graduates, the junior class has a total of 194

Pupil Of Einstein Speaks Before Science Seminar

At Thursday's session of the Science Seminar, Dr. Karl Herzfeld delivered a discourse on "Scientific Research as a Career."

The Doctor, German-born at Munich, has studied under the famous Einstein and is now attached to the staff of Catholic University at Washington in the capacity of head of the Department of Physics. In 1931 he was honored by receiving the Mendel Medal for his achievements.

Dr. Herzfeld divided his subject into four main classes, namely a short history of research in general; secondly, the different kinds of types of research; thirdly, those who should engage in research; and lastly, the best preparations for research.

They Can Be Had

Many seniors and underclassmen are under the impression that the only orchestras available for the Senior Prom are those which have received only a small amount of national recognition. This opinion is totally unfounded. Both the Senior Class and the Junior Class, if authorized by college authorities, are free to sign any "name band" they desire.

There are only two restrictions placed upon either class. The first restriction is the amount of money in the class treasury and the second is the "time factor." The signing of a "name band" necessitates a large deposit, which usually is more than fifty percent of the total amount to be spent for the band. Thus, the Prom Committee cannot sign an orchestra until they are certain of the amount that they will be able to spend.

It is therefore dependent upon each member of the class to pay his class assessments in order that the Prom Committee can have sufficient time and funds to engage a "name band" of sufficient reputation to please everyone.

Callahan To Arrange Physics Club Dinner

John Callahan, sophomore science student, was appointed chairman of the dinner committee of the last meeting of the Kappa Gamma Sigma Society. Callahan will be assisted by Anthony Di Santo and Harold Varani. The date of the dinner, which is held for the induction of new officers and new members, was tentatively set for February 22.

The constitution of the physics club has already been submitted to Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., for official approval and the design of the fraternity key has been completed.

The next meeting, to be held this Friday at 10:45 A. M., will feature the presentation of a paper by George Weber, sophomore science man. A cordial invitation is extended to freshmen to sit in at these meetings.

Fortify The Moral!

ONE of the more important issues at the present time is the national defense program. Frantic efforts on a mass scale are being expended to equip and prepare the army corps and the fleet that voluntary enlistment, plus the emergency "conscription", is assembling.

This military rearmament, in view of the crisis at hand, is endorsed by some who consider it a necessary precaution for impending conflict, and by others it is declaimed as a vicious implement employed to plunge the United States into the war. Be this true or false, it is certain that this form of armament has been established at the neglect and sacrifice of a more human and sacred means of fortification.

Man has forsaken God!

At the moment the need of spiritual readjustment is far more urgent than the production of mechanical and material defense facilities. Mobilization of the troops of Christ is ultimate if we are to survive in this haven of just and greed.

Evidence of what befalls mankind when he forgets God, blasphemes His name, and denounces His existence may be sadly drawn from the communistic countries of today. Poverty, loss of freedom, death; they are the rewards of desertion. Man shuns and dreads the thought that such things can or will happen to him, and yet he continues to delight and thrill in his "escape" from the Creator.

Human beings can accomplish nothing without His aid. Nothing could be more obvious than the fact that this ideology is futile and injurious to a nation. Defense and God should be correlative. They must be, if our democracy is to be preserved.

—H. J. McC.

"What Price Glory!"

FORCES more malignant than the legendary Furies are at work spreading a web of undercurrent circumstances and ties which is drawing closer and closer around the shores of this nation with the ultimate purpose of entangling us in the European conflict!

One morning the great, complacent, lax, gullible American public will awaken to find the United States at war. No doubt the latent patriotism will flare to unbounded heights, but subconsciously the people will want to know why—why this country is at war.

They will want to know what we are defending and why. But then it will be too late. The machines of Mars will already have begun to pave their road of desolation and waste over masses of bewildered humanity. More shrines to the unknown dead will have been erected while the fortunate who will have survived will wonder what the war was fought for.

Somewhere lie the answers to these questions. Somebody knows them or of them. Perhaps certain sources regard our citizens as children from whom some things should be kept secret. If this is so, then only a logical adult mind can appreciate the connotation of the terms "inalienable rights" of man.

Whatever these sources are, it is their duty to lay bare now the causes, the why's and wherefores, of the forces aforementioned. Then, perhaps, when all the cards are on the table, they might come to the conclusion that the principles they think we should defend aren't worth the cost.

We saved the world for Democracy once. Did we? Look at the world today.

—A. J. D'A.

Tomorrow

TOMORROW is conscription day.

For the first time in its history, America will know compulsory military training in time of peace....

We may be afraid, terribly afraid, that compulsory military training is wrong. But whether we favor it or not, we must realize that dis-unity and factionalism, now, would be fatal.

It is unfortunate that no one can know in advance whether or not it will prove wise—unfortunate but true. But if we can not have faith in the will of the majority, if we can not trust our "duly elected representatives", if, at a time like this, we have in our ranks nothing but friction and indecision, then democracy is indeed a failure.

If we would benefit from the advancement of modern civilization, we must accept its complexity. Although we should not lose our individuality, we can not take it upon ourselves to decide what is best for the nation as a whole without considering other people and how the other nations act.

In short we are Americans...and tomorrow is Conscription Day.

—A. J. D'A.

A Worthy Devotion

HERE at Villanova we have one of the headquarters of the Pious Union of the Mother of Good Counsel, but as yet only a pitiful number of students have heard of the organization which honors Our Blessed Lady, who demonstrated her divine powers when the picture of the Mother of Good Counsel was miraculously transplanted from Albania to the hands of the Augustinian Father in Genazzano, Italy, during the Fifth Century.

As Villanova young men, we should particularly pay devotion to the Mother of Good Counsel because she is the patroness of the Augustinian Order and the patroness of all students.

FACULTY COMMENTS

Mathematics—Its Relation To Other Sciences

By EMIL AMELOTTI

THE importance of mathematics in chemistry, physics and all branches of engineering is at present generally recognized. But while the above-mentioned branches of sciences in the twentieth century have developed into rational mathematical sciences, biology as a younger science, must still, on the whole, be classified as a purely empirical, descriptive one. Let us then attempt to justify the possibility for a mathematical biology, analogous in its methods to mathematical physics.

The natural start should be the fundamental living unit, the cell. Of course, one cannot attempt a mathematical description of a concrete cell, in all its complexity. We must start, in other words, with a highly idealized system which at first may even not have any counterpart in real nature. Immediately an objection is raised at this point, because such systems have no connection with reality, and, therefore, any conclusions drawn about such idealized systems cannot be applied to real ones.

Done in Physics

Yet if we go back to physics, this is exactly what has been, and always is, done. The physicist goes on studying mathematically, in detail, such nonreal things as "material points," "absolutely rigid bodies," "ideal fluids," and so on. There are no such things as these in nature. Yet the physicist not only studies them but applies his conclusions to real things. And behold! such an application leads to practical results—at least within certain limits. The reason being that within these limits the real things have common properties with the fictitious idealized ones! Only a superman could grasp mathematically at once all the complexity of a real thing. But we ordinary mortals must be more modest and be satisfied to approach reality asymptotically, by gradual approximation.

The complexity of any real cell is tremendous. No two cells are even perfectly alike. They vary both in details of fine structure and in gross features. Most cells have a nucleus; many of them have not. Some have vacuoles; others not. Some devide by the complex process of mitosis; others by budding, etc. So at this point we must look for a perfectly general definition of a cell. We find that it can be described as a small metabolizing system, which grows as a result of its metabolism. Metabolism is a property, or characteristic which is common to all cells.

Step by Step

Another very fundamental property of a cell, and, of course, common to all, is that of irritability. A physicomathematical study of these phenomena can be made. This then leads to a physicomathematical study of the theory of interaction of a very large number of irritable elements. This last study is a natural step toward the study, finally, of the physicomathematical theory of the central nervous system, including, as a natural consequence, a theory of a large number of neurologycal and psychological phenomena.

The above procedure is exactly in line with that of the chemist and of the modern physicist—beginning with the smallest constituents of matter and building up, gradually, to the huge structures of our universe. In short, "from a micro to a macro" study of natural phenomena.

Perfection? ?

No doubt, many things in the proposed system are still unsatisfactory, and will undoubtedly never reach a stage of perfection. But is there, or will there ever be, any science that can boast of perfection? The more we know, the more unknown things we discover.

Allow me to close my comments by quoting an old legend which tells of a wizard who was asked a very simple question by his wife and did not know the answer to it. His wife strongly reprimanded him for this, saying, "You are the counselor to our king, who pays you much money for your knowledge; are you not ashamed of not knowing such simple things?" "My dear," replied the wizard, "the king pays me only for what I know. If he were to pay me for what I do not know, all the treasures of his kingdom would not be sufficient for that purpose."

A proposal for abolition of the United States Naval Academy "as now constituted and administered" was voiced recently by Rep. Melvin J. Maas (R. Minn.). He attacked it on the grounds that it was inefficient, undemocratic and wasteful.

"It is," he said, "unfair to young men who win appointments, as well as to those who fail through lack of political influence. It should be a post-graduate school for young men who have already finished academic training and have some idea where they are going."

"When carried to extremes, such mental stunts as cross-word puzzles and question-and-answer superficiality have the effect of making a waste-basket of the human mind." Dr. Stoddard charged that present intelligence tests overlook originality and measure only items which have been overlearned and do not show what new solutions or original patterns a child or an adult can produce.

OPEN LETTER

The following letter was received by Mr. James Forkin, treasurer of the class of 1941, in accordance with the proceeds of the Junior Prom.

Dear Mr. Forkin:

This will acknowledge receipt of check of Class of 1941, in the amount of $250.00, the net proceeds of your Junior Prom, which is to be added to the Class of 1941 Scholarship Fund.

This check is being deposited today in the Bryn Mawr Trust Company, in accordance with the terms of the trust agreement already established with that Company.

In notifying you that the total amount in your Class Fund is now $565.00, I wish to express my appreciation, and to congratulate the members of the Class of 1941 on the success which has thus far marked their efforts to build up their Scholarship Fund.

Sincerely yours,

ARTIE SOMERS is walking around these days looking like a sick calf. It seems that Alice has become an alumna and hence left the verdant surroundings for good. Although he's managed a rendezvous regularly, the next won't come for another two weeks and poor Artie doesn't know what he'll do.

THE TYPEWRITER TALKS BACK:

"Hi'ya, Boss! Well, it looks as though the Soph Cotillion was the social event of the season. The crowd outdid any of previous years and congratulations are in order for all responsible. . . . Walking into the Gym you were fairly knocked off your feet with the bevy of beautiful talent present: Chestnut Hill, Rosemont and Immaculata bent over backwards to provide the necessary beauty. . . . I wonder why Cliff "Romeo" Randolph and Ernie "Slow-Motion" Klappenbach were "in absentia"? Could it be that all that masculine charm we hear tell of has gone for night? . .

Jimmy "Brain" Donovan was present with a little miss who appears to be taking a lot of his time. After a fling around the country maybe he's settled down???? . . . Who was the new singer with the band? More than one little girl glanced toward the bandstand when the tear-jerking words of "I'll Never Smile Again" floated through the loudspeakers. . . .

An item worth following-up is the company keeping of Jim Forkin who, now that a certain little lass from down Panhandle Way is no longer in attendance at one of the nearby schools, has taken to squiring an alluring bit of blonde femininity from the same institution, no less!!! . . . The "Gold Dust Twins" of last season, apparently going in opposite directions, have decided that maybe they ought to reconsider; ah, well, young love!

Admitting that social relations between Villanova and Bryn Mawr are not of the best, nevertheless they are not hostile; for this reason, a chance remark passed by several students of Bryn Mawr warrants attention.

It appears that recently in one of the "haunts" frequented by not only students from the surrounding colleges but also natives of the vicinity, there were several young ladies from Bryn Mawr among those present. As two of the natives (not Villanova students), passed them by in a rather rough manner the expression "typical of Villanova" was audibly heard.

We should like to take this opportunity to inform the young ladies of their error and to state that Villanova students irregardless of what they may think or say are and act the part of gentlemen. Let's hope that hereafter the age-old motto, "Think before you speak," will be adhered to.

Meet The Boys: Deacy On The Left, Haughton On The Right; Fediganites Take Our Student Spotlight

By JOHN P. FULLAM

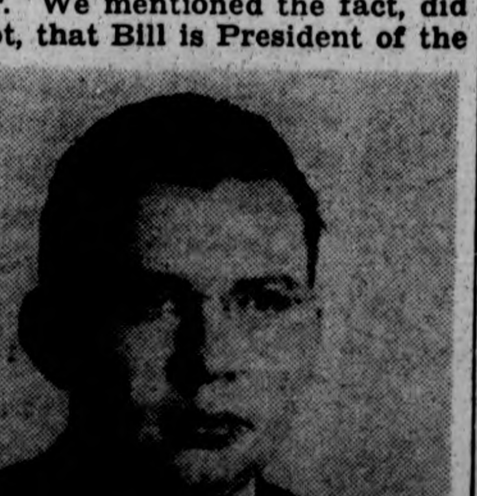
DEEPLY hidden in the mysterious caverns of Villanova's exclusive Fedigan Hall dwell two, by no means mysterious creatures, named William E. Deacy and James F. Haughton. They are, respectively, President of the Senior Class, and Assistant Sports Editor and columnist (please turn to page 7) of your favorite paper.

All good things begin at the beginning, including the life of William Deacy, which had its beginning on January 10, 1919, in Trenton, N. J. After taking a look around, young Mr. Deacy decided to stay, partly because he liked the place, and partly because of some intuition which told him that in later years, Trenton would need him to uphold it in Villanova "bull sessions."

Honor Graduate

He graduated with honors—and that's just a mild word for it, for he was also valedictorian — from Immaculate Conception High in Trenton. While there, he managed to become Student Council President, editor of the school paper, and manager of the basketball team.

All of which brings us up to the time when he enrolled in the chemical engineering school of our Alma Mater. We mentioned the fact, did we not, that Bill is President of the Senior Class? Well, there's more. He was Vice-President of his class in both his sophomore and his junior year. Bill was a member of the Orientation Committee in his Sophomore year, and he is repeating the performance this year.



"Chester Commuter"

His roommate, Eugene O'Brien, informs us in strictest confidence (while Deacy tries to shut him up) that Bill is a "Chester commuter." Significant, what?

Trenton's gift to Chester, is also a member of the Phi Kappa Pi and of the Chemical Engineering Society. He spend his summers working in the New Jersey Highway Laboratory, doing whatever it is that Chemical Engineers are supposed to do.

Kindly offering to stoop (though he couldn't stoop very far, since he was sprawled on a lower bunk) to the aid of the poor journalist, who was by this time somewhat bewildered by such nonchalant bandying-about of rather impressive titles, he said, "If that's not enough, some of 'the boys' can probably tell you plenty about me."

"But," interrupted roommate O'Brien, with what may easily have been a malicious gleam in his eye, "it wouldn't be fit to print!"

JAMES F. HAUGHTON was born June 22, 1918, in—of all places — Mantua, Wyoming! Early in his career he gave promise of an adventurous life, for by the time he was five or six months old he had travelled to Frackville, Pa., a mountain-top town in the heart of the coal regions. But many a future bright with promise fails to pay dividends, and he has made his home there ever since.

His journalistic prowess (again turn to page 7, but read it this time) has manifested itself in various ways. Besides his VILLANOVAN activities, he was Editor of the school paper at Frackville High, to which institution he owes his secondary education.

A Footballer Too

Although Jim himself admits that it's hard to believe, he played football in high school. He was, he says, not without pride, the smallest man on the team.

Of his boyhood days he says only this, that he threw stones at the neighbors' kids and at neighbors' windows. Jim considers this to be an essential part of every child's education.

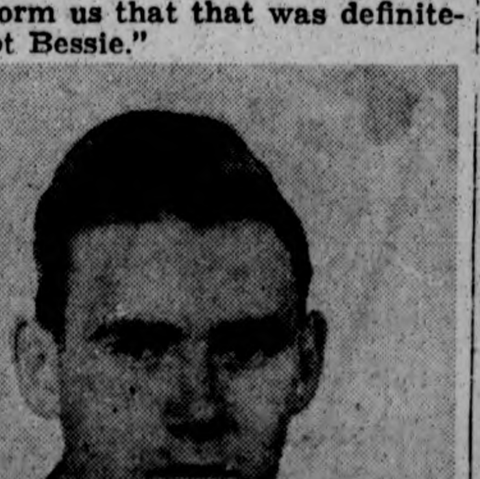
But to get back to his journalism: Jim spent the preceding summer on the staff of the Shenandoah Herald, where he took over the duties of anyone who was on vacation. In the course of his duties he, with several others, interviewed such celebrities as Ann Corio and Ramon Navarro. The former, he will have you know, was playing nearby in a strictly DRAMATIC role. Interesting, this newspaper business, isn't it?

Throughout his stay at Villanova, he acted as "foreign correspondent" for most of the Philadelphia newspapers, particularly the Bulletin and the Inquirer.

Versatility Personified

In addition to his journalistic activities, which, extensive as they are, can't seem to keep him busy, he has found time to dabble in such things as the Orientation Committee, Delta Pi Epsilon, the Sophomore Cotillion, the Junior Prom and the History Seminar.

His roommates include Ed Wagman, variously described as "Hans" and "Hitler's one-man promotion bureau"; his typewriter, Bessie; and the large picture of a very charming young lady about whom he would vouchsafe no more than to inform us that that was definitely "not Bessie."



Figuring, correctly, we think, that such reticence and modesty should have its reward, we pursued our inquiries no further. Even a newspaper-man is entitled to SOME privacy!

To The Girl Friend

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

Two eyes that twinkle and shine so bright
Two eyes that are my life and light;
Two lips so red made asthetically
Two lips that speak so tenderly;
Two cheeks that redden in great surprise
When I mention the beauty of her eyes.
Dearer than all worldly treasure
Price that no mind shall ever measure.
Oh, I could write up to the sky
Of good things that within you lie,
But words are things not infinite
And cannot tell things that from sight
Are hid — except from love's sweet eye
That sees the good hid from other eye.

Send-Off For Team Tomorrow Night

On Wednesday evening at 6:30, the football team will embark for Texas to meet the highly touted Baylor team. As has been the custom in past years the student body will gather in full force to give the team a rousing send-off.

The Student Council in full charge of details wishes the entire student body behind Mendel hall at 6:15 P. M. All Freshmen will attend attired in full regailia.

Father Handran will lead the band in the playing of Villanova tunes.

With all spirit aroused and feeling high, this rally promises to surpass last year's send-off to the Texas A. and M. game.

Music Programs Listed For Term

A review of Gilbert and Sullivan music by Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, head of the chemistry department, a description of the organ and a demonstration by Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., a guest trio from the Curtis Institute, and a complete version of the opera "La Boheme" will highlight the fall program of the Music Seminar, according to the schedule released by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the group, last Thursday.

Tomorrow night the group will discuss the "Concerto Form" again with Dr. Haenisch as commentator. The music will include Beethoven's "Emperor Concerto," Brahms' "Academic Overture" and Lizst's tone poem, "The Prelude."

The first meeting of the group last Wednesday night featured a sound motion picture on the life of Peter Ilich Tschaikowsky, the great Russian composer. With Dr. Haenisch as commentator, the group heard the composer's "March Slav," "Symphony No. 4 in F. Minor," "In a Three Horse Sleigh," "Sleeping Beauty Ballet," "Waltz of the Flowers," and "Waltz from the String Serenade."

The complete schedule of programs for the fall and winter of this year is as follows:

Oct. 16, "Concerto Form"; Beethoven's "Emperor Concerto."

Oct. 23, "Gilbert and Sullivan", featuring "S. S. Pinafore"; Dr. E. L. Haenisch.

Oct. 30, "The Organ and What It Can Do"; Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A.

Nov. 6, "Trio in Chamber Music"; Curtis Institute Trio.

Nov. 20, "A Concert"; by campus and guest artists.

Dec. 4, "La Boheme", complete version of the opera by Verdi Dr. E. L. Haenisch

Jan. 8, "All-Brahms Recorded Program"; Brahms Third Symphony.

"Engineer" To Have Six Picture Sections

Everything new from cover to cover. That's the boast of the first issue of the new pictorial Villanova "Engineer." Although there has been no advance information on the cover the staff promises that it will be quite eye-catching.

The magazine will consist of six major pictorial sections, the Contents Page, the Picture of the Month, Campus News, Off the Campus, Sports, and Editorials.

The Contents Page will have a composite picture of six of the college buildings.

Photographs of the opening mass, the new members of the faculty, the Soph Cotillion, and the members of the Freshman Class make up the Campus Section.

Renovations in the chapel and the dining hall are graphically shown in the Editorial.

The three remaining section contents have not yet been announced.

Math Society

Bernard Clark, junior engineer, was elected president of Mu Alpha Theta, Villanova's mathematical society, at a meeting held Monday, October 7. Other officers chosen were Malachy Boyle, vice-president; Herman Behnke, secretary; and George Baird, treasurer. All three are sophomores.

The election was originally scheduled to take place last spring, but had to be postponed because of unforeseen circumstances.

Mr. Emil Amelotti, who introduced the society at Villanova, will continue as moderator of the group during this year.

President Discusses College And The Crisis

Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, was the guest of honor and chief speaker at a dinner given by the Stamford, Conn. club of the Villanova Alumni Association on Wednesday evening, October 9.

Fr. Stanford's speech, entitled "College Education and the Crisis in Democracy," was delivered before a mixed group of state and city officials composed of graduates of Villanova, Temple, University of Pennsylvania and other colleges.

SENIOR PROOFS

Senior picture proofs will be returned by the photographer next week and will be distributed by William N. Way, photography editor of the Belle Air. Seniors are to make their choice before November 5, when Miss McCarthy of Zamsky studios will be here to take orders and receive the proofs.

Youth Must Be Served

Looks like the frat members and freshman guests got a head start on the faculty getting to the "eats" at the annual Phi Kappa Pi smoker on Monday, October 7.

ASME Smoker

Chairman Boudon and Committee Make Arrangements For Annual Affair

At a meeting of the Villanova chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers held at noon yesterday, Robert Boudon, senior engineer, was appointed chairman of a committee to arrange for the annual smoker given by the society. The committee is now engaged in sending out invitations for the affair to faculty members of nearby schools.

New members were received into the society during the course of the meeting. Mr. William J. Barber, moderator of the group, gave a brief introductory address.

Flying Club

Trips Planned to Nearby Airports For Those With Interest in Aviation

An important meeting of the Flying Club will be held Friday, October 18, in room 106, Mendel, at 1 P. M. All new members are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Trips are being planned to take the members to various airports around Philadelphia and vicinity and to show them some of the insides of aviation.

Membership in the Flying Club is not limited to those who have their private pilot's license but to any student who has an interest in aviation and has no connection with the C. A. A. course now being offered to the student body.

Enrollment

and the sophomores have an aggregate of 247 students. Registration figures also show that there are 561 resident students as compared with 413 non-residents.

Making up the total of 974 are men from 20 states and four foreign sectors. Pennsylvania, as usual, leads the list of states with 551 inhabitants enrolled; New Jersey and New York follow with 157 and 155 students, respectively, while the other states have the following totals.

Massachusetts, 31; Connecticut, 18; Delaware, 12; Illinois, 9; California and Maryland, 5 each; Ohio, 4; New Hampshire and Vermont, 3 apiece; and Oklahoma, 2.

One student each comes from the states of West Virginia, Rhode Island, Michigan, Missouri, Maine, Florida, and the District of Columbia.

Of the 13 foreign students, a sharp decline from the previous year, six are from Puerto Rico, three each from Cuba and South America, and one from Balboa, Canal Zone.

Other figures released by the registrar include a total of 1156 Summer School stdents, 45 of whom were training under the Civil Aeronautics Authority. Evening School and part-time students number upwards of 300 and 700, respectively, with registrations still being accepted.

MAGNETIC STORMS

At the next regular meeting of the Villanova branch of the A. I. E. E., a paper will be presented by Laurie Ventry, senior electrical engineer, on the subject of "Magnetic Storms."

Manahan Weds

The marriage of Miss Mary Inez McNeil of Plainfield, N. J., and Mr. J. Raymond Manahan, Villanova '39, of Dunellen, N. J., took place in St. Mary's Church, Plainfield, on Saturday, October 12.

Mrs. Manahan was a member of the class of 1939 at Georgian Court College while Mr. Manahan is now attending the Fordham University Law School.

Science Soph To Discuss Methods Of Pollination

A paper presented by Anthony Gigliotti, sophomore science man, on "The Various Methods of Pollination" on Wednesday, October 23, will formally begin the activities of the Research Seminar for the current year.

After some difficulty in arriving at a suitable time for meeting, it was decided last Wednesday that Simpson hall would be the most appropriate place, the time and date being set for Wednesdays at 4:15 P. M.

Organist To Render "Consolation" Tonight

Mendelssohn's "Consolation," a song without words, will be the feature of tonight's organ recital given by the Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., in the College Chapel. Possessing unusual quality, "Consolation" has been considered for years to be a model for song form.

Variations of the hymn, "Mother At Thy Feet Is Kneeling," will also be rendered, together with "The Priest's March," a rousing operatic excerpt from "Athelia," which is intended to give a lighter touch to the recital.

CLEAN SPEECH

Frankly stating that blasphemous outbursts are not worthy of the training received by Catholic college students, Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A., in his "'Neath the Spires" bulletin last week, advised students to cease ribald language at football games.

The article urged the conscientious student to persuade the small minority of offenders in this regard to employ clean language.

Chemists Told Of Synthetic Rubber

Charles Schafer, president of the local Chemical Society, spoke on the new forms of synthetic rubber which are now being produced commercially, at the group's regular biweekly meeting held yesterday. This was the first of a series of talks to be delivered by seniors in the society.

The Intercollegiate Student Chemist Convention Committee has been organized with Hyman Malkin, senior, as its chairman. The purpose of this committee is to make plans for the Intercollegiate Student Chemist's Convention which is to be held at Villanova next May.

A committee has been formed under the chairmanship of Karl Vogel, senior, to arrange for the program of future meetings and to plan trips to various industrial plants which have special interest to the chemist.

ASCE Elects

Maguire and Light to Head Group; Trip Will Be Made to Wayne Road Project

John Maguire and Joseph Light, both seniors, were elected president and vice-president, respectively, of the American Society of Civil Engineers at a meeting held Monday, October 7. Mr. John A. Oakey, moderator of the group, presided over the election.

During the meeting, a committee was appointed to arrange for a trip by the society to view the concrete road construction project in Wayne.

A group of the society members accompanied Mr. Oakey to a meeting at the Philadelphia Engineers Club where a talk on the Baton Rouge Bridge was delivered.

OUTSIDE SPEAKERS

First meeting of the Sociology Seminar was held last night at 7:30 P. M. in Simpson hall. At the suggestion of the moderator, Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., it was decided to have an outside speaker once a month, with an informal discussion following the address. The next meeting will be held Monday evening, October 21, at 7:30 P. M. in Simpson.

'Cats Leave For Texas Tomorrow

Florida Gators Fall Before Blue In Night Game

Eusko, Smith Star As Cats Unleash Power on Southern Eleven; Yankauskas Injured by Hard Tackle

By BOB FUNABASHI

Two men who partook of the West Coast's traditional battles of the past meet again Friday night at Shibe Park.

In a battle of psychologists, true of Rockne proteges, Villanova headed by "Clipper" Smith, clashed with Florida, tutored by Tom Lieb, and the 'Gators went down stubbornly, 28-0.

The Wildcats played a personal battle for the "Clipper" as they ripped off four touchdowns against their southern visitors. In short, it was a renewed rivalry between two coaches from the Coast, for "Clipper" in his days at Santa Clara pitted the "broncos" against the present Dixieland master who then held forth at Loyola.

Clad in green jerseys, Villanova, in their artistic repertoire, signified their preparedness for the Baylor game, with an intensive attack in the air. Nick Basca and Stan Eusko pitched the passes under the lights in experienced manner while the trio of Elk Murray, Steve Pritko and George Smith all aided in the Wildcat scoring.

High-geared and with a definite swing back to famous "Clipper" Smith opportunism, the 'Cats scored once in the first period, once in the second and twice in the last frame.

Florida's 'Gators proved no small fry with two gentlemen of great ability putting on their whole defensive and offensive show. With Lieb employing an unorthodox style, his stalwart guard "Mush" Battista and ace back, Tommy Harrison guaranteed that style of play. Battista, playing 50 minutes of heroic ball, proved a thorn in the side of Villanova's backfield, prying his way through the line and making tackle after tackle. Though the southerners never really threatened the Villanova goalline, Harrison personally kept his team in the running with his one-

Yearlings Prepare For Owl Encounter

Villanova's freshman football team after digesting their recent win over St. Benedict's are hungering for more victories and are pointing with enthusiasm to their future clash with the Temple frosh at the end of the month.

Following the Owl game, Doc Jacobs will take his yearlings to New York where they meet the N. Y. U. freshmen in another important tussle.

Temple will be met on Thursday night, Oct. 31 at the Owl's stadium, and the Violets on Nov. 15.

In his usual manner, Doc Jacobs refuses to give a very lengthy or electrifying story on their possible strength. With the injury list still mounting, his squad has been hampered by a lack of reserves. He admits, however, that they are an average eleven, needing the experience of actual game play.

In recent scrimmages Bill Sullivan, left end, has impressed the Doc with his good defensive play. Another frosh to bear watching is Dick Baraldi, who hails from St. Joseph's Prep.

Play "Baylor"

Continual scrimmages have marked the afternoon practices and for the past few days the frosh have displayed their defensive ability against the varsity, who are preparing to meet Baylor this Saturday. They have taken the roles of the Baylor squad in pass defense and also switched, using an aerial offense themselves.

The "Kittens" are a good defensive outfit as was witnessed in the game with St. Benedict's when they held the Jerseyites on the one yard line, to thrust off a possible score. For the remainder of the contest the Prep never threatened the Frosh and were kept in their own territory. This was the third consecutive year that the frosh triumphed over the Gray Bees.

YESTERDAY afternoon we had our usual Monday chat with Coach Clipper Smith at which the events of the previous weekend are discussed from an athletic viewpoint. Yesterday the usually worried Clipper seemed more immersed in gloom than ever before.

Perhaps it was due to the oncoming game with Baylor, a "must" affair if there ever was one. As Smith himself said, "We have been waiting fifty-two weeks to redeem ourselves in the eyes of the southwest. The Texas A. & M. affair last year pulled the Texans' estimate of us far down. We're just considered another 'small college up north' and if we lose this week we'll fall even lower in their estimation." Then again perhaps it was the events of the past weekend which depressed the "Clipper."

We feel that it was the latter that really brought on the depression for the events in question didn't make us feel any too chirpy either.

To begin with we get back on the old question of attendance at the 150-pound football games. Clipper was there, we were there, and so were about two hundred true Villanovans. Where were the rest? Clipper asked us about this. He wanted to know if there was anything going on in the afternoon which made it impossible for students to be at the game. We really felt plenty ashamed to have to sit back and admit that there was absolutely no excuse for ninety percent of those who were missing. They just don't seem to care.

As Smith said the 'Cats are in a topnotch league and they play good, interesting football. "What's the difference," asked the varsity mentor, "whether they win or lose as long as they are in there trying?

"The kids are a good team," he continued, "and will bear watching through the remainder of the season. They were unfortunate in losing Friday and really deserved to win. The touchdown from kickoff being called back after an 85 yard run was one of the toughest decisions I have ever seen a team lose. That, in my opinion, was the real turning point of the game, it meant the difference between a defeat and a tie or a possible victory, for the decision was disheartening enough to make any team lose."

"The infraction of the rules," Smith said, "was that one of the boys stepped about six inches behind the restraining line before the ball was kicked. The penalty should never have been called. It

Desmond Brings Racing Honors To Villanova With Speedboat

By SAM CANNING

Many are the different types of sports and sporting events in America but very few are more thrilling, more spectacular or more tense than a Yacht Club Regatta on a large bay, lake or river. The shore is crowded for miles by thousands of excited fans and the water boundary is lined with gayly decorated cruisers whose flags fly hautily in the breeze. Great is the speed, great are the thrills and great the rewards to be reaped by the successful.

These are the incentives which caused Frank Desmond of Short Hills, New Jersey, a member of the Centennial Class of '43, to take up outboard motor boat racing as a hobby when he was but 14 years old. Now after five years of active competition he has become the most outstanding amateur motor boat racer in America.

At present Frank holds the coveted Intercollegiate Championship which he wrested from the famous Gar Wood, Jr. of Tulsa University in Oklahoma. He is also the leading contender for the National Amateur High Point Score Trophy, the National Amateur Two Class Trophy for High Points, and the famous $5000 Colonel Green Trophy for Highest non-bonus Points. These cups have not been awarded since complete tabulations of all races are not completed but it is quite probable that Frank will win several of these honors.

Villanova Trophy

As reward for the Intercollegiate Title, Villanova College has received a beautiful gold trophy which stands four feet high. This Cup will remain at Villanova for one year after which Frank will have to defend it in order to keep it a Villanova. He also received a three foot silver trophy as his own reward.

"Des," as he is known on the campus, has been racing all summer representing Villanova, competing in about twenty races with his boat "Drastic Stuff."

Following his feat at the Intercollegiates, Frank moved on to Stone Harbor, Absecon and Ocean City, all in New Jersey, where he raced in six races in three days taking five out of six first places and winning the New Jersey State Title in both A and B. He then added the Adirondacks Championship in Class A and B and carried on to break a world's record behind Gar Wood who also broke the record seconds before Frank in the National Sweepstakes at Redbank, New Jersey, in Class B. in the Eastern Divisional Championships held on the Schuylkill River in Philadelphia, Desmond took second in Class A and B both.

National Championships

Moving into the biggest events in Motor racing he entered the National Invitation Championships at Worchester, Mass., where once more he battled it out with Gar Wood, many times National Champ,

BAYLOR — 4 DAYS

The above notice is hanging above the equipment room in the field house. In fact, it has been hanging there ever since Villanova's last game in Texas. Every day for the last year the number of days indicated by that notice has been decreased by one. The Wildcats have been watching that sign, slowly changing, gradually bringing closer that day on which they have a date with destiny.

This Saturday, in San Antonio, Villanova meets the Golden Bears of Baylor in one of the nation's outstanding intersectional games. The Wildcats are confident that this will be a more successful trip than was their last visit to the Lone Star State. Victorious in their first two games this year, Villanova meets its first real test.

Baylor has defeated Denver and North Texas State Teachers, while losing last Saturday in a stunning upset to Arkansas.

Promising Team

Not in the sixteen years under coach Morley Jennings have the Golden Bears from Waco had a more promising team. Strictly a dark horse in a conference which includes such powerful teams as Texas A. & M. and Texas Christian, Baylor needs only a good start on their schedule to become established as a contender for the title now held by the "Aggies."

Always at their best against the latter, the Bears stand a good chance of hurdling their biggest obstacle and coasting in to win the title. A decisive victory over Villanova might make that chance a probability. Baylor finished second last season with a record of four wins and two losses. The Bruins lost one game to a non-conference team, Nebraska.

Baylor will take the field Satur-

Princeton Downs Lightweight Club

A rugged Villanova lightweight eleven went down to a 19 to 7 defeat last Friday afternoon at the Wildcat Stadium at the hands of the Princeton Tigers, league champions of last year.

Fighting desperately but not having a chance to capitalize on breaks that came so frequent to the Tigers, the Wildcat 150's played a much better game, than the score indicated.

Young Tom Casper, last year's Varsity line man put a sturdy and potentially strong team on the field that sparkled with new faces, but held together by veterans Billy Nihill and Frank Lombardo.

Getting off to a flying start the Tigers on the fourth play of the game blocked a Villanova kick on the Blue and White 18 yard line, and two plays later sent Bill Eley sweeping around right end for the initial score. A pass for the extra point was nullified when the receiver caught the ball outside the end zone.

With the start of the third period Princeton with the aid of passes brought the ball to the Wildcat nine yard stripe and Eley racked up his second score of the day. Pete Rothermel converted.

After this score the Wildcats suddenly came to life again, when Sykes returned the kickoff 80 yards into the Tiger end zone. But a failure of a teammate to observe the 45 yard line rule erased the score off the board.

Failing to do anything on the ground the Blue lightweights again decided to travel via air lanes. The aerial attack brought them from their own thirty-five to the Orange six yard line. At this point O'Donnel took the ball on a cut back around his right tackle, and just as he was hit, flipped a beautiful lateral to Frank Lombardo, who scored standing up. Frank also added the extra point.

"Ripper" Collins, Reformed End, Digs Graves For "Skull Practice"

By FRED CLARK

February 22, 1918 was a day of double celebration in the Collins household up New England way for not only was it the birthday of our first President but also an heir was added to the Collins clan on that day.

Ed Collins hails from Lawrence, Massachusetts, and it was in that same town that Ed started the football career which has led him through four years of football under "Clipper" Smith here at Villanova and has earned him a starting berth at left guard on the Wildcat eleven. It might be more accurate to say that Ed earned that starting berth for himself, for his path to stardom was not exactly strewn with roses as we shall see later.

ED COLLINS . . . digs graves and holes in Lines

Lawrence Star

Ed, or "Ripper", as he is known to his pals, matriculated at Lawrence High and received state-wide recognition for his achievements on the gridiron there. In his Sophomore year, he was first-string left-end on the team that received the award of State Champions. Two years later, as a senior, Ed was elected captain of the team and also was chosen All-Scholastic end. Although he also took part in baseball and track while in high school, Ed claims that football is his first and only love (no offense meant to a certain Wayne lass whom Ed visits occasionally.)

Villanova rooters can thank the strong Lawrence Alumni Club for Ed's very welcome presence on the Wildcats' forward wall, since it was through their influence that Ed entered the Main Line College. Ed and Stan Stress, his perennial roommate, took over the two end positions on the Frosh team, but the following year "Clipper" Smith converted Ed from an end to a guard. "Clipper" had on hand a wealth of seasoned ends in Wysocki, Bukowski, Nowak, and Monaco, and reasoned that Collins would be more valuable to the team playing regularly at guard. The reasoning proved correct.

Although it was anything but a simple task to learn all the angles of his new position in such a short period of time, Ed stuck to the job and rewarded his coach's faith in him with his present brand of ball-playing.

Grave Digger! ! . . . . .

Last summer Ed kept himself in shape by digging graves in the Augustinian cemetery in Lawrence. He says this pastime afforded him plenty of skull practice for the present football season.

With no illusions or desires of entering the "play for pay" football ranks after he graduates from the Education School in June, Ed would welcome the opportunity of securing a combination coaching and teaching job or an assistant coach position at some small college where he can receive the experience so necessary for that profession.

When asked who was the best football player he ever played against, Ed unexpectedly named a Villanova lad—John Mellus. Ed was only a freshman when Mellus was in his senior year, but he still remembers the many jolting blocks and consequent bruises as a result of scrimmages with the varsity in general and Mellus in particular. Ed emphatically tabbed Kimbrough of Texas A. & M. as the greatest back he ever faced and picked Detroit as the year in and year out toughy of the Wildcat schedule.

Modest Lad

Ed is a very modest and unassuming lad and with the aid of roommate Stress we were forced to pry most of these facts from him but he did boast of one thing. His face beamed as he informed us that he was the only Irishman on the first string team last year.

Ed refutes the many rumors and reports to the effect that this year's squad lacks the "pepper" and spirit of Villanova teams of the past by saying that there is more spirit in our club this year than ever before.

Sure, and with a fine broth of a lad like Ed Collins in the starting lineup, how could any team be lacking in spirit.

only to once more lose a close race and take a second. By placing here Frank was entitled to race in the Presidents Cup Regatta in Washington where he took the Championship in Class B and took second place in Class A.

Frank's home is full of trophies, approximately fifty in number which he has accumulated in his five years. His first trophy was won at Saratoga Lake New York in 1936 at the age of 15. He also took second in the New York State Championship in this year.

Then in 1937 he started on his upward surge. Only a boy of 16 he won the Canadian National Championship in Class C and took second in Class A. He followed this with a third in the Interscholastics and a third in the Eastern Divisionals. Soon after Frank competed in the Albany to New York Marathon Race and it was here that he made his name famous in motor boat circles. The race covered 135 miles of rough riding even for professional men.

But this didn't bother the young champion. He drove the entire course and won the race being the first school boy to ever finish the 135 mile course and the first schoolboy to ever win the Intercollegiate and Interscholastic championships.

Interscholastics

In 1938 he copped the Interscholastics in Class A and the New Jersey State in Class A along with second in Class B. At Mt. Vernon "Des" took third in the Presidents Cup and took second in the New York States at Geneva, New York.

With the opening of the 1939 campaign this champion of champions performed a feat equalled only by the great men of racing, Gar Wood, Clint Ferguson and several others. He won three titles in the Interscholastics Championships winning first in Classes A, B, and C. The Adirondacks in Class A and the New Jersey State Titles then followed once more. His first Eastern Divisional first place crowns were won in this year at Redbank, New Jersey.

After this banner year Frank gained National recognition being rated ninth in National High Point Scoring for amateurs and was rated twenty-fourth in America. The New Jersey State High Point crown also fell before his feet at the end of 1939.

Now at the close of the 1940 campaign Frank Desmond stands as one of the most sensational motor boat racers in the country destined to soar to even greater heights and to bring greater glory to himself and to Villanova College.

Day-Hop Fives Open Court Season This Afternoon At 3:00 P. M. In Gym

Commerce Commuters Meet Mendel Days in Alumni Hall Gym; Others Open Tonight

The Intramural basketball schedule opens this afternoon when the two Day Student teams, C&F and Mendel, meet in the Alumni gym. This evening the two upper-class halls will battle each other and the two freshman halls will meet since Austin will play Fedigan and Alumni will take on Mendel. The afternoon game will start at 3 P. M. and the first evening game will start about 7:15.

Looking over the teams before the opening games, Austin looks to be the strongest. She boasts three of the five men who made the All-Intramural team last year. She also has four of the five leading scorers last year. Some of the Austin resources are: Dan Keating, Dick Martin, J. McFadden, G. McFadden, Jimmy Brown, and Dan King. They are all stars in their own right but the question is whether they can work together and form a strong team.

C&F should be stronger this year since they have the entire team back which captured the second half crown last year, besides possible fresh material. Fedigan is weaker this year than last because they lost practically their whole team by graduation, but every year Fedigan comes up with a strong team and this year will be no exception. Mendel Day Students should also be stronger this year since they too have practically their entire team back. They have Bob Depersio who was All-Intramural guard last year. Both Alumni and Mendel being freshmen halls, are unpredictable, but both Father Dunne and Father McQuade come up with fighting squads every year and the upper class halls and Day Student clubs have a hard struggle on their hands when they take on these freshmen.

Schedules for the first half have been printed and distributed around the different halls and buildings.

The Intramural Week:

Tuesday, October 15

C. & F. vs Mendel D. S.
Austin vs Fedigan
Alumni vs Mendel Res.

Thursday, October 17

C. & F. vs Austin
Fedigan vs Mendel Res.
Alumni vs Mendel D. S.

C. & F. games start at 3:00 P. M. Second game listed starts at 7:15 P. M., and third game immediately after completion of second.

was much too trivial an infraction to warrant such a vicious penalty."

Smith further discussed the lightweights and asked that he be permitted to make an appeal to every student at the college to support, and audibly encourage the lightweights in their future games. We see Clipper again next week and here's hoping that we can boast a 100% attendance at the Penn game Friday to be played at River Field.

—V—

Friday night saw another fault appearing in the students, or more probably in the cheerleaders. This was in the lack of cheering for opponents leaving the game through injuries. Clipper said that Villanova can never hope to be recognized as a leading college until its students show themselves to be "big." An injured foe deserves a rousing hand. What are these teams from all sections of the country to think of Villanova unless we show ourselves to have good will towards all our foes and prove ourselves "BIG" enough to let loose with spontaneous enthusiasm for their deeds?

If a football player can play sixty minutes of gruelling football the least a student can do is stand up and shout his lungs out for those sixty minutes. Student actions are 50% of a college's success. Let's show 100% improvement—there is certainly room for it.

Here and There

By Jim Haughton

EVER since this department did its undergraduate work on the old battery sets and then moved on to graduate study in the art of controlling a phonograph machine, we have sat in enjoyable amazement as dulcet-toned announcers fluently described such athletic engagements as fights, football games, etc. But mostly the latter.

We couldn't for the world figure out how these well informed gents could watch twenty-two men committing legal mayhem, toss a pigskin to and fro and at the same time keep track of each personally.

But now the cover has been lifted on the "inside" of radio coverage. It came about last Friday night when we were lucky enough to assist affable Byrum Saam, who handles all Villanova home games via the airlanes. We, as a "first nighter," were employed as spotter on the Villanova side of the ledger. Still a neophyte in this newspaper business, some enjoyable experiences have wended our way, but none as interesting as aiding in bringing the games to the fans huddled about their radios.

It was so interesting and valuable that you too might like to know the procedure, so here goes:

How It's Done

As you may know, the radio booth is high atop the Shibe Park third base line, just left of the press section. Here in this small booth sit five men who combine their talents to bring the fans the game. Saam sits in the lower row of the double row radio booth flanked by a "spotter" for each team. Directly behind them in the second row sit an engineer and announcer Lee Vines who takes care of the commercials.

Before each game Saam spends several days studying the opposing teams, especially the visitors. He pores over the many publicity releases and dope sheets to become thoroughly familiar with each man and his particular ability. Then he prepares a short pre-game story which covers past records, individual stars, specialty plays, etc. With this study he has complete knowledge of both teams and knows the personnel of both squads as well, or even better, than the cheering undergraduate.

Salient Facts

Set directly in front of each spotter is a board about 30 inches long and 18 inches high with eleven little metal card holders as will be found on apartment house doors. A card covering every member of the squad contains the salient facts about him. Take Sal Rosato, for instance: "Sal Rosato, 204 pounds, Williamsport, Pa., Sophomore, fullback." If the man has made his varsity letter that is also noted. These cards are arranged just as the team lines up, with seven linemen and four backs.

With these cards Byrum has everything at his fingertips. As the teams go into action the spotter begins his work. Say its Villanova's ball with Basca and Rosato back. The spotter put a finger on each of their names, then the ball goes to Nick and only his name is marked. As he moves downfield the other spotter picks out the defensive tacklers and Saam, with a turn of his head, has completely described the play.

Finger Job

If a pass is being thrown the offensive team's spotter points out the passer and then moves along to pick the receiver, marking the card with his finger. Thus this works on both sides, with the offensive spotter watching the runners and the defensive spotter detecting the tacklers. As a substitution is made the spotter picks out the new man's card, hands it to Byrum and it is then placed on the board.

Quartet Of Gridiron Opponents Emerge Unscathed From Week-End

By BILL EPIFANIO

While Villanova was beating the University of Florida Friday night four of the "Cats'" future foes—Detroit, Kansas, Manhattan, and Duquesne—were also victorious.

Baylor, down Texas-way where our "Cats" next venture, was defeated by the "Razorbacks" from Arkansas by the score of 12-6, in the most stunning upset of the week-end.

Gus Dorais "Titans" from Detroit slaughtered Michigan State Teachers by the lopsided score of 47-0.

Kansas Winner

Kansas came back strong after their defeat last week by defeating the Drake University gridders, 20-6.

Those Temple "Owls" put up a courageous battle against the super strength of Boston College at Fenway Park up in Boston, but lost out by the score of 33-20. The Owls, in losing, still showed that they pack plenty of "savvy" and are to be feared.

The "Jaspers" from Manhattan took Boston University into camp last Friday night by the score of 20-6. John Supulski tossed three touchdown passes for the New Yorkers.

Dukes Top Gamecocks

Duquesne had their hands full Friday night when they tackled South Carolina, the perennial "Season-Spoilers," but the Dukes finally emerged on the long end of a 27-20 score.

Auburn, and Mississippi State put up a great battle on Saturday when the tilt ended in a tie, 7-7.

Battered P. M. C., which helped Villanova open its season, dropped a decision to West Chester, 9-0, although outplaying the Teachers in every department.

This week's games for Villanova opponents are as follows:

DETROIT vs. MANHATTAN*
DUQUENSE vs. Mississippi
KANSAS vs. Nebraska
TEMPLE vs. Michigan State*
FLORIDA vs. Maryland
AUBURN vs. Southern Methodist
P. M. C. vs. Blue Ridge College*

Games marked * are Friday night, all others Saturday.

day without their triple-threat halfback, Jack Wilson, rated by many as All-American. Wilson suffered a punctured kidney in pre-season practice and is out for the rest of the campaign.

Witt Star

Offsetting to some degree the injury to Wilson is the presence in the backfield of Jimmie Witt, a consistent ground gainer last year and the team's leading scorer, and Milt Crain, a 200 pound battering fullback. At center is Bob Nelson, candidate for "All American" honors who kicks his team's extra points. Nelson is in his third year as a starter.

Baylor has elected no captain as yet. Later in the season one will be chosen.

Saturday's game promises to be a clean, hard fought battle. Neither side is going down without a terrific struggle. The Wildcats are aiming for a place in the nation's first ten. The Bears have their eyes on the Southwest Conference title, missing from Waco since 1924. One of these aims will be closer to reality Saturday night. This game will bear watching.

"Close-Line, Downfield Blocking Poorest In Five Years" — Smith

By M. J. "CLIPPER" SMITH
Varsity Football Coach

About the only laudable thing that I can say about our performance Friday night is that our pass defense has improved considerably over the previous week. Our play execution and all-around offensive work has not yet reached any degree of satisfaction.

The close-line and downfield blocking is still the worst in my five years here. Unless definite improvement is brought about we are going to run into trouble against Baylor. This is true also of the defensive lineplay, which was good in spots against Florida but very inferior to what we will need next Saturday.

From a report from the coach of Denver University I have learned that Baylor is a very tough outfit despite their defeat by Arkansas. That's a tough conference down there and it is very rare that a team in it goes undefeated. The Bears are still very definitely in the running for the title. They have many good, big men like Jack Russell, a six foot, three inch two hundred and twenty pound end who is just about tops in the southwest.

Added to this we must remember that Baylor will be on the rebound from the stunning Arkansas upset and will be twice as hard to deal with as before.

Among the individuals Friday night Eusko and George Smith stood out well in all-around play. Kasky played a steady game in all departments; however the center slot still has me worried due to the evident lack of suitable replacements.

Sal Rosato was doing well defensively against Florida but his offensive work has slipped a little. The fullback position is now another source of woe due to the injury to Pete Yankaukas. I really don't know where to find a suitable replacement. We were thinking of switching Bill Prohovich, but he is too valuable at tackle to change. Chaplar, Kupecki, or one of the others will probably be shifted to Pete's place.

Basca had a bit of misfortune early in the Florida game, which threw him off-center. Nick, I believe, was trying just a bit too hard to make everything just right, and in putting on too much pressure he fumbled a Florida punt. This often happens to an athlete when he tries to give too much.

Florida incidentally presented a well-organized and spirited squad, despite the score. Tom Lieb has worked wonders when you consider that he had no spring practice and that three of his first-stringers were out of the lineup against us.

Harrison at half, Ferguson at end, Battista at guard, and Hull at tackle all played marvelous football for the 'Gators.

All in all the only thing right Friday night was the score. Our play definitely was not pleasing to Vince and me. The next four games, Baylor, Detroit, Kansas, and Temple are going to require a greatly improved Villanova team.

We have plenty of work ahead of us before we can reach the peak necessary for this kind of competition.

Florida

man act. His kicks, passing, and running created a general disturbance all night.

Perhaps the finish was pleasant to some 23,000 fans, but all was not smiles with the "Clipper" as he saw Pete Yankauskas, regular fullback, being carried from the field with a torn ligament in his leg and also the recurrence of Nick Basca's injury of last fall.

Before Basca left, he threw a touchdown pass to Pritko and set up another with a long heave to Murray, who made a diving catch on the 1-yard line. From that point, Sal Rosato, employing his full weight, crashed through for a score. The Basca-Pritko score came in the second period when, after two threats were curbed, Pritko caught Nick's third pass for a score.

When Basca retired, Eusko, flashy soph back from Massachusetts, took over the reins at left halfback and proved his ability in a series of successful passing, kicking, and running plays. Just as the teams changed goals for the start of the last quarter, Eusko shot a bullet pass into the arms of George Smith, soph back, to score the third touchdown. This marked the climax of a sustained drive of 60 yards.

Later in the same frame, the 'Gators, who were forced back to their 10-yard line, attempted a lateral, but Pritko broke through and claimed possession of the ball over the goal, scoring touchdown number 4 for the night.

Reserve strength played a large part in Villanova's victory as the 'Cats rolled up eleven first downs good for 280 yards by rushing and passing. Outstanding line play proved the lubrication of the Wildcats scoring threats. Ed Korisky played all-around at his center position while Stenn and Piscione put an abrupt stop to any large gains by Florida.

Engineer Discovers Technique To Cure Homework Troubles

By BILL GUYTON

WELL, another day and with it comes more work to be done. I just seem to go to class to get loaded up with these engineering assignments. Chem, math and descrip, not to forget that composition for English, must be done for tomorrow.

Now to get down to these chemistry problems. All about atoms and such things. These things are so small that you can't see them; why should we waste time studying them? Well, since chemistry is on my schedule and this is what they make us do, I guess I better do the work or I might flunk.

Do It Later

Gee, what if I did flunk? What would the folks back home say? I bet that Dorothy would still think just as much of me even if I did flunk chem. Boy, just you wait until I go home. Guess I'll let this chem go and try to get these problems from someone else.

This business of having to write a composition for English is all the bunk. I'm going to be an engineer. What do I need to study literature and write all these compositions for? Why, the priest who teaches us descrip even said that "descrip is the language of the engineer." All I need to do when I get a job is to draw up the plans and they'll make the object just the way I want it.

Now That's the Stuff

Now what'll I write that composition about? I know, I'll write about why I'm going to be an engineer. Because it's a real he-man's job, nothing sissyfied about it. You get out and boss a big job of construction and what you say goes. When the job is finished, you can tell all the people that you planned and built it. And think of the money engineers make. Why, I know a fellow back home who's an engineer and he drives a swell car and has lots of money. That will about take care of the English for today.

Now for the math. I did swell in it back in high school, so this will be easy for me. Yes, let's see what I have to do for tomorrow — ten problems. Looks simple; bet I can get done in ten minutes flat. Say, this first problem is a tough one. I'll let it go until the last then come back to it.

A Little Help

Hmm, the rest of the assignment is no easier. "Say, Bill, have you the problems for math? . . . Why not? . . . Oh, come on, you can write that letter later, let's get this math over with. All right, I'll wait and we'll do them together later."

This descrip is going to be fun. Just drawing lines and playing around. Now to get this work sheet over with. Let's see "Draw the projection of a line in the first, second, and third quadrants running down, back, and to the right." Now in the first quadrant the vertical projection, or it is the horizontal? appears above the ground line. No, I guess I shouldn't do it that way. But then just which way is the horizontal plane rotated —up or down?

Guess this stuff will have to wait. Glenn Miller's due to come on now, and I can't miss him. Anyway, I deserve a rest. These tough engineering assignments will kill me yet!

Debaters Lay Plans For Permanent Office

Thomas J. Moore, chairman of Beta Gamma debating society, has announced that that group will procure a permanent office and proper equipment if adequate response is received to an appeal issued last year.

Beta Gamma is depending on the members of last year's freshman debating team to join its ranks, since many members have been lost by graduation. Thomas J. Moore and Robert J. McIntyre are the only members of last year's team who are available this year.

SYMPATHY NOTE

The VILLANOVAN wishes to express its sincere condolences to Rev. John H. Crawford, O. S. A., on the death of his father, Mr. Charles Crawford. Funeral services were held this morning at ten o'clock in St. Augustine's Church in Lawrence, Mass.

Likewise sympathies are tendered Rev. Joseph W. Paquette, formerly of the faculty, upon the demise of his father. The funeral was last week.

Rental Library Acquires Twenty New, Varied Books

Periodicals donated by members of the college faculty, administration, and friends of Villanova have been increasing annually. Due to these regular contributions the library now has a fine collection of magazines, journals, reviews, and bulletins.

Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., leads the list of contributors. The six different periodicals which he diverse sub-topics. Language pubdonates deal with sociology and its lications are submitted by the Revs. Lorenzo Lozano, O.S.A., and John F. Bresnahan, O.S.A., and Dr. Edward McGrath.

Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O.S.A., donates regularly four magazines on music, a subject with which he is directly connected through the Glee Club and the college band.

Catholic periodicals are donated by the Revs. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of the college, and Daniel P. Falvey, librarian, O.S.A., and Mr. Joseph Schlotterback. The popular weeklies, "Colliers" and the "Saturday Evening Post," are gifts of Rev. Edward F. Jenkins, O.S.A.

Mr. Harry S. Bueche contributes "Bell Telephone," which treats of electrical communication, and "Fortune." Mr. John Lawson donates two business journals, and the Rev. John F. Hammond, O.S.A., the "Journal of the Franklin Institute." The Revs. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., and John F. Crawford, O.S.A., present the library with bulletins on the Philadelphia Teachers association and "Science News Letters" respectively.

Arrangements will be made for those frosh who want dates from Rosemont for the dance.

There will be a meeting of the entire fraternity today at 1 P. M. in room 210 Mendel hall, to make other final arrangements for the dance.

The dance, an informal one, will be held in the Villanova College Field House from 9 to 1 on the above mentioned date; subscription to the dance is $1.50.

Dalina To Arrange Inter-Frat Tourney

Daniel Dalina, senior engineer, was appointed to arrange for the annual inter-fraternity basketball tournament at a meeting of Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity, held last Friday. Plans were also discussed for inter-frat bowling and for the annual "Owl Hop" of November 22.

James Flood was appointed chairman of the program committee and will be assisted by N. Van Hook, F. Bergner, J. Regan, and C. Pullen. The programs to be presented at the meetings this year will concentrate more on cultural and artistic subjects than on technical ones and will be held in Simpson hall.

It was also announced that the date of the annual initiation and banquet has been changed from Thursday, Feb. 13, to Monday, Feb. 10.

Villanova Priests, Seniors Assist At Rosemont Ceremony

Six seniors of the Villanova Sanctuary Society assisted at the dedication ceremonies for the building of a new chapel at Rosemont College on Sunday, October 13, at 3:30 P. M.

Before a fairly large-sized crowd of interested onlookers, the corner stone of the new chapel was laid, while His Eminence D. Cardinal Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia, gave his blessing. Immediately following this, a sermon was delivered by Rev. Henry A. Caffrey, Prior of the Villanova Monastery.

Ceremonies were concluded with Solemn Benediction given by Fr. Caffrey, assisted by Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., and Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., both of the Villanova faculty.

The seniors who assisted at these rites were James Collins, Joseph Clarken, John McGovern, James Jernee, James Brady, and James Forkin, all senior members of the society under the moderation of Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A.

Spanish Club Elects Scornavacchi President

Last Wednesday evening at the initial meeting of the Spanish Club, the officers elected at the club's annual banquet last June officially assumed office. These leaders, Joseph Scornacchi, president; Steve Pritko, vice-president; Arseuio Martinez, treasurer, and James Walsh, secretary, will retain their positions until the election next June.

Plans for the coming year will be outlined at the meeting tomorrow evening at 7:30 in room 110 Mendel.

Jonik's '40 Annual Wins Top Honors

Judges Include Superlative Praise of Various Features of Belle Air in Scorebook

"All-American" rating, highest honors, were awarded to the 1940 Belle Air, college yearbook, according to a recent release of the Associated Collegiate Press. This makes the third consecutive year that the publication has attained "All-American" ranking. Adding this to the "All-Catholic" honors received two weeks ago, it makes a clean sweep for the annual in both the contests it entered.

In the critical service rendered by the ACP, unusually complimentary remarks were made. The school section was very well received and, to quote Fred Kildow, representative of the ACP, "practically a model." Captions throughout the book were acknowledged to be outstanding.

He's All-American

EDWARD L. JONIK, '40

The sport section was one of the high spots of the book and lavish praise was heaped upon it; to quote the critic, "it's the best I've ever seen in any college annual." The pictures were labeled "magnificent." The section devoted to intra-mural sports was acknowledged to be "phenomenal." These and other complimentary remarks by the critic enabled the sport section of the bok to receive the ranking of superior.

The comments on the section devoted to the making of a VILLANOVAN brought such praise from the critic that he was left practically gasping for breath and with the comment, "'Life' never did anything better."

President Begins Alumni Club Tour

The Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, made the initial visit in his annual tour of the different alumni clubs of the country when he attended a dinner held by the Philadelphia Club at the Penn Athletic Club, on Oct. 17.

Following the dinner, which was also attended by the officers of the Board of Governors of the Philadelphia Club, Fr. Stanford visited the Philopatrian Club.

On Saturday morning, October 19, Fr. Stanford was present at the inauguration of Felix Morley as President of Haverford College. Mr. Morley is a graduate of Haverford and also the former editor of the Washington "Post."

Fr. Stanford will act as official representative of the Association of American Colleges at the investiture services for Swarthmore's new President on Saturday, October 26.

A partial list of the alumni clubs that the President will visit during the course of the year has already been arranged.

He will attend a meeting of the Pittsburgh Club on Thursday, October 24; the Atlantic City Club at the Seaside Hotel on October 30; the Washington and Baltimore Clubs, at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, on November 6; the Richmond, Virginia, Club at the John Marshall Hotel on November 7; the Springfield, Mass., Club on November 14; the York, Pa., Club at the Yorktown Hotel on November 18; the Rochester, N. Y., Club on November 25; the Trenton, N. J., Club on December 4.

Chem Society Head Appoints Men to Arrange Student Convention and Plant Trips

Raymond Vener, president of the Villanova Chemical Society, has completed the appointment of the two committees that will assist him during the year.

The Intercollegiate Student Chemist's Convention Committee consists of Hyman Malkin, chairman; Joseph Norton; James Earley; Joseph Kirchner; Joseph Schlotterback; and James Donnelly. This committee will arrange all matters concerning the Intercollegiate Student Chemists' Convention to be held here this June.

Karl Vogel was named chairman of the Plant Trip Committee. Assisting him will be: Joseph Van Hook; Bernard Clarke; George Gabuzda; Eugene Burke; and Robert Koob. The society's plant trips will be scheduled and arranged by this committee.

Hello Titan!

Band Plans Intricate Maneuvers, Time-Telling Formation at Game Sunday

Continuing with the intricate maneuvers which characterize the Villanova band, an ambitious program will be presented this Sunday afternoon at the Detroit game.

As usual the band will march onto the field before the beginning of the game but when the flag bearers leave the band will remain and spell out "Hello"; breaking formation they will then march into the letters "Titan."

Finally the band will play the national anthem in regular formation.

During the half the band members will march down the field, counter march, and go into a formation representing a grandfather's clock. The numbers will be held by the members of the band and the correct time will be shown. A line of men representing the pendulum will march back and forth.

Once again breaking formation, the band will march into a "D" and inside the "D" the letter "U" will be formed in tribute to Detroit University.

The band will then go into regular formation, counter march into a "V," and proceed to the Villanova side in the "V" formation where they will play the Alma Mater.

Epsilon Phi Theta Frat, Seeks Change in Plans

Epsilon Phi Theta, arts fraternity, has made a slight moderation in the plans for its annual initiation. Original plans have not as yet been approved, due to Fr. Albers' absence from the campus, and so a change might be made. A postponement of the initiation date is sought, but this date has not as yet been definitely decided upon either.

Eugene Eichman Becomes Mendel Bulletin Leader

In a release yesterday from the office of the School of Science it was announced that Eugene Eichman, senior science man, has been appointed chairman of the Mendel Bulletin, School of Science quarterly.

Eichman was selected from a long list of possibilities after careful consideration. He has been active on the Mendel Bulletin staff in previous years and is one of the class leaders.

He's Bulletin Chairman

EUGENE J. EICHMAN

The position of Photography Editor has been awarded to Armand Ciatteo, junior science man. Ciatteo has done the majority of the photography for the Bulletin in the past two years. He is also a member of the Kappa Gamma Sigma Society and the Research Seminar.

The other men named to the board of editors are Theodore Krause, Joseph Camarda, Rapheal DeHoratius, and Harry Goodman, senior science men, Eugene Nelson, junior science man, Joseph M. Gambescia, sophomore science student, and Anthony Gigliotti, a senior.

The Mendel Bulletin this year will consist of several sections. The first will include a series of major articles. The second, the "Junior Scientist" section, will contain several articles fashioned to catch the interest of the neophytes in the

Oh! Where, Oh! Where Are Our Wandering Oaks & Ivy?

By JOHN P. FULLAM

IT has always been the policy of your favorite paper to champion any worthy cause, no matter what. Well, this week it's horticulture.

Did you, as a Villanova student, ever wonder what happened to the trees, ivy, and whatnot planted by past Junior classes during former Junior Weeks? Were you ever solicitous of their welfare?

Well, your not-so-humble correspondent was — to the extent of traipsing around hour after hour, peering into corners, acting like a detective and looking, we are afraid, like a defective.

And believe it or not, we got results. Some of the "flora junioralis" are still living!

For instance, the lawn in front of St. Rita's hall boasts the tree and ivy planted last spring by the present seniors.

Then there's the tree which the class of 1940 planted near the Grotto, and the ivy which the same class presented to Father Bartley for the decoration of the Commerce and Finance Building.

'38's Still Hardy

1938's tree, if you'll pardon the familiarity, still flourishes at the rear of the Commerce and Finance Building, while the ivy of that class graces the west wing of Austin hall.

Deep mystery shrouds the whereabouts of the pin oak planted by the class of '36 near the employees quarters. At the present time there is a pin oak tree in approximately the same location, but—and here's the mystery — it's a rather large pin oak tree. The question is, did the class of '36 discover a secret formula to make the tree grow, or did somebody spirit it away in exchange for a larged but non-genuine substitute?

Fun To Be Fooled

We could, we suppose, have found the answer by consulting the proper authorities, but we thought that the mystery was much more interesting.

1936's ivy still spreads its verdure over the walls of the Commerce and Finance Building, as does that of the Class of '35 over the Monastery.

Well, that should be enough to convince you that the art of the simple rustic has not entirely disappeared, even in these sophisticated surroundings.

P. S.—We won't itemize the ones that died.

Rosemont

Songstresses Join With Choral Society in Practice for Annual December Recital

Preliminary practices having been completed for the combined recital to be given in December, the Choral Society will begin practices with the Rosemont group next week.

Tryouts will be held tonight to select a group of six who, together with nine girls, will render special numbers. Quartet tryouts will also be held to replace Joseph J. York, tenor, and Joseph Cavanaugh, bass, who graduated last term.

The program for the recital embracing many modes and types of music includes such light classics as "Invictus" and "Mountains," a Palestrina arrangement of "Adoremus Te," and a lively arrangement of the "Galway Piper," an Irish folk song.

PKP Inaugurates Varied Meetings

"Melody in Classical Music" featured the first of a series of a new type of meeting inaugurated yesterday by the Phi Kappa Pi, the engineering fraternity. Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, frequent lecturer on classical music at the Music Seminar, pointed out by means of comparing the different records that the themes of many modern and popular pieces are taken from symphony compositions.

Dr. Haenisch dwelt a little on the makeup of a symphony, explaining the different themes and playing them on the piano so that they would be easier to pick out in the music. He chose Hayden's "Surprise Symphony," and analyzed the second movement in detail. This second movement is the one that contains the "surprise."

The initial meeting was held yesterday morning at 11:40 in Simpson hall and was attended by a great number of engineering students. The purpose of these new meetings is to deviate from the technical side of the engineers' work and concentrate on some essential cultural and artistic training.

Raymond E. Vener, President of the fraternity, expressed his belief that "these meetings will help to give to the engineer that well-rounded training so essential to technicians of this sort. These meetings," he continues," are more or less an experiment on our part and, if they are as well received as they have been, the program will be extended to meet the demands. We appreciate the whole-hearted support that the faculty has given us."

James Flood, senior engineer, is the chairman in charge of these new meetings and is assisted by J. Van Hook, F. Bergner, J. Regan, C. Pullen, H. Malkin. Joseph Norton and John Maguire, co-chairmen of the frat's "Owl Hop," have begun plans for the annual dance. Daniel Dalina has the schedules drawn up and the P. K. P. basketball tourney will get under way shortly.

Lab Featured

Several stories concerning the Marine Biological Laboratory, located in Wood's Hole, Mass., will be featured in this year's issues of the Mendel Bulletin, according to the Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., moderator. A number of Villanova students are already working in the laboratory under the direction of the Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A.

This year it is expected that the photographs which illustrate the points of the articles will be of an exceptionally high calibre. In the Bulletin the latest advances which are made by science are treated and stories on the newest scientific discoveries are given to the student.

"Steel" Depicted

"Steel," a sound motion picture narrated by Edwin C. Hill, will be viewed by the local chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers when it holds its next meeting on Monday, October 28, at 11:40 A. M. in Simpson hall.

All members are requested by Frederick A. Bergner, president, to come to the meeting prepared to give several suggestions for the inauguration of an interesting program for this year.

Donavan Is Pres. Of Belle Masque

Dramatic Society Begins Reorganization; Constitution Is Formed, Discussed

Extensive reorganization of the Belle Masque dramatic society commenced last Thursday afternoon when director Anthony J. Frayne expressed his hopes that an active social and dramatic club could be formed and the members decided to unite in a concrete group.

Limited membership and minimum dues are to be established. At present the members consist of those who have participated in productions of the previous years. Probationary members are welcomed and, upon their performance in a play, will be voted an active membership in the club.

He's Dramatic Prexy

JAMES F. DONOVAN

It was unanimously agreed that Mr. Frayne be accorded the privilege of nominating the officers for the coming year and, after due consideration, he decided upon them. James Donovan, senior arts man, was named to the presidency; John McGovern, senior commerce student, vice-president; John Burke, junior arts, recording secretary; Joseph McCabe, junior commerce, corresponding secretary; Robert Dooley, junior commerce, treasurer.

Robert J. McIntyre, junior commerce, was made assistant treasurer; Francis Buckley, junior commerce, sergeant-at-arms; David Reardon, junior commerce, publicity director, and Neil O'Mahoney, commerce sophomore, historian. John T. Gallagher was named business manager.

Following this election, president Donovan read the prospective constitution. After a slight revision, it will be voted on and probably approved at the next meeting.

To conclude the affairs, Joseph McCabe, Andrew Melton, Francis Buckley, John McGovern, Robert McIntyre, and James Donovan were named to direct the one-act plays to be produced in the latter part of November as part of the "Dramateurs Reception." Tryouts for parts took place following the conclave.

Student Pilots Begin Course at Airport

Past and present students of Villanova who are participating in the Civil Aeronautics Authority Private Pilot Training Program started the first part of their training program last week at the Main Line Airport at Paoli.

Under the direction of an experienced pilot-instructor, most of the students had their first flights on Wednesday, October 16. Many have already a total of one hour in the air.

The second part of the training which will be the ground school instruction on the mechanics of flight, navigation, meterology, and the civil air regulations, will begin during the next week under the supervision of Mr. William G. Driscoll, assistant professor of mathematics and physics at the college.

Shades of Teddy

"HI, Sarge!"
"We'll have to learn the goose-step now!"

. . . Yes, it's easy to joke about conscription, now. It was funny to "the boys" in 1917 too—before they went over. Those who came back were not laughing—those few who came back.

Things are different now — but how long will they remain that way? Just how far are we from entering another European war?

Past history?—By no means. When we study the strangely zig-zag course of England's affections in the past—through the Franco-Prussian War, the Boer War, the first World War, the Battle of Oran—we realize that the British navy will defend first and foremost the British Empire. If democracy and some of the rest of the world happen to be on the same side, so much the better.

But even if the help of the British navy were absolutely essential to us, even if we could be certain that such help was ours for the asking—still, it would be difficult to find moral justification for war purely in terms of economic advantage.

No, as Theodore Roosevelt said, we had better "speak softly but carry a big stick."

Conscription is an accomplished fact. Let us be sure that it fulfills its intended purpose, and that purpose only. We Americans accept it as a training for our young men, and as a formal notice to other nations that we will not readily be caught napping. As an agent of war hysteria, as a means of putting a figurative chip on our shoulder, we reject it outright.

We can still remember 1918.

Here Are Facts

THE realization that America is rapidly destroying herself and her people is ruthlessly pressed upon us via the citations in the census returns of 1940. Terrifying in its implications, the survey reveals that the rate of America's population growth during the past decade sank to the lowest point in the history of the nation.

The figures sadly narrate the destructive effects of birth control. This murderous weapon employed by the "modern" age to allay creation and stifle propagation is responsible for the mere seven per cent increase in the rate of individual growth — less than half the percentage registered in any previous ten-year period.

The city of New York alone felt the loss of 29,000 children in the elementary grades from September, 1939, to the same month in 1940. There were in all 136,529 fewer children in the Catholic grade schools in 1938 than in 1930. When the 1940 figure is available it is quite probable that the count will show for the first time in many years less than 2,000,000 children in Catholic schools. In the case of the public schools there has been a drop of fully a million children since 1930.

Calculations of two government statisticians show the contrast between future urban and country population prospects. If present birth rates remain unchanged, and it is more likely they will continue to decline, their survey indicates that a hundred years hence 1000 people in the rural regions will have six times as many offspring as 1000 city people.

This revelation is of utmost importance to us. The significance of the fact is more striking when we realize that approximately 80 per cent of the Catholics of the United States live in our larger cities, where the birth rate is unusually low. The conclusion of the study was that, while the Catholic birth rate was still higher than that of the remainder of the population, it was actually declining more rapidly than that of other groups in the territory.

The downfall of France was largely due to the same curse. America can draw a lesson from the plight of France today. It should show us the drastic end wrought from such an insidious crime.

Black Is White

MAYBE we are wrong! We still believe in the logician's law of contradictories. A thing cannot be itself and its opposite at the same time, but President Roosevelt evidently thinks so.

The fundamental concepts which aided in the formation of this government were Christian in toto; the Constitution itself is as perfect a Christian document as has been formulated by the leaders of any nation at any time. No one will deny then that to preserve itself, America must first preserve Christianity.

Yet last Tuesday, President Roosevelt clearly indicated that he considers Communistic Russia a friendly Power, whose interests do not conflict with our own, when, by using the powers granted him by the Faddis Bill, he said that Russia would now receive all her orders for materials necessary for the manufacture of munitions except those which experts decided the United States needed for its own defense industries.

So—we, a Christian nation, decide to help Russia, the avowed enemy of all religion, build a war armada!

It would do well for Mr. Roosevelt to ponder upon this when he again insists that we aid the cause of Democracy in Europe because Democracy is the last stand for Christianity. If he is sincere in this conviction, then why does he help fortify a nation openly inimical to Christian principles?

FACULTY COMMENTS

Three Simple Questions—One Complex Answer

By DR. HAROLD F. HARTMAN

IN this abbreviated article we are exercising the liberty of suggesting three simple questions. In spite of the simplicity of these questions their implications are essentially complex. That is the reason why an attempt will be made to answer but one. Briefly stated, these questions present themselves as follows:

1. What is the present condition of the modern world?

2. Where is this present condition going to lead us?

3. What in the past contributed to this present condition?

The first of these questions, "What is the present condition of the modern world?" may be answered by every man. We mean, of course, every man who is living today and enjoying the "benefits" of modern civilization may answer this question to his own satisfaction. It is basically true that every man is his own historian. We all know it to be an astounding fact of contemporary civilization that the world is in a chaotic condition. One needs to be possessed with no abundance of meticulous knowledge to reach that sad conclusion.

Man No Prophet

The second of these questions, "Where is this present condition going to lead us?" can be answered by no man. We assume that no man is a prophet unto himself. No man is possessed with those divine propensities which gives him a license to make reasonable predictions concerning future happenings. Men provoke derision when their "reasonable" predictions as to future happenings do not accord with factual knowledge. Many individuals are still complaining of an unhappy prediction, "Prosperity is just around the corner."

We now come to the third of these simple questions, "What in the past contributed to this present condition?" This is the question which we will proceed to answer. Some men are inclined to philosophize concerning basic causes. This is particularly true of the college professor. As a rule if he engages in this bit of activity, invoking the knowledge of his own particular field of study, he will do no real harm. Accordingly, we will attempt to answer this simple question, only as a student of political affairs. Naturally, our answer will be qualified.

Answer Complex

The answer is not as simple as the question which suggests it. In the past, when it was mandatory for statesmen to make important decisions and commence the enforcement of fundamental policies of government, the world lacked statesmen. These deplorable conditions existing in the world of today would not be so accentuated if the world of yesterday possessed the contributions of practical statesmen, let us say since the depressing days of 1919.

In evaluating statesmanship we are quite frequently oblivious of the prerequisites of statesmanship. We often confuse extraneous qualities with the real essentials of statesmanship. The modern world, since 1919, was capably destitute of practical statesman. This is a deplorable fact but it must be recognized since individuals entrusted with the destinies of nations were not possessed with these fundamental essentials. Permit the mentioning of a few. Allow a theoretical explanation of this important subject.

Must Be Practical

An individual who qualifies as a meritorious statesman must be at all times practical. It is not sufficient to publicize the property of moral principles in political activity; these must be put into practical operation. The glorification of the public interest must be followed by its promotion and protection. A profound knowledge of political affairs is worthless unless this knowledge is used to understand the really present needs of the public. The real statesman will immediately determine upon an aggressive policy which will be enforced at all times to serve these needs. No personal or partisan considerations may frustrate this determination. No selfiish ambitions may dictate a fictitious course.

In conclusion, men of this generation who are inclined to violate the ethics of true statesmanship, heed this bit of advice. War is a terrible thing. A world war at periodical intervals of twenty years seems to be an ingredient of contemporary civilization. Modern warfare, although it is something essentially bad, has produced one good. The mistakes of practical statesmanship are brought home. The destructive tendencies are seen in their realities by these men, some of whom are actually responsible for them. No longer is the soldier on some distant battlefield their only contact. Maybe this development may be a blessing in disguise for future generations. That should be every man's hope and prayer.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by the Barnes Institute in nearby Merion to the effect that the famous (the better word might be infamous), self-styled philosopher, Bertrand Russel will assume duties there in January. Mr. Russel, it will be remembered, was ousted by the taxpayers of New York City last year when that college attempted to "establish a chair of indency" there by appointing Russel to the faculty.

Antagonism toward Russel is nothing new in his life. Ever since he began fancying himself an authority on morality and started preaching moral doctrines diametrically opposed to everything Christian he has aroused the enmity of virtue-loving citizens.

As Dr. Barnes, head of the foundation, has stated, "Mr. Russel is one of the most distinguished scholars of our age." Yes, he is distinguished by reason of his attempts to do away with all that Christian citizens hold dear with regard to the sanctity of marriage and the home.

It will also be remembered that Mr. Russel spent six months in the cooler for making disparaging remarks about American troops quartered in England during the last war. Now he's in America earning his living. Whoever said "You can fool some of the people all of the time" knew what he was talking about.

Did You Fall, Too?

"Hey, look out the window; it's snowing!" yelled an amazed Villanovan last Saturday afternoon.

Although a few who are always good targets for April Fool jokes were suckers enough to fall for the gag and follow his advice, we just sat at our little old desk and laughed and laughed. For this is America, where it doesn't snow on October 19.

Then the ones who fell for the gag tried to work on us. "Look!" they shouted in tones that would have made anyone with a weak will sneak a side-glance through the panes, "it's really falling pretty hard."

We gave them the old ha-ha and kidded along with them. They told us that it was a light snow that was turning into a wet snow that stuck to everything except the streets.

Getting tired of this banter, we decided to take a nap but instead slept so soundly that we didn't wake up until Monday morning. When we rolled out for breakfast, we said to some of the kidders, "Well, your snow melted pretty quickly, didn't it? It's not here now."

"Yes," they said.

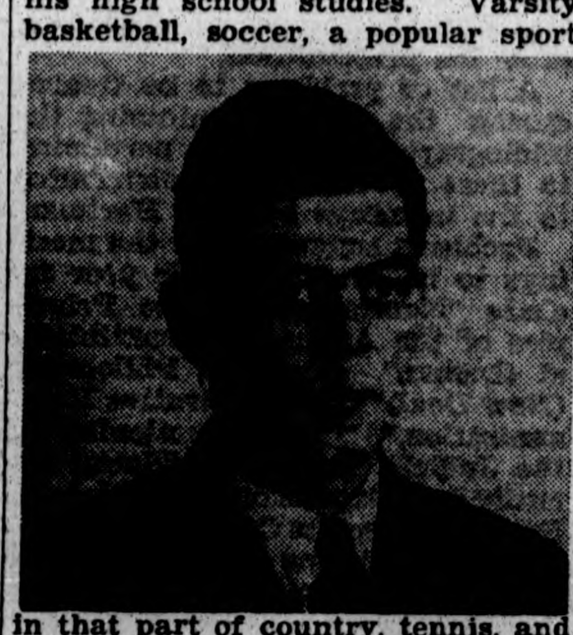
Meet The Boys: Drs. Morse and Steller They Hope They'll Be; They're Just Dave and Fred to You and Me

By HOWARD A. McCALL

TWO senior science students are in the spotlight this week and, because of their many common bonds and ties, these men are a noticeable feature in themselves. David G. Morse and Frederick C. Steller throughout their college days have been constant friends and inseparable companions. Perhaps this fact alone can pass as an explanation of their many mutual interests and exploits.

Morse first felt the soil of the good earth in Lansford, Pa., near Pottsville, coal town terrain. The inception of his active existence is recorded as Nov. 19, 1919. Five years later the Morse clan moved to Wilmington, the DuPont citadel. Dave skillfully skirted the annals of his early life with the announcement that he could only remember attending Christ Our King grammar school.

Catonsville, Md., was the site of his high school studies. Varsity basketball, soccer, a popular sport in that part of country, tennis, and believe it or not, the choir society, were the activities he engaged in during his secondary training.



We Did It

Now we take time out to plug the VILLANOVAN, for it was through a 1937 spring issue of this weekly that Dave first considered enrolling at this institute. The advice of a few doctors sealed his deliberation, and in September, '37 he matriculated in the School of Science.

In his freshman year he roomed in Alumni with Red "Fireball from Brooklyn" McAteer. The L. K. D., science fraternity, pledged him that year, and he has been a member since that date. Last Friday evening he was chairman of the L. K. D. Hop. The Sanctuary Society was another of his frosh year activities. He continued in this society during his second term, and although he is no longer a resident, he still assists at day-hop functions of the organization.

Me 'n' Bobby

The highlight of his yearling session was his action on the golf team. Dave takes great pride in his golf and boastfully declares himself another Bobby Jones in one respect. He began to play the game at the age of nine, the same that the immortal master did.

Second year found him boarding with James Jernee. In connection with his home life at the college during his hibernation at Austin he expresses dismay, because he never discovered for certain "whether or not it was Cheica who put that glue on my doornob." One thing that compensated for his remorse was the delight he received from working on the cats in the feline anatomy class. He also was co-chairman with James Forkin, artsman, of the ticket committee for the Sophomore Cotillion that year.

Traitor Collins

Next two years he commuted from Wilmington. J. P. Collins accompanied him last year, but Dave travels alone now, Collins deserting him for the fame of Fedigan. He has served on the sports staff of the VILLANOVAN for the past two years, and in his third term he was a member of the Junior Dinner Dance Committee.

Lest we do him wrong, Dave wants it explicitly stated that he is a one-woman man. Jean, a home town bonnie lass, is the object of his every attention. We take reluctant leave of Dave by indicating just what a jolly good fellow he is: he wouldn't do anything to hurt anyone—and yet the happiest day he had at Villanova was when the Frosh pulled the Sophs into the pond on Field Day. It was one of his birthday presents by the way.

STELLER, the self-confirmed "hick" of the senior class, inaugurated his cradle days in College Point, Long Island, not far from the location of the New York World's Fair. Born less than a year after his sidekick, Aug. 26, 1920, to be exact, he has led practically the same dull existence as Dave. His family likewise chose to migrate, and in '32 they settled in Butler, N. J. The following year Fred continued his scholastic pursuits at the Butler grammar school. Here too we find a similitude between the two friends. We confess we don't know just what it is about this youthful period that makes it so secretive, and Fred refused to enlighten us, just as his colleague had reacted.

Memories, Huh?

Butler High School was the scene of his further advancement and search for knowledge. Here he engaged in varsity basketball for two years and in dramatics for the entire duration of his high school career. At this point, one noticed a tender gleam in his eyes and it was not difficult to surmise that he was reminiscing on territories far distant from Villanova.

Once again we are indebted to men in the medical profession, for it was through a previous science student of the college that Fred was induced to register at Villanova.

Rah-Rah Boy

During his freshman, sophomore, and junior year he roomed with Edward Steinhardt, a classmate who is now at Penn. This year a sign in Fedigan Hall, room 211, bears the names Edward Bannigan and Frederick Steller. Many remember the capers and exhortations Fred exhibited at various football games during his first and second year in the capacity of cheer leader but none were as frantic as the one we caught him doing just previous to this interview.

Fred has served on the Orientation Committee and the Sophomore Cotillion Committee. For three years he has been a member of the Glee Club. Last year was the crowning point of his many prominent activities and appointments. He was selected Open House chairman and supervised the arrangements of the exhibits and displays held during Junior Week in the Field house.

Throughout his four years Fred has been a constant attendant at daily Mass. He has served as a representative of the college at the Science Forum held at Rosemont and, during the summer session, labors as a laboratory assistant for American Hard Rubber Co.

Claim to Fame

Butler has won for Fred the right to another title which he truly covets. He takes great pride in stating "I come from a smaller town than anyone else at Villanova." "Short Pants" Kiley (by special request) once paid Fred a visit and has never stopped kidding him yet about that great metropolis, Butler.

Fred used to claim he was impartial to all women, but evidence of handwriting (initials, M. O'C.) that has been clustering his mail chute repudiates all further right to such claims. The man on the left admits that he is a one woman man and it appears that his chum is headed for the same fate.

Dave and Fred, just to record for time eternal the memory of their friendship in the portals of Villanova, are collaborating on their thesis entitled "Hydroponics." Frequently they work in the greenhouse in their study of soilless growth. When a "hick" and a man who was born in the coal regions get together anything can happen.

Then And Now!

By ANDREW J. D'ANGELO

I seem to remember now those days of yore
When you and I were wont to stroll the shore
Hand in hand, two hearts then
strangely one,
And gaze far off into the evening
sun.
How sweet and fair that first
young love of ours!
Long I'll recall that wreath of flowers
You placed aroundd my neck,
then bade me say
How much I loved you, and in what way.
But now, my sweet, your youth is faded, gone
Just like the last few rays of the dimming sun,
And in its place is left the darkness of old age
No more to rouse in me that jealous rage
Which was wont to stir when
you did vent your smile
Upon a lad and there let it linger
a while.

"Greeters" Club Nears Final Stage

By WILLIAM J. TOY

HEAR YE, hear ye- The VILLANOVAN has once again come through. In response to our request last week, we have been successful in obtaining several men who are willing to shoulder the responsibilities of forming a Villanova Greeters Club.

Robert J. Funabashi, John T. Gallagher, James P. Collins, William J. Toy, and Richard J. Frey are now attempting to find anyone on the campus interested in this type of activity. If there are enough students willing to cooperate with these fellows an attempt will be made to secure a charter and a moderator. Since the club is in the embryonic stage and has not been officially recognized, there can be no positive action, but it is the hope of these men that such recognition will be forthcoming when a sufficient membership is created.

In order to have any student organization on the Villanova campus it is necessary to follow out the rules laid down in the handbook for registration and approval at the office of the Vice-President. It is also necessary to have a moderator for every society, and this will be one of the first actions which the proposed club must initiate.

No Failure This Time

In past years there have been numerous suggestions in the line of forming a group of this kind but they have always faltered and never reached an advanced stage. This time, however, we have several fellows who have evidenced their desire to build such an organization. Now all that remains is for some other interested students to give their support to the measure.

Now that we have these few volunteers for the formation of this club which is so sorely needed on our campus, let's not think everything is under control. All the students, as a body, must get behind this thing and show it has their support. This is really an organization to take the place of the entire student body in welcoming the many other groups which come to our campus during the course of the year.

Necessary Function

As we stated last week, the Villanova Greeters Club will act as a substitute for the many faculty moderators who have to greet visiting college groups at the expense of their own organizations. After the formation of this group, it will no longer be necessary for the moderators to perform this burdensome duty but will be relieved by representatives of this campus society.

Since we have progressed this far with the idea, let's get on the ball and see it through to the finish. It's a necessity on every campus, and a fixture on many. Let's bring Villanova up to the foreground by organizing a Greeters Club here! If you're in favor of it, join up by seeing these aforementioned men.

OUR HEARTIEST

We extend congratulations to Dr. Felix Morley on his formal acceptancy of the presidency of Haverford College last Saturday. It is gratifying in this age of "college five-year programs" to learn that Dr. Morley contemplates no formal program such as often work to a communistic end, but that he will follow liberal educational ideals, and mould them to fit the particular problems of his college and the times.

Touch football, that popular sport which is enjoyed daily in back of Mendel hall, has been abolished at the University of Kentucky because it is too rough. More students were hurt playing touch football than were injured playing the regulation game. It seems that the "tag" often turned into a haymaker.

College Chatter

By Joe McCabe

THE heading on last week's column was not only a surprise to the readers but also to the "tattle-tale" himself. Who was responsible for the "Coy" we have yet to find out, but there's a rumor flying about that the board of editors decided upon it only after exhausting a lengthy list of words all beginning with "C," someone even suggesting the, shall we say apt, heads "Crude" and "Crummy." Well, no matter what it's called, the meat still has to do with "incidents" so here goes some more. . .

After the success of the "Willkie-for-President" rally held at Bryn Mawr last week, the "Third Term for Roosevelt" boys decided it was time they did something. Accordingly Jim "The Birds" Halpin and a few other non-descripts began to organize. With pressure reminiscent of Tammany Hall, they began to buttonhole unsuspecting individuals and obtain signatures.

The funny part of the whole thing lies in the fact that a majority of the organizers and "party workers" are "crusaders" who WILL NOT be able to vote come November. . . Maybe they're just getting in practice for 1944! ! !

NOTES:

Although it started out with the right intentions, the rally preceding the departure of the football team for Baylor was a bit on the "minus" side." What was lacking no one quite seems to know, but it surely wasn't the best that could be given and we all know it. . . Walt Mason spent about four days running around clothed in sweatshirts and rubber jackets trying to wear down a few pounds in order to meet the C. A. A. requirements. Now that he's succeeded, we'll give odds that it'lll be up again (the weight) in short order. . . Phil Quinn and Jim Haughton admit of a daily walk into the bustling town of Bryn Mawr, ostensibly for the exercise; however, anyone can gather that the leg exercise is good but the "eye exercise" they undergo must be terrific.

Wouldn't ANNE burn-up if she were aware of the doings of KIRK HOLLAND. Turned out to new pastures during the summer, he's losing no time in making new acquaintances, even though some persist in saying that the spark still faintly burns. . . To Miss (her initials are S. C.), Magpie in the "Rambler": We were well-informed about your bit of gossip weeks ago; however, in the future we believe it would be advisable to soften-up your "jibes" as they sound a bit too pointed on a lot of individuals.

A BIT OF VERSE WHICH IS ONLY ALL TOO TRUE:

I always dance a happy step
When school resumes in fall
But Prof. knows me and has
me kept
Behind the old eight-ball.

—The Tower.

Last Wednesday Immaculata College held an informal tea-dance supposedly for the social benefit of the Frosh from St. Joe's. .Imagine the surprise found on the countenance of the gentlemen from "City Line" when they saw in their midst a handful of Villanova gentlemen who proceeded to "take over." While there, word got around in a very secretive sort of way that the St. Joe boys were to be entertained in a like manner by Rosemont.

We wonder why they made such a big secret about the whole thing, for that fact was established here a week ago and St. Joe's realized it on Sunday. Funny how news travels!

AN AFTER-THOUGHT:

This column is of the students, for the students and by the students — especially by the students. Therefore, its space is open to anyone who has a grievance, particularly against College Chatter. Misstatements and misinterpretations will be publicly corrected when pointed out in writing. Physical or verbal criticisms will be useless — not to mention wasteful.

Shades of Teddy

"HI, Sarge!"
"We'll have to learn the goose-step now!"

. . . Yes, it's easy to joke about conscription, now. It was funny to "the boys" in 1917 too—before they went over. Those who came back were not laughing—those few who came back.

Things are different now — but how long will they remain that way? Just how far are we from entering another European war?

Past history?—By no means. When we study the strangely zig-zag course of England's affections in the past—through the Franco-Prussian War, the Boer War, the first World War, the Battle of Oran—we realize that the British navy will defend first and foremost the British Empire. If democracy and some of the rest of the world happen to be on the same side, so much the better.

But even if the help of the British navy were absolutely essential to us, even if we could be certain that such help was ours for the asking—still, it would be difficult to find moral justification for war purely in terms of economic advantage.

No, as Theodore Roosevelt said, we had better "speak softly but carry a big stick."

Conscription is an accomplished fact. Let us be sure that it fulfills its intended purpose, and that purpose only. We Americans accept it as a training for our young men, and as a formal notice to other nations that we will not readily be caught napping. As an agent of war hysteria, as a means of putting a figurative chip on our shoulder, we reject it outright.

We can still remember 1918.

Here Are Facts

THE realization that America is rapidly destroying herself and her people is ruthlessly pressed upon us via the citations in the census returns of 1940. Terrifying in its implications, the survey reveals that the rate of America's population growth during the past decade sank to the lowest point in the history of the nation.

The figures sadly narrate the destructive effects of birth control. This murderous weapon employed by the "modern" age to allay creation and stifle propagation is responsible for the mere seven per cent increase in the rate of individual growth — less than half the percentage registered in any previous ten-year period.

The city of New York alone felt the loss of 29,000 children in the elementary grades from September, 1939, to the same month in 1940. There were in all 136,529 fewer children in the Catholic grade schools in 1938 than in 1930. When the 1940 figure is available it is quite probable that the count will show for the first time in many years less than 2,000,000 children in Catholic schools. In the case of the public schools there has been a drop of fully a million children since 1930.

Calculations of two government statisticians show the contrast between future urban and country population prospects. If present birth rates remain unchanged, and it is more likely they will continue to decline, their survey indicates that a hundred years hence 1000 people in the rural regions will have six times as many offspring as 1000 city people.

This revelation is of utmost importance to us. The significance of the fact is more striking when we realize that approximately 80 per cent of the Catholics of the United States live in our larger cities, where the birth rate is unusually low. The conclusion of the study was that, while the Catholic birth rate was still higher than that of the remainder of the population, it was actually declining more rapidly than that of other groups in the territory.

The downfall of France was largely due to the same curse. America can draw a lesson from the plight of France today. It should show us the drastic end wrought from such an insidious crime.

Black Is White

MAYBE we are wrong! We still believe in the logician's law of contradictories. A thing cannot be itself and its opposite at the same time, but President Roosevelt evidently thinks so.

The fundamental concepts which aided in the formation of this government were Christian in toto; the Constitution itself is as perfect a Christian document as has been formulated by the leaders of any nation at any time. No one will deny then that to preserve itself, America must first preserve Christianity.

Yet last Tuesday, President Roosevelt clearly indicated that he considers Communistic Russia a friendly Power, whose interests do not conflict with our own, when, by using the powers granted him by the Faddis Bill, he said that Russia would now receive all her orders for materials necessary for the manufacture of munitions except those which experts decided the United States needed for its own defense industries.

So—we, a Christian nation, decide to help Russia, the avowed enemy of all religion, build a war armada!

It would do well for Mr. Roosevelt to ponder upon this when he again insists that we aid the cause of Democracy in Europe because Democracy is the last stand for Christianity. If he is sincere in this conviction, then why does he help fortify a nation openly inimical to Christian principles?

FACULTY COMMENTS

Three Simple Questions— One Complex Answer

By DR. HAROLD F. HARTMAN

IN this abbreviated article we are exercising the liberty of suggesting three simple questions. In spite of the simplicity of these questions their implications are essentially complex. That is the reason why an attempt will be made to answer but one. Briefly stated, these questions present themselves as follows:

1. What is the present condition of the modern world?
2. Where is this present condition going to lead us?
3. What in the past contributed to this present condition?

The first of these questions, "What is the present condition of the modern world?" may be answered by every man. We mean, of course, every man who is living today and enjoying the "benefits" of modern civilization may answer this question to his own satisfaction. It is basically true that every man is his own historian. We all know it to be an astounding fact of contemporary civilization that the world is in a chaotic condition. One needs to be possessed with no abundance of meticulous knowledge to reach that sad conclusion.

Man No Prophet

The second of these questions, "Where is this present condition going to lead us?" can be answered by no man. We assume that no man is a prophet unto himself. No man is possessed with those divine propensities which gives him a license to make reasonable predictions concerning future happenings. Men provoke derision when their "reasonable" predictions as to future happenings do not accord with factual knowledge. Many individuals are still complaining of an unhappy prediction, "Prosperity is just around the corner."

We now come to the third of these simple questions, "What in the past contributed to this present condition?" This is the question which we will proceed to answer. Some men are inclined to philosophize concerning basic causes. This is particularly true of the college professor. As a rule if he engages in this bit of activity, invoking the knowledge of his own particular field of study, he will do no real harm. Accordingly, we will attempt to answer this simple question, only as a student of political affairs. Naturally, our answer will be qualified.

Answer Complex

The answer is not as simple as the question which suggests it. In the past, when it was mandatory for statesmen to make important decisions and commence the enforcement of fundamental policies of government, the world lacked statesmen. These deplorable conditions existing in the world of today would not be so accentuated if the world of yesterday possessed the contributions of practical statesmen, let us say since the depressing days of 1919.

In evaluating statesmanship we are quite frequently oblivious of the prerequisites of statesmanship. We often confuse extraneous qualities with the real essentials of statesmanship. The modern world, since 1919, was capably destitute of practical statesman. This is a deplorable fact but it must be recognized since individuals entrusted with the destinies of nations were not possessed with these fundamental essentials. Permit the mentioning of a few. Allow a theoretical explanation of this important subject.

Must Be Practical

An individual who qualifies as a meritorious statesman must be at all times practical. It is not sufficient to publicize the property of moral principles in political activity; these must be put into practical operation. The glorification of the public interest must be followed by its promotion and protection. A profound knowledge of political affairs is worthless unless this knowledge is used to understand the really present needs of the public. The real statesman will immediately determine upon an aggressive policy which will be enforced at all times to serve these needs. No personal or partisan considerations may frustrate this determination. No selfiish ambitions may dictate a fictitious course.

In conclusion, men of this generation who are inclined to violate the ethics of true statesmanship, heed this bit of advice. War is a terrible thing. A world war at periodical intervals of twenty years seems to be an ingredient of contemporary civilization. Modern warfare, although it is something essentially bad, has produced one good. The mistakes of practical statesmanship are brought home. The destructive tendencies are seen in their realities by these men, some of whom are actually responsible for them. No longer is the soldier on some distant battlefield their only contact. Maybe this development may be a blessing in disguise for future generations. That should be every man's hope and prayer.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by the Barnes Institute in nearby Merion to the effect that the famous (the better word might be infamous), self-styled philosopher, Bertrand Russel will assume duties there in January. Mr. Russel, it will be remembered, was ousted by the taxpayers of New York City last year when that college attempted to "establish a chair of indency" there by appointing Russel to the faculty.

Antagonism toward Russel is nothing new in his life. Ever since he began fancying himself an authority on morality and started preaching moral doctrines diametrically opposed to everything Christian he has aroused the enmity of virtue-loving citizens.

As Dr. Barnes, head of the foundation, has stated, "Mr. Russel is one of the most distinguished scholars of our age." Yes, he is distinguished by reason of his attempts to do away with all that Christian citizens hold dear with regard to the sanctity of marriage and the home.

It will also be remembered that Mr. Russel spent six months in the cooler for making disparaging remarks about American troops quartered in England during the last war.Now he's in America earning his living. Whoever said "You can fool some of the people all of the time" knew what he was talking about.

If you go to the front you have two chances, you either go over the top or you stay in the trenches. If you stay in the trenches there's nothing to worry about. If you go over the top you still have two chances, you either get wounded or killed. If you are only wounded there's nothing to worry about, and if you get killed you still have two chances. . .

Did You Fall, Too?

"Hey, look out the window; it's snowing!" yelled an amazed Villanovan last Saturday afternoon.

Although a few who are always good targets for April Fool jokes were suckers enough to fall for the gag and follow his advice, we just sat at our little old desk and laughed and laughed. For this is America, where it doesn't snow on October 19.

Then the ones who fell for the gag tried to work on us. "Look!" they shouted in tones that would have made anyone with a weak will sneak a side-glance through the panes, "it's really falling pretty hard."

We gave them the old ha-ha and kidded along with them. They told us that it was a light snow that was turning into a wet snow that stuck to everything except the streets.

Getting tired of this banter, we decided to take a nap but instead slept so soundly that we didn't wake up until Monday morning. When we rolled out for breakfast, we said to some of the kidders, "Well, your snow melted pretty quickly, didn't it? It's not here now."

"Yes," they said.

Meet The Boys: Drs. Morse and Steller They Hope They'll Be; They're Just Dave and Fred to You and Me

By HOWARD A. McCALL

TWO senior science students are in the spotlight this week and, because of their many common bonds and ties, these men are a noticeable feature in themselves. David G. Morse and Frederick C. Steller throughout their college days have been constant friends and inseparable companions. Perhaps this fact alone can pass as an explanation of their many mutual interests and exploits.

Morse first felt the soil of the good earth in Lansford, Pa., near Pottsville, coal town terrain. The inception of his active existence is recorded as Nov. 19, 1919. Five years later the Morse clan moved to Wilmington, the DuPont citadel. Dave skillfully skirted the annals of his early life with the announcement that he could only remember attending Christ Our King grammar school.

Catonsville, Md., was the site of his high school studies. Varsity basketball, soccer, a popular sport in that part of country, tennis, and believe it or not, the choir society, were the activities he engaged in during his secondary training.

We Did It

Now we take time out to plug the VILLANOVAN, for it was through a 1937 spring issue of this weekly that Dave first considered enrolling at this institute. The advice of a few doctors sealed his deliberation, and in September, '37 he matriculated in the School of Science.

In his freshman year he roomed in Alumni with Red "Fireball from Brooklyn" McAteer. The L. K. D., science fraternity, pledged him that year, and he has been a member since that date. Last Friday evening he was chairman of the L. K. D. Hop. The Sanctuary Society was another of his frosh year activities. He continued in this society during his second term, and although he is no longer a resident, he still assists at day-hop functions of the organization.

Me 'n' Bobby

The highlight of his yearling session was his action on the golf team. Dave takes great pride in his golf and boastfully declares himself another Bobby Jones in one respect. He began to play the game at the age of nine, the same that the immortal master did.

Second year found him boarding with James Jernee. In connection with his home life at the college during his hibernation at Austin he expresses dismay, because he never discovered for certain "whether or not it was Cheica who put that glue on my doornob." One thing that compensated for his remorse was the delight he received from working on the cats in the feline anatomy class. He also was co-chairman with James Forkin, artsman, of the ticket committee for the Sophomore Cotillion that year.

Traitor Collins

Next two years he commuted from Wilmington. J. P. Collins accompanied him last year, but Dave travels alone now, Collins deserting him for the fame of Fedigan. He has served on the sports staff of the VILLANOVAN for the past two years, and in his third term he was a member of the Junior Dinner Dance Committee.

Lest we do him wrong, Dave wants it explicitly stated that he is a one-woman man. Jean, a home town bonnie lass, is the object of his every attention. We take reluctant leave of Dave by indicating just what a jolly good fellow he is: he wouldn't do anything to hurt anyone—and yet the happiest day he had at Villanova was when the Frosh pulled the Sophs into the pond on Field Day. It was one of his birthday presents by the way.

STELLER, the self-confirmed "hick"of the senior class, inaugurated his cradle days in College Point, Long Island, not far from the location of the New York World's Fair. Born less than a year after his sidekick, Aug. 26, 1920, to be exact, he has led practically the same dull existence as Dave. His family likewise chose to migrate, and in '32 they settled in Butler, N. J. The following year Fred continued his scholastic pursuits at the Butler grammar school. Here too we find a similitude between the two friends. We confess we don't know just what it is about this youthful period that makes it so secretive, and Fred refused to enlighten us, just as his colleague had reacted.

Memories, Huh?

Butler High School was the scene of his further advancement and search for knowledge. Here he engaged in varsity basketball for two years and in dramatics for the entire duration of his high school career. At this point, one noticed a tender gleam in his eyes and it was not difficult to surmise that he was reminiscing on territories far distant from Villanova.

Once again we are indebted to men in the medical profession, for it was through a previous science student of the college that Fred was induced to register at Villanova.

Rah-Rah Boy

During his freshman, sophomore, and junior year he roomed with Edward Steinhardt, a classmate who is now at Penn. This year a sign in Fedigan Hall, room 211, bears the names Edward Bannigan and Frederick Steller. Many remember the capers and exhortations Fred exhibited at various football games during his first and second year in the capacity of cheer leader but none were as frantic as the one we caught him doing just previous to this interview.

Fred has served on the Orientation Committee and the Sophomore Cotillion Committee. For three years he has been a member of the Glee Club. Last year was the crowning point of his many prominent activities and appointments. He was selected Open House chairman and supervised the arrangements of the exhibits and displays held during Junior Week in the Field house.

Throughout his four years Fred has been a constant attendant at daily Mass. He has served as a representative of the college at the Science Forum held at Rosemont and, during the summer session, labors as a laboratory assistant for American Hard Rubber Co.

Claim to Fame

Butler has won for Fred the right to another title which he truly covets. He takes great pride in stating "I come from a smaller town than anyone else at Villanova." "Short Pants" Kiley (by special request) once paid Fred a visit and has never stopped kidding him yet about that great metropolis, Butler.

Fred used to claim he was impartial to all women, but evidence of handwriting (initials, M. O'C.) that has been clustering his mail chute repudiates all further right to such claims. The man on the left admits that he is a one woman man and it appears that his chum is headed for the same fate.

Dave and Fred, just to record for time eternal the memory of their friendship in the portals of Villanova, are collaborating on their thesis entitled "Hydroponics." Frequently they work in the greenhouse in their study of soilless growth. When a "hick" and a man who was born in the coal regions get together anything can happen.

Then And Now!

By ANDREW J. D'ANGELO

I seem to remember now those days of yore
When you and I were wont to stroll the shore
Hand in hand, two hearts then
strangely one,
And gaze far off into the evening
sun.
How sweet and fair that first
young love of ours!
Long I'll recall that wreath of flowers
You placed aroundd my neck,
then bade me say
How much I loved you, and in what way.
But now, my sweet, your youth is faded, gone
Just like the last few rays of the dimming sun,
And in its place is left the darkness of old age
No more to rouse in me that jealous rage
Which was wont to stir when
you did vent your smile
Upon a lad and there let it linger
a while.

"Greeters" Club Nears Final Stage

By WILLIAM J. TOY

HEAR YE, hear ye- The VILLANOVAN has once again come through. In response to our request last week, we have been successful in obtaining several men who are willing to shoulder the responsibilities of forming a Villanova Greeters Club.

Robert J. Funabashi, John T. Gallagher, James P. Collins, William J. Toy, and Richard J. Frey are now attempting to find anyone on the campus interested in this type of activity. If there are enough students willing to cooperate with these fellows an attempt will be made to secure a charter and a moderator. Since the club is in the embryonic stage and has not been officially recognized, there can be no positive action, but it is the hope of these men that such recognition will be forthcoming when a sufficient membership is created.

In order to have any student organization on the Villanova campus it is necessary to follow out the rules laid down in the handbook for registration and approval at the office of the Vice-President. It is also necessary to have a moderator for every society, and this will be one of the first actions which the proposed club must initiate.

No Failure This Time

In past years there have been numerous suggestions in the line of forming a group of this kind but they have always faltered and never reached an advanced stage. This time, however, we have several fellows who have evidenced their desire to build such an organization. Now all that remains is for some other interested students to give their support to the measure.

Now that we have these few volunteers for the formation of this club which is so sorely needed on our campus, let's not think everything is under control. All the students, as a body, must get behind this thing and show it has their support. This is really an organization to take the place of the entire student body in welcoming the many other groups which come to our campus during the course of the year.

Necessary Function

As wo stated last week, the Villanova Greeters Club will act as a substitute for the many faculty moderators who have to greet visiting college groups at the expense of their own organizations. After the formation of this group, it will no longer be necessary for the moderators to perform this burdensome duty but will be relieved by representatives of this campus society.

Since we have progressed this far with the idea, let's get on the ball and see it through to the finish. It's a necessity on every campus, and a fixture on many. Let's bring Villanova up to the foreground by organizing a Greeters Club here! If you're in favor of it, join up by seeing these aforementioned men.

OUR HEARTIEST

We extend congratulations to Dr. Felix Morley on his formal acceptancy of the presidency of Haverford College last Saturday. It is gratifying in this age of "college five-year programs" to learn that Dr. Morley contemplates no formal program such as often work to a communistic end, but that he will follow liberal educational ideals, and mould them to fit the particular problems of his college and the times.

Touch football,that popular sport which is enjoyed daily in back of Mendel hall, has been abolished at the University of Kentucky because it is too rough. More students were hurt playing touch football than were injured playing the regulation game. It seems that the "tag" often turned into a haymaker.

College Chatter

By Joe McCabe

THE heading on last week's column was not only a surprise to the readers but also to the "tattle-tale" himself. Who was responsible for the "Coy" we have yet to find out, but there's a rumor flying about that the board of editors decided upon it only after exhausting a lengthy list of words all beginning with "C," someone even suggesting the, shall we say apt, heads "Crude" and "Crummy." Well, no matter what it's called, the meat still has to do with "incidents" so here goes some more. . .

After the success of the "Willkie-for-President" rally held at Bryn Mawr last week, the "Third Term for Roosevelt" boys decided it was time they did something. Accordingly Jim "The Birds" Halpin and a few other non-descripts began to organize. With pressure reminiscent of Tammany Hall, they began to buttonhole unsuspecting individuals and obtain signatures.

The funny part of the whole thing lies in the fact that a majority of the organizers and "party workers" are "crusaders" who WILL NOT be able to vote come November. . . Maybe they're just getting in practice for 1944! ! !

NOTES:

Although it started out with the right intentions, the rally preceding the departure of the football team for Baylor was a bit on the "minus" side." What was lacking no one quite seems to know, but it surely wasn't the best that could be given and we all know it. . . Walt Mason spent about four days running around clothed in sweatshirts and rubber jackets trying to wear down a few pounds in order to meet the C. A. A. requirements. Now that he's succeeded, we'll give odds that it'll be up again (the weight) in short order. . . Phil Quinn and Jim Haughton admit of a daily walk into the bustling town of Bryn Mawr, ostensibly for the exercise; however, anyone can gather that the leg exercise is good but the "eye exercise" they undergo must be terrific.

Wouldn't ANNE burn-up if she were aware of the doings of KIRK HOLLAND. Turned out to new pastures during the summer, he's losing no time in making new acquaintances, even though some persist in saying that the spark still faintly burns. . . To Miss (her initials are S. C.), Magpie in the "Rambler": We were well-informed about your bit of gossip weeks ago; however, in the future we believe it would be advisable to soften-up your "jibes" as they sound a bit too pointed on a lot of individuals.

A BIT OF VERSE WHICH IS ONLY ALL TOO TRUE:

I always dance a happy step
When school resumes in fall
But Prof. knows me and has
me kept
Behind the old eight-ball.

—The Tower.

Last Wednesday Immaculata College held an informal tea-dance supposedly for the social benefit of the Frosh from St. Joe's. Imagine the surprise found on the countenance of the gentlemen from "City Line" when they saw in their midst a handful of Villanova gentlemen who proceeded to "take over." While there, word got around in a very secretive sort of way that the St. Joe boys were to be entertained in a like manner by Rosemont.

We wonder why they made such a big secret about the whole thing, for that fact was established here a week ago and St. Joe's realized it on Sunday. Funny how news travels!

AN AFTER-THOUGHT:

This column is of the students, for the students and by the students — especially by the students. Therefore, its space is open to anyone who has a grievance, particularly against College Chatter. Misstatements and misinterpretations will be publicly corrected when pointed out in writing. Physical or verbal criticisms will be useless — not to mention wasteful.

Alumni Chemists Engaged In Study

20% of Graduates in Field Now Further Education in Universities

Of the approximately 45 graduates of the chemistry division of the School of Engineering in the past four years nearly twenty percent have entered on courses of graduate study in various universities.

Outstanding has been the work of Leo Bircher and Edward Gornowski. Bircher, who graduated from Villanova in 1939 with a Bachelor of Chemical Engineering degree has been attending the University of Michigan where he received his Master's degree last June. So outstanding was his work that he received an assistantship to teach at the University for the 1940-41 school year.

Gornowski, who received his Bachelor of Chemical Engineering from Villanova in 1938, has entered his second year at the University of Pennsylvania where he has received a fellowship donated by the Atlantic Refining Company to enable him to complete his studies.

George Wengryniuk and Edward Gierkowski, both of the class of 1940, have entered the University of Michigan and the University of Delaware respectively where they are working for their master's degree.

Of the Class of 1937, Gene Barr and Miller Sullivan, both of whom have received their degrees of Master of Science in Chemistry, are attending the University of Pennsylvania and working to become Doctors of Philosophy in Chemistry.

Also of the class of 1937 is Joseph Denny, Ch. E., who is studying patent law at Georgetown University law school.

John Simons, Ch. E., '38, has received his M. S. from the University of Michigan and is at present in the employ of the DuPont Company.

"Villanovans" Play Original Theme Song At Successful Dance

Opening their social program, Lambda Kappa Delta, the Science fraternity, sponsored a dance last Friday night with which many of the subscribers claimed to be more than satisfied. Some one hundred and seventy-five couples gathered at the Field house to wish the medicos a successful year and danced to the music of the Villanovans who played from 9 to 1.

The Villanovans were the hit of the evening and, led by Joseph Rozum, junior science man, they played in such manner as to rival many of the top-notch bands. Introducing a new theme song "I'll Always Be There," written and arranged by Daniel "Danny Boy" Savini, sophomore science man and vocalist for the aggregation, the boys were complimented on every side.

President Joseph Santaniello expressed to all who helped to make the dance such a success, in behalf of the fraternity, his wholehearted appreciation and thanks and to the Villanovans a good measure of congratulations for their splendid exhibition and cooperation.

Plans Call for Industrial Speakers to Show Close Relation of all Fields

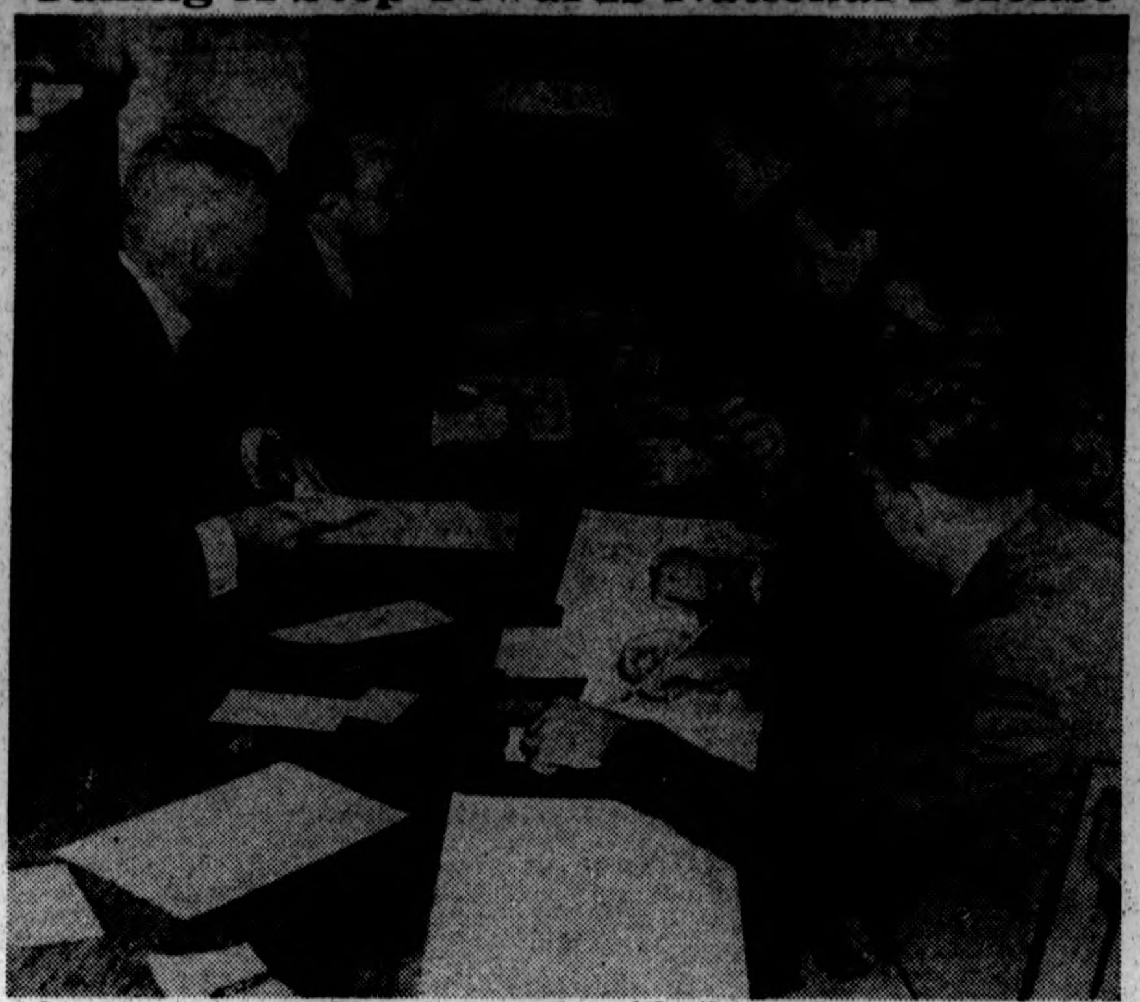
Professor Emil Amelotti, moderator of the Mathematics Society, has announced that the society will foster a new program this year.

The society plans to have industrial representatives address their seminars to show how closely related, mathematically, the various industrial fields are. The lecturers will show that whether it be one chemical flowing into another or the resisting air flowing over an airplane's wing, the mathematics involved in both studies is essentially the same.

Mr. Amelotti believes that interest in this study will broaden the student's education and make him in the future a more valuable and wanted employe.

The VILLANOVAN extends most sincere sympathy to Joseph J. Becker, engineering sophomore, on the death of his father, whose funeral was held on October 15, and to Thomas O'Connor, commerce freshman, on the death of his father.

Taking A Step Towards National Defense



October 16 saw Villanova comply with the national law compelling registration of the country's man power. Above is a group of Junior engineer students giving the necessary information to the local registrars during a lull in the day-long work which accommodated three hundred and fifty-three men of the campus. The foyer of the gymnasium provided the setting.

353 Register Here For Draft

A total of 353 men registered at the college Field House last Wednesday in compliance with the United States Selective Service Act, William G. Slaughter, college placement director, has announced. Of this group, 48 were seminarians, 24 were employes, 7 were professors, and the other 274 were resident and non-resident students.

The nine faculty members and three county representatives who were in charge of the registration were kept quite busy during the morning hours, but at no time did the number of applicants get out of hand since each student had previously been assigned a definite hour at which to appear.

Mr. Slaughter stated that, "Mr. Banmiller, the college registrar, and I will keep in touch with the actions of the local draft board. Students should get in touch with us each time that they receive a communication pertaining to the draft from the government, in order to receive our assistance."

He stressed the fact that students are not automatically exempt from being drafted this year because of their attendance at college. Those who wish to have the time of their training deferred until July 1, 1941, must make application for such deferment.

It is essential that all students enlisted in the reserves or similar groups report such affiliation to Mr. Slaughter or Mr. Banmiller.

Each person who registered last Wednesday will be given a serial number by the local draft board. These numbers will be published by the local board, which will probably be located at Media.

The registration cards of resident and non-resident students will be forwarded to the draft boards in their home towns. However, the cards of residents may be sent back to the local board at Media later for purposes of convenience.

Numbers will be drawn at a national lottery to be held at Washington in the near future. The drawing of the cards will determine the order in which those not deferred will be called. After the order numbers have been assigned, a questionnaire will be sent to each eligible man as his turn comes.

Seed Dispersal

Methods of Plant Perpetuation Discussed at Research Seminar Meeting Tomorrow Afternoon

The Research Seminar, holding its first meeting of the current year, will listen to a paper to be presented by Anthony Gigliotti, junior science man, on the various methods of seed dispersal.

Included in the paper will be a detailed account of the part played by animals and man in the necessary and instinctive motivation of the perpetuation of the species.

Co-chairmen Joseph M. Gambescia and Eugene Nelson wish to extend a welcome to all interested in the biological field. Membership is unrestricted and all are invited. The meeting will be held tomorrow, Wednesday, at 4:15 P. M. in Simpson hall.

"Willkie Vs. Roosevelt" Subject of Sociologists

A discussion of the fundamental issues of the presidential campaign and an attempt to reach some conclusion as to the desirability of the two candidates made up the program at the meeting of the Sociology Seminar last evening at 7:30 in Simpson hall.

Many heated arguments were presented by representatives of both camps. The discusion was in accordance with the general policy of the organization, which, under the direction of Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., considers various problems of social import.

Today For Sure

Ye Olde VILLANOVAN hereby admits of that great journalistic sin—an error.

In a prior issue, we advised that there would be a poll on current topics which would take place on the Wednesday following that issue. Due to conditions beyond our control, this was impossible and we beg forgiveness.

However, with that indomitable spirit we possess, the VILLANOVAN will endeavor to conduct said poll this week and nothing short of a tornado will stop us. We will change your bullets of the past week—they felt like bullets to our ears—to ballots and will have at your disposal, when you pick up your issue of the VILLANOVAN, a full supply of tally sheets for our inquisition.

To those young gentlemen who through necessity must hie themselves to the dining hall in all possible haste we say, "See Murray P. ZEALOR at his newspaper stand and garner your sheet there." For all others who can slow down on their run toward the college diner, there will be distributed at the VILLANOVAN stand copies of the ballot.

Get your ballot and cast your vote.

P.K.P. Considers Changing Dance Date

Suggestion that the date of the Owl Hop, annual dance of the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity, be changed from Nov. 22 because of the number of other local dances being held the same date was made at the fraternity meeting at Simpson hall yesterday.

Rosemont, Immaculata, the College of Chestnut Hill, and the Roman Catholic High School Alumni are all holding formal dances the same date, so it was decided that the dance committee consider whether or not to request the Dean of Men for a change of date.

The decision for or against the change will be made this week and notice will be posted on all bulletin boards.

BOOK CLUB

Arthur S. Somers, senior in the School of Commerce and Finance, this week is engaged in the signing of members of the Book Club for the coming year. He requests those interested in current literature to contact him as soon as possible.

DEBATERS

Beta Gamma, varsity debating society, and the Freshman Debating team have not yet completed their schedules for the year. Calls for membership tryouts will be issued in the near future and the schedules will be released as soon as completed.

Seminar Debates Third Term Issue

A meeting of the History Seminar will be held today in Simpson hall at 3:00 P. M., at which time the problem to be discussed will be "The Third Term Issue."

At the meeting held last Tuesday afternoon, the manner in which the group will function was determined and a program was outlined for the current year.

"The purpose of the History Seminar is to familiarize students with the important problems encountered by our national government in order that they might better appreciate the functioning of the democratic processes of government," stated Dr. Harold F. Hartman, moderator.

Several students among those in attendance at the session were assigned papers to be read at future meetings. The student giving the paper will preside over the session and will lead a group discussion after his presentation.

A list of problems to be treated during the term, containing the bibliography of works pertaining to these problems, was distributed to the members by Dr. Hartman.

Problems suggested for the meetings to be conducted this year include "Neutrality," "Basic Principles of the American Constitutional System," "Political Philosophy (New Deal)" "Administrative Reorganization," "The Functioning of the Judicial Process," "Social Security," "Expansion of Federal Power (Interstate Commerce)" "Important Decisions of the Supreme Court," "Economic Adjustment and the War Situation," "Problems Relating to American National Defense," "The Far Eastern Situation," "British Empire Necessary to Civilization," and "Administrative Problems of Conscription."

SPEAKS TO LIONS

"Government and the Emergency in National Defense" will be discussed by Dr. Harold F. Hartman, Ph. D., at the Main Line Lions Club at Haverford on Thursday, October 24.

Haenisch to Analyze Gilbert & Sullivan's 'Pinafore' Tomorrow

Dr. Edward L. Haenlisch, head of the Chemistry department, will be guest lecturer at the weekly meeting of the Music Seminar to be held tomorrow evening in Simpson hall.

"Pinafore," one of the famed Gilbert and Sullivan light operas, will be analyzed by Dr. Haenisch. He will pick out the themes at the opera, play them on the piano, and then point them out in the music. In addition, the lecturer expects to present the dialogue and thus be better able to show how the words and music fit together.

Beethoven's "Emperor Concerto" was the feature of last week's seminar. The concerto in three movements, Beethoven No. 5 E. Flat Major, was written for piano and orchestra in 1809 by one of the most beloved composers of classical music.

Father Vrana, the commentator, related the following story about the naming of the composition. When Napoleon's troops were in Vienna this concerto was being played by an orchestra in one of the many cafes. A French general liked it so well that he termed it the concerto of the Emperor. Becouse of the militaristic environment of that time, the people retained the name of "The Emperor Concerto."

Three other types of classical music were described with selections from several other composers. These selections included: Brahms' Academic Festival Overture, "Les Prelules" by Liszt, the prelude to the third act of "Lohengrin" and the "Ride of the Valkyries,"both by Wagner.

THANK GOODNESS!

While Villanova students may not be allowed to keep automobiles on the campus, there is no ruling here such as is in effect at Princeton, forbidding the possession of airplanes.

Baylor Ends 'Cat Winning Streak

Bears Top Villanova 7-0 to Blackout Hopes of Undefeated Season For Cats

By BOB FUNABASHI

Villanova's second trek into Southwestern territory was again smited by the curse of playing in Texas as the big Baylor Bears, darkhorse of the Conference, shattered their Eastern prominence with a 7-0 victory.

After being repulsed for three periods the Baylor eleven pushed over a touchdown in the last frame to turn the 'Cats out of the undefeated class. Last year in College Station, "Jarring John Kimbrough and his Texas Aggies jolted the Wildcat win streak of 22 games and this year was another duplication.

Villanova had pointed all year for revenge in the Southwest and it seemed that her dreams would come through when they smashed their way down to the Baylor goal line several times in the first half but only to be stopped by a stubborn Baylor line. Twice Nick Basca, whose able foot has kicked many an extra point, was called back to try for a field goal, but each time the ball went astray.

'Cats Miss Chance

With their opportunities gone in the first half, Villanova never again threatened the Baylor goal line. Their running attack was halted and their passing was definitely off pitch as Stan Eusko was being rushed off his feet by the charging hostile ends. The rest of the battle resorted into a punting duel, with quick kicks by both sides consistently filling the air.

The Texans, who were rather dormant when in possession of the ball, came to life in the last quarter and executed their famous power plays with big Milt Crain, typical plunger, resorting to a weakside gallop good for 27 yards, bringing the ball to the Villanova 26-yard marker. At that point "Clipper" Smith brought his reserve subs from the bench to stem the advance, but the power drives were made straight for the weak side with Dwight Parks forwarding the pigskin until it rested on the 2-yard line.

Merka Scores

A minute later Co-captain Milt Merka plunged over the line to register a Baylor touchdown. Confusion followed, with the 'Cats claiming that Merka did not go

"Big Red" Eleven Faces 150's Saturday

Tom Casper's lightweight football club will make their third attempt at winning a league engagement this Saturday afternoon at 2 P. M. when the Big Red of Cornell University leave Cayuga's waters to try a little sailing on the Villanova Stadium loam.

Cornell lost their opening game by a 12-7 score to a strong Yale eleven, and also lost to Rutgers Saturday, but is nevertheless, a heavy favorite in the eyes of league followers. However, Casper has planned some renovations in the Villanova club and the 'Cats are expected to continue their steady improvement.

A large attendance is expected at the Stadium due to the prowess of the Cornell eleven.

BAYLOR, 7, Villanova, 0 — and thus up in smoke goes all dreams of an undefeated season. The 'Cats have slipped from the top of the league, so much so that it seems that a radio commentator has audibly expressed the opinion that Villanova wouldn't even rate on the same field with dear old ivy clad U. of Penn.

The radio commentator, whose initials are Stoney McLinn, reportedly made a remark to the above effect on a recent program. We didn't hear it because we don't have the time to waste on the small timers. We don't care particularly what McLinn said about Villanova and Temple in relation to Pennsylvania. But we have heard about it so much that we can't resist just one remark. If Villanova and Temple don't belong on the same field with Penn, what is Small-time Stoney doing on the same radio with such elite sport commentators as Kerby Cushing, Stan Lomax, etc?

—V—

With the Baylor defeat a reality the Villanova squad should get rid of the "sophomore shakes" now and settle down to the dependable football of their predecessors. The season is by no means a failure because of one defeat despite the despair which persists in hanging over victory-conscious Villanova. Detroit, Duquesne, and Auburn are still to come up and wins over this trio will certainly erase whatever smudges may result from the Texas trip. As the "Clipper" said yesterday, "Somebody will pay for this defeat." Let's make Detroit make the first payment with Kansas, Duquesne, Manhattan, Temple, and Auburn taking care of the weekly installments on the balance!

—V—

An undefeated season is a great thing, but you can't be too expectant of one when playing against the type of competition offered this year's Wildcats. If we were playing clubs like Princeton, Yale, and Maryland wins would be a simple, routine affair. But Baylor isn't in the Ivy League. They play football, not headlines. Stoney McLinn, please note!

—V—

We didn't see the ball-game Saturday night so we won't beef about referee's decisions. However, we quote from an article by Jim Gallagher of the Philadelphia Record:

"The biggest winged insect in the Wildcat ointment was the hotly disputed Baylor touchdown play in the fourth quarter.

"In this remarkable bit of action a last-down buck into the middle by Milt Merks from the one, one official, Umpire Barry Holton, ruled no touchdown; another official, Head Linesman Dr. Leo Allred, was noncommittal, and one official, Referee Roscoe Minton, who seemed in no position to call the play, said it was a score—and, as bad luck would have it, his decision went.

"No official signaled a touchdown till a seeming half-minute after the play had stopped, when Minton half-heartedly raised one hand after an argument with his mates. There was no ill-natured bickering against the decision. Players and coaches alike took it for what it was—a very bad break for Villanova."

Penn One-Fifties Top Blue, 21-7

Cats Outrun, Outpass Quakers But Fail to Stop Watt on Pair of Punt Returns

Villanova lightweights met their second snag of the season Friday afternoon at River Field when a scrappy Red and Blue team, inaugurating its first start, shoved over two lighting-like thrusts in the first half to outscore the 'Cats, 21-7.

Star of the cold and windy afternoon was Bill Watts, speedy ace of Penn who carried the ball on two long jaunts of 94 and 87 yards into paydirt. Furthering his laurels, he scored again in the third quarter from the 2 yard line and three times used his lusty foot for extra-points.

Lombardo Scores

The Wildcats, stymied for over three periods, repulsed the Penn forward wall and tallied their lone score when Frank Lombardo went over to climax a march of 60 yards.

Coach A. Balfour Smith, new mentor of Penn, saw his charges collect their first score when Watts, on a return of a kick, "hipper-dippered" the entire length of the field to cross standing up. Taking the ball on his own 4, he cut for the sidelines, after being temporarily trapped by a host of 'Cats and proceeded unmolested after good blocking by his teammates.

Tallies Again

Agin on the very next play, he took the kickoff on his 13 yard line and duplicated by weaving his way up the North sidelines in amazing speed to tally again. Here again the Wildcats had their man apparently stopped but he mere stepped aside and continued up-field

Villanova, apparently stunned by the two scores, could do nothing in the way of real offensive drive, being hampered by a strong wind and poor team play. Their passes went astray and their running attack was off color against their opponents. Blocking and tackling took a turn for the worse as indicated by the two long runs of Watts.

It's Ours For A Year

Frank Desmond, Austin Sophomore, and winner of the Eastern Inter-collegiate Outboard Boat Racing Championship, presents the throphy denoting Villanova's supremacy to the Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., Moderator of Athletics. The trophy will remain in Villanova's possession for one year.

Titans Renew Rivalry With 'Cats In Sunday Game At Shibe Park; Gala Passing Circus Is Expected

Battle to Mark Decade of Competition Between Blue and Detroit Elevens; Villanova Must Hit Rebound From Baylor Loss to Thwart Threat of Undefeated Combine

By JACK DUDLEY

Those mighty Titans from the shores of Lake Michigan are headed this way again. Not since the Villanova-Detroit series began, back in 1931, have they pointed for an approaching game with more determination.

No matter how they seem to outplay and outgain Villanova, the 'Cats produce just a few more points in each struggle, and for the last five years Villanova has won by the margin of a touchdown.

Those who have seen Detroit in action this year hail the team as the greatest in the history of the school. Coach Charles E. "Gus" Dorais has a letter man for every position on the starting team and the alternates form a team almost as good as the first.

In his opening lineup Dorais will probably start only four seniors. "Gus" leans strongly to a junior team. His reason for this preference is that many players reach the peak of enthusiasm during their second year on the squad. Although seniors know more about football, he feels that some of them earn that knowledge at the expense of the dash-and-fire they put into their game. "Gus" should be particularly happy about his team's prospects; they lose only five men by graduation this year.

Ghesquiere Stars

Detroit presents one of the most diversified offenses of any Villanova opponent. The team averages about 185 pounds, and is exceptionally fast. In the backfield are a number of hard to stop ball carriers. Also the linesmen can cover more ground than most forwards usually do. More emphasis is being put on a passing game this year than had been in previous seasons.

The spearhead of the Detroit offense is Al Ghesquiere, a great senior halfback who handles most of the running, passing, and kicking. Calling the Titan's plays is John Biringer, a junior, who did most of the quarterbacking last fall.

In former years Detroit usually made no All-American claims for any of its stars. This year they are singing the praises of Casimere Brovarney, Captain and left guard. They don't see how he can miss. Win or lose, they will always be assured of his fiery, inspiring leadership.

Off the field he is a mild-mannered fellow. But when that game starts he becomes the roughest, toughest linesman Detroit has seen in years. He takes his football seriously, putting all his heart into the game; plus a five-foot-eleven, 210-pound frame.

Vince Banonis, a center who ranks with the best, and Howard Keating, a dependable pass receiver, are ready to show Villanova 60 minutes of hard football.

Titans Undefeated

Last season Detroit won six and lost three games. They went down before the Wildcats, particularly Nick Basca, in Detroit, 13-6. Showing what a battle that was, the Titans named Basca, Andy Chisick, and Dave di Fillipo on their all-opponent team.

"Gus" Dorais has abandoned the gloomy outlook tactics of most coaches this year.

"I am going to depart from the rules laid down by the coaches' union and get out on the limb and start sawing. I believe we will have a small, fast, alert team this year

Gala Reception For Grid Varsity

The football team arrived home from Texas at 8:15 this morning amid a welcoming committee composed of a huge throng of Villanova students and the college band, which braved early winter's icy blasts to pound out a few welcoming tunes for the Wildcats.

Clipper Smith and Vince McNally did not arrive with the team, having left the train in Philadelphia. From there in the squad was in the hands of senior manager Dick Monsaert.

Tense Squad

The squad seemed tense and determined as they left the train and appeared oblivious to the terrific noise around them.

Upon his arrival in Philadelphia Smith told newsmen that he was not wholly displeased with Saturday's performance. He believes that the Villanova team played the best ball of the current year. However he does intend several changes in the line-up due to outstanding performances in Texas by such men as Paul Stenn, Bill Prohovich, Ted Bicky, Ed Collins, and Ed Korisky.

One important change which Smith announced this morning was that Ed Collins, senior guard, will call the signals from now in place of the quarterback. This is the second time in recent years that a lineman has been delegated this duty. Jordan Olivari, 1937 tackle, was the last to do the trick.

Elliott's Trackmen Await Competition

After two weeks of training, the trackmen will have their initial race of the current season on Wednesday. Although nothing more than a time trial, this event holds importance in the light that it will show the capabilities of the incoming freshman.

Under Coach James (Jumbo) Elliott's system, all trackmen, regardless of their status, whether they be sprinter, hurdler or jumper, run cross country in order to build their stamina and speed. This will be a great help to the indoor men in their coming season.

Desmond Presents Trophy To College

The trophy symbolizing Villanova supremacy in eastern intercollegiate motorboat racing was presented to the Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., yesterday afternoon by Frank Desmond, '43, of Short Hills, New Jersey.

Desmond won the trophy last summer in the Eastern Intercollegiate Championships, winning over such competition as Gar Wood, Jr., son of the famous racer and a student at Tulsa University.

This is the first time that the cup, which is annual competition and must be returned at the end of the year unless successfully defended, has ever been won by Villanova College.

Past winners of the trophy have been such schools as Tulsa University last year, Princeton the two previous years and Columbia, Yale, and others

Commerce Five Holds Mural Lead

Dayhops Trounce Austin and Mendel Days; Fedigan, Austin Tied For Runner-Up Position

Intramural basketball got away to a fast and furious break last Tuesday when six teams were pitted together for an opening debut. In this pre-season start all the outcomes were air-tight with the winning team coming through in the last few minutes to snatch victory.

On top of the heap, C&F's burly outfit, took the measure of both Austin Hall and the Mendel Day Students.

The first game on the schedule proved to be a test of endurance in which C&F, second-half champs of last year, won out over a plucky, but unfortunate Mendel Day-Student five. The score at half time was knotted at 10-10 and at no time during the fray was any team ahead by more than two points. Putting the pressure on in the last moments the lads in white emerged victorious by the score of 27-24.

The Grays were sparked by Burke and Reilly who garnered 12 of their team's total while Coupe and McGurk, returning guards from last year won scoring honors with 8 and 6 points respectively.

Austin Wins

In a close battle between traditional rivals, Austin and Fedigan, the Austin Blues fought an up-hill battle to overcome an early lead taken by Fedigan and barely nosed them out by one point, 29-28. Dan Keating's last-minute foul shot climaxed Austin's win.

The other game of the evening was also a hard fought game between the two freshman halls with Mendel emerging victorious 36-34. Alumni could not get started in the first half and trailed at half time 20-6. The second half was a different story and Alumni almost caught up to their fading opponents.

The main event of the week was the game between C&F and Austin. C&F, composed of the entire club which won the second half crown last year, met Austin, a team of All Intramural stars. C&F proved that they had not ceded the Austinites anything but second place at the most. Austin had the C&F down 24-14 at half time but after that the Austin attack cracked and the C&F attack got under way. and carried them through to a 47-45 victory.

Forkin High Scorer

Thursday night's game proved to be a victory for the Gigaloes, 24-22, but they had a close call. Leading 8-5 at the half, Fedigan just managed to remain at least two points ahead of the Mendel freshmen all through the second half and emerge victorious by that small margin. Forkin, Fedigan ace, scored fifteen of the Gigaloes twenty-four points and tied Buxeda for the highest number of points in one game last week. Buxeda garnered his fifteen against Austin that same afternoon.

The last game of the week was the Mendel Day Students' first victory of the season and that at the expense of Alumni 34-29. Mendel led at the midway point by only one point but they increased it slowly as the game progressed. Father Dunne's charges fought brilliantly in an effort to avoid their second defeat in as many starts but they were unsuccessful. Only four men of the ten who played for Mendel scored any points and each of these scored at least eight each. Rielly led Mendel with eleven points, Amicone was a close second with ten, Dalina managed to get nine, and Depersio caged four field goals for a total of eight points. Tom Koknlein led the losers with eight points, one field goal and six fouls.

This week's schedule will pit C&F against Fedigan this afternoon and C&F against Alumni on Thursday afternoon. This evening Austin will face Alumni and the Mendel Day Students will battle Mendel Residents. Fedigan will play the Mendel Day Students in the first game Thursday evening while Austin will take on the Mendel Residents in the second contest.

Severance Holding Daily Court Drills

Daily for the past week Coach Al Severance has had his basketeers working out in the gym. If it's being in condition that will win his ball games Al certainly isn't taking any chances for the season doesn't open until the first week in December.

Along with the varsity men returning from last year, namely: Yund, Nugent, Robinson, Gerland, Harford and Gray, Al has good prospects in Spector, Woods, Kelty and Calandra who came up from last year's freshman team.

So far the varsity has only been playing offensive ball with the freshmen providing the defense, but it seems as though real scrimmaging will begin in a week or so which means that things have really begun.

BRAY IMPROVING

The condition of Sam Bray, sophomore center who was injured in the opening game of the season, is steadily improving and Sam is expected back in action in a few weeks.

EVEN STEPHEN

In 1939 Villanova's football team scored 67 first downs with the opponents making exactly the same number. However, the 'Cats outgained their opponents in rushing, 1078 yards to 942.

GEORGE McFADDEN

Foes Win Four For .500 Average

Villanova's future and past opponents of the current grid season kept up their record of four winners in every eight as Detroit, Florida, Temple, and P. M. C. ran the weekend gauntlet with success.

Manhattan, Auburn, Duquesne, and Kansas found the going too tough and dropped their respective dukes to a quartet of high-ranking foes.

Feature of the opposition's week from any point of view was Temple's stirring victory over Michigan State at the Owl Stadium last Friday night. A great first half offensive carried the Templars to a 21-19 victory.

Duquesne met its first defeat in two years before Mississippi University 14-6, as Ole Miss continued its winning ways.

Detroit and Manhattan, both future Cat foes, met Friday night with the former winning and remaining undefeated.

P. M. C. topped Blue Ridge College 20-0 on Saturday afternoon while Kansas was taking a lacing from Nebraska under a topheavy 53-2 score.

Florida finally got back on the victory trail by slamming Maryland University, erstwhile Penn foe, by a 19-0 count.

Auburn met its first defeat of the year as the Mustangs of Southern Methodist hit their peak and triumphed 20-13 over the hard fighting but overworked Plainsmen.

THREE ALL-OPPONENTS

Nick Basca, Dave Difillipo, and Andy Chisick earned three of the eleven positions on Detroit University's 1939 All-opponent team.

McFadden Victor In Tennis Tourney

Driving and smashing his way through an array of the seven leading intramural stars, George McFadden of Austin hall, won the Intramural Tennis Championship by defeating the Day Student titlist, Bill Carey of C. & F., (6-1), (6-1).

Last year a great future was predicted to be in store for McFadden, who was a freshman from Alumni hall, gained the final round only to be beaten by Ralf Terraciano of Austin hall.

This year George entered with a greater determination to win and clinch the Austin hall title. In his drive for the championship, he defeated four of his fellow Austinites. The first to fall was Loring Jones (6-0), (6-0). Then followed Harold King (6-1), (9-7). In the next two he encountered the stiffest competition of the entire tourney. He met Bert Collins, another Austinite, and downed the sturdy Netster after a thrilling match by (4-6), (6-4), (7-5).

The final contest for the Austin crown was with his former rival in Alumni, Chet Pajoleck. Chet also took the first set from the unsteady champ and was leading in the second (5-4), reaching match point several times only to be turned back by the courageous McFadden who took the set at (9-7) and ran through the next one (6-4).

From here on he coasted through with more certainty. George Such, Mendel Champ, fell at (6-4), (6-3). Next in line was Bill Gagen, Alumni Champ, who previously beat Bill Schuman, Fedigan King. At the peak of his form, George ran through Gagen at (6-1), (6-2), to win the Resident Crown.

The one barrier between McFadden and the coveted Intramural Championship was Bill Carey, Day Student Champ from the Commerce & Finance School, who gained the title by defeating Art O'Connor of the Arts School and Joe Shinners of the Engineers.

Carey was hardly a match for McFadden as the latter employed a good service and hard drive to carry him through for an easy victory.

Here and There

By Jim Haughton

WITH the regularity of chicken croquettes at wedding breakfasts, the boys in the Ivy League are embarassing one another something awful. First, Yale's Ogden Miller flayed out against subsidized football after Yale's defeat by Penn, the worst in years. He inferred that the Eli could not continue to meet subsidized competition and that study was above athletics at New Haven.

Then the Harvard authorities charged that Penn and Cornell have winning elevens because they liberally subsidize. With the Daily Cornellian retaliating by insisting "that only three members of our first team receive any assistance at all. These men are furnished alumni foundation aid, but in small amounts."

All these remarks allow this department to join in the laugh which every football fan in the nation is having. It's a known fact that subsidization thrives in college today. Yet the lads in the tea and crumpet league have to be so darn hypocritical about the whole thing.

ATHLETES DESERVING

There is nothing wrong with athletic scholarships, as far as this bureau can see. Some of the most successful men we know would never have viewed a college campus if it had not been for their athletic ability. They are just as deserving as the student with parent's who can afford to send him to college.

The alumni want a winning combination, the school enjoys a successful team and the student body thrives on a winner. When the school continues to produce a losing team the support weakens and eventually a change is necessary.

The subject brings to mind a talk we had recently with an Ivy League grad, who also edited the daily publication. He related the situation at his school:

WINNER WANTED

They had a poor football team and the alumni demanded a winner. The school itself would not touch the thing. But the alumni did. They hired a new coach who scoured the country for boys who were both students and athletes, for it's a requirement of the school that the athletes toe the scholastic line, or else. The entire situation now rests in the hands of the athletic committee and the alumni board. Athletes receive alumni regional scholarships and jobs are also found for them. Now they have a winning team and all is well.

A successful football team makes money which supports the minor athletic program. Many large schools could not provide such a program if it were not for football. So why complain about subsidization? All the students benefit. Why not be open and above board about the whole situation? The Daily Princetonian was when it commented on the Yale-Harvard problem. They said: "The A. A. is going to be forced to dig-up additional 'outside' funds in the future unless it curtails Princeton's minor sports program. As we see it, there is only one logical way to obtain that income; sale of the broadcasting rights to Palmer Stadium.

"To us it is quite obvious that sale of radio rights has no effect on football whatsoever — Yale's record proves the point. It is no more than a handy way to raise cash to support money losing sports. In short, it is the ideal way for Princeton to boost its A. A. out of the red."

CAMPUS CHATTER — Jack Thoma received a fine write-up in a recent edition of the Sporting News, the baseball publication. It related how Jack hit .424 to lead the Albany Twilight League and that the Yanks, Red Sox and A's were anxious to sign him. Paul Kritchell, Yankee ivory hunter, just last week tried to secure an option on Jack, but he refused, feeling he can do better. Dan Casey also played in this league. . .

Baylor

over, but Head Linesman Dr. Leo Allred, decided against them and allowed the score. Nelson then converted the extra point.

Time ebbed away and with it came the lessened chance for the 'Cats to redeem themselves. They were stymied with every thrust and in complete contrast to their previous threats were not given the slightest advantage to score.

Villanova made the breaks of the first half but remained confused and shy as they neared the goal line. The first came in the early minutes of the game, after Ed Korisky, who played 60 minutes of great football, intercepted a Baylor pass on the Bear's 47. Eusko promptly went back doing the pitching and found his spot in Ben Morkum, but the fleet-foot quarterback misjudged the ball as it went soaring through his hands.

Howlett's Kick

Back came the 'Cats again but two pass plays were unsuccessful as was a running play and they were forced to kick. Bill Howlett duplicating the kicking of his famed brother "Buzz," angled the ball out on the one-yard line to place Baylor deeper in trouble. Standing in the end zone Parks barely got the ball away and it went out on the 29-yard line. In came Nick Basca and he promptly completed to Rosato on the 11, but again the 'Cats were missing as two running plays were killed and a pass was incomplete. On the last down Basca went back to attempt a field goal, but the ball sailed wide of the uprights.

Another try for a field goal came a little later but it, too, was a failure. Perhaps that was the last chance for the Wildcats to score for they had a golden opportunity when they recovered a blocked kick on the 8-yard line, but their finesse was gone.

Baylor entirely through the second half broke up Eusko's passes and consistently a big end, named Russel, broke through and handed the 'Cats large losses. The running plays were not at all mystifying to the Bears as they allowed only three first downs to their opponents via rushing. The only bright spot of the night was the punting duel between Howlett and Parks.

that should come through the gruelling schedule with a good record. I hope I'm right, but hold your fire if I'm not. Yours for a few touchdowns and a few breaks that are long overdue."

The Titans have been justifying his prediction so far this season, being undefeated. They opened by defeating Wayne College, also from Detroit, 42-7. The following week avenged last year's defeat by Catholic U. by tripping the Cardinals 14-0. Michigan State Normal was no match for the Titans, going down 47-0, and last Friday night defeated Manhattan, 6-0.

This game appears to be the springboard which is going to send one of these teams through to probably a great season.

Shibe Park is the place, Sunday, 2 P. M., is the time. The Atlantic Network will carry the game to its listeners over WIP. Byrum Saam, as usual is the commentator.

Epifanio, Murphy Head 'Rec' Room

A visit to the field house this past week revealed a marked increase in activity there. Cries of "Set 'em up on the first alley, Joe!" and "C'mon, Jack! I'll shoot you a game of fifty!" were heard, heralding the opening of the new recreational season of bowling and pool at the field house.

Bowling, which dates back to prehistoric days, is now the favorite indoor sport in America. In recognition of the increasing popularity of this healthful recreation, the alleys have been refinished for accommodating the busiest season yet.

The pool tables have been put in readiness for the expected rush during the fall and winter months. The fascination and test of skill which it offers makes pool one of the most popular indoor recreations.

Open Afternoons

Bill Epifano and Red Murphy, who are in charge of the alleys and pool, tables have announced that these facilities will be open to all students between 1:30 and 5:30 every afternoon but Sunday.

As an added incentive to enjoy these recreations, tournaments are to be scheduled in the near future in both bowling and pool. Individual trophies will be given to the respective winners and medals will be awarded to the runners-ups.

Anyone wishing to enter the competition may do so by registering with either one of the caretakers.

Bowlers will have the services of pinboys this year. In past seasons the absence of pinboys was the chief fault of the alley management. Epifanio and Murphy have guaranteed that this will not be the case this year.

LOMBARDO ALL-CATHOLIC

Frank Lombardo, senior fullback on the 150 pound team and a leading candidate for "Little All-American" honors this year, was chosen All-Catholic when playing for St. Joseph's Prep in Philadelphia during the 1936 season.

FIRST STRINGER

Johnny Mellus '38 has recovered from recent injuries and is again holding down regular tackle position on the New York Giants.

Stan Stress Nears Grid Finale; Plans Career In Accounting

By FRED CLARK

Stan Stress is not a big fellow as the general run of football players go. He stands five foot ten and tips the beams at 175 pounds.

Regardless of his small stature, however, Stan manages to take care of himself on the gridiron and is a definite asset to the team while he is in the lineup. There are always one or two players on a football squad who although they are small in size nevertheless possess a certain undefinable quality that makes them equal to the two hundred pounders in playing ability if not in size. Stan Stress is endowed with that quality if anyone is.

Stan hails from Chester, Pa., where he was born twenty-one years ago last January. This makes Stan the second youngest senior on the Villanova squad, with Lindy Kolends gaining the "baby" honors.

Stan was tabbed as one of the greatest all-around athletes ever to graduate from Chester High, at which school he received letters in four sports — football, baseball, basketball and track. Stan cavorted at the guard and tackle positions in his Sophomore and Junior years in High School but in his senior year he shifted to end and it was in that slot that he really went to town.

Not only did his team cop the Philadelphia Suburban Championship that year but also Stan himself was a unanimous choice on the Philadelphia All - Scholastic team.

Stan possesses the unique honor of being the only Senior football player in the Commerce and Finance School here at Villanova. He is majoring in Accounting and has a job in that field waiting for him when he graduates this coming June.

Plays Ball

During the summer vacation Stan divides his time between working in the Accounting Department of the Baldwin Locomotive Co. and playing baseball. Last summer Stan roved the outer garden for the St. Hedwig's Club of the Chester League and his slugging had no little to do with the fact that his team won the championship of that league.

Beaten Once

Those Texas Aggies shattered more than one winning streak when they defeated the Wildcats last year. Not only did they inflict the first loss on a Villanova team in twenty-two straight contests but also they put an end to a personal winning streak belonging to Stan Stress. Up until that game Stan had never played in a losing game throughout three years of high school and two years of college competition. Is it any wonder that Stan does not like the sound of the word "Kimbrough?"

Kimbrough Best

In true Villanova fashion and tradition, Stan names John Kimbrough, of Texas A. and M., the greatest individual competitor and Detroit U. as the best team he faced in his three years as a varsity player.

STAN STRESS . . . Future Accountant

Stan has a pet ambition and we hope he realizes that ambition in this, his senior year. He would enjoy nothing more than to score a touchdown via the end-around play. How about saving that one for the Temple game, Stan?

HOW THEY GOT IT

Detroit University's football team earned their sobriquet, Titans, in 1919 when a sportswriter impessed by the size of the team members hit upon the name. Previously they were known as the "Tigers."

Commerce Five Holds Mural Lead

Dayhops Trounce Austin and Mendel Days; Fedigan, Austin Tied For Runner-Up Position

Intramural basketball got away to a fast and furious break last Tuesday when six teams were pitted together for an opening debut. In this pre-season start all the outcomes were air-tight with the winning team coming through in the last few minutes to snatch victory.

On top of the heap, C&F's burly outfit, took the measure of both Austin Hall and the Mendel Day Students.

The first game on the schedule proved to be a test of endurance in which C&F, second-half champs of last year, won out over a plucky, but unfortunate Mendel Day-Student five. The score at half time was knotted at 10-10 and at no time during the fray was any team ahead by more than two points. Putting the pressure on in the last moments the lads in white emerged victorious by the score of 27-24.

The Grays were sparked by Burke and Reilly who garnered 12 of their team's total while Coupe and McGurk, returning guards from last year won scoring honors with 8 and 6 points respectively.

Austin Wins

In a close battle between traditional rivals, Austin and Fedigan, the Austin Blues fought an up-hill battle to overcome an early lead taken by Fedigan and barely nosed them out by one point, 29-28. Dan Keating's last-minute foul shot climaxed Austin's win.

The other game of the evening was also a hard fought game between the two freshman halls with Mendel emerging victorious 36-34. Alumni could not get started in the first half and trailed at half time 20-6. The second half was a different story and Alumni almost caught up to their fading opponents.

The main event of the week was the game between C&F and Austin. C&F, composed of the entire club which won the second half crown last year, met Austin, a team of All Intramural stars. C&F proved that they had not ceded the Austinites anything but second place at the most. Austin had the C&F down 24-14 at half time but after that the Austin attack cracked and the C&F attack got under way, and carried them through to a 47-45 victory.

Forkin High Scorer

Thursday night's game proved to be a victory for the Gigaloes, 24-22, but they had a close call. Leading 8-5 at the half, Fedigan just managed to remain at least two points ahead of the Mendel freshmen all through the second half and emerge victorious by that small margin. Forkin, Fedigan ace, scored fifteen of the Gigaloes twenty-four points and tied Buxeda for the highest number of points in one game last week. Buxeda garnered his fifteen against Austin that same afternoon.

The last game of the week was the Mendel Day Students' first victory of the season and that at the expense of Alumni 34-29. Mendel led at the midway point by only one point but they increased it slowly as the game progressed. Father Dunne's charges fought brilliantly in an effort to avoid their second defeat in as many starts but they were unsuccessful. Only four men of the ten who played for Mendel scored any points and each of these scored at least eight each. Rielly led Mendel with eleven points, Amicone was a close second with ten, Dalina managed to get nine, and Depersio caged four field goals for a total of eight points. Tom Koknlein led the losers with eight points, one field goal and six fouls.

This week's schedule will pit C&F against Fedigan this afternoon and C&F against Alumni on Thursday afternoon. This evening Austin will face Alumni and the Mendel Day Students will battle Mendel Residents. Fedigan will play the Mendel Day Students in the first game Thursday evening while Austin will take on the Mendel Residents in the second contest.

Severance Holding Daily Court Drills

Daily for the past week Coach Al Severance has had his basketeers working out in the gym. If it's being in condition that will win his ball games Al certainly isn't taking any chances for the season doesn't open until the first week in December.

Along with the varsity men returning from last year, namely: Yund, Nugent, Robinson, Gerland, Harford and Gray, Al has good prospects in Spector, Woods, Kelty and Calandra who came up from last year's freshman team.

So far the varsity has only been playing offensive ball with the freshmen providing the defense, but it seems as though real scrimmaging will begin in a week or so which means that things have really begun.

The condition of Sam Bray, sophomore center who was injured in the opening game of the season, is steadily improving and Sam is expected back in action in a few weeks.

In 1939 Villanova's football team scored 67 first downs with the opponents making exactly the same number. However, the 'Cats outgained their opponents in rushing, 1078 yards to 942.

GEORGE McFADDEN

Foes Win Four For .500 Average

Villanova's future and past opponents of the current grid season kept up their record of four winners in every eight as Detroit, Florida, Temple, and P. M. C. ran the weekend gauntlet with success.

Manhattan, Auburn, Duquesne, and Kansas found the going too tough and dropped their respective dukes to a quartet of high-ranking foes.

Feature of the opposition's week from any point of view was Temple's stirring victory over Michigan State at the Owl Stadium last Friday night. A great first half offensive carried the Templars to a 21-19 victory.

Duquesne met its first defeat in two years before Mississippi University 14-6, as Ole Miss continued its winning ways.

Detroit and Manhattan, both future Cat foes, met Friday night with the former winning and remaining undefeated.

P. M. C. topped Blue Ridge College 20-0 on Saturday afternoon while Kansas was taking a lacing from Nebraska under a topheavy 53-2 score.

Florida finally got back on the victory trail by slamming Maryland University, erstwhile Penn foe, by a 19-0 count.

Auburn met its first defeat of the year as the Mustangs of Southern Methodist hit their peak and triumphed 20-13 over the hard fighting but overworked Plainsmen.

THREE ALL-OPPONENTS

Nick Basca, Dave Difillipo, and Andy Chisick earned three of the eleven positions on Detroit University's 1939 All-opponent team.

McFadden Victor In Tennis Tourney

Driving and smashing his way through an array of the seven leading intramural stars, George McFadden of Austin hall, won the Intramural Tennis Championship by defeating the Day Student titlist, Bill Carey of C. & F., (6-1), (6-1).

Last year a great future was predicted to be in store for McFadden, who was a freshman from Alumni hall, gained the final round only to be beaten by Ralf Terraciano of Austin hall.

This year George entered with a greater determination to win and clinch the Austin hall title. In his drive for the championship, he defeated four of his fellow Austinites. The first to fall was Loring Jones (6-0), (6-0). Then followed Harold King (6-1), (9-7). In the next two he encountered the stiffest competition of the entire tourney. He met Bert Collins, another Austinite, and downed the sturdy Netster after a thrilling match by (4-6), (6-4), (7-5).

The final contest for the Austin crown was with his former rival in Alumni, Chet Pajoleck. Chet also took the first set from the unsteady champ and was leading in the second (5-4), reaching match point several times only to be turned back by the courageous McFadden who took the set at (9-7) and ran through the next one (6-4).

From here on he coasted through with more certainty. George Such, Mendel Champ, fell at (6-4), (6-3). Next in line was Bill Gagen, Alumni Champ, who previously beat Bill Schuman, Fedigan King. At the peak of his form, George ran through Gagen at (6-1), (6-2), to win the Resident Crown.

The one barrier between McFadden and the coveted Intramural Championship was Bill Carey, Day Student Champ from the Commerce & Finance School, who gained the title by defeating Art O'Connor of the Arts School and Joe Shinners of the Engineers.

Carey was hardly a match for McFadden as the latter employed a good service and hard drive to carry him through for an easy victory.

Here and There

By Jim Haughton

WITH the regularity of chicken croquettes at wedding breakfasts, the boys in the Ivy League are embarassing one another something awful. First, Yale's Ogden Miller flayed out against subsidized football after Yale's defeat by Penn, the worst in years. He inferred that the Eli could not continue to meet subsidized competition and that study was above athletics at New Haven.

Then the Harvard authorities charged that Penn and Cornell have winning elevens because they liberally subsidize. With the Daily Cornellian retaliating by insisting "that only three members of our first team receive any assistance at all. These men are furnished alumni foundation aid, but in small amounts."

All these remarks allow this department to join in the laugh which every football fan in the nation is having. It's a known fact that subsidization thrives in college today. Yet the lads in the tea and crumpet league have to be so darn hypocritical about the whole thing.

ATHLETES DESERVING

There is nothing wrong with athletic scholarships, as far as this bureau can see. Some of the most successful men we know would never have viewed a college campus if it had not been for their athletic ability. They are just as deserving as the student with parent's who can afford to send him to college.

The alumni want a winning combination, the school enjoys a successful team and the student body thrives on a winner. When the school continues to produce a losing team the support weakens and eventually a change is necessary.

The subject brings to mind a talk we had recently with an Ivy League grad, who also edited the daily publication. He related the situation at his school:

WINNER WANTED

They had a poor football team and the alumni demanded a winner. The school itself would not touch the thing. But the alumni did. They hired a new coach who scoured the country for boys who were both students and athletes, for it's a requirement of the school that the athletes toe the scholastic line, or else. The entire situation now rests in the hands of the athletic committee and the alumni board. Athletes receive alumni regional scholarships and jobs are also found for them. Now they have a winning team and all is well.

A successful football team makes money which supports the minor athletic program. Many large schools could not provide such a program if it were not for football. So why complain about subsidization? All the students benefit. Why not be open and above board about the whole situation? The Daily Princetonian was when it commented on the Yale-Harvard problem. They said: "The A. A. is going to be forced to dig-up additional 'outside' funds in the future unless it curtails Princeton's minor sports program. As we see it, there is only one logical way to obtain that income; sale of the broadcasting rights to Palmer Stadium.

"To us it is quite obvious that sale of radio rights has no effect on football whatsoever — Yale's record proves the point. It is no more than a handy way to raise cash to support money losing sports. In short, it is the ideal way for Princeton to boost its A. A. out of the red."

CAMPUS CHATTER — Jack Thoma received a fine write-up in a recent edition of the Sporting News, the baseball publication. It related how Jack hit .424 to lead the Albany Twilight League and that the Yanks, Red Sox and A's were anxious to sign him. Paul Kritchell, Yankee ivory hunter, just last week tried to secure an option on Jack, but he refused, feeling he can do better. Dan Casey also played in this league. . .

over, but Head Linesman Dr. Leo Allred, decided against them and allowed the score. Nelson then converted the extra point.

Time ebbed away and with it came the lessened chance for the 'Cats to redeem themselves. They were stymied with every thrust and in complete contrast to their previous threats were not given the slightest advantage to score.

Villanova made the breaks of the first half but remained confused and shy as they neared the goal line. The first came in the early minutes of the game, after Ed Korisky, who played 60 minutes of great football, intercepted a Baylor pass on the Bear's 47. Eusko promptly went back doing the pitching and found his spot in Ben Morkum, but the fleet-foot quarterback misjudged the ball as it went soaring through his hands.

Howlett's Kick

Back came the 'Cats again but two pass plays were unsuccessful as was a running play and they were forced to kick. Bill Howlett duplicating the kicking of his famed brother "Buzz," angled the ball out on the one-yard line to place Baylor deeper in trouble. Standing in the end zone Parks barely got the ball away and it went out on the 29-yard line. In came Nick Basca and he promptly completed to Rosato on the 11, but again the 'Cats were missing as two running plays were killed and a pass was incomplete. On the last down Basca went back to attempt a field goal, but the ball sailed wide of the uprights.

Another try for a field goal came a little later but it, too, was a failure. Perhaps that was the last chance for the Wildcats to score for they had a golden opportunity when they recovered a blocked kick on the 8-yard line, but their finesse was gone.

Baylor entirely through the second half broke up Eusko's passes and consistently a big end, named Russel, broke through and handed the 'Cats large losses. The running plays were not at all mystifying to the Bears as they allowed only three first downs to their opponents via rushing. The only bright spot of the night was the punting duel between Howlett and Parks.

that should come through the gruelling schedule with a good record. I hope I'm right, but hold your fire if I'm not. Yours for a few touchdowns and a few breaks that are long overdue."

The Titans have been justifying his prediction so far this season, being undefeated. They opened by defeating Wayne College, also from Detroit, 42-7. The following week avenged last year's defeat by Catholic U. by tripping the Cardinals 14-0. Michigan State Normal was no match for the Titans, going down 47-0, and last Friday night defeated Manhattan, 6-0.

This game appears to be the springboard which is going to send one of these teams through to probably a great season.

Shibe Park is the place, Sunday, 2 P. M., is the time. The Atlantic Network will carry the game to its listeners over WIP. Byrum Saam, as usual is the commentator.

Epifanio, Murphy Head 'Rec' Room

A visit to the field house this past week revealed a marked increase in activity there. Cries of "Set 'em up on the first alley, Joe!" and "C'mon, Jack! I'll shoot you a game of fifty!" were heard, heralding the opening of the new recreational season of bowling and pool at the field house.

Bowling, which dates back to prehistoric days, is now the favorite indoor sport in America. In recognition of the increasing popularity of this healthful recreation, the alleys have been refinished for accommodating the busiest season yet.

The pool tables have been put in readiness for the expected rush during the fall and winter months. The fascination and test of skill which it offers makes pool one of the most popular indoor recreations.

Open Afternoons

Bill Epifano and Red Murphy, who are in charge of the alleys and pool, tables have announced that these facilities will be open to all students between 1:30 and 5:30 every afternoon but Sunday.

As an added incentive to enjoy these recreations, tournaments are to be scheduled in the near future in both bowling and pool. Individual trophies will be given to the respective winners and medals will be awarded to the runners-ups.

Anyone wishing to enter the competition may do so by registering with either one of the caretakers.

Bowlers will have the services of pinboys this year. In past seasons the absence of pinboys was the chief fault of the alley management. Epifanio and Murphy have guaranteed that this will not be the case this year.

LOMBARDO ALL-CATHOLIC

Stan Stress Nears Grid Finale; Plans Career In Accounting

By FRED CLARK

Stan Stress is not a big fellow as the general run of football players go. He stands five foot ten and tips the beams at 175 pounds.

Regardless of his small stature, however, Stan manages to take care of himself on the gridiron and is a definite asset to the team while he is in the lineup. There are always one or two players on a football squad who although they are small in size nevertheless possess a certain undefinable quality that makes them equal to the two hundred pounders in playing ability if not in size. Stan Stress is endowed with that quality if anyone is.

Stan hails from Chester, Pa., where he was born twenty-one years ago last January. This makes Stan the second youngest senior on the Villanova squad, with Lindy Kolends gaining the "baby" honors.

Stan was tabbed as one of the greatest all-around athletes ever to graduate from Chester High, at which school he received letters in four sports — football, baseball, basketball and track. Stan cavorted at the guard and tackle positions in his Sophomore and Junior years in High School but in his senior year he shifted to end and it was in that slot that he really went to town.

STAN STRESS . . . Future Accountant

Not only did his team cop the Philadelphia Suburban Championship that year but also Stan himself was a unanimous choice on the Philadelphia All - Scholastic team.

Stan possesses the unique honor of being the only Senior football player in the Commerce and Finance School here at Villanova. He is majoring in Accounting and has a job in that field waiting for him when he graduates this coming June.

Plays Ball

During the summer vacation Stan divides his time between working in the Accounting Department of the Baldwin Locomotive Co. and playing baseball. Last summer Stan roved the outer garden for the St. Hedwig's Club of the Chester League and his slugging had no little to do with the fact that his team won the championship of that league.

Beaten Once

Those Texas Aggies shattered more than one winning streak when they defeated the Wildcats last year. Not only did they inflict the first loss on a Villanova team in twenty-two straight contests but also they put an end to a personal winning streak belonging to Stan Stress. Up until that game Stan had never played in a losing game throughout three years of high school and two years of college competition. Is it any wonder that Stan does not like the sound of the word "Kimbrough?"

Kimbrough Best

In true Villanova fashion and tradition, Stan names John Kimbrough, of Texas A. and M., the greatest individual competitor and Detroit U. as the best team he faced in his three years as a varsity player.

Stan has a pet ambition and we hope he realizes that ambition in this, his senior year. He would enjoy nothing more than to score a touchdown via the end-around play. How about saving that one for the Temple game, Stan?

HOW THEY GOT IT

Detroit University's football team earned their sobriquet, Titans, in 1919 when a sportswriter impessed by the size of the team members hit upon the name. Previously they were known as the "Tigers."

Weary Student Decides Work Of Commerce Course Is Tough

By DAVID N. REARDON

WHAT a time there was in the C&F school today-!! who said this was a comic and frolic course. Four hours of class and about six hours of assignments. If we didn't have so much fun listening to the views of our profs, I'd be inclined to say it was pretty dry.

First was Dean Bartley's Economics History cla-a-ass, with its causes of the Industrial Revolution. Then we listened to a learned discussion in that ever important, indispensible course, Accounting, taught by that effervescent personality, Mr. Schaefer. He commented on debits and credits and trial balances and balance sheets and adjustments and statements and all those brain-twisters.

Loquacious Leatherneck

Mr. Dougherty's class in Money, Credit and Banking was great after we heard who was the best presidential candidate and how the Irish marines could lick all of Hitler's army. Variety is the spice of life, especially in class. I can't wait 'till I get statistics!

After lunch we listened to a brilliant discourse on court trial by our lawyer-graduate-professor, Mr. Henry. With this a long strenuous day of class was concluded.

Now a brief interlude on the football field during which time numerous bruises were acquired along with a tremendous loss of energy, after which we retreated to our room where the long tedious day and night's work commenced.

Hit The Books

Economics took about an hour and a half which was spent in reading and re-reading the chapter, along with answering a couple of questions. Who invented supply and demand anyway? Then for a three-quarter hour session with Modern European History. This man Henry the Eighth was some guy. Wow!

After trying to digest a hurried meal, we trampled back to beat the books a little harder

An outline of the Money and Banking chapter included all about the gold in the ground down in Kentucky. It said that it was still good; just wait and see. This Federal Reserve is really something, too. Contracts was next; it took about an hour to brief half-a-dozen cases. My hand is starting to get sore from writing so much.

Closing Entries

But now a short rest is in order in the form of an interesting radio program. However, only falling asleep more quickly, we returned to finish the night's work. Between naps an accounting problem was solved, ruled, closed, and tabbed.

By this time the midnight oil was running pretty low and so to bed. Oh-h-h, this bed really feels good. A-h-h.

American Red Cross Desires Blood Bank For War Protection

Villanova students, in a recent appeal issued by the American Red Cross, have been asked to secure blood donors between the ages of eighteen and forty-five who will create a stock of blood clots for the use of the National Government in the Preparedness program, whereby it will be made easier to treat any shock cases which may result.

While the United States is preparing for the ensuing eventualities which may occur, there must be two lines of thought. First and foremost, we must be physically fit before we may consider ourselves a fit country to take care of our citizens in any crises which may arise. The best drilled army in the world is useless without the prerequisite of health of its members.

In order to further this need for healthy men, the assistance of the American Red Cross has been enlisted. This organization is asking for the cooperation of all men and women in the land and is now asking in particular for the members of the various colleges to help by donating their blood to the men who may in the future need it.

College students who have reached twenty-one years of age are eligible for the draft but have been given by special consideration of Congress a deferred rating until the end of the school year so that they may complete their college year. The government has been fair enough to give this special concession to the college youth of the land so, in like manner, why shouldn't the college boys see fit to repay this favor in this small way?

Though it may seem trivial to some of us, there really is a national crisis emitting from this lack of preparedness in our health institutions. This delay in strengthening the health of our inhabitants must be overcome as soon as possible and we of Villanova College can do our part by volunteering for this blood donation at the local chapter of the American Red Cross in Bryn Mawr.

Human Equation

Fr. Dougherty Stresses Importance of Correct Appearance to Science Students

"Every man who graduates from Villanova will carry into the world the training and influences of Villanova College. It is therefore imperative that each man while a student at this college become acquainted with the importance of Human Equation — that equation which marks each man as an individual, different from all other individuals." On this keynote Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., Dean of the Schol of Science, addressed the weekly meeting of the Science Forum last Thursday.

"Conduct and appearance are deciding factors in this Equation," continued the Dean. "Men of college age should be able to conduct themselves as gentlemen at all times, and they should always look and carry themselves like gentlemen. Remember the clothes make them an only if ther are neatly and meticulously arranged."

Fr. Dougherty continued by saying that, as future doctors and dentists, students should form habits now which will help them hold the positions of honor and respect that their future lives will demand.

"We are proud of our Science School," the Dean added. "During the nine-year period ending in 1939, four hundred Villanova students have matriculated at seventy-one medical schools in this country. This is an average of approximately forty boys per year who were admitted to medical schools from Villanova.

"In respect to admissions to medical schools, Villanova's Science School ranks thirty-third on a list consisting of some nine hundred colleges and universities in the United States."

Father Dougherty concluded by urging the present student body to maintain this standing by pursuing their studies as true Villanova men.

Fr. Deacy Invests 105 At Chestnut Hill Rites

Very Rev. William J. Deacy, O. S. A., Prior of St. Mary's Hall and religion instructor of Villanova College, clothed 105 new students of the College of Chestnut Hill on the occasion of the annual investiture ceremonies on Monday, October 14, at 4:30 P. M. at Chestnut Hill.

In his address of welcome at this quaint ceremony, Fr. Deacy traced the history of the academic cap and gown back to the religious habit of the medieval friar.

The ceremony closed with the announcement of the college's Dean's Honor List for the past year and a tea for the faculty and students.

Motion Pictures on Sound, Light, Energy Open K. G. S. Season

Sound pictures dealing with sound, light and energy which were shown by George Weber, sophomore science man, featured the first formal meeting of the year of the Kappa Gamma Sigma Society, last Friday. Three reels were shown; each reel showed the fundamental principles of the subject matter and then applied them to everyday events in a manner which demonstrated the pedegogic advantage of talking pictures.

The next meeting of the society will be held on Friday at 10:45 A. M. in the physics laboratory when a paper will be presented by Harold Varani, sophomore science man.

President Gambescia asks that all who seek membership in the society fill out anapplication as soon as possible. The last date for submitting applications has been set at November 1. All applications must be returned on or before the deadline in order for the applicant to bec onsidered for membership for the year '41-'42. Applications may be procured from any of the officers or at the information booth.

THREE HYMNS

"The Rosary," by Ethelbert Navan; "Panis Angelicus" by Caesar Franck; and variations on "Ave Maria, Thou Virgin and Mother" constitute the organ program given by the Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., tonight after chapel.

STAFF MEETS

At the regular weekly meeting of the VILLANOVAN staff today at 1:00, the second "writer rating" sheet of the year will be posted.

DPE Frat Selects Committee to Plan Initiation Program

At a meeting last Thursday of Delta Pi Epsilon, commerce school fraternity, elections were held for membership in the initiation committee and Daniel J. Haley, George J. Coupe, William Murphy, David N. Reardon, James Jernee, and "Scotty" McAlloon were elected.

These students will have complete charge of the orientation of present and future members. The program that is conceived by the initiation committee will be the nucleus of a well-balanced social season.

Thomas H. Doyle, secretary of the organization, was named chairman of the membership committee in accordance with the rules of the constitution. Robert F. Donovan, William J. Epifanio, Thomas Devinney, and John J. Weber complete the committee.

Another feature of the meeting was an explanation of the payment of dues. It has been decided after entrance new members will pay three dollars and a quarter, to be divided as follows: initiation fee, one dollar; annual dues, two dollars; and service fee, twenty-five cents.

A motion was presented during the course of the meeting that membership cards be inaugurated; this proposal is being investigated by Doyle and Joseph A. Barnes.

President Flannery announced that meetings hereafter will be held weekly on Thursdays at 1:10 P. M.

Beta Gamma Has Voting-Eve Talk

Open Discussion on Roosevelt vs. Willkie Will Follow Affair on Nov. 4

Willkie vs. Roosevelt! Beta Gamma varsity debating society opens its 1940-1941 season with a political election-eve debate on Monday evening, November 4, at 8:00 in the Mendel Amphitheatre. All students are invited to attend regardless of political affiliations.

The debate subject will be: Resolved that President Roosevelt should be elected for a third term. Open discussion will follow the debate.

Considering the timely topic and the fact that politically-minded students are given the opportunity to interrogate the speakers, a large crowd is expected to attend.

At the first meeting of the organization, plans for the regular season, which will begin shortly before Christmas vacation, were presented by the Chairman, Thomas Moore. The major competition of the year will consist of the society's participation in the Philadelphia Forensic League.

The league has been in existence for two years and its membership includes Drexel Institute, Temple, Swarthmore, Pennsylvania Evening School, Rosemont, Immaculata, St. Joseph's, Charles Morris Price Forum, and Villanova. The team winning the competition is presented with a trophy which becomes its permanent possession. A council composed of one member from each team is the governing body and will decide the topic or topics to be discussed in competition.

Two trips, one to the surrounding colleges of New York City and the other to up-state Pennsylvania are contemplated together with radio debates. Beta Gamma this year is obtaining its own office and equipment. Its membership was considerably depleted by last year's graduation but prospective candidates numbered over twenty at the first meeting.

Those interested in joining should consult the bulletin board for information as to the time and place of future meetings.

Library Receives Historical Books

The Villanova college library has recently been the recipient of a number of books and other items associated with the early history of Catholicity in Philadelphia and the founding of Villanova College. These historical items have come to the college through the generosity of Miss Elizabeth Shea of Germantown, whose family traditions are closely entwined with the Catholic Rudolph family of Revolutionary days. The family estate of the Rudolphs, Belle Air, is now the campus of Villanova College, having been purchased for this purpose in 1842.

Among the books donated is a copy of the Carey Stewart Bible printed in Philadelphia in 1790. This Bible is the first American edition of the Douay-Rheims version of the Scriptures. It is an "All Philadelphia" product. John Baine cast the type and it was printed and published by Carey Stewart. The copy presented to Villanova was the bible of the Rudolph family, and their obituaries are written therein. The name of John Rudolph, the last owner of Belle Air, is printed among the many subscribers who helped to finance the publication of this monumental Catholic work.

Other books in the collection are valuable not only as American publications, but also because they indicate what the early Catholics of Philadelphia read.

There is also a life of Bishop Challoner printed in 1784. This work contains marginal notes and the signature of Thomas Lloyd. Bishop Challoner was associated with the Lloyds in England during the eighteenth century, at a time when the Catholic church was proscribed by law and fidelity to Catholic practices was a crime before

In Position To Play For Seminar

The above trio from Curtis Institute will be guest artists of the Music Seminar two weeks hence. They are Miss Kuehne, violinist, left; Miss Flissler, pianist, center; and Miss Schaefer, violincellist, right.

Curtis Institute Trio Visits

Music Seminar on Nov. 6, Featuring Miss Kuehne, Violinist, Miss Schaefer, Violincellist, and Miss Flissler, Pianist

Marguerite Kuehne, violinist, Winifred Schaefer, violincellist, and Eileen Flissler, pianist, students at the Curtis Institute of Music of Philadelphia, are to be the guest artists of the Music Seminar to be held on Wednesday, November 6.

Marguerite Kuehne's home is in Los Angeles and while studying the violin in that city she appeared as soloist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra under conductors Artur Rodzinski and Otto Klemperer and also with the orchestra in Hollywood Bowl, Sir Hamilton Harty conducting. Miss Kuehne has studied the violin more than half her life. At the Curtis Institute of Music, her violin teacher is Mr. Efrem Zimbalist. Last spring Miss Kuehne won an audition which will give her an appearance as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra in the Concerts for Youth this season.

Winifred Schaefer was born in Prescott, Washington, and her home now is in Yakima in the same state. She began to study music at the age of ten and selected the 'cello, which would appear to be an unwieldy instrument for one so young. However, Miss Winifred was successful in playing it, even then. She played in numerous concerts in Yakima, was a member of a string trio for three years, and later, while attending Yakima Valley Junior College, was soloist with the college orchestra. She completed the Freshman year, having meanwhile also taken up the piano. She played as a member of the college orchestra and also of the Yakima Symphony Orchestra. During this period she also gave a recital in Seattle. Her 'cello teacher at the Curtis Institute is Mr. Felix Salmond.

Eileen Flissler was born and still lives in New York City. She studied piano privately there, becoming a pupil of Madame Isabelle Vengerova at the age of eight. Later she took some theory courses at the David Mannes School in New York. In 1933 she won a gold medal in a contest held in that city. In 1938 she was accepted at the Curtis Institute of Music, where Madame Vengerova still is her piano teacher. Last March, Miss Flissler appeared as soloist in Philadelphia with the Pennsylvania W. P. A. symphony orchestra in a concert conducted by Mr. Guglielmo Sabatini in Irvin Auditorium of the University of Pennsylvania. She reached her seventeenth birthday last September.

Sociology Seminar Holds Hot Session

Last night the merits of the Roosevelt regime were hotly contested in a discussion sponsored by the Sociology Seminar, under the direction of Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A.

Frederick Kull, science senior, led the Willkie attack by citing dictatorial control exercised by the President, stating that "In certain instances a word from the President was sufficient to cause commodity prices, abnormally high, to fall sharply within 24 hours."

James Donovan, senior arts, ridiculed dictatorial claims by stating that "Mr. Roosevelt is bringing about perfect coordination between labor and capital, whereas Mr. Willkie is allegedly attempting to renew the old domination of labor by capital."

Senior Pix Tomorrow

Proofs of the senior pictures to be used in the "Belle Air" have been returned to the college and will be distributed by William N. Way, photography editor.

On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, November fifth, sixth, and seventh, representatives of Zamsky's studio will be in the Mendel hall reception room to take orders for these pictures. Other shots are on display in the Belle Air office and may also be purchased.

Wendell Willkie Elected President By Student Body

By WILLIAM J. TOY

WENDELL L. WILLKIE was elected by the student body as their choice for President of the United States in the annual VILLANOVAN poll held last week. However, the race was not a runaway, as President Roosevelt was a very close second to gain his third term. Willkie was the choice of 56% of the voters, while F. D. R. garnered 43 out of every hundred votes.

While Willkie and Roosevelt garnered the most votes in this contest, Villanova was not idle. We, too, had an entry in this race. To those of you who wonder who this individual might be, consider yourselves informed that Joseph Barnes, a member of the commerce boys, was given the grand total of two votes by our student body or by himself.

Draft Given O. K.

Now we reach that ultra-touchy problem of the Selective Service law. According to the votes recorded, Villanova students seem to favor our adoption of conscription. However, this was not unanimous and, while the minority was small, it was nevertheless large enough to merit consideration. The proponents of the draft numbered 75% of those casting a ballot, while the dissenters managed to pile up 25% of the votes.

When asked if they favored compulsory military training at college, many of the students did not register any opinion, but the percentage of those approving when compared to those in favor of the draft law is slightly lower. Those in favor of the idea numbered some 70%, while the opponents were getting about 30% of the voters.

Civil Aeronautics training, if the student were not obligated to join the army after he completes his college career, would be accepted by 67% of the students of Villanova College. However, some 33% of our students would have no part of this training even if they needn't resign themselves to an army career after they have graduated from college. The voting in this case is much closer than would naturally be expected because, since the C. A. A. training is given at

Dance Co-Chairmen Invite All Alumni To Attend "Owl Hop"

With the distribution of floaters last Friday came the announcement that all alumni are invited to the annual "Owl Hop," which this year will be a pre-game dance. The announcement was made by Joseph Norton, senior engineer, who is paired with John Maguire, also a senior engineer, as co-chairman of the dance.

The dance will be held in the Field House on Nov. 22, the evening before the last home game. with Duquesne. Written invitations will be sent to all the nearby engineering Alumni and a large crowd of "old grads" is expected to attend the dance and stay for the game the following day.

Dramatists Cast Six One-Act Plays

Belle Masque Will Produce Four Best Nov. 26, Save Others for Later

Six one-act plays have been selected for the annual Dramateurs' Reception to be held in the Field House on Tuesday evening, November 26. From this group, the four best will be staged by Belle Masque that night, while the remaining two will be given in collaboration with neighboring dramatic clubs of Immaculata, Chestnut Hill, and Rosemont on other occasions. The best one-act production of the six adjudged by a special committee, will be staged at the Annual Cultural Olympics held by the University of Pennsylvania in the Spring.

The productions of the group are: "The Curse of Kufu," directed by Robert McIntyre, junior commerce; "Four on a Health," to be given by Joseph McCabe, junior commerce; "Frenzied Finance," staged by Andrew Melton, junior commerce; "A Dress Reversal," led by Frank Buckley, junior commerce; "A Girl to Order," under the leadership of John McGovern, senior commerce; and "The Giant Stair," with James Donovan, senior Arts, directing.

Separate units were organized during the past week and extensive tryouts were conducted. However, there are still several positions to be filled in the production, technical, and business departments.

Aspirants should register with club secretary, John Burke, and then contact the respective directors.

PROSPECTIVE DRAFTEES;

All resident students who registered for the draft and who will not be home to find out their numbers should write their parents to consult the numbers posted and let them know immediately what theirs is, William G. Slaughter, placement director, announced today.

It is absolutely necessary, he said, that all students know their their numbers and report them at once either to him or to Paetrus F. Banmiller, registrar, so that President Stanford can make application for deferrment of those whose numbers are drawn. The college has no way of finding out these numbers unless all students report them.

C&F Dayhops Enter Temple Decoration Test

Five Halls Name Chairmen, Prepare for Annual Chase After Connelly Plaque; Winner Named Nov. 8

By BRUNO J. TALVACCHIA

Preparations for the annual Decorations Contest which, runs this year from Nov. 5-7, have begun with the announcement of a new group to join the field. The campus "Fancy Dress Parade," held prior to the traditional "Philadelphia story" game with Temple University, has a fifth contender in the Commerce and Finance Day-hop group.

The entrants in the contest will compete for the Connelly Plaque and provide the college grounds with the tradition "Beat Temple" atmosphere. The plaque given the winner now rests in Fedigan hall, continual holders of the trophy since its introduction in 1937. Donated by William Connelly, '27, the prize was awarded to Fedigan last year for the third consecutive time. Austin hall being in the runner-up position.

An interesting contest is anticipated by the Student Council, who will act as the judges of the competition. The award to the winner will be made at the climax of the pre-game festivities, the bonfire rally on Nov. 8, the night before the game.

Novel Orientation Of Engineers Held

Mr. John A. Oakey, associate professor of engineering, will explain the why and how of engineering report writing next week to the freshman engineers as part of their new orientation program.

As in former years, during the second semester the freshmen in this school will be addressed by men prominent in different branches of engineering to enable them better to decide on their specific field; however, this year marks the innovation of a series of first-semester talks to orientate them to their course in relation to the college as a whole.

So far this year, they have been addressed by Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., on the general topic of "How to Study"; by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., on the "How to Study" topic from the engineering viewpoint; and by Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., on the worth and use of the library for the student of engineering.

Future plans of the program call for a talk on Nov. 11 by Paetrus F. Banmiller, registrar, on the grading system; on the following Monday by Dr. Paul Loefflad on the subject of "Physical Health"; and by Dr. William H. McHugh a week later on "Mental Health".

A "round-table" discussion will take place on Dec. 2, with Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., discussing music, Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., art, and Dr. Gilbert Macbeth, literature.

The last of the first semester's lectures will take place on Dec. 9, when it is planned to have a personnel manager from a Philadelphia firm give the freshmen pointers on what to do in college to best prepare to fit into a position after graduation.

Describes Origin

Featured by the reading in Spanish of Arsenio Martinez' composition, "The Origin of the Spanish Language," the weekly meeting of the Spanish Club was held last Wednesday.

The composition was later translated into English by Joseph Scornavacchi.

In an effort to have more day students join the club, future meetings will be held each Wednesday at 1:00 P. M., instead of at 7:30 P. M., has has been done in the past.

Still In The Diaper Stage

YESTERDAY, there was posted on all bulletin boards, handed to the moderator of every extra-curricular activity the names of those freshmen who are ineligible to participate in these organizations. They are the names of those who cannot hold office for their class, nor can they serve on any committees for their class. They are no longer active members of the Class of 1944.

Those names are names of little boys. Little boys who came to college to become men. Little boys who can never be but little boys. They cannot obey regulations. Because they have not been hazed, have not had their morales broken down, as in many another college, they walk about as pompous oracles expounding to those who are men that they are fools to obey rules.

To those whose names are posted, it has been shown you do not have the goods to be on your own. When you have proven yourself to be worthy to be a member of the Villanova Class of 1944, your name will be removed from the list.

To those names who have been guilty of violations, and have not been posted, let this be your warning. To those who never need fear of being placed on such a list, we are glad to have you at Villanova.

No Play Postoffice

A NEW ruling has been laid down by the postmaster of Villanova, Pa. Students receiving general delivery service are to come to the postoffice only from 9:00 A. M., to 5:30 P. M. Such a ruling is the result of students overtaxing the privileges granted to them by the postmaster.

It is deemed worth knowing that general delivery means that you are to come for your mail but once a day. However, this has not been the practice of many of the students, especially the freshmen; new from home, they are going down to the postoffice five and six times a day. This causes an unnecessary amount of service, and a great amount of inconvenience for the postal employees.

There are 555 boxes in the post office. Hardly a sizeable number for approximate 1500 residents of Villanova who ees upon the campus, plus the approximately 1500 residents of Villanova who receive their mail at the Villanova postoffice. As can be seen, it is impossible that everyone have a box. There are not enough boxes for the residents of the precinct of Villanova, and in this the students have some justification in not all possessing boxes.

Giving an even distribution of the boxes, only 275 residents of Villanova have boxes. This means that nearly 500 to 700 residents must come for their mail each day. In comparison with this there are but 300 students who are in line each day for general delivery. There are twice as many residents asking for mail as there are students. If the students would limit themselves to going for their mail but once a day, the residents outnumber them. The greater burden will then be upon the postoffice employees in regard to the residents who ask for general delivery, plus the hundred or so box holders who have never learned their combination, and persist in continually asking for their mail at the window. With this in effect, the student will earn the courtesy and respect that the residents now command. There will not exist that preference for residents, the serving of them, to the disregard of the students. There will be no right for its continuance.

A compromise is needed between the postal clerks and the students. Consideration is needed from the residents of Villanova. To them it must be noted that the postoffice is here for our benefit as for theirs. We seldom complain when you make it a habit of placing your three cents for a stamp before it is your turn. We know you do it though.

To the postal clerks, treat us with the same consideration as you would anyone else. To the students, do not make a nuisance of yourselves by going down to the postoffice several times a day. Go down for yourself. Do not ask for others. The government . . . the postoffice . . . is rendering you a great service, Appreciate it.

—M. P. Z.

So We Lost

WELL, we lost our second game of the season last Sunday and many of our "loyal" rooters have given the team up as hopeless. Because of a poor showing against a very good Detroit eleven, these "fair-weather" students have predicted that the rest of the season will be just one loss after another and, therefore, they propose to either boycott the games or attend them and continue the "silent encouragement" that has been so noticeable when Villanova is behind in the score.

Keep it up then, you who attend merely to marvel at great 'Cat teams, you who were the first to say "I go to Villanova" when our great teams of the past were heaped with praise. Keep it up, you few who criticize everything about the team and their play in the last two games and fail to cheer them when they're behind.

We don't care what you say, for you've proven that you haven't the "guts" to root for a team that has failed to go undefeated. Whom we praise are the true student followers who'll stick with their team in adversity, who'll recognize their technical shortcomings and still give all their praise for the fighting spirit displayed against superior teams. And it's these loyal rooters who'll deserve to feel proud when the 'Cats win.

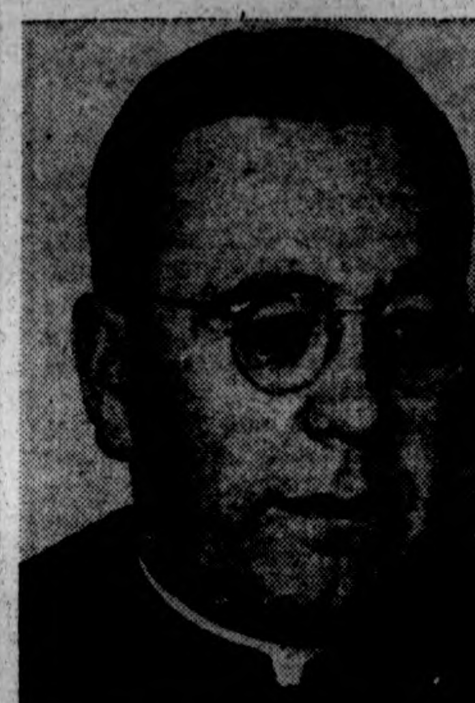
FACULTY COMMENTS

Spain In The United States

By Fr. Lozano



NEW MEXICO, Arizona, and all the states of the Southwest are vying, this year, with one another to celebrate the fourth centenary of Coronado, by staging fiestas, pageants, and religious festivals. Thus, they aim to commemorate the discovery four hundred years ago of the Southwestern States by the Spanish explorer Francisco Vasquez Coronado and to acknowledge his contribution to the building of this country.

Obviously, the government of the United States has gladly joined in this memorial tribute as a good occasion for a new display of Spanish-American friendship. Accordingly, through its cooperation, the Centennial opened with the dedication of the $80,000 Coronado Museum at Bernalillo, New Mexico, as a perpetual symbol to the Spanish Crusade carried on mostly by the Spanish "Padres."

Another gallant gesture on the part of the Federal Government has been the issuing of a new stamp to commemorate the four hundredth anniversary of Coronado's expedition to the Southwest. An artistic design of this three cent stamp was released last September at Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Spanish Memorial

Needless to say, the people of Spain as well as those in the Spanish-speaking countries of the western hemisphere are deeply interested in the Coronado Centennial. In fact, they regard this memorial "fiesta" as a reverent homage to the motherland, Spain. For it was Spain, the evangelizer of half of the world—the Spain of Saint Ignatius of Loyola, Saint Teresa, and Saint John of the Cross that founded, through Coronado and his inseparable "Padres," a Christian civilization in the Southwest. And it was Spain, the Spain of Alfonse the Wise and the Catholic royal couple, Isabella and Ferdinand that in addition to a religion and language, that introduced among the aborigines an agricultural industry and an architectural treasure of an indisputable Spanish origin.

To acknowledge these transcending facts, there has been in conjunction with the Coronado Centennial a five days' Congress at the University of New Mexico where prominent scholars from Mexico, Central and South and North America assembled to study and evaluate the proud heritage that came with Coronado and the Spanish "Padres," four hundred years ago.

Falsification of Motives

On account of this event the University has issued a series of volumes that should be most welcomed by American students and historians, all the more so because of the new light of historic value thrown upon the history of Spanish exploration in the New World.

Tales of the supposed "monstrous cruelties" and "lust for gold" attributed to the Spaniards by some unscrupulous Anglo-Saxon writers has been discredited and confronted with a chain of documental facts gathered and presented by such authors as Dr. Herbert E. Boltan, noted historian of the University of California; Dr. Carlos E. Castaneda, former President of the American Historical Association ;and Dr. David Donoghue of Fort Worth, to mention but a few. All of them emphasize the fact that conquerors and colonizers of all countries have always been stimulated by desire for glory and riches.

Spaniards, of course, were no exception, but along with the thirst of riches and glory they carried a fervent desire to spread Christianity and Spanish civilization throughout the territories they discovered. Glory, therefore, be to Spain, the only nation that was mostly concerned with instructing the natives in the Christian religion.

Indebted to Spain

The United States should always feel indebted to the intrepid Spanish Padres who accompanied the great explorer Coronado and under Spain's protection established missions and taught more than fifty professions to the aborigines for the development and civilization of the Southwest. By joining in the Centennial of Coronado, the United States has gained for itself we believe, more sympathy and good will among the Spanish-speaking peoples.

Children know how to appreciate with pride any honors bestowed upon their mothers; because of this it should never be overlooked that the Spanish-speaking countries, no matter how apart they are from Spain, their soul, their language, and their Christian Faith, were and still remain Spanish. The successes of the United States' attempts to foster better relations with South American States will greatly depend on a thorough understanding of the Spanish soul. And let us not forget that there is need for a fuller understanding of the inherent Christian sentiments of the vast majority of the people of Spain by the Christians of the United States.

If the Southwestern States are showing their appreciation for the Christian civilization they inherited from the Spaniards four hundred years ago, it is to be hoped that the American people will look back not four hundred years but only four years to appreciate what Spain has done in order to preserve the same Christian civilization against our common enemy, Communism.

Sincere Apology

We extend our apologies to Mr. Becker, father of sophomore engineer Joseph J. Becker, for mistakenly printing the notice of his death last week. We hope that the printing of this notice has not caused him any great embarrassment or inconvenience and has not misled his friends.

TYPE CHANGED

To put an end to questions regarding just why the general appearance of the VILLANOVAN this year is different from last, let it be known that the reason lies in the discarding of a few type heads and the addition of others.

Last year, and in former years, the same heads of the paper were composed of 30-point Old Italian Gothic type with 11-point bank, or sub-head, of the same type. Due to the fact that this type was, because of its formal closeness and heighth comparatively hard to read, it has been discarded. Another reason for not continuing its use was the fact that most of the newspapers of the country have been changing from the older, formal type heads, to modern, easier-to-read type.

In the place of this type, 30-point Vogue type was selected for use on the principal news stories. This type, as can readily be seen from a comparison, may be read more swiftly and allows heads to be informal, of varying length, and gives more white space.

In the smaller heads, a more general use is being made of roman and tempo medium type.

In the Sports Section the absence of the old five column dividing head announcing the athletic section has caused some comment. However, the editorial board of the VILLANOVAN has decided that too great an amount of space—ten column inches—was wasted every week when this head was used.

Reports of Secret Stooge X68745
Social Security No. 651-24-309

FOLLOWING your instructions and after hours of grueling cross examination, your operator finally succeeded in penetrating the defense of Subject 2765¾ who bears the name of Joe Santaniello (pronounced Joe Santaniello) hereinafter referred to as Joe.

Why couldn't you have given me some honest to goodness sabotage?

For your records, he occupies 5' 8" of space and adds one hundred and fifty pounds of man to the campus of this beautiful concentration camp. He has an abundant crop of hair which excels my brand. He claims the wave is natural but that is evidently propaganda. He became an income tax exemption 19 years ago and has since resided on Hill 734 (known here as Overbrook, Pa.) His youthful age is probably the result of this government's attempt to speed up production.

A Radical

His radical tendencies are evident in the fact that he was member of both the Student and Athletic Assassination Committees at West Catholic. (Strange, they spell it "association" over here.) To enlarge his field of unjustifiable homicide, he signed a non-aggression pact with that high school's orchestra and the sounds that emanated from his fiddle were as devastating as any of our time bombs.

Here he is marching with gusto towards a career of stethoscopes and stomach pumps, M. D. to you. This aspiring pre-med student has also been a cog in the machine of the college, the VILLANOVAN, for the past three years. In fact, he was judged the ninth best "sees all, hears all, all knows" man in the country two years ago by a rating association. The "Mendel Bulletin" has been within his sphere of influence also.

In other activities he has fulfilled the ambition of this country's youth—to become president of something—by being prexy of the L. K. D. He was treasurer last year and the society is still solvent. Evidently he's an honest man.

And Women! ! !

His associations with women are more or less the "play the field" type. Still, they consider him cute. This is probably due to the power derived from his favorite subject, Histology. At present, Miss Frances (last name censored)' a dayhop at Rosemont College, is the center of his activities. Jos is especially noted and envied for his devastating technique on the busline between Overbrook and Villanova. Constant commuting has made him a well known figure, especially in the eyes of the feminine patronizers. So much so that when he approaches the bus nearly everyone stands up. Of course, some of them are getting out but you can see the devastating effect of his personality.

This is all the dope that can be printed about Subject 2765¾ and if you wish me to shadow him any more let me know by return homing pigeon.

Dear Jean.:

WHAT would you do if your favorite male started to waste away before your very eyes? You can't go without lunch for two weeks without losing something. Fortunately, Bob—that's his name, Bob DePersio—is just losing weight, and not his dark, wavy hair, which is divine, my dear, simply.

I'm also afraid that his dieting may affect his athletic ability, which, his class mates tell me, is all-around. He was all-intramural guard last year, and I'm sure he'd have made the varsity this year if he weren't so busy becoming another Pasteur. He also plays golf and tennis expertly, too, and likes to kick a football around with his pals behind Mendel hall. You can see he's some man — a tall, dark, handsome athlete. What more could I ask?

Of course he was born in Brooklyn, but I can't hold that against him because he had the good sense to move to Philadelphia as soon as he realized his mistake. His secret vice is violin playing, which he fortunately keeps so secret that no one is forced to listen to it. Clothing is something you can't keep secret, and in Bob's case this is a virtue—he's a real Beau Brummel.

He'll never follow in Arthur Murray's footsteps; but he'd rather listen to Tommy Dorsey than dance to him.

He started out as a pre-dent student, but his brother showed him that pre-dent was too down-in-the-mouth, so he decided to follow his brother's example and become an M. D. He prefers immunology to his other subjects — I hope he doesn't become immune to my infection.

Career Man

After graduation he hopes to cut his medical teeth at Jefferson Hospital, and while he has no definite field in mind, he feels that he will find a career to interest him there.

Having a retiring disposition, he does not push himself at school, but he did come out of his shell sufficiently to become a member of the Junior Prom Committee last year and this year he's finding time to be an L. K. D. And oh! . . .he did come forward to help his team carry off honors in a suburban tournament. All of which is pretty good for a retiring disposition.

Well, Jeannie, that's all for now, except that I'm told the VILLANOVAN is doing an article on him which will tell you the whole story. I'm just dying to see it.

Yours,
Betty.

SINCE the last edition of this sordid channel of bits and digs, the birds have headed south, two inches of snow have fallen and Fall made a final appearance. All of which leads up to nothing in particular and less in general, but then that's the way you get when the bats fly too low. However, enough of this nothingness and let's get down to facts or whatever else they're called. . .

LOCAL LOVE STORY:

They say that love knows no season, and this is well shown in the following little narrative. Last Sunday again found the social climbers of the campus wending their respective ways toward Rosemont. The reason — another tea dance. Among the merry band was a certain member of the junior class who was possessed of an indifferent attitude toward the whole affair. But then, when the music started and the lovely Queen of the freshman class glided over the floor, our hero snapped from his lethargy and got himself a dance. With heaven in his arms, he billed and cooed like a little dove and when it was finally over he lingered on still enraptured, finally managing to break away.

They say all "love" stories end happily, but I'm afraid this cannot hold true here, for our hero forgets that he is just another male to this "charmer" and, hence, must look farther afield.

GOSSIP:

The notoriety and fame of Villanova students reaches exciting proportions at times, and so it was with a raising of the eyebrows that we heard this:Murray Zealor and "Stumpy" McCawley are the not-so-silent "crushes" of two seniors at a local institution who are just crazy about the boys. . . .Tom Sheehy, while centering most of his affections on a little lass from Immaculata, nevertheless appears interested in learning a little more about the girls at Rosemont. Won't Immaculata like to hear that? . . .

Jim Jernee and John McGovern are like the Siamese twins — you never see one without the other. If out on a date, we wonder whether the boys ever managed to date twins. . . .Another admirer of our "Queen" mentioned in the little story above is Jim Bonner, a frosh engineer. Maybe he hasn't heard about the junior "lover." . . .

"Izzie" Merlinskie, the "thin man" of the science school, is, of all things, a barber. After such an illuminating discovery we'd like to find out whether he puts into practice any of his tonsorial learning—that receding hair line looks like a walking advertisement for Kreml.

Watching Sid Kaplan during a football game you begin to get the idea that he's walking on eggs. That gait of his is something fresh from the South and can't be duplicated We wonder what has happened to: the snow of last winter; (To our technicolor invite to join the Page Boy Union, Local R. C. 000.)). . .

"Red" Dowling is busy trying to reacquaint himself along the Main Line. Mary D. is attracting a lot of attention, but to what avail? . . . "CLARK G." CERULLO aroused the ire of DON McGUIRK to such an extent during a recent intra-mural game that "Mac" threatened mayhem. However, John is still walking.

Three Cubans Equal Heap Of Education

Peering through registration files, one, two, three names greet the curious eye: Louis Silva, '44, Cienfuegos, Cuba; Joseph Silva, '43, Cienfuegos, Cuba; John Silva, '43, Cienfuegos, Cuba.

They must be brothers, or cousins, or . . . . yes, there's a story!

The information Booth tells us they reside in Austin Hall.

Joe answers the knock on the door; John is playing a friendly game of chess below; Lou is the freshman engineer. He's probably busy with his mathematics. Joe and John are roommates, both sophomores and both extremely pleasant conversationalists.

All three attended Malvern Prep. Summers were spent at home. The boys commute to the little island off the coast of Florida. "But the trip is rather long, is it not, Joe?"

"Oh, no. Just two days."

Papa and Mama always want to hear about America, anyway. Papa is a lawyer practising in Cienfuegos, a city of about 55,000 population, situated 100 miles from Havana. He studied at Columbia University. Mama also studied in the United States. She matriculated at Marymount High School in Maryland. Both know the States well.

"What do you boys intend to do after graduating from Villanova, Joe?"

The answer was casual. John wishes to study law at the University of Havana. Joe will apply at Johns Hopkins Medical School; Lou, of course, will try his hand at engineering. A varied selection of fields suggested a difference in the brothers' inclinations.

'Thumb' Story About Interesting Experiences Of Hitch-Hikers

By DAVID N. REARDON

WHIZZ — Whizz — Whizz — Scr-ee-ch! Going in?" With this familiar sound many college students throughout the nation begin hitch-hiking, whether it be for three or four hundred miles.

On the Villanova campus the majority of the resident students rely on their educated thumbs to get them to their point of destination. This mode of transportation has often been condemned by civil authorities as risky. However, if a motorist uses discretion, it is a simple matter to discern a reputable "hiker." Frequently a fellow can afford no other way of getting around and is compelled to rely upon the good will of the motorist. (Car owners please note.)

Economical and Interesting

Besides offering a means of economical transportation, hitch-hiking affords the student numerous opportunities to meet people who often prove to be very interesting characters. Drivers agree that the prime reason for picking up riders is to secure a companion with whom they can converse and exchange views. This alone justifies a free ride.

Many students "thumb" their way homeward to New York City and vicinity every week-end. Others hike to Massachusetts and Conneticut less frequently. They could write a book on their varied experiences.

Mutual Aid

Dick Gray, while going to Trenton one week-end, was given a ride by a tired motorist who intended remaining in Philadelphia overnight. However upon Dick's suggestion, the driver let him take over the wheel and drive directly to Trenton while he slept. From there the stranger went on to New York for the night.

Woody Reitmeier, hitch-hiking to New York rode with a young medical student studying to be a psychiatrist who, to Woody's surprise, psyco-analyzed him en route.

"Bernie" Likes It Too

Bernie Crumb claims that there is nothing like it. He hails from Utica, N. Y., some three hundred miles from here. Consistently he averages nine hours to his home, while a train requires eight hours and a bus takes thirteen hours. The time and money saved results in a sizeable net gain for the "thumber."

Among Bernie's reminiscings, he recalls meeting a news correspondent whose job was keeping in constant touch with Secretary of the Treasury, Morgenthau. Once a well educated student returning from Colgate went into a lengthy discussion upon the merits of the Presidential candidate, Wendell L. Willkie. Then again an executive of a New York utilities concern gave Bernie quite a few pointers on the attainment of success in business. Frequently "benefactors" express interest in Villanova itself and Bernie publicizes the school to the best of his ability. They tell him that if it were not for the sticker on his bag, they would not have taken him.

College grads regularly pick up the boys and the discussion of collegiate days often results in an enjoyable trip.

Many other incidents have happened to different confirmed hitch-hikers on the campus; all in all it appears to be a very economical and interesting means of transportation for collegians.

Quandary

By ANDREA J. D'ANGELO

You want to know if I know now
the way
Of my affection? But first I'll wipe that tear
Upon your cheek. Now there, my sweet, what fear
Like mist is this that ere I naught can say
Into your eyes resolves itself to stir
Those limpid pools until they brim again
To weep? Now smile away that mist and then Love's tongue will speak the words for you or HER.
Each time I think of you I entertain Desire to speak that which your pleading eyes
Entreat me, but the speech ends up in sighs
Vexing till I wonder if I'm sane:
I can't decide for when SHE looks at me
Like you and weeps as you, I think it's SHE!

NOW that the scholastic year has definitely gotten under way, some progress is being made scholastically by the more energetic students at Villanova. When exams roll around these conscientious individuals will find themselves with an enviable record. It seems a shame that graduates of Villanova cannot look back on worthwhile accomplishments in the field of academic endeavor and remember themselves as belonging to national honorary fraternities as a reward for their industry. Graduates of other colleges can obtain the benefits derived from belonging to such organizations as Phi Beta Kappa. There seems to be no good reason why leading students at Villanova should not be rewarded in this manner too.

Adventurer Talks On 'Guana Hunt

Science Forum Hears Main Liner Relate Difficulties of Naturalist in Mexico

Difficulties associated with iguana hunting in Mexico were explained by Mr. Daniel Mannix, Main Line adventurer who, accompanied by his wife, attended the meeting of the Science Forum, held last Thursday and lectured on his personal experiences in this sport.

The iguana of Mexico is a large lizard, possessing some resemblance to the dinosaurs of prehistoric times. This animal is capable of speeds faster than those of the rabbit family and is a most ferocious fighter. The iguana ranges in length from three to six feet and, when attacked, will fight with the courage of a bulldog. Because of the reputation it has, and the lightning speed of which it is capable, the native Mexicans are unwilling to participate in any encounter with the animal. For these reasons, Mr. Mannix had to devise an ingenious scheme to capture the huge lizards.

Mr. Mannix employed an American bald eagle in the lizard hunting expedition. Since the eagle must pursue a moving prey, Mr. Mannix taught his terrier the art of chasing lizards. With this equipment, his dog, "Wriggle," and his tame eagle, "Aggie," Mr. Mannix managed to bring back some iguanas for the benefit of the American naturalists.

Mr. Mannix brought some of his Mexican souvenirs to the Forum for the purpose of adding color to his discourse. The most interesting and outstanding of his exhibits was "Aggie," the eagle.

The bird was very well behaved and quietly perched on his master's arm or upon the back of a chair. When "Aggie" became restless, Mr. Mannix allowed the bird to fly the length of the room and alight upon his arm. Thereupon a piece of raw meat rewarded the bird.

Mr. Mannix displayed a pair of spurs used during a cock fight. He also produced two of the weapons used in a bull-fight—slender rods having at one end a barb, which is thrust into the neck of the bull to antagonize it.

The climaxing story was concerned with the jaguar skin which he also displayed. After telling the audience of the hardships encountered on the trail of these vicious cats, Mr. Mannix explained that he had merely purchased the skin at a native store.

Rental Library Gets New Books

The rental library, opened a few weeks ago, has acquired approximately thirty current and popular books for its collection. These books are at the immediate disposal of the students who paid the blanket fee. Those who did not choose to do this, however, may also use the books for a nominal charge.

These volumes cover a wide and variable field of literature. The list includes books of a historical, biographical, fictitious, professional, theatrical, romantic, philosophical, and martial nature. All students are invited to study the books, placed above the file catalogue, and take out a selection. Many of these have been donated by Fr. Mahoney.

The list of the books is as follows: "Across the Busy Years" and "Why War?" by Butler; "The Farm by Louhh Gur," Carberry; Chase's "Idle Money, Idle Men"; "The End of the Armistice," by Chesterton; "The Medical Career," by Cushing; "Country Squire in the White House," Flynn; and "Country Editor," Hough.

"Salamina," by Kent; "The Story of Twentieth Century Exploration," Key; Maugham's "Christmas Holiday"; "Country Lawyer," Partridge; "World's End," Sinclair; "Forty Minutes Price Plays," Stage; Souvarine's "Stalin"; Undset's "Madame Dorothea."

"Windless Cabins," Van Doren; "Late Harvest," White; "The Case of the Rolling Bones," Gardner; "The House without a Key," Biggers; Dickson's "The Bowstring Murders"; "The Lodger," Lowndes; Marquand's "Think Fast, Mr. Moto." The last five are editions of the Pocket Series.

Smith's "Ember Lane"; "The Treymaynes and the Masterful Monk"; Adler's "How to Read a Book; "New England: Indian Summer," Brooks; dents, has received permission to adorn the Commerce Building from Dean Bartley. Although he refused to give out any information in regard to their plans, Fr. Maguire announced the election of John Di Carlo, sophomore, as chairman of their committee of seven. With this committee as a nucleus, the Day-hops plan to make Fedigan look to its laurels and move the plaque to the other end of the campus.

In the meantime, Fedigan has taken ample notice of the task at hand. At a meeting last Thursday night, Jim Jernee was made chairman of their group with the expressed purpose of defending the crown successfully.

Austin Hall has placed its confidence in Jim Halpin, who is definitely set to gain the laurel wreath this year. His predecessors have striven in vain in the previous years of the contest, but consistently pushed the winner by being runner-up for the last two years. Work has begun in earnest as far as they are concerned.

Tom Sheehan, Richard Ryan, and Neil O'Mahoney will handle the reins for Alumni hall. This triumvirate intends to be a brain trust that will emerge from a huddle and show the other resident halls a bit of competitive talent in the art of decoration. Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., moderator, would not make any commitments, but he is rather confident that the judges will have to recognize Alumni among the leaders.

Mendel residents have a meeting pending to decide how they will operate this season. However, a temporary chairman has been appointed by Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., to start the boll rolling for the dorm.

D. P. E. Frat Accepts Bids For Membership

Sophomores, juniors, and seniors desirous of joining the Delta Pi Epsilon commerce and finance fraternity must hand their application blank to some member of the membership committee by November eighth, for after that date no further applications will be accepted until next year.

An attendance record is now being kept by the fraternity's Secretary, Thomas H. Doyle, who cautions members that non-attendance of the three weekly meetings makes the absent member subject to the fine contained in the fraternity's by-laws, unless an excuse has been given to and approved by him before the meeting has occurred.

A vote was taken at the meeting to decide whether or not the same design as was used last year on the fraternity's pins should be put on the membership cards which will be given at a later date to each member in good standing. An affirmative decision was reached.

Relation Of Physics, Medicine Shown To Kappa Gamma Sigma

Bringing forth the intimate relationship that exists between the physicist and the medical profession, a relationship which is not very often recognized, Rev. John H. Crawford, O. S. A., moderator of the Kappa Gamma Sigma Society, spoke to the club last Friday.

In demonstrating this close relationship, he resorted to several examples, among them being that of the discovery and consequent utilization of the x-ray by the medical profession.

Because of the holyday on Friday, no meeting is scheduled for this week. The next meeting is called for Friday, November 8, at 10:45 A. M. in the physics laboratory.

the law and only possible of fulfillment in secret places.

Other items of interest are two bills of sale. One is for goods received by Thomas Lloyd and dated November 20, 1778; the other is for land in Radnor Township that John Rudolph purchased from Peter Gaskell in 1818.

Miss Shea, the donor, is the daughter of Mrs. Maria Daley Shea. Maria Daley, after the death of her parents, was educated and reared by Mr. Thomas Lloyd, a staunch Catholic, and "Father of American Shorthand Reporting." Jane Lloyd, a daughter of Thomas, married John Rudolph, the former owner of Villanova, or Belle Air, as it was known during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. After the death of John Rudolph, his wife, Mrs. Jane Lloyd Rudolph, allowed the Belle Air property to be purchased by the Augustinian Fathers. With the death of the Lloyds and the Rudolphs, Mrs. Maria Daley Shea preserved their family heirlooms. Since the end of the last century these articles, now in the library of Villanova College, have been treasured by the Shea family.

This donation, with the McGarrity collection of 10,000 items, has contributed rare historical material to the Villanova College Library. During Catholic Book Week, these works with other early American Catholic books and newspapers will be on display.

John Bull Loses

One of the closest contests and the one with the least-expected result in the entire poll was on the topic of whether we should or should not give all assistance up to the point of war to Great Britain. The proponents of this help mustered their forces nobly but were doomed to failure as their opponents entered into the fray with equal vigor. If this poll were to decide the fate of England, we are afraid there would be no more Britain for help to the Isles was defeated by a 57% to %43 majority.

These are all the results tabulated at present, but the remainder will be published in next week's issue. These include your favorite band, the new intra-mural program, and means to hurry service in the cafeteria. Also, the preference for a formal or informal dance and the idea of a fall formal dance are included.

As an afterthought, let us summarize the decisions shown this week. Wendell L. Willkie was chosen President by a 13 per cent majority, while the draft issue and military training issue were being acknowledged by 50 and 40 per cent majorities respectively. The Civil Aeronautics Authority training would be turned down by a 34% margin even if entry in the army were not compulsory and help to England rejected by a 14 per cent edge.

Council Will Inspect Engineering School

Plans preliminary to the inspection of the School of Engineering by the Committee on Engineering Schools of the Engineering Council for Professional Development are well under way, J. Stanley Morehouse, dean of the school, announced yesterday.

Music Seminar Hears Fr. Handran Speak Of Organ

Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., moderator of musical organizations and instructor of music and fine arts, will be guest lecturer at the weekly meeting of the Music Seminar tomorrow night, which will be uniquely held in the organ loft of the college chapel.

Fr. Handran's lecture entitled, "The Organ and What It Can Do," is going to concentrate on the workings of the organ, and not the music which it produces. The "why and wherefore" of all the different stops, pedals, and keys will be explained and exemplified.

Last week's meeting of the Seminar featured the musical Shakespeares of the Victorian Period and some of their works. The men chiefly discussed were William Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan who wrote a number of the most famous light operas of all time, some of which are "H. M. S. Pinafore"; "Pirates of Penzance"; "Mikado"; and Gondoliers."

Early in the evening the seminar members were entertained by the music Arthur Sullivan wrote before the immortal pair formed their partnership. This music was contrasted with the light airy music he composed for the operas. This comparison was followed by the discussion of some of the plots and satires of the operas for which Gilbert is famous. One of the famous stage characters, Pooh Bah of the opera "Mikado," was introduced by recordings.

The next part of the program was devoted entirely to the opera "H. M. S. Pinafore," as recorded by the D'Oyly Carte Opera Co. whose founder first brought the two talented men together in 1875. The story was read by the commentator and the more important parts were played on the recording machine. Refreshments were served during the short intermission.

A. I. E. E. LISTENS

The subject of "Air Electricity as an Aid to Flying" will be presented by Kenneth Olson, senior engineer, at the next regular meeting of the Villanova Branch of the A. I. E. E. on Monday, October 28.

Cornell Defeated By Wildcats, 6-0, In One-Fifty Game

First Win for Villanova Lightweights Since 1938; O'Donnell Scores Lone Touchdown

Villanova's 150-pounders finally crashed into the win column by defeating Cornell 6-0, last Saturday, for their first win since 1938.

Justifying the belief that the scores of the previous "Light Blue" games did not truly represent the battles they had waged Tommy Casper's Boys took the lead in the opening quarter and held it doggedly throughout three remaining periods.

After an exchange of punts in the first period the 150's attack began to work smoothly with O'Donnell, Lombard, and Newell running, and Lozowski receiving forwards and gaining on end-arounds, Villanova advanced to the four yard line, from where O'Donnell smashed over.

Cornell took the kickoff and began a march up the field which carried to the Blue 25 yard line where they were held for downs.

In the second quarter Cornell again advanced deep into Villanova territory but the "Light Blues" recovered a fumble and ended this threat.

Cornell kicked off in the third quarter. Waters, Newell and Lombardi consistantly gained through the line and it looked as if Villanova would go over for another touchdown. The offensive slowed up as the Blue reached Cornell's fifteen, and the Red took over.

The remainder of the game resolved into a kicking duel between Ed D'Ipollito of Villanova and Fitzpatrick of Cornell. The Red team did not threaten the Wildcat goal in the last quarter. Villanova made one more drive which ended when Cornell recovered a fumble deep in their own territory.

Thus the Light Blue Team won its first game of the season. It was a great tribute to Tommy Casper a conscientious coach whose work this year has become the talk of the campus.

It was an expensive victory however. Bill Sykes and Bill Phillips are out indefinitely with leg injuries. Bill Brown, star quarterback came out with a charley-horse, while Manus O'Donnell, an outstanding halfback received a painful face injury.

Famiglietti, Lozowski, and Eichman stood out for their fine line play. O'Donnell, Lombardo, and Waters played good games in the backfield.

Trio Of Foes Win As Five Succumb

The gridiron opponents of the current season carried out a general topsy-turvy week-end as but three of the eight emerged victorious in their struggles. Only Auburn, Duquesne and P. M. C. added lustre to their records.

Florida, Manhattan, Baylor, Kansas and Temple took it on the chin in a week-end that was characterized by the heavy hand of old man upset.

Auburn Tops Tech

Auburn, bounding back from the Southern Methodist defeat, scored a stunning 16- win over the highly-touted Georgia Tech array to highlight the week for Villanova opposition.

Duquesne and Manhattan, both of whom have dates with the Cats later, waged a titanic struggle in Pittsburgh Friday night before the Dukes came out with a 10-6 victory.

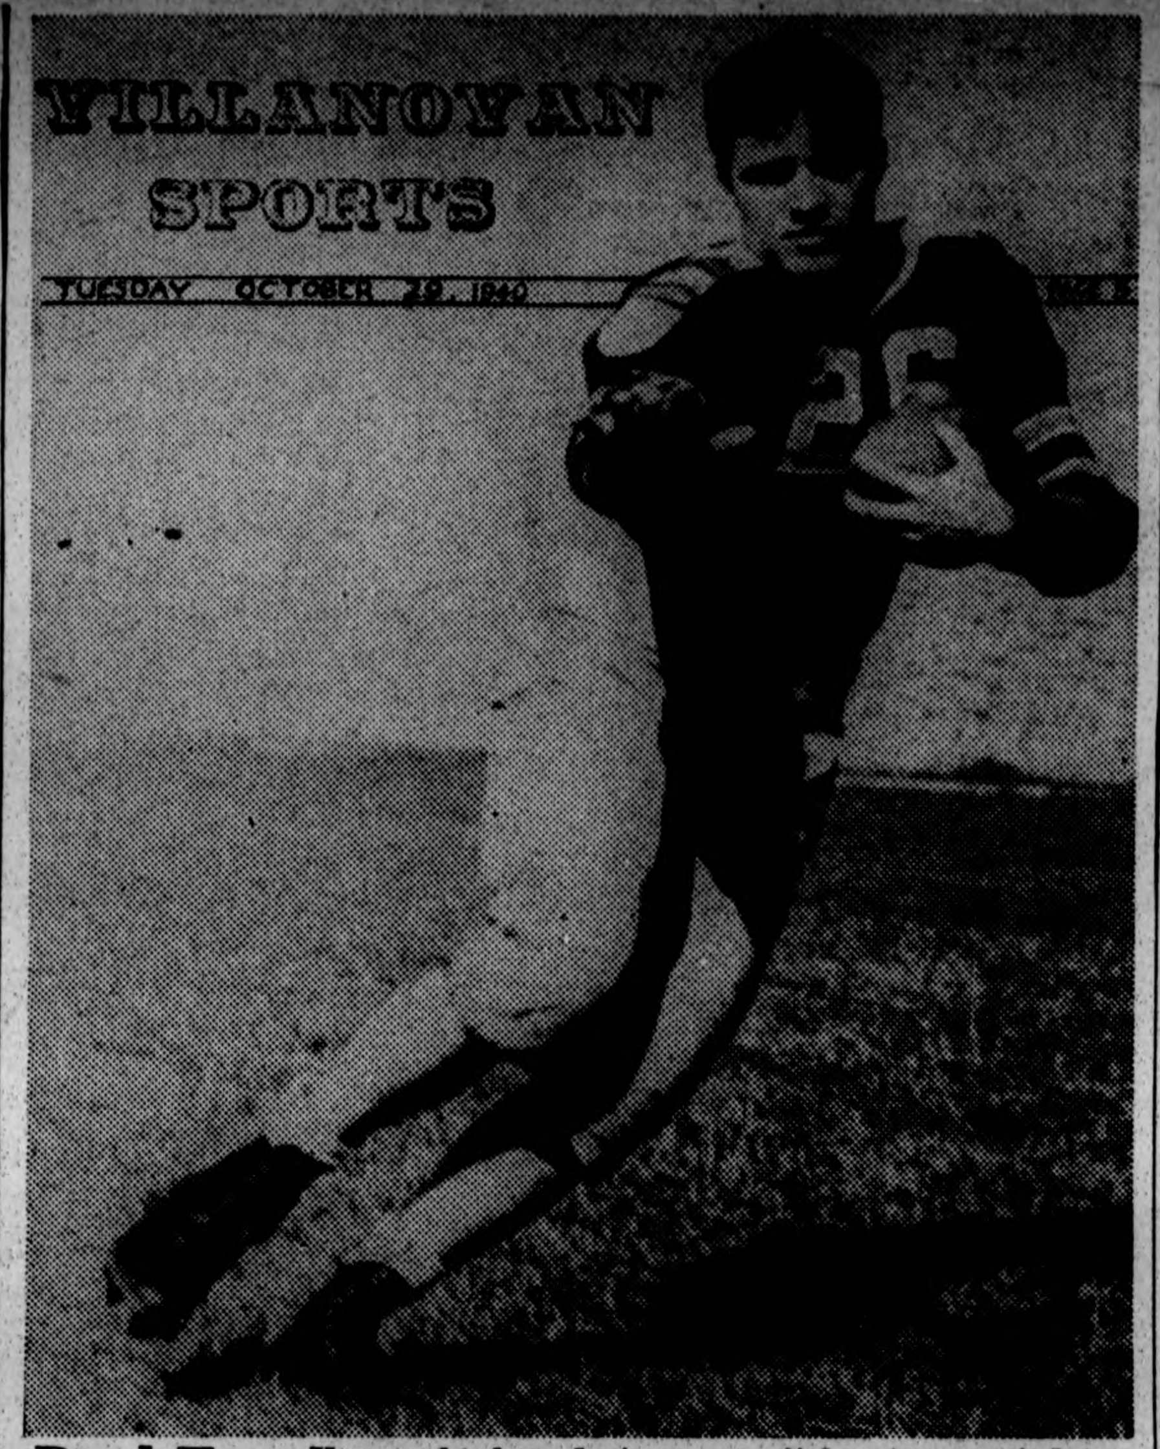
Baylor Loses

Baylor put up a whale of a battle before succumbing to the versatile Texas A & M club 14-7, while Kansas was subdued by Kansas State 20-0.

Florida was far from a soft touch for the highly regarded Tennessee team. The "Volunteers" had a much tougher time of it than the 14-0 score indicates.

P. M. C. accounted for its second straight victory at the expense of Lebanon Valley 19-16 while Temple found the best Penn State team in many years a little too tough, bowing 18-0.

This week's schedule:
P. M. C. vs. Washington College
AUBURN vs. Georgia
BAYLOR vs. Texas Christian
DUQUESNE vs. Marquette
MANHATTAN vs. Boston College
TEMPLE vs. Bucknell
DETROIT vs. Tulsa



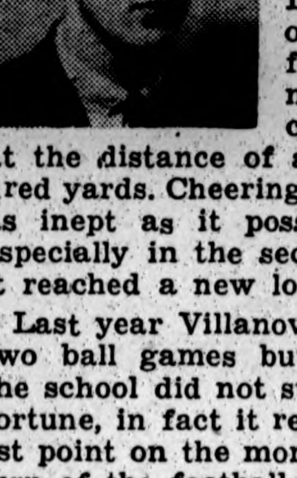
Paul Fry, Kansas back and star pass pitcher is expected to feature the Jayhawk attack Friday night in the game at Shibe Park. Fry is a leading Candidate for All-Midwest Honors.

SPORTORIAL

By JOE BARNES, Sports Editor

THERE is an old Chinese proverb that runs something like, "You cannot prevent the birds of sorrow from flying over your head, but you can stop them from building nests in your hair."

Well might the so-called Villanova rooting section take due notice of this saying of some wise old laundryman for if the birds of sorrow ever built more nests than were lodged in the Cat student section on Sunday afternoon we have yet to see them.



From the Press Box it seemed as if the entire section was composed of the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf and Dumb out on a holiday, for nary a Villanova cheer could be heard at the distance of about two hundred yards. Cheering was just about as inept as it possibly could be, especially in the second half when it reached a new low.

Last year Villanova also dropped two ball games but the spirit of the school did not suffer from misfortune, in fact it reached its highest point on the morning of the return of the football team from the scene of is worst defeat in many years, Texas A. & M.

This year the 'Cats are below par. This is a recognized and acknowledged fact, but what has this to bear on student cheering and spirit? The team needs support now much more than it did in the glory-ridden days of 1937-38. Let's perk up and show the world that the spirit of Villanova can never diminish! I'll be hearing you at the Kansas game.

—V—

Cause of Villanova's last two grid beatings in these eyes is the lack of the opportunist tactics that were used by the Forty Eleven's predecessors. The 'Cats are getting numerous opportunities to score—at least three beauties Sunday—but the chips are not being cashed in. When the 'Cats get that push it will be opponents beware for the talent is certainly there.

There may be dark days ahead for Villanova followers for the season's toughest games are yet to come. Kansas this Friday night should be fairly easy but from then on will come trouble and plenty of it. Temple, on November 9, will present its best team since 1936, featured by a band of seniors looking for and demanding their first win over a Villanova team. In the opinion of more than one journalistic inmate of the press booth Sunday the Owls pack just about enough stuff to do the trick if Villanova improvement doesn't appear. Manhattan, which hasn't scored a point on Villanova in several years will be another threat this year as the Jaspers are greatly improved. They lost 6-0 in a thriller with Detroit recently.

Toughest of them all is Auburn with the best team in the southeast in the eyes of many experts. The Tigers have lost but one game, to Southern Methodist and will be overwhelming favorites to claw the 'Cats into submission.

Duquesne too will be plenty high to hurdle, so it can be plainly seen that the bed of roses is a thing of the past. From here on in there

Modest Vince McNally Sticks Close To "Clipper"

Vincent McNally, the man who produces Villanova's hipper-dipper backs and silent half of the much heralded Smith-McNally coaching combination, has a stock answer to any reporter's request for information. It's "You better see the Clipper, I haven't anything to say."

It isn't aloofness that causes this answer from Vince, it's just plain, honest-to-goodness modesty—a trait far from the makeup of the usual football coach. McNally believes sincerely in the age old theory that actions speak much louder than words. For McNally actions don't speak—they shout till the rafters ring.

Back Producer

For proof of Vince's ability you are referred to the type of backfield men produced at Villanova during the past five years, Raimo, Stopper, Stoviak, Mazzei, Basca, Howlett, McMahon, and a host of others too numerous to mention, for Villanova has always had a fleet, snappy set of backs since Clipper and the Vince came to the Main Line.

VINCE McNALLY

Vince, although technically a backfield coach here also helps out with the line for he was once an "all-American" end during the "golden era" at Notre Dame. He also attained all-American honors as a forward on the "Irish" basketball team and for a time coached the basketball team at St. Mary's University in California.

He is a Philadelphian by birth and a graduate of Roman Catholic High School, probably the most successful gridman ever to wear the Purple and Gold of that institution. After graduation from the Cahill school he hit the trail to Notre Dame and Knute Rockne where he absorbed a good portion of the "old master's" knowledge before graduating in 1925.

Begins Career

The following Autumn Vince began his college coaching career by taking a lucrative offer to assist the colorful "Slip" Madigan at St. Mary's, where he remained until 1936 when he joined Clipper Smith in coaching the Wildcats of Villa-

Kansas U. Eleven Aims For Upset Against Wildcats Friday Night

Jayhawkers, Beset By Misfortune in Early Tests, Report Complete Recovery; Feature Fast But Inexperienced Team; Still a Threat in Big Six Conference

By BOB FUNABASHI

Thrice-beaten Kansas University makes its first appearaence in the Quaker City, Friday night, matching their gridiron tactics against Villanova's Wildcats.

Representing the Big Six conference, the Jayhawks will exploit their gridiron magic which Coach Gwinn Henry first installed at the University of Missouri. Just how well his system will fare against the 'Cats remains to be seen.

Consensus of opinion is that the Jayhawks will not be consistent winners this fall, but will be dangerous every moment and may win any one game. After their triple dose of losses, K. U. will be on the rebound to reinstate themselves in the Midwest. At present they are logged in the cellar of the Big Six, having tasted defeat by Iowa State, Nebraska, and Kansas State. Their lone victory was at the expense of Drake U.

Good Offense

Last fall, Kansas boasted an offense that was satisfactory but was weak on defense, tackle position being the main flaw. Results this fall will depend a good deal on just how much the defense has been strengthened. Lack of time last season handicapped Coach Henry to the extent that the Jayhawks were bowled over in six games. Now the Jayhawkers are thoroughly versed in the specialties of the Henry system, and the trick formations that he used to dazzle his opponents at Columbia once again will be seen.

For Coach Henry and his sturdy band from the Corn country, this will be their first crack against the Smithmen in history. This intersectional tilt will prove the strength of the so-called 'powerhouses' of the Midwest against the diversified systems of Eastern brand football.

Without doubt, Kansas possesses a host of experienced men, for seventeen lettermen are returning to the roster and up-and-coming Sophomores and Juniors complete the starting eleven and reserve strength.

Stronger at Tackle

Indications are that the team will be stronger at tackle, its main weakness last year, with veterans improving and several promising new men available. Lettermen tackles returning include W. F. Jack, Jim Holloway and Monte Merkel, all of whom weigh around 215 lbs. Up from the Freshman team came Ross Relph, who stood out in spring practice, a big boy,

Unbeaten Detroit Claws Wildcats

Titans Ring Up Touchdown and Field Goal to Scuttle 'Cats 10-0

The jinx which has dogged the trail of Detroit University football teams for the past five years was proven to be only a myth last Sunday afternoon when the Titans defeated Villanova's slumping Wildcats 10 to 0.

For five years running Detroit teams had outplayed Villanova elevens in every department of the game only to lose by one touchdown each time. This year the Titans again outclassed the Cats but they also emerged on the long end of the score. Al Ghesquiere took care of that little matter.

Head Coach Charles "Gus" Dorais inserted in his starting lineup four of the five seniors on the Detroit squad. "Gus" realized that these boys had tasted the dregs of defeat for three successive years and they would play their hearts out to twist that Wildcat's tail just once before they hung up their moleskins for keeps. This proved a wise move for it was these four men who lifted their team to the height which it attained on Sunday. The Detroit team played inspired ball and they never seemed to be in doubt as to the final outcome of the game.

Titan Opportunists

The Titans made use of a weapon which has been the forte of Villanova elevens of the past but which this year's Wildcat team seems to lack—opportunism.

Early in the first quarter two penalties against Villanova gave Detroit possession of the ball in Wildcat territory and the Titans cashed in on this opportunity when left-end Frank Hayes booted a 31 yard field goal to send Detroit ahead 3 to 0.

The score remained this way until midway in the second quarter when the Titans seized upon their second opportunity and increased their lead to 10 to 0. This score was realized when Rice blocked Basca's kick and the ball rolled out

Keefrider Winner In Intrasquad Test

On Wednesday afternoon Coach James (Jumbo) Elliott's harriers led by Harry Keefrider were timed over the cross-country course, a distance of slightly under two and a half miles.

Keefrider, taking the lead shortly after the start and maintaining a fast pace was never headed. But he was obliged to sprint the last two hundred yards in order to stave off the bids of Freshmen Dunbar and Manning. In fourth place came "Dutch" McCarthy and following him was Cornelius McCarthy, former member of West Catholic's National one-mile relay championship team of which Keefrider and Dunbar were members.

Sophs Disappoint Coach Severance

Pre-season hopes of sterling sophomore replacements to fill in the huge gap left by last year's basketball graduates, according to Coach Al Severance, are not to be taken too seriously.

Indications from the work of the past three weeks show that the varsity will have to step along quickly if they hope to uphold the past record of "Wildcat" cage teams.

"Failure to carry out the style of ball which the varsity is accustomed to play and the inability of the newcomers to grasp the system is very disappointing," says Severance.

Rays of Hope

Veterans Paul Nugent and "Chuck" Yund are the only rays of hope so far, although Dick Gray, Ernie Robinson, and a newcomer, "Red" Murphy are forging rapidly ahead of the others. Sophomore Tony Calandra has been playing his steady brand of ball and is assimilating the varsity system thoroughly.

Severance is looking forward to the additions of "Lindy" Kolenda and Mike Purzcki at the end of the football campaign. "Lindy," a senior, played ball in his freshman year but was hampered by injuries during the past two seasons. Purzcki was a member of last year's Frosh quintet.

The varsity has settled down to daily scrimmages with the freshmen and this will continue until the start of the season which incidentally is the toughest in years.

The frosh have looked good against the varsity and on several occasions have flashed an offensive that indicates they may eclipse the performance of past frosh contingents.

Triple Tie for 1-M Loop Lead As Fedigan and Austin Kont C. & F.

Fediganites Hand Commerce Dayhops First Loss of Season By 41 - 35 Score; Austin Tops Alumni in "Moderator Rivalry" Match by Same Score

The intramural league lead changed once more this week into a three way tie between Austin, C & F and Fedigan. The teams are getting the bumps smoothed out of their play and a better grade of basketball was seen by the spectators in Alumni Gym.

The feature contest of the week's play was a renewal of the rivalry from last year when Fedigan beat C & F for the Intramural Crown. Both teams exhibited the great style which won them championship honors in '39 with Forkin and Scelba leading Fedigan to a 14-12 margin at the half time. The scrappy Day Hops took advantage of every break and scored five of the nine foul shots awarded them while Fedigan received only three fouls, making one good.

Dwyer Stars

The final period saw a great deal of fast action with some fine shots by Coupe, Buxedo and Dwyer who scored 22 points between them for C & F. But the Gigaloes were able to score two more baskets than the Day-Boys which added to their one basket lead at the half and gave them a six point margin with which they were able to win the game 41-35. Thus C & F dropped from the undefeated ranks into a tie for the loop lead.

Then followed the arch rivalry between Father Dunne's Greenies from Alumni and Father McKee's "All-Stars" from Austin. This game also was a thriller with the usual big turnout of loyal Alumni rooters who were led in their fine cheering by teh Hall's Number One Booster, Father Dunne, also known as "King of the Paste-Board Palace." This great pep added much spirit and color to the game which Father McKee's more experienced team managed to win by a 41-35 score.

Mendels Meet

Next on the schedule was the clash between Mendel Residents and the Mendel Day Students. This proved to be the closest game of the week. It was the Residents who came out on top of a very slim 33-31 score. Ken Byrn was the star for the frosh five with 10 points while Depersio led the Day Hops with 11.

The other Mendel team also took a 45-31 licking at the hands of the superior Fedigan. Once more led by "Dead-Eye" Forkin who netted eleven more points and is now leading the league in that department, the Fediganites had little trouble in handling the inexperienced freshman.

The final contest of the week saw Austin Hall lick the Mendel Residents to teh tune of 36-21 with Ken Byrn once more doing most of the Residents' scoring while George Suzch exhibited a brilliant floor game with fine passing and defensive play.

The Intramural Week:

Tuesday, October 29

C. & F. vs. Mendel Res.
Fedigan vs. Alumni
Austin vs. Mendel Dayhops

Thursday, October 31

C. & F. vs. Mendel Dayhops
Austin vs. Fedigan
Mendel Res. vs. Alumni

C. & F. games start at 3:00 P. M. Second game listed starts at 7:15 P. M., and third game immediately after completion of second.

Carey Injured Aiding Auto Crash Victims

Bill Carey, star hurdler of the Villanova track team, was injured recently while aiding victims of an auto accident at 60th and Lansdowne Aves., in Philadelphia.

Carey, who is a member of the Class of '42, was not involved in the accident but he injured a ligament in his leg while pulling injured victims from the wrecked car.

The injury is not serious and complete recovery should be had before the opening of the indoor track season. Carey is also a member of the VILLANOVAN staff.

Frosh Meet Owls Thursday Night

Second Contest of Season For Both Elevens; Kittens Bank on Baraldi, Sullivan

This Thursday night the frosh football team will invade the Owl's Nest, Temple Stadium, for a game under the lights with the Temple Frosh.

The injury list of "Doc" Jacobs' squad has been mounting steadily and "Doc" will field a changed lineup from the one used against St. Benedict's.

Bill Sullivan and Dick Baraldi have been coming along fast and will see plenty of action Thursday night.

The Frosh team, according to Jacobs, has the "makings" but the necessary polish will come only with experience.

Temple's Freshman team lost to Georgetown, 26-0, in its only game played to date. The team is coached by Chet Messervey for the second season. Messervey will be remembered as a former Temple centr, who gained All-American mention.

The Villanova squad is pointing with enthusiasm to the game with their traditional rivals. Their impressive defense against St. Benedict's will stand them in good stead against the strong forward wall of Temple, not so impressive against Georgetown but coming along fast in practice since that game.

The game will be played at Temple Stadium, Limekiln Pike and City Line. The kick-off will be at 8:30 P. M.

Nick Picks Up Five of bounds on Villanova's 3 yard line, giving Detroit possession of the ball at that point.

Al Ghesquiere, Detroit's sensational left halfback, carried over on the first play and Ted Pavelec converted the extra point.

Deep Advances

On numerous occasions Villanova advanced deep into Detroit territory only to have their attack stall when they came within sight of the pay dirt. Four times the Cats fought their way to within the enemy's ten yard line but each time they were stopped cold either by a gallant Titan line and an alert pass defense or by their own fumbles.

Throughout the entire game the Villanova passers were rushed by the fiercely charging Detroit line with the result that they were unable to locate the pass-receiver and were forced to toss the ball hurriedly with only a prayer to guide it. Had Basca and Eusko been given adequate protection, the game might have been pulled out of the fire, for the Villanova ends were constantly breaking into the clear only to find the man on the other end of the ball smothered beneath a pile of red-jerseyed Titans.

By far the outstanding performer on the field was Al Ghesquiere, Detroit senior halfback. Ghesquiere lived up to all the nice things that were said about him in pre-game write-ups. He seemed to take personal delight in making up for the many unhappy moments Detroit teams have suffered at the hands of the Wildcats during the past five years. Ghesquiere's running and passing were phenomenal; he threw two fifty-five yard passes, which, although they were incomplete, made the spectators gasp in amazement.

"Lindy" Kolenda, who was Villanova's game captain, played a bang-up game at end, while Collins, Bill Piscone, Paul Stenn, and Ed Korisky turned in another fine performance in the center of the line. Nick Basca, although hampered by a shoulder injury, and Joe Behot were standouts in the 'Cat's backfield.

"Gus" Dorais, the coach of the victors, was the recipient of the Knute Rockne Memorial Torphy, presented by Warner Brothers Theatres, in honor of the famous Notre Dame coach of the past.

Dhue Follows Other Seniors In Picking Detroit "Toughest Team"

Three Sport Man at South Philly High, Harry Has Narrowed Activities Here

By BILL CAREY

The man who wouldn't talk! Harry Paul Dhue, senior football guard from Yeadon, Pa., must be his brother.

After minutes of "pumping," we learned that Harry starred in football, basketball, and track at Southern High. In his senior year at the South Philly institution the basketball squad fought its way to the city championship.

After a brilliant high school career, Harry tried his hand at work. But after a year of insecure and insignificant jobs, Mr. Dhue decided he wanted a college education. A chance meeting with Vince McNally accounted for his coming to Villanova.

Since entering the "Villa" in 1938, practically all of Harry's time has been spent with football. Of course, he takes care of his studies in the Education School because he wants to teach and is also interested in a coaching job.

After playing in the backfield with the freshman team, "Clipper" converted him into a guard, and that is where this six-foot-one, 195 pound gridder has been starring for three years. An injury halfway in his sophomore year kept him out of action until the following season, but he took up right where he had left off.

His charging, smashing type of play has caused many a heartache to the men who face him from the other side of the line. As far as opposition goes, Harry gives Detroit the nod over Auburn for team opponent No. 1. John Kimbrough of the Texas Aggies is the "hardest man to stop" he has ever faced.

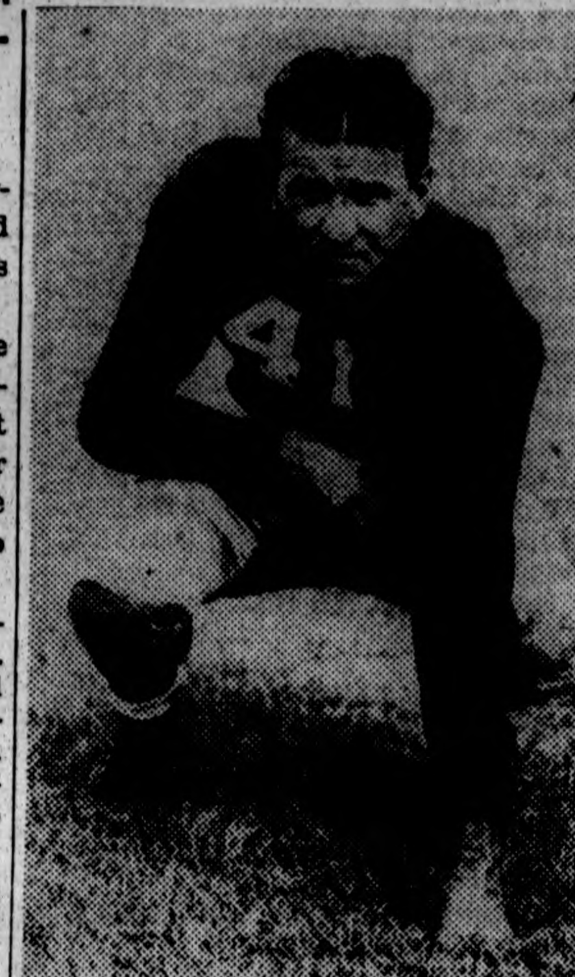
This easy-going gentleman limits his other Villanova activities to the History and Music Seminars. With football, he has had it pretty difficult to find time for membership in other organizations.

Harry limits his love-life to one . . . "the only one"! She is a pretty Miss, and goes by the name, Cecelia. He met her while guarding on the beach at North Wildwood, N. J. When his school work and football is over, he always finds time to waltz his "big moment" around at the Villanova Proms.

What Harry likes about our institution is the democratic spirit, the "regular" fellows he's met, and the friendly air that is so prominent on the campus. He's got nothing to find wrong with the country, and says he's glad that he's on this side of the water where a man can call himself free.

This 23-year-old gridder, who has been everything from a street-paver to a "glamorous" life-guard captain, has really carved out a background for himself. He feels that he has gained extensive knowledge on his football trips, and refers to the Detroit trip of 1939 as particularly interesting.

Here's one man who has made his time and energy count. This column wishes happiness and success to a sportsman, a sincere gentleman . . . a man who is proud to have come to Villanova . . . and who will leave Villanova proud of him.



HARRY DHUE
. . . "Silent Man."

PUNT AVERAGE

The 1919 Villanova football team averaged 34.5 yards on punts during the season. Their opponents averaged slightly over 35 yards.

ELEVEN YEARS

The current season is Doc Jacob's eleventh consecutive year as freshman football coach at Villanova. This is the longest reign enjoyed by any present Villanova athletic head. Doc has also coached the basketball team before Al Severance and is still varsity baseball mentor.

SUNDAY SOBS:

Sunday marked the first time in five years that Villanova has lost to Detroit . . . also the first time in six years that the Cats have lost two games in a row . . . and the first time that the boys have ever lost in Shibe Park . . . before the largest attendance that ever witnessed a Villanova game, according to Bill Connelley . . . it was also the first home game lost since 1934 . . . .

Lone ray of sunshine for Villanova was the all-American type of play exhibited by tackle Paul Stenn, who we think played the best game any Villanova tackle has played in our memory.

The end around play with Basca reversing neatly to Stress was a honey. It's Stan's favorite play and it came close to registering a Villanova touchdown . . . incidentally the play now rests securely and unfortunately in the hands of Mr. Donelli, scouting for Duquesne University . . . Donelli almost wore out a pencil recording it . . . several other scouts were also in attendance . . . among them was Lud Wray, Manhattan's assistant coach and one-time Penn great . . .

Among others present in the Press gallery were a trio of outstanding midwestern sportswriters led by Marvin Arrowsmith, press agent for Detroit . . . it was the biggest press crowd of the whole season with writers, scouts, and columnists crowded to the rafters.

Kansas

weighing about 200 lbs.

The best fortified position on the squad is guard, with two old hands taking over. Strong, rugged and fast are Quido Massare and Jay Kern who form ag formidable combination. Both are vicious chargers and Massare was the Jayhawks' outstanding linesman last season.

Three Veterans

In the K. U. backfield three starters of last season are back in the fold including the first string halfback, Marv Vandaveer; a plunging fullback in Ed Hall and a chunky Indian line backer taking over at the blocking back, Ed Suagee. First string halfback duties may go to Jake Fry, a Junior speedster and prospective signal callers include Harlan Altman, Irven Hayden or possibly Vandaveer, if he is shifted by Coach Henry.

The end positions are of doubtful strength with three of the first four ends gone. One regular, Russ Chtwood, graduated and his running mate, Steve Renko, has been lost through injuries. First string wingmen as the season began had Hubert Ulrich, who showed much promise as a sophomore, and Ward Crowell, who was shifted to end from guard.

Interest Increasing In Pool And Bowling

With the advent of the bowling season it is evident that the student body is taking advantage of the fact that the poolroom and the bowling alleys are handy for everyone on the campus. The predominant interest seems to be shown by the freshmen and the seniors.

Keen interest is shown by a "Pee Wee" freshman, "Panama" Bradley, who ventures into the poolroom and cries out, "I will play anybody in the house." His challenges have been accepted by Gene Kramer, Jack Thoma, "Red" Murphy, and many others, and although beaten by a few, Bradley still maintains that he will play anybody in the house.

It is the intension of the operators of the poolroom and bowling alleys to provide pin-boys by the beginning of the week.

Names have been received by the directors of the poolroom and bowling alleys and it is expected that many more will be entered for the tournaments that are to be held in the near future.

Blue Lightweights Face Lafayette Club

Tom Caspar's Villanova lightweights will make their fourth bow in 1940 Eastern Intercollegiate League competition this Friday afternoon, playing hosts to the Lafayette College eleven at Villanova Stadium. The game will start at 3 P. M.

Lafayette will enter the game a reigning favorite due to the fact that several Villanova palyers incurred injuries in the last game, a 6-0 win over Cornell University.

Of the usual starting backfield only Frank Lombardo is in top shape with several out of the line also. Bill Brown, senior quarterback may recover sufficiently to start however.

HERE AND THERE

By JIM HAUGHTON

Way back when the Indians did more than stand in front of cigar stores, two gentlemen named Lewis and Clark got the "See America First" urge and went off on a little trip. Last week thirty-seven youths wearing blue and Villanova football uniforms took heed of the same slogan and covered some 4500 miles for the Baylor fiasco.

While the purpose of the trip did not pan out as expected, nevertheless, the boys had quite an enjoyable trip. All the squad members were more than pleased with the accommodations. They had the best available. Good food, swell hotels, several nice excursion trips and some spare time to themselves. They were not like the Penn squad which had only an hour to dress and catch a train after the Michigan meeting.

Going west the boys caught a glimpse of Doc Eichmann's candidate, Wendell Willkie. But they also grabbed a laugh when several youngsters carried FDR banners while the GOP candidate was passing.

San Antonio, site of the game, wore its best bib and tucker and gave the local group a royal welcome. The game was sponsored by the business men of the city. Throughout the town flew blue and white banners with "Welcome Villanova." Before the game, the Baylor band paraded to 'Cats headquarters at the Gunter Hotel and offered a musical salute. Following the grid battle, a dance was arranged for the members of both squads. But as expected, few of the local lads were present.

Alamo Stadium, we are told, is a beautiful structure set on top of a hill. Paul Stenn estimates it is a 300 foot drop from the parking lot to the bottom of the hill. The stadium holds about 25,000 people.

While in San Antonio several sightseeing trips were made. The travelers visited the Alamo, where the Mexicans and Texans mixed gunfire; saw both Randolph and Kelly Fields. They were greatly impressed by teh many accommodations for the flying cadets. The army air candidates just about over-run the town and several hotels provide recreation rooms for them.

Returning home by the Southern route, the group had a five hour stop in New Orleans with an interesting trip through the city. While going from Houston to New Orleans the heat was so excessive that the obys had to leave their special cars and remain in the air conditioned cars.

Just stuff: Father Sullivan has advised this bureau it had better get acquainted with the athletic success of its home Bivouac—Fedigan. Upon investigation, we are pleased to report that the team is the surprise of the league, both to Fediganites and opponents. Clipping the wings of the Commerce five boosted their stock. The Gigolos use a two team system, substituting a team at a time.

Chick Morris, who was a member of the baseball and basketball squad a few years back, is now holding down the fullback post on the Boston U. eleven. Art Mahan has enrolled for graduate work at the same school and is working on a masters degree in physical ed.

Clipper Smith better hustle up to Mendel Field if he needs any quick substitutes. Last week several frosh engaged in a little gride battle with tackling etc.

Dick DiMarcantonio is again back in the touch football league after suffering a slight injury in a pinochle game. Barney McAloon predicts that even with the layoff Dick is a sure bet for All-Third-Floor-Fedigan.

Meet McNally, Modest Mentor

nova. The meeting between the two took place a few years before when they had a blood and thunder argument after a game between St. Mary's and Santa Clara, where Smith was then head coach. Out of that historic argument has grown the closest friendship in the annals of sports for no two men are mentioned together so affectionately as "Clipper and the Vince." As one Philadelphia sportswriter put it "they are not boss and assistant but equal co-workers in putting forth what is annually one of the east's better football powers."

Clipper Smith's respect and admiration for Vince is always shown in his press statements when he never fails to say "Vince and I think . . . " not merely "I think . . . " Vince and I, the secret of Villanova success!

Follows Clipper

Vince has repeatedly expressed his slogan, "where Clipper goes, I go." This was proven a few years back when Vince was offered the most lucrative post of Director of the Rockne Memorial at Notre Dame, a position that would have been financially attractive and would have relieved Vince of the omnipresent headaches of the coaching profession. Vince however turned thumbs down on the job—he wanted to stay with the Clipper and Notre Dame's loss was Villanova's gain. Long may Vince remain Villanova's gain!

Work Solves Arts School's Numerous 'Labor Troubles'

By JOHN P. FULLAM

THE purpose of this article—and believe it or not, it does have a purpose—is to describe the correct way to study in the Arts School.

To some this may come as a surprise, for there are certain crass individuals who insist, quite without reason, that study in the Arts School is a minus quantity.

As the fellow says, ignorance is bliss, and it seems a shame to have to "un-bliss" anyone by proving that such is very definitely not the case.

Emphasis On Method

It isn't, of course. In the first place, there's Latin. What is the most acceptable method of preparing a Latin translation? To the student, consulting authoritative reference books (some people call them 'ponies') it undoubtedly seems best. Fr. Kiley and Fr. Bresnahan, however, like to see it done the hard way. In general, some sort of compromise is usually hit upon, with emphasis upon one or the other of these methods, depending upon the individual.

The preparation of French, IF done correctly, requires iron endurance, a knowledge of almost every subject under the sun, and at least a slight amount of French. Dr. McGrath's sight-translation exams are famous throughout the length and breadth of the land for—you guessed it—their length and breadth.

A Convincing Convincer

If you still aren't convinced that the Arts school course of study requires just that, we'll mention just one word, a word which should prove an excellent convincer. That word is "Philosophy."

Have you ever tried to make Fr. Dwyer believe that you really know what you really don't? We understand, though of course we've never tried it, that it is not a very good idea.

The Arts School's History is under Fr. Burns, Fr. Grimes, and Dr. Hartman, while the Arts School itself is the backbone of Villanova's History.

As for Fr. McShea's English courses, Fr. Handran's too, let it be said that we do enough reading and writing to make up for any deficiency in 'rithmetic we may have.

We could go on like this for hours, but this article must have an end, even if our studies, apparently, haven't.

But anyway, it's worth it. We're true gentlemen when we graduate—you never see an Artsman dashing noisily down the hall, do you?

And. you. needn't .answer. that question!

Recital Tonight

"Largo" by Handel; variations on "O Lord I am not Worthy"; and "Ave Maria", by Shubert, which has been especially requested, will constitute the organ program which is to be given tonight after chapel by Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A.

The increase in attendance and impression on the students at these weekly recitals has been growing and Fr. Handran invites even more to attend.

History Seminar Discusses Defense

This afternoon at 3:00 P. M. the History Seminar meeting at Simpson hall will discuss national defense in all its phases.

The discussion, by the unanimous vote of the students, will be conducted in the form of a forum. Dr. Harold F. Hartman will present the vital issues and each student will be given a chance to voice his opinion. There will be no principal speaker.

Last Tuesday the subject of discussion was whether or not the constitution of the United States implicitly or explicitly prohibits a third term. No definite decision was made, but the majority opinion maintained that no third term regulations were contained in the constitution.

Night-Hawks Gain

Statistics released this week by Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Dean of the Villanova College Evening School, show an enrollment of 316 men and women as compared with a figure of 306 who registered for the evening session last year, a net increase of ten students.

Attending part-time sessions this year is a body of 662 men and women; last year the enrollment totaled 736 students. Thus there has been a drop of 74 students in this branch.

Miceli To Discuss Chinese Plant For Research Seminar

"The Romance of Ephedrine", a lecture dealing with the history of the Chinese plant, "Ma Huang," its properties, its physiological action, and the various uses to which it is put in the field of medicine will be presented by Leonard A. Miceli, freshman science man, at the next meeting of the Research Seminar, which is to be held tomorrow at 4:15 P. M., in Simpson Hall.

Presenting a paper on the various methods employed by nature in the dispersal of seeds, Anthony Gigliotti junior science man spoke to a large group of science students at the Research Seminar last Wednesday afternoon.

"The various means of seed dispersal are nature's means of the perpetuation of the race," said Gigliotti, "and nature utilizes all of the myriad means which she has at her disposal to insure the proper and continued dispersal of the potential bearers of life, the seed."

In his paper Gigliotti mentioned the more common means of dispersal—the wind, the water currents, animals, and man.

Solemn High Mass On All Saints' Day

Solemn High Mass will be celebrated by Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., on Friday, Nov. 1, the Feast of All Saints, at 9:15 A. M. Resident students will be expected to attend on this Holyday of Obligation.

For the first time, members of the Sanctuary Society will take care of the ceremonies. John McGee will be Master of Ceremonies, John McGuire and James Forkin will be acolytes, and Hugh Boyle will be Thurifer. Music will be furnished by the Seminary Choir of St. Mary's Hall.

Day students confessions will be heard on Thursday at 1:00 and 2:30, and on the eve of every First Friday for the rest of the school year, Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., chaplain, announced Saturday.

Hereafter there will be a Mass at 8:30 on the morning of every First Friday for the benefit of the Day Students.

It was further announced that all students who have special intentions or relatives or friends whom they wish to have remembered in the Mass on All Souls' Day are to leave the names either at the Chaplain's Office, room 422, Mendel hall, or in the Sacristy.

KLEIN TO SPEAK

"Applications of the First and Second Derivatives," a paper by Donald Klein, sophomore engineer, will feature the next meeting of the Mathematics Club, to be held on an evening in the near future, probably a Friday evening.

Eve-Of-Game Rally And Bonfire Aims To 'Up' Spirit

Joe Missar, stellar guard of the undefeated 1938 edition of the Wildcats, is to be one of the guest speakers on the pre-Temple Game Rally rostrum this Friday at 8:00 P. M. "Clipper" Smith, varsity coach, also will address this year's rally as is his custom.

Tommy Lovett, sports writer with the "Philadelphia Ledger" and constant friend of the Villanova teams, will accept the "Lucky Lovett Sweater" for his wife who originally owned it and who will wear it at the Temple game. This sweater has never been to a football game which Villanova has lost since 1937.

In addition to these speakers, the band and cheerleaders will be present at the rally. Last year the affair drew a capacity audience, with many outside friends of Villanova attending along with the students and alumni.

One of the faatures of the evening will be the presentation by Murray P. Zealor, chairman of the Student Council, of the Connelly Plaque to the moderator of the hall winning the pre-Temple game decorations contest.

The Connelly Plaque was donated in 1937 by William Connelly, '27, with the purpose of arousing interest on the campus in the Temple game. Alumni, Austin, Mendel, and Fedigan halls will compete again this year, along with a new entrant, the Commerce and Finance day

WHEN Good Fellows Get Together For Temple Game

THERE'S always fair weather, when good fellows get together"—as a perennially popular ditty goes, and if this philosophy is adhered to, next Saturday's clash between the football teams of Villanova and Temple should just radiate sunshine. Throughout the twelve years this game has been played to date there has been practised the finest brand of sportsmanship possible, both between the players of the opposing teams and the students of both institutions. There is no reason to doubt that the thirteenth renewal of this Philadelphia classic will prove an exception.

In this, the annual Temple issue, although we stress the fond hope we have of a Wildcat victory over the Temple Owl, we do not consider this an end in itself to be gained no matter what the means.

Certainly, root for the 'Cats. Root your hearts, or your voices, out. Let the rising tide of the pre-game spirit engulf you, but don't allow it to drown .your .common .sense and the teachings of Villanova even for an afternoon—even for the afternoon of the Temple game.

"We Know Who'll Win"

All Villanovans Agree On Wildcat Victory, Differ On Score

By WILLIAM J. TOY

EDWARD KELLY, Senior Engineer—"We're going to win. There are no two ways about it. Our drum major may even score.

Daniel Keating, Senior Engineer—"The team has yet to hit its stride, but we will probably see some smart football from the 'Cats against Temple, and we will emerge the winners."

John McNamara, Senior Engineer—"Temple nearly always has the better team, but we will outfight them to win as usual."

Anthony Sachetti, Commerce Senior—"I think the Wildcat spirit will be revived by game time and they will win by at least a touchdown."

Howard McCall, Junior Arts—"Season records have no significance in this contest. Villanova will be the victor."

Thomas Devine, Sophomore Arts—"Experience was lacking in the earlier games, but the 'Cats are now ready to atone for their mistakes by thumping the Owls."

Gene Mozier, Senior Engineer—"We're going to win and not by 'breaks,' but by smart, heads-up football."

Bob McIntyre, Commerce Junior—"After a very informative session among Temple's co-eds, conducting a 'Gallup Poll', I have decided that, even though the general consensus of opinion at Temple is in favor of a team called the 'Owls,' Villanova will win, since the 'Owls' seem to be underestimating the 'Cats.'"

Bill Schubert, Junior Arts—"We will win, if we learn to capitalize on our scoring opportunities."

Temple Men Confident But "De-Icers" Unsure Of Owl Triumph

By DAVID N. REARDON

WITH courage in our heart and Wildcat determination in our spirit, two VILLANOVAN reporters stalked up to the urban campus on Broad Street to quiz a representative cross-section of the Temple student body about the outcome of the Wildcat-Owl gridiron clash. However, we did not try to deceive ourselves that the survey would be unbiased.

Our initial adventure was a sorority house, Phi Gamma Nu, where we were cordially welcomed by Miss Sally Anderson and Miss Betty Willar whose answer to our first query was a mutual reply that it would be a close game despite Bill Watson's much-felt absence.

Enough of this feminine intuition — We proceeded to a fraternity house, Sigma Phi Epsilon, for a bit of logical reasoning. All kidding aside, we had the pleasure of meeting the finest bunch of fellows anyone would want to know.

They all seemed interested in our interviews and gathered around to obtain our ideas on things. Their hospitality was overwhelming. Met at the door by Val Repkewich, we immediately encountered a score of his fraternity brothers. After a quick response that Villanova would win, Val retracted his statement, saying he thought Temple would win, as did Ed Baron.

Fortunately we contacted the student managerial staff of the football squad. Bill Roan, head custodian of the gridders, who has viewed both clubs in action, holds that despite poor showings against Georgetown and Penn State, Temple should come through on the Appointment of J. Gordon Brosmer, senior commerce student, to the position of Copy Editor of the Belle Air, Villanova College annual, was made known early today by Thomas J. Moore, Editor-in-Chief of that publication.

Gordon Brosmer Made Copy Editor Of 1941 Yearbook

This key position was finally awarded to Brosmer as the result of his efforts made during the past months. As announced in an earlier issue of the VILLANOVAN, the appointment was made this year on the basis of open competition, with each member of the copy staff having an equal opportunity.

Brosmer has had three years' experience on the Belle Air and is well qualified to carry out his duties. His new job will entail a large amount of responsibility, since he must check the veracity and the grammatical construction of all copy included in the 1941 yearbook.

A resident student from Norwich, N. Y., majoring in marketing, Brosmer has been quite active in other extra-curricular activities. He has been a member of Belle Masque for two years, and joined Delta Pi Epsilon, commerce school fraternity, upon its reorganization last year. He has also participated in intramural sports and was in charge of the sale of tickets for the Junior Prom last year.

With the appointment of the copy editor, all the positions on the editorial board of the Belle Air have been filled. An art editor was to have been selected, but it has been decided to dispense with the position for this year.

GHOST OF OWL IS ON THE PROWL

By JOHN P. FULLAM

IN all the discussion about the big game, the Owl and the Wildcat are considered only as symbols of an organization. Everyone seems to ignore their personal reactions, their emotions, etc.

And so, in the very best Mammy Yokum tradition, we began to conjure up a vision.

A soft whirring noise was heard in the background; a faint shape appeared—a shape which grew more and more distinct with the passage of time. It began to speak. Its steady monotone was interrupted only by the rhythmic snoring of the writer. Listen. . .

Enter, Ghost

I am the ghost of last year's owl, a most disconsolate sort of fowl, doomed forever to remain on the prowl, 'till Temple wins again. My father, grandfather, his Pa too, have also been forced to wander through this dreary world. The beast they rue hails from Lancaster's Lane.

What do we want, you ask— It's this: Revenge! Sweet word! Most blissful bliss, to bask in revenge which cannot miss the cause of all

Owls Meet Wildcats On Saturday In Thirteenth Renewal Of Feud; Cherry At Best Since '36 Season

Kickoff Scheduled for 2 P. M. at Temple Stadium as Blue Eleven Aims for Fourth Consecutive Win Over Broad Street Rivals and Ninth in Series

By JOE BARNES, Sports Editor

For the first time since 1936 the Owls of Temple University will take the field this Saturday on even terms with "Clipper" Smith's sophomoric Wildcats in the thirteenth renewal of the annual feud which began in 1928. The kickoff will be at 2 P. M., in Temple Stadium.

The renovated Owls, under a new mentor for the second successive season, have so far compiled their best record in the past four years by toppling Muhlenburg, Michigan State, and Bucknell, while losing to three undefeated aggregations which rank among the nation's best, Georgetown Boston College, and Penn State.

Villanova on the other hand has slipped below the high par set by the Wildcats of the past quartet of season's by losing successive games to Baylor University of the famed Southwest Conference and Detroit University, a power of the midwest. The sophomore studded Smithmen emerged on the winning side of the ledger against Pennsylvania Military College, 53-14, Florida University, 28-0, and Kansas University, 33-7.

Toss-Up Game

Consensus of expert opinion is that the game will be decidedly a toss-up with the team taking advantage of every break coming out on top. Neither Owl nor Wildcat can boast of a decided edge at any position with the Villanova stars, Basca, Stenn, and Korisky being matched by outstanding Owls, Tomasic, Beshunsky, and Powers.

Main trouble for Villanova is expected to come from Owl Coach Morrison's "Aerial Circus" as the Cats pass defense has been shoddy throughout the current campaign. Temple's trouble will come in trying to stop shifty Nick Basca who seems sufficiently recovered from his injuries to be at top form Saturday.

The Templars will probably lineup with Frank Ford, a junior from North Catholic High in Philly, and Cliff Seaver, a pass-snagger deluxe, at the end positions. Henry Zajowski, a junior, and sophomore Matt Kilroy make four hundred and sev-

'Cats Lead 8-3 In Past Classics

By HOWARD A. McCALL

As we approach Saturday's thirteenth annual battle with the Cherry and White, it is interesting to note the outcome of these games, the most important of the season in the eyes of the contending colleges.

The people of Philadelphia witnessed the opener of this series in the year 1928 when coach Harry Stuhldreher took the Wildcats to Franklin Field. Captain Pessolano and his teammates fought the Owl to a scoreless stalemate, the only tie of the series. Throughout the game the scales were constantly favoring Temple, and Villanova was kept in the shadow of her own goal for the major part of the fray. To this game Villanova brought her mascot, a live wildcat.

The First Win

It was the following year that the college received praise for their marvelous team play from Francis Wallace in the "Saturday Evening Post." Temple Field was the site of the second contest, and it was here that the Wildcats showed themselves worthy of that laudatory song. A late period assault by Jack McGann and Johnnie Gillespie paved the way for the final 15 to 0 triumph. Another honor was bestowed on Villanova this year when Stuhldreher was appointed a member of the Advisory Committee to the All-American Football Board.

The third battle in 1930 was waged in the huge Philadelphia Municipal Stadium. With a new coach directing Temple, Bert Bell, present director of the Philadelphia "Eagles," the game was one of the closest of the series. A last-period safety produced the slim margin of victory for Villanova, 8 to 7. Bert Bell's hidden ball system was checked on every turn, but nine

Get Your Tickets!

Student tickets for the Temple football game will be on sale tomorrow and Thursday at the Business Office, 122 Mendel hall, between the hours of 12:30 P. M. and 2:30 P. M.

On the presentation of matriculation cards, full time undergraduate students may purchase one ticket for their own personal and exclusive use. Matriculation cards must be presented at the Business Office at the same time that the ticket is purchased.

At the Villanova student gate, "NG," at Temple Stadium it will be necessary to present matriculation cards as an identification, together with the student ticket.

The Villanova student section will be a reserved section. Seat and row numbers will not be reserved even though the tickets are printed to indicate row and seat number.

Guests of the students (no student will be allowed more than one guest), will be admitted at the student gate, "NG," and into the Villanova student section, providing each guest presents a $3.42 ticket and is accompanied by a Villanova student having his matriculation card and student ticket.

Homecomers To Dine and Dance

The annual dinner-dance of the Alumni Association of Villanova College will be held as is customary after the Homecoming game. This year the tradition-and-rivalry-loaded Temple game on November 9 has been designated for this event.

Sponsored by the Philadelphia Club of the Alumni Association, the dinner dance will get under way at 7 P. M. in Frank Palumbo's Cabaret Restaurant at 824 Catherine St. (eight blocks south of Market) in Philadelphia.

H. B. (Bruce) Murray has been elected chairman of the event, and all mail reservations should be sent to him at 2037 N. 12th St., Philadelphia.

Mr. Murray has announced that the price per plate for the dinner-dance will be two dollars.

Other plans for the homecoming which are also under the direction of the Philadelphia association include plans to group all the alumni who are to attend the game in one section at the Temple stadium.

Dr. Edward Burke, '23, President of the Philadelphia Club, urges that all members of the alumni association who intend to be present at the Homecoming game make themselves known to the Homecoming chairman so that they will be included in all the events of the day.

Editor's Note: Though this be the Temple Issue, we cannot forget today is also Election Day. Therefore, we change the usual procedure and devote these editorial columns to the candidates as viewed by their most rabid partisans on the staff. The page position of the evidence here presented has no bearing whatsoever on importance or popularity but is entirely coincidental. The bell for the first round has sounded, and here are the principals.

Wendell L. Willkie

TO SAY that Willkie must be elected President is not only to mean that we need his abilities and program but to include the fact that Roosevelt and the New Dealers must be defeated; it is to say that one power-hungry individual and his hangers-on must not be given four more years in which to further extend their personal control of the government and the people.

Issues that would have been enough to elect Willkie in other campaigns slide into the background today. Roosevelt's attacks on business, his failure to solve the unemployment problem, his more-than-doubling of the national debt, his "speak loudly, little stick" foreign policy, his stirring up of class against class, his keeping down of the country's production, his inefficient and wasteful administration of laws: all these and more subjugate themselves before the crowning argument that no President shall be allowed to break the traditional precedent of "no third term."

No, Willkie will be elected today because 23,000,000 Americans realize that to allow any man three terms is deliberately to invite dictatorship, that it marks the substitution of "indispensable man" government for true democracy.

Let's look at the record of the trend away from our democratic government during the past two terms. Roosevelt took unto himself more personal power than any other President in our history possessed. He not only had wider direct powers but, through the numerous administrative, legislative, judicial bureaus responsible to him alone, had control far in excess of his constitutionally "administrative" function.

He wanted to run the government 100 per cent from his "administrative" position. He told his Congresses what laws he wanted passed and attempted to personally "purge" those Democratic Senators who disagreed with New Deal plans. Not content with a Supreme Court that did not approve of unconstitutional laws, he asked for the power to "pack" the judicial part of our "checks and balances" government with puppets and thus completely run our constitutionally three-part rule from his one part.

Those who say that this man, a President who has shown by these past actions just what he thinks of our democratic system, is "indispensable" in this war emergency fail to reason further than the absurd homily that we must not "swap horses in the middle of the stream."

They fail to realize that a free, intelligent lawyer-businessman, who has never been President before is far more desirable in "the middle of the stream" than one who has abused his powers, than one who may certainly be expected to move much closer to one-man government, or dictatorship, under the self-justification that the people elected him to do so because we are in danger of war.

—T. H. D., JR.

Franklin D. Roosevelt

PRESIDENT Roosevelt's record is so clear that it would be superfluous to detail it. He has made mistakes, but all those extravagant charges against the New Deal are an attempt to obscure the real issues in this campaign. It must not be forgotten, however, that the very same men who blocked much of the Roosevelt legislation in Congress are now endorsing those identical reforms in backing Willkie.

Superficially, the choice today is between modified methodologies, Roosevelt's New Deal vs. Willkie's Big Deal, and this Big Deal is a wholesale adoption of '32 Democratic platform principles on a much grander scale.

Essentially, however, Willkie is the knight-errant of a discarded philosophy of economics who personifies the last desperate attempt of big business to revive the laissez faire policy and restore the "twilight zone" under whose protection it revelled in the wild orgy which culminated in '29. Willkie does not want to oppress labor, but he wishes to effect the control of America by those interests he represents, the largest manufacturing, utility and banking corporations. These in turn effected his nomination.

Politically along party lines either Vandenberg or Taft would have been the more logical choice, but to protect its future against those manufactured "threats", Willkie was boosted as the Galahad in overalls come to save America.

His connections with that segment of business which he knows best have been legal; even in the presidency of the Commonwealth & Southern Corp. he was only a public relations man, a front man or "fixer." He promises to solidify the economic system, yet for a number of years his corporation has been running on a deficit of $64,000,000, owed as back dividends to the preferred stockholders.

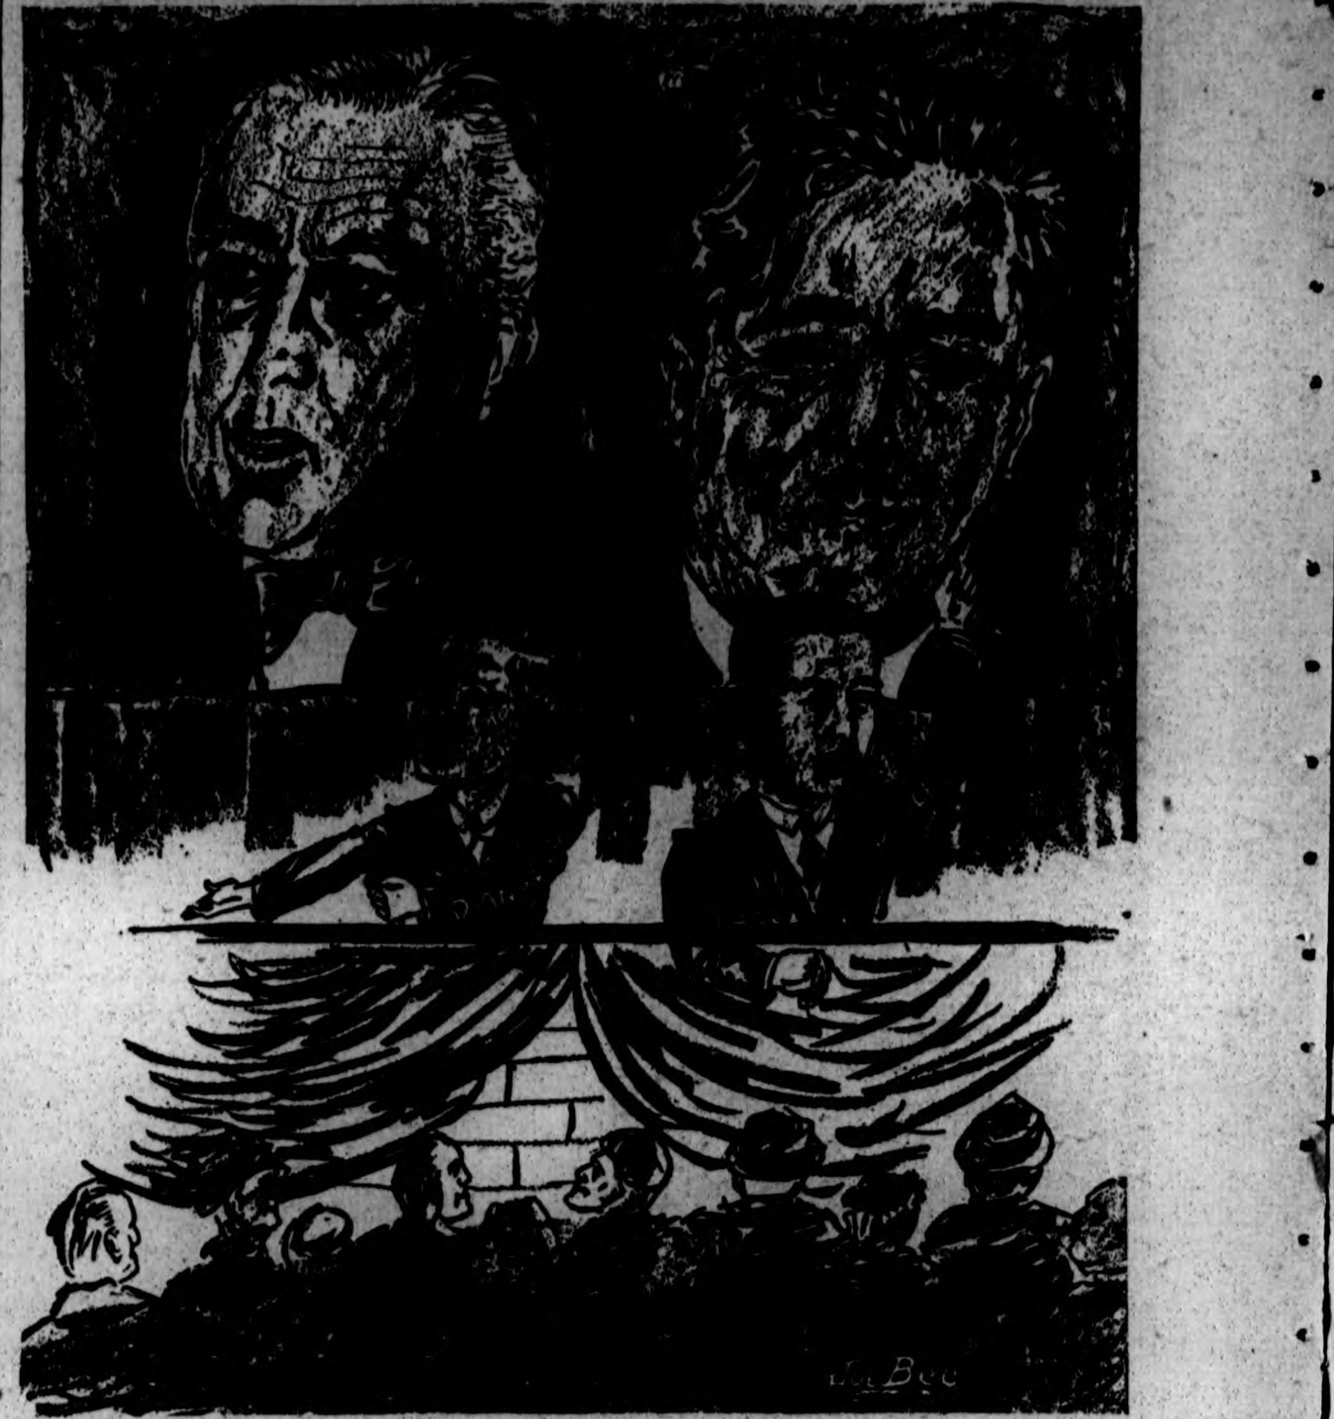
Is he opposed to corrupt political machinery? Willkie has never resigned from Tammany Hall, he has accepted the support of the Pew regime in Pennsylvania, and of men like Annenberg, Weir, and Girdler, the former being one of the most insidious figures in American history, the latter two being noted for their anti-labor activities.

Why the discrepancies? Willkie, in his acceptance speech, accepted many of the New Deal policies, yet repudiated their underlying philosophy. In his foreign policy, he is an isolationist and an extreme interventionist at the same time.

Can this bundle of contradictions adequately guide America?

—A. J. D'A.

Collegians And The Candidates - - by BEE



College Chatter

By Joe McCabe

THIS coming Saturday finds a renewal of the hottest football rivalry in this otherwise quiet city of "Brotherly Love." The TEMPLE game is the only game we play wherein student enthusiasm is really roused to a high pitch.

Part of this enthusiasm is due to the giant rally and bonfire held prior to the game, but rumor has it that for the first time in many years there will be no bonfire. If this be true, then Temple rooters are in for a disappointment, for they take a great delight in setting off the fire beforehand, as was evidenced last year and the year before.

THE GRAB BAG:

The most profound exponent of the crutch type of locomotion is "Max" Connolly, who decked himself out in "tails" and attended a dance on his supports. Why he bothered going is a mystery, for all he did was stand around looking for the sympathy that was not forthcoming. . .

Bob McIntyre has assumed the role of Cupid. Chancing to meet a young lady friend of Frank Abbott he was requested to deliver the message that she was waiting for another "lesson." We wonder whether the lesson had to do with the age old art of l'amour? . . . Although the Detroit game was not designated as such, it looked as though it was "homecoming," due to the large turnout of alumni.

Bob Moore has suddenly acquired a liking for, of all things, bowling. However, it is reliably established that this liking was developed through an attraction found for a young female who just "loves to bowl." Look out, Bob, she might "bowl you over"!

FAN MAIL:

Recently this column was the recipient of a daintily-decorated post card from some feminine admirers. We appreciate the thoughtfulness but don't understand the accompanying remark. Would it be asking too much for the young ladies to enlighten us?

* * *

As this issue is known as the TEMPLE Issue, it is only right that before closing we say a word to the football squad who'll be out there trying to snare the Owl. No matter what setbacks you have suffered in the past and no matter what the gentlemen of the press have to say about your ability there's only one thing the student body asks of you—to BEAT TEMPLE!!!

With Scouting Thomas

By Tom Moore

ONCE again the time has come when the 'Cats and the Owls will seek to tear each other apart on the gridiron at Temple Stadium. For a number of years these schools have sought to build up a genuine rivalry which would help foster school spirit in the separate institutions and give the students an opportunity to let off some emotional steam.

Although there are numerous colleges in and about Philadelphia, there has hardly ever been a rivalry with a neighboring institution worth talking about. The Temple-Villanova game, the now extinct St. Joe's-La Salle game, and the Haverford-Swarthmore game which will be resumed in 1941, are about the only ones that could ever cause any local resident's blood pressure to rise above normal.

In other sections of the country, there are numerous examples of colorful sectional rivalries, and there is no good reason why the same thing should not be true of the Philadelphia area. If the several schools in this part of the state would come down off their high horses and get together more than they do, each participant would benefit. The recently organized Philadelphia Forensic League is a step in the right direction, but we need more activity of this nature.

At least there should be some means of having teams of local institutions, such as Penn and Temple or Villanova, meet in a post season game if each happens to have a successful season during one of these years. In Pittsburgh there existed a mythical city championship which certainly helped arouse interest in the games between the schools involved and which definitely did not harm the gate receipts. The Villanova-Temple game is an attempt to start such a thing and here's hoping the rivalry continues on the friendly basis it has in the past.

One of the outcomes that should be striven for in sports is the ability to lose gracefully to a superior opponent. Unfortunately today, almost everyone judges a team by its record of wins and thinks nothing of character-building and the other beneficial outcomes of participation in athletics. This is something to which the general public must be educated.

A classic example of the fact that many of us never learned how to lose gracefully are the attacks by the Harvard Crimson upon the other teams of the Ivy League which are enjoying a more successful season than are the sons of John Harvard. Apparently, if they can't win when they play, they want to take their dolls and dishes and go home.

Meet The Boys: Manager Dick or Captain Ed In Their Sports Are Ahead. Read the Rest, More Is Said

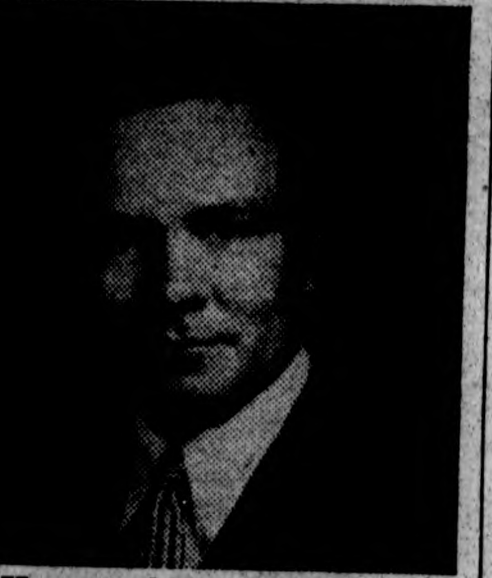
By GERARD F. BELZ

RICHARD MONSAERT

WITH the Temple game in the offing and the main topic of conversation being football it seems a most opportune time to introduce our varsity football manager, "Dick" Monsaert.

Dick is that chunky, blonde, energetic fellow whom you see cavorting about the players' bench, busily directing his assistants and making himself generally useful.

It appears as though Dick had his mind on football from the outset. He was born September 29, 1919 and to the football fan September suggests one thing, the opening of the football season.



Athlete and Actor

Dick, a Jerseyite, makes his home in Paterson, while attending St. Mary's High School he engaged in three varsity sports, baseball, basketball and tennis, but still found time to display his talents behind the footlights as a member of the Dramatic Club.

Graduation brought the inevitable problem of choosing a college. The advice of the high school authorities, together with his desire to manage a good football team enabled him to make a quick decision. In September of '37 Villanova acquired one more student in the C. & F. school.

Dick's activities at Villanova, other than being football manager, have been limited to intra-mural sports. "Football takes all my time," was his explanation, and a very plausible one. However, Dick has made application for membership in the D. P. E. fraternity and on the word of good authority will be accepted in the near future.

Study His Hobby

Inquiring about hobbies we found studying to hold the top position. Studying school work? Certainly not. Dick devotes his spare time to the science of football and textile dying. Incidentally, Dick intends to make the latter a lifetime work. He is already planning to enter N. Carolina State College next fall.

8932—No, this not his draft registration number but it is his registration number in the College Republicans of America Club. So all Democrats beware.

Girls (perhaps girl) seem to have a strange effect upon Dick. On this subject he refuses to say more than "No Comment."

You might, however, ask Dick about that petite drum majoress in San Antonio, Texas, who welcomed him, as manager of the football team, with a bouquet of flowers. Don't laugh; he has a photograph to prove it.

EDWARD BANAGAN

VOLLEYING into position I finally dropshot "Ed" Banagan, our varsity tennis captain, into a defensive position and proceeded to give him the "works." His defense was impregnable, however, and withering beneath his blistering pace I soon realized the versatility of my tall, dark opponent.

Ed, a son of the Empire state, was born in Albany in the year of 1919 on the ninth of June. By a quick mathematical subtraction we find that he is now twenty-one and "draftable."

Earns Six Letters

Vincentian Institute, the scene of our racquet-wielder's high school days, was the first to benefit by his versatility. Ed accumulated a grand total of six varsity letters as a member of the tennis, basketball, and ice-hockey teams. He was a member of the Public Speaking Club, a staff member of his yearbook, and was elected to the presidency of the Honor society and vice-presidency of the senior class. Quite an achievement, n'est pas?

Stroking his way into championship form, Ed became a center of activity upon his matriculation of Villanova. Offering his first service in the way of intra-mural sports he followed up with five smashing shots. He became a committeeman of the Sophomore Cotillion, was appointed to the junior blazer committee, acquired the coveted position of the Secretary of the present senior class, was elected to the vice-presidency of the D. P. E. fraternity, and finally became the captain of varsity tennis.

A Statistician

For a pastime, strange as it seems, Ed delves into some complicated statistics. During the last summer vacation he conducted an actual class in that subject where he was employed. Fred Steller, his roommate, claims his only other pastime is listening to recorded music.

When the topic of discussion neared the romantical side Ed angled for the sidelines with, "It's a dark secret." I did see HER picture, however, and I will say that Ed does not confine his good taste to musical recordings.

Our imaginary match reaching set-point Ed completely vanquished me with a "smoking" shot from his pet pipe.

For the last three years Fedigan has emerged from the contest victorious, but each time the judges have had a difficult decision to make. This year the judging will be done on Friday night, rather than during the day, as has been done in previous years. Thus, lighting effects will be featured and brilliant displays are expected. The various buildings will be completely decorated tomorrow.

Following the festivities in the Field House, a huge bonfire will be ignited at the parking lot, directly across from the gym. The freshmen will gather the wood, and ample precaution will be taken to prevent a premature illumination of the wood pile, such as happened last year. The cheerleaders will lead a snake dance to conclude the evening's festivities.

New Coach—A Win

1931 came and brought another coach to Temple. Heinie Miller, former teammate of Bell at Penn, put a fine team on the field and defeated the home club by a 13 to 7 score. Temple was undefeated that year and it was quite evident why they won. They played superior football and deserved to be the victor, but we might add that Villanova had practically a sophomore team.

The next year Villanova, looking like the "Irish" of Notre Dame in their green jerseys, played sweet music to the tune of 7 to 0. This victory ruined Temple's undefeated record and avenged the loss of the previous season.

In 1933 Temple again changed its coaching staff. Glenn "Pop" Warner, creator of the Warner system, came to the Broad Street

GLOBE TROTTING

TO THE TEMPLE GAME

The following routes to Temple Stadium are outlined for the benefit of those who expect to attend Saturday's game but are unfamiliar with the location of the field. Temple Stadium is situated at Vernon Rd. and City Line, Philadelphia.

The best route from central Philadelphia is to go north on Broad St. to its end, then left on Cheltenham Ave. to Vernon Rd. and the stadium. However, in order to avoid the traffic on Broad St., many drivers may prefer to go out Benjamin Franklin Parkway to the East River Drive in Fairmount Park and then continue to the Wissahickon Drive, which joins East River Drive at Ridge Ave. and City Line. Keep going on Wissahickon Drive to Lincoln Drive, continue on the latter to its dead end and turn right to Germantown Ave. (double cartracks.) Bear right again and turn left at the first traffic light to Mt. Airy Ave. Follow Mt. Airy Ave to the second traffic light, then turn right on Cheltenham Ave. to the stadium.

Motorists from West Philadelphia should use the Girard Ave. Bridge and at the first semaphore signal turn left down the hill. At the bottom of the hill one should bear right onto Wissahickon Drive. Then Lincoln Drive, Allen Lane, Germantown Ave., and Mt. Airy Ave. may be taken, as outlined above.

Those driving to the stadium from the Main Line should go in Montgomery Ave. to City Line, then bear left and continue to Ridge Ave. (double cartracks). There they may join Wissahickon Drive and take the route mentioned above.

Football fans from New York and northern New Jersey are advised to use the Tacony-Palmyra Bridge, and then travel on Levick St. to Roosevelt Blvd. Turn left and continue along the Boulevard to Broad St., turn right to City Line. A left turn on City Line will lead to the field.

Those rooters coming from the northwest on Bethlehem Pike should bear left on Stenton Ave. to Vernon Rd. A left turn on Vernon Rd. reaches the field.

Those who intend to use the P. & W. should take the Market St. Elevated at 69th and Market, and get off at 13th St. Here one may take the Broad St. Subway for a 3-cent exchange fee. After continuing on this line to its end, the passenger should board the Route 6 trolley. The end of this line is two blocks west of Temple Stadium.

A better way than by P. & W. is to take the Aronomink bus to 63d St. and City Line, where the "E" bus may be taken to Washington Lane and Greene St. From here transfer to the "H" bus, and go directly to the field.

Editor's Note: Though this be the Temple Issue, we cannot forget today is also Election Day. Therefore, we change the usual procedure and devote these editorial columns to the candidates as viewed by their most rabid partisans on the staff. The page position of the evidence here presented has no bearing whatsoever on importance or popularity but is entirely coincidental. The bell for the first round has sounded, and here are the principals.

Wendell L. Willkie

TO SAY that Willkie must be elected President is not only to mean that we need his abilities and program but to include the fact that Roosevelt and the New Dealers must be defeated; it is to say that one power-hungry individual and his hangers-on must not be given four more years in which to further extend their personal control of the government and the people.

Issues that would have been enough to elect Willkie in other campaigns slide into the background today. Roosevelt's attacks on business, his failure to solve the unemployment problem, his more-than-doubling of the national debt, his "speak loudly, little stick" foreign policy, his stirring up of class against class, his keeping down of the country's production, his inefficient and wasteful administration of laws: all these and more subjugate themselves before the crowning argument that no President shall be allowed to break the traditional precedent of "no third term."

No, Willkie will be elected today because 23,000,000 Americans realize that to allow any man three terms is deliberately to invite dictatorship, that it marks the substitution of "indispensable man" government for true democracy.

Let's look at the record of the trend away from our democratic government during the past two terms. Roosevelt took unto himself more personal power than any other President in our history possessed. He not only had wider direct powers but, through the numerous administrative, legislative, judicial bureaus responsible to him alone, had control far in excess of his constitutionally "administrative" function.

He wanted to run the government 100 per cent from his "administrative" position. He told his Congresses what laws he wanted passed and attempted to personally "purge" those Democratic Senators who disagreed with New Deal plans. Not content with a Supreme Court that did not approve of unconstitutional laws, he asked for the power to "pack" the judicial part of our "checks and balances" government with puppets and thus completely run our constitutionally three-part rule from his one part.

Those who say that this man, a President who has shown by these past actions just what he thinks of our democratic system, is "indispensable" in this war emergency fail to reason further than the absurd homily that we must not "swap horses in the middle of the stream."

They fail to realize that a free, intelligent lawyer-businessman, who has never been President before is far more desirable in "the middle of the stream" than one who has abused his powers, than one who may certainly be expected to move much closer to one-man government, or dictatorship, under the self-justification that the people elected him to do so because we are in danger of war.

—T. H. D., JR.

Franklin D. Roosevelt

PRESIDENT Roosevelt's record is so clear that it would be superfluous to detail it. He has made mistakes, but all those extravagant charges against the New Deal are an attempt to obscure the real issues in this campaign. It must not be forgotten, however, that the very same men who blocked much of the Roosevelt legislation in Congress are now endorsing those identical reforms in backing Willkie.

Superficially, the choice today is between modified methodologies, Roosevelt's New Deal vs. Willkie's Big Deal, and this Big Deal is a wholesale adoption of '32 Democratic platform principles on a much grander scale.

Essentially, however, Willkie is the knight-errant of a discarded philosophy of economics who personifies the last desperate attempt of big business to revive the laissez faire policy and restore the "twilight zone" under whose protection it revelled in the wild orgy which culminated in '29. Willkie does not want to oppress labor, but he wishes to effect the control of America by those interests he represents, the largest manufacturing, utility and banking corporations. These in turn effected his nomination.

Politically along party lines either Vandenberg or Taft would have been the more logical choice, but to protect its future against those manufactured "threats", Willkie was boosted as the Galahad in overalls come to save America.

His connections with that segment of business which he knows best have been legal; even in the presidency of the Commonwealth & Southern Corp. he was only a public relations man, a front man or "fixer." He promises to solidify the economic system, yet for a number of years his corporation has been running on a deficit of $64,000,000, owed as back dividends to the preferred stockholders.

Is he opposed to corrupt political machinery? Willkie has never resigned from Tammany Hall, he has accepted the support of the Pew regime in Pennsylvania, and of men like Annenberg, Weir, and Girdler, the former being one of the most insidious figures in American history, the latter two being noted for their anti-labor activities.

Why the discrepancies? Willkie, in his acceptance speech, accepted many of the New Deal policies, yet repudiated their underlying philosophy. In his foreign policy, he is an isolationist and an extreme interventionist at the same time.

Can this bundle of contradictions adequately guide America?

THIS coming Saturday finds a renewal of the hottest football rivalry in this otherwise quiet city of "Brotherly Love." The TEMPLE game is the only game we play wherein student enthusiasm is really roused to a high pitch.

Part of this enthusiasm is due to the giant rally and bonfire held prior to the game, but rumor has it that for the first time in many years there will be no bonfire. If this be true, then Temple rooters are in for a disappointment, for they take a great delight in setting off the fire beforehand, as was evidenced last year and the year before.

THE GRAB BAG:

The most profound exponent of the crutch type of locomotion is "Max" Connolly, who decked himself out in "tails" and attended a dance on his supports. Why he bothered going is a mystery, for all he did was stand around looking for the sympathy that was not forthcoming. . .

Bob McIntyre has assumed the role of Cupid. Chancing to meet a young lady friend of Frank Abbott he was requested to deliver the message that she was waiting for another "lesson." We wonder whether the lesson had to do with the age old art of l'amour? . . . Although the Detroit game was not designated as such, it looked as though it was "homecoming," due to the large turnout of alumni.

Bob Moore has suddenly acquired a liking for, of all things, bowling. However, it is reliably established that this liking was developed through an attraction found for a young female who just "loves to bowl." Look out, Bob, she might "bowl you over"!

FAN MAIL:

Recently this column was the recipient of a daintily-decorated post card from some feminine admirers. We appreciate the thoughtfulness but don't understand the accompanying remark. Would it be asking too much for the young ladies to enlighten us?

As this issue is known as the TEMPLE Issue, it is only right that before closing we say a word to the football squad who'll be out there trying to snare the Owl. No matter what setbacks you have suffered in the past and no matter what the gentlemen of the press have to say about your ability there's only one thing the student body asks of you—to BEAT TEMPLE!!!

With Scouting Thomas

By Tom Moore

ONCE again the time has come when the 'Cats and the Owls will seek to tear each other apart on the gridiron at Temple Stadium. For a number of years these schools have sought to build up a genuine rivalry which would help foster school spirit in the separate institutions and give the students an opportunity to let off some emotional steam.

Although there are numerous colleges in and about Philadelphia, there has hardly ever been a rivalry with a neighboring institution worth talking about. The Temple-Villanova game, the now extinct St. Joe's-La Salle game, and the Haverford-Swarthmore game which will be resumed in 1941, are about the only ones that could ever cause any local resident's blood pressure to rise above normal.

In other sections of the country, there are numerous examples of colorful sectional rivalries, and there is no good reason why the same thing should not be true of the Philadelphia area. If the several schools in this part of the state would come down off their high horses and get together more than they do, each participant would benefit. The recently organized Philadelphia Forensic League is a step in the right direction, but we need more activity of this nature.

At least there should be some means of having teams of local institutions, such as Penn and Temple or Villanova, meet in a post season game if each happens to have a successful season during one of these years. In Pittsburgh there existed a mythical city championship which certainly helped arouse interest in the games between the schools involved and which definitely did not harm the gate receipts. The Villanova-Temple game is an attempt to start such a thing and here's hoping the rivalry continues on the friendly basis it has in the past.

One of the outcomes that should be striven for in sports is the ability to lose gracefully to a superior opponent. Unfortunately today, almost everyone judges a team by its record of wins and thinks nothing of character-building and the other beneficial outcomes of participation in athletics. This is something to which the general public must be educated.

A classic example of the fact that many of us never learned how to lose gracefully are the attacks by the Harvard Crimson upon the other teams of the Ivy League which are enjoying a more successful season than are the sons of John Harvard. Apparently, if they can't win when they play, they want to take their dolls and dishes and go home.

Meet The Boys: Manager Dick or Captain Ed In Their Sports Are Ahead. Read the Rest, More Is Said

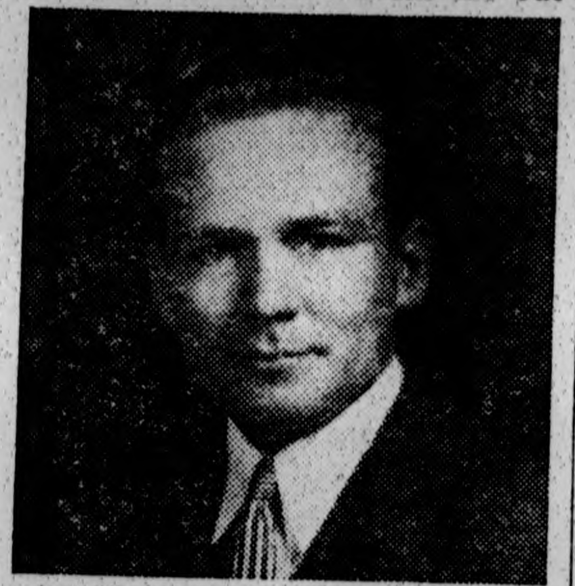
By GERARD F. BELZ

RICHARD MONSAERT

WITH the Temple game in the offing and the main topic of conversation being football it seems a most opportune time to introduce our varsity football manager, "Dick" Monsaert.

Dick is that chunky, blonde, energetic fellow whom you see cavorting about the players' bench, busily directing his assistants and making himself generally useful.

It appears as though Dick had his mind on football from the outset. He was born September 29, 1919 and to the football fan September suggests one thing, the opening of the football season.



Athlete and Actor

Dick, a Jerseyite, makes his home in Paterson, while attending St. Mary's High School he engaged in three varsity sports, baseball, basketball and tennis, but still found time to display his talents behind the footlights as a member of the Dramatic Club.

Graduation brought the inevitable problem of choosing a college. The advice of the high school authorities, together with his desire to manage a good football team enabled him to make a quick decision. In September of '37 Villanova acquired one more student in the C. & F. school.

Dick's activities at Villanova, other than being football manager, have been limited to intra-mural sports. "Football takes all my time," was his explanation, and a very plausible one. However, Dick has made application for membership in the D. P. E. fraternity and on the word of good authority will be accepted in the near future.

Study His Hobby

Inquiring about hobbies we found studying to hold the top position. Studying school work? Certainly not. Dick devotes his spare time to the science of football and textile dying. Incidentally, Dick intends to make the latter a lifetime work. He is already planning to enter N. Carolina State College next fall.

8932—No, this not his draft registration number but it is his registration number in the College Republicans of America Club. So all Democrats beware.

Girls (perhaps girl) seem to have a strange effect upon Dick. On this subject he refuses to say more than "No Comment."

You might, however, ask Dick about that petite drum majoress in San Antonio, Texas, who welcomed him, as manager of the football team, with a bouquet of flowers. Don't laugh; he has a photograph to prove it.

EDWARD BANAGAN

VOLLEYING into position I finally dropshot "Ed" Banagan, our varsity tennis captain, into a defensive position and proceeded to give him the "works." His defense was impregnable, however, and withering beneath his blistering pace I soon realized the versatility of my tall, dark opponent.

Ed, a son of the Empire state, was born in Albany in the year of 1919 on the ninth of June. By a quick mathematical subtraction we find that he is now twenty-one and "draftable."

Earns Six Letters

Vincentian Institute, the scene of our racquet-wielder's high school days, was the first to benefit by his versatility. Ed accumulated a grand total of six varsity letters as a member of the tennis, basketball, and ice-hockey teams. He was a member of the Public Speaking Club, a staff member of his yearbook, and was elected to the presidency of the Honor society and vice-presidency of the senior class. Quite an achievement, n'est pas?

SATURDAY'S game with Temple will be tough as ever in the past. Temple is definitely a team that is going forward and showing improvement with every game. They have used many sophomores throughout the season for Morrison has confidence in them and has been constantly building toward an outstanding Temple club. At the present time he is not far from that goal. In Tomasic the Owls have a great back—one who can run, pass, and kick with the best of them and he is greatly improved over last year when he gave us plenty of trouble."

Owl Editor Gives Reasons For Win

Owls Figure This Year Their Best Chance for Win Over Wildcats Due to Tomasic

By JOHN KOENIG

Sports Editor, "Temple News"

Now is the time for all good Temples and Villanovas to come to the aid of their college. In other words, we are on the brink of another Owl-Wildcat setto which should furnish the usual spirited battle accompanied by tearing claws and flying feathers.

"Clipper" Smith is now a veteran of this annual Philadelphia football fest, but Ray Morrison, newly-arrived from the quiet and peaceable South will be getting his first taste of gridiron gore served in the traditional Northern style.

But Ray will have the best chance of any Owl coach in recent years of defeating Clipper's Main Liners. Fred Swan's boys last year and Pop Warner's outfit the year before both went into the fray as underdogs. This year, things are different, and stepping aside to let the Villanova brickbats go by, any Temple man will point out why the Owls should win, as follows:

1. Andy Tomasic.
2. Temple now has a more diversified attack.
3. Andy Tomasic.
4. As usual, Temple has played in tougher competition.
5. Andy Tomasic.
6. Villanova has slipped (?)
7. Three straight Villanova victories have griped the Owls.
8. Andy Tomasic (our boy).

Of course, there are several other miscellaneous reasons. Just to mention a few in passing—Jim Powers, the 105-yard run man; Sid Beshunsky, fancy-footed field goal booting guard; pass receivers Max Wharton, Charley Zalonka, Frank Ford, Cliff Seaver, and Frank Moister; plunging fullback Jim Yeager, and defensive center Larry Brahm.

Temple has been an in-and-out team throughout the season. A powerhouse against Muhlenberg, an inspired team against Boston College, and a rallying team making a last ditch spurt to top Bucknell, the Owls have bogged down against Georgetown and Penn State—both of whom, incidentally, remain undefeated along with Boston.

Villanova must beware of the Owls, for many brave football hearts are asleep on the Temple Stadium deep — Michigan State Coach Charley Bachman's is on rock bottom.

Villanovan Sports

Above is Temple Stadium where the traditional Villanova-Temple game will be played this Saturday afternoon. The above shot was taken at last year's game, won by Villanova by a 12-6 score. The stadium is located at Vernon Road and Michner Street just south of City Line in Philadelphia. It has a seating capacity of 44,859.

Vince McNally:

THE outcome of Saturday's game with Temple depends to a large extent on the blocking that our boys give Basca. If your blockers can break Nick loose he will do the rest."

"In order to win this game our club will have to hit the same peak that Detroit attained against us two weeks ago."

"Temple has a team that will score if given the chance. They showed that against Bucknell last week. Morrison possesses a fine kicker in Tomasic and that is something that our team lacks. Our kicking so far this year has been far below the standard set by Villanova teams of the past few years. I look for a hard fought contest on Saturday."—VINCENT McNALLY.

Basca Paces Cats To 33-7 Victory

A first period touchdown proved to be the tonic or "what the doctor prescribed" for the Villanova football team Friday night as the 'Cats routed their intersectional rivals, Kansas U., 33-7.

Just what happened to the Smithmen in their two previous battles seemed to be clarified in their tussle with the Jayhawkers, for after that first period score, they regained their old enthusiasm and pushed across four more tallies on a rain-soaked field.

To interpret more easily, the 'Cats were "running wild" as they collected the sum of 18 first downs and ran and passed for 439 yards. It was strictly Villanova that night, with colorful Nick Basca leading the way. Basca, accounting for two touchdowns, also kicked three extra points.

Third Period Score

Kansas reeled helplessly about through most of the game with the exception of their third-period drive which netted a touchdown. It was all with the good graces of halfback Don Pollom who accurately punted out of bounds on the 1 yard line late in the third quarter. The 'Cats forward wall with sixty minute Ed Korisky bolstering the defense left the Jayhawkers in a harmless way.

Villanova labored in power for their first quarter score as they struck off 11 plays good for 73 yards. The game was only seven minutes old when the 'Cats virtually starved of paydirt from their past two encounters, ripped off the first touchdwon on a lateral from Tom Morgan to Basca from the 2 yard line. Basca then went back and kicked the extra point.

Midway in the second quarter, backfield strategy by the 'Cats completely fooled the Kansas secondary as they headed for a touchdown on two plays good for 82 yards. On third down after a Villanova kick had been called back because of offsides, Sal Rosato on an off-tackle smash went 35 yards completely fooling the Kansas line and secondary who were playing deep expecting Basca to kick. From that point a nicely executed forward lateral involving Basca, Len Kolenda and Ed Collins sent the Blue ahead by two touchdowns.

CLIPPER Smith's books are in bad shape. Ever since last November they have been continually dropping to the floor. Now but definitely this is a little hard on one's books. In fact, the Clipper's diverse volumes are getting quite ragged from the continual falling and the backs are almost ready to fall off.

—V—

Now we hate to see this happen to the Clipper's property. He's a swell guy and when we want to borrow his volume on "How to Win Football Games and Influence Alumni," we notice that he's just a bit ashamed of the book's condition. The reason for it all is that the Clipper has just one bookend — yep, just one bookend. So you can easily see how hard it is to make your books stay set when you have only one prop to hold them up.

It isn't Clipper's fault that he has only one bookend. You see the boys of last year's football team made him a present of this necessity, which they had made out of a sizable chunk of Temple's goalpost after they had handed the Owls a lacing on the eighteenth of last November. They gave it to the Clipper as a souvenir to remember them by, but it seems that their presents committee sort of slipped-up somewhere and failed to remember that it takes two bookends to hold one's books together so they only gave him one and thus came Clipper's book troubles.

Now there is only one way to alleviate Mr. Smith's difficulty and that is to provide him with another bookend to match the one he has so his books will stay together. Unfortunately, there is none of the wood from the '39 Owl goalposts still around and no other wood than Temple's will do, for the Owl posts have a certain delightful aroma when we get them out here on the Main Line. So what to do?

It's simple boys. All you have to do is get another chunk of post this year and have the end made. It's very, very simple. All you must do is BEAT TEMPLE!

Kitten Laces Owl In Frosh Fray, 20-7

Villanova's freshman football team continued their winning ways last Thursday evening when they defeated the Temple '44's to the tune of 20-7, beneath the arclights at Temple Stadium.

This was the second victory of the year for the Kittens who previously beat St. Benedicts High of New Jersey in their initial encounter.

Inspired by the sparkling performance of Joe Pezelski and Jack Dzitko in the backfield and Bill Sullivan and Dick Baraldi on the line, the Frosh clearly outplayed the Owlets in all departments of the game.

Villanova scored first in the closing minutes of the first quarter. With the ball at mid-field, Joe Pezelski, diminutive left halfback, faded back to throw a pass. Not being able to locate a receiver, he ran the ball down the sidelines for a 55 yard touchdown jaunt. Pezelski showed amazing speed every time he carried the mail until a leg cramp slowed him up in the second half.

Temple knotted the count in the second period when they marched 65 yards for their lone touchdown of the evening. With Erle Baugher carrying and passing the ball, Temple piled up four first downs in this concentrated drive and it was Baugher who finally plunged over from the Kittens 2 yard line.

In the third quarter, Villanova had a first down on Temple's 2 yard line and it looked like a sure score, but the defense tightened and the Kittens lost the ball on downs.

Early in the last period, with the score still deadlocked at 7-7, the educated right foot of Erle Baugher, Temple halfback, put Doc Jacobs' team in a hole. Baugher angled a coffin-corner on the Villanova 1 foot line. Gabe Mosca, who replaced Pezelski in the Villanova backfield, stood ten yards behind his own goal line and got off a punt that did not come to earth until it had reached the Temple 30 yard marker. This 80 yard kick (on the fly) broke Temple's spirit and they had little resistance to offer as the Kittens clawed their way to two more touchdowns in the final ten minutes of play.

The first of these two six-point-en pounds of Owl tackles in the absence of the injured Bill Watson, who started the season.

Only Senior

Stan Batinski, a 215-pound guard from Greenfield, Mass. ,will probably be the only senior in the opening line, but Charley Drulis will undoubtedly see plently of action. At the other guard should be Syd Beshunsky, huge sophomore from Linden, N. J., who kicked the winning field goal in the Owls conquest of Bucknell last Saturday.

Center position, usually manned by the injured senior Andy Brunski, will be taken over by a veteran junior Larry Brahm. Brahm tips the Fairbanks at 210-pounds and is equally capable as Brunski but lacks the latter's experience.

Temple's backfield is manned at the opening gun by the sensational Andy Tomasic, George Sutch, Jim Powers and Bob McCrocken, a senior from nearby Norristown, Pa.

Tomasic is the Owl counted upon to start the fireworks against Villanova Saturday. A junior, Andy scored the lone Temple touchdown last fall on an eighty and run after snaring a ten yard pass late in the game. In keeping with the Morrison aerial bombardment, Andy has been converted to a pass tosser this year and has developed into one of the country's finest pitchers. As a sophomore he was terrific but this year he is utterly sensational and with an undefeated club he would undoubtedly reach All-American heights, at his left halfback post.

Jimmy Powers, speedy senior, is another threat in the Broad Street backfield. Two years ago Powers shocked the nation with a 105-yard runback of a kickoff for a Temple touchdown against Florida University. Proving that lightning can strike in the same place Jim repeated his performance this fall by racing a Michigan State kickoff back for a six-pointer. Shifty and possessor of dazzling speed Powers must be stopped before he gets past the scrimmage line or it's curtains for the Cats.

Sutch, a crafty soph, and Al Drulis round out the nicely balanced Temple backfield by providing fine field generalship and deadly blocking.

Lightweights Larrup Lafayette For Second Successive Conquest

Villanova's lightweights took their second straight win of the current campaign when they defeated Lafayette, 14-7, on the homefield last Saturday afternoon.

Lafayette was completely outplayed by Coach Tommy Casper's charges, who outgained their foes in every department as the sloppy field failed to stop the Blue. Two scoring thrusts were enough to send the boys from Easton back home with a loss.

Newell and Di'Ippollito chalked up the six pointers and Lombardo's steady toe accounted for the two points after touchdown. Lafayette's score came on a twelve-yard pass caught on the Wildcat's forty and raced over for the score.

Despite the bruising acquired in the Cornell game, the Villanova squad played heads-up ball, gaining fourteen first downs to Lafayette's two.

Villanova's scores came after sustained drives down the field. Newell plunged from the four-yard line for one touchdown and Di'Ippollito went twelve off-tackle for the other score.

The Easton club, except for their one scoring play never came near the home club's goal-line. The Villanova 150's had complete charge of the day's activities. Outstanding were the individual performances of Newell, Marks, Lombardo and Di'Ippollito.

Casper's club will meet the Rutgers University team this Friday afternoon at the Villanova Stadium.

Sport Scribe Lovett Almost Meows, He Has Covered Wildcats So Long

"He's been covering Villanova so long that he goes around the office meowing!" was the way a fellow Philadelphia Ledger sports scribe recently described Tommy Lovett, who during the past six seasons has followed Wildcat football teams from Cuba to Los Angeles, California and odd points about the country including Tyler and San Antonio, Texas; Detroit, Michigan, Birmingham, Alabama; and a host of towns and cities enroute.

Tommy first worked on Villanova assignments in the early thirties but it was not until 1934 that he was given a standing assignment to follow the Wildcats day by day throughout the year for the Ledger. Like everyone else who has become acquainted with the college, Tommy has caught "Villanova fever" and has become a staunch supporter of the 'Cats in everything from pinochle to gridiron warfare.

"What's Lovett Say?"

The feeling seems to be mutual between Villanova and Lovett for every night in every hall on the campus from Father Dunne's Pasteboard Palace to Father Sullivan's "Hotel Fedigan" there runs a rumbling sound, "What's Lovett say tonight?" for Villanovans delight in Tommy's short, punchy phrases decreeing or relating the feats of the Wildcats.

Friday night Tommy was reminiscing with the writer on the subject of past Villanova football. It seems that Tommy still holds memories of the great 1937 ensemble up-

Fediganites Lose To Alumni Five In Upset, 28-27,

By BOB FUNABASHI

A day for the underdogs was proclaimed last week in the Intramural basketball league as the seasoned top-notchers were knocked from their lofty perch by their opponents.

Alumni's green wave swept back into the thick of the battle by defeating a favored Fedigan contingent on a last minute field goal, 28-27. Mendel Day-hops blocked the winning paths of Austin Hall in the initial battle of the week by winning 35-29 and Mendel Residents, on Wednesday night defeated Alumni in an easily fought affair.

The latter part of the doubleheader on Wednesday saw Fedigan fall for their second successive time, this time against a revenging Austin squad, 29-24. Finishing touch for the week's tilts was featured by a high-riding C. & F. quintet who emerged victorious against the Mendel Day-hops, 43-38.

McQuade High Scorer

High man for the night for the Greenies was Joe McQuade who tallied 12 points against a weak Fedigan defense. He set up plays and furnished the big guns for the Greenies. A last minute foul completion by Milde gave Alumni its win. It was a neck-and-neck battle to the finish with Alumni holding to a slight lead throughout.

With high claims on the first leg of the race, Austin Hall's squad met a slight complexity against the Mendel Day-hops as they bowed in the first battle of the week. Holding a 17-12 advantage at halftime, it was just a matter of time before the Day-hops outplayed their opponents to cinch the victory.

Bob Dipersio and Dan Dalina together scored 18 points for the winners while Duke King and Dan Keating paced the losers with 16 points.

Austin Meets Fedigan

Wednesday night provided the action for the league's big rivalry game with Austin and Fedigan colliding. This time Austin defeated Fedigan, fairly puncturing any attack that Fedigan offered. The Fediganites were hopelessly outclassed at the midway on the tail end of 16-4 count. Their last half gesture only came close to the Blue's large margin. Keating led the evening's scoring with 8 points.

With Jim Buxeda and Chick Meehan leading the scoring parade, C. & F.'s Day-hops easily outscored the Mendel Day-hops to knock the latter team further into the cellar. Buxeda tallied 14 points for the White while Meehan ran a close second with 10 points. Half time score found C. & F. ahead with a 20-11 lead.

Fourth Owl Coach

Ray Morrison, new head coach, is the fourth Temple mentor in 15 years. He succeeds Fred H. Swan, who served in 1939. . . Henry J. Miller, now coach of the Philadelphia Eagles; Glenn S. (Pop) Warner and Swan were the other Temple mentors.

Record For Ties

Temple holds what is listed as an intercollegiate record as far as scoreless ties in one season is concerned, the Owl team of 1937 playing four 0-0 games . . . The 26-26 deadlock with Boston College in 1938 not only stands as a record for Temple football, but is also one of the highest scoring tie games in football history . .

flipped a 35 yd. pass to Steve Pritko early in the third frame, putting the 'Cats down on the Kansas 3 yard stripe. On the second down Basca swiveled his way through the line to score. A moment later he converted. Big Paul Stenn and Ed Collins paved the way for Basca's tally by opening up a big hole which Nick promptly stepped through.

It was in that same quarter when the Jay Hawkers scored. Pollom's punt rolled out of bounds on the 1 yard line and immediately Bill Howlett was rushed in the game to kick out of danger. Standing deep in the end zone in a quagmire of mud, Howlett punted out on the 25 offering temporary resistance against the K. U. team. But four successful passes by Hayden, the last to Chet Gibbons, gave them their lone score.

Villanova's fourth touchdown saw Basca and Joe Behot collaborate on a pass good for 18 yards and then Stan Stress on an end-around play romped 22 yards on a wide sweep to score.

The fifth and final 'Cat touchdown of the night put the able Howlett in his favorite reverse play. He stepped off seven yards, starting around end, then cutting in, eliminating several would-be tacklers, and tallied standing up.

Taking up from last year the line was superb in its play, acting well on all the plays and holding the Kansas running game to 61 yards. Stenn, Collins, Korisky, Kolenda, Kasky, Anderson and Piscione were stand-outs on the line, while the backs regained their normalcy of the P. M. C. and Florida games.

HERE AND THERE

By JIM HAUGHTON

As Red Smith would say, this department's only qualifications as a football expert are a cheerful disposition, new glasses and a good crop of hair. But inexpert as we are, there is little need to remind you that next Saturday afternoon will find a band of Villanova moleskinners in a very Owlish position.

Since the Smith regime came into power Villanova has had the decided edge over Temple. But this year finds a different situation. Even though the locals did have fun with Kansas and Temple trimmed Bucknell by a narrow margin, the Owls must be given more consideration.

The Owls have an alert aggressive club with plenty of surprises in the basket. They are not the plodding Owls of former years but rather a deceptive, pass conscious and never beaten organization. They demonstrated that fact against Boston College; they added emphasis to it against Bucknell. Tied with only minutes remaining, they mustered enough power to move the ball to within a suitable spot for a successful field goal.

Some may ask why Temple barely beat Bucknell. That is easy to answer. Bucknell and Temple are old rivals and the Bisons always rise to new heights when playing the Owls. Just as Army did against Notre Dame. We recall that several years ago we watched these two clubs when the Philly school had a powerful outfit with Dave Smukler leading the way. Yet an average Bucknell team pushed Temple all over the field and won.

Temple is the same way against Villanova yet they always fail to win by strokes of fate. Time after time they have outplayed the Blue and White but come out on the wrong end of the score. This game may tell a different story.

Last Friday the 'Cats looked somewhat like Villanova teams of old. They had the opportunist spirit; they had some of the poise and fluency associated with Smith-McNally products; they passed and lateraled as in days of old. Yet they lacked something.

Bill Connelly, Rooter No. 1, hit it on the head with his remark in the press lounge last Friday. "They lack a leader," he said. "There was Michaels, Raimo, Wysocki and Nowak. But this year they do not have one. But Paul Stenn is doing his best to become one."

Leaders usually do manage to come forth for a Temple-Villanova game. There was Wysocki with his end-around play in '37; aided by hulking Bill Rogers' amazing run. There was Walt Nowak's interception early in the '38 fiasco. There was Nick Basca's scoop last year. Who will rise as the leader no one knows. Only time will tell.

But come Saturday afternoon and a leader must come out of the Villanova ranks or several thousand 'Cat fans will join with Messrs. Smith and McNally at the crying post.

CAMPUS WAGS are talking about . . . how a guy with a name like Sullivan managed to sneak into that tongue twisting Frosh lineup last week . . And how he played such stellar ball that many are predicting he will be a new end star to replace Wysocki, Nowak, etc. . . . About the beautiful punt by Frosh Mosca which travelled 68 yards in the air and 85 yards with the roll . . . And the 150's fine comeback against Cornell and Lafayette . . . along with certain rumors about starting players who like to take vacations at practice yet come around at game time . . . Taint nice boys . . . and there is a nice award coming up.

Spector Recovers From Foot Injury

No improvement has been shown lately by the varsity basketeers in their scrimmages with the freshmen. Fundamentals are still being stressed and will continue to be stressed until the boys produce something, according to Coach Severance.

The only new development is the return of Art Spector to practice. "Spec" has been out for two weeks with an infected foot. His return may bolster the prospects of the offense.

Ben Morkun, Sub For Two Seasons Makes The Grade In Last Year

Follows Trend in Aiming for Teacher-Coach Career After His Graduation

Ben Morkun, as elusive on the campus as on the gridiron, presented quite a problem when we set about to interview him. For two days our search availed us nary a glimpse of him. We cornered him finally as he emerged from an afternoon class.

Situating his 5' 10", 180 lb. frame comfortably on a windowsill, the agreeable quarterback gave us the sign to proceed with the old crossfire.

Ben is one of the few local boys on the squad this year, earning his spurs as a leather-lugger at Overbrook High. Unfortunately, in those days, Overbrook did not rate as a power in the Public League. For three years the consistent play of Ben was a bright spot in an otherwise drab setup. He captained the team in his senior year, and was an unanimous choice for "All-Public" quarterback.

Brown Prepper

Following his graduation, he enrolled at Brown Prep. He was outstanding in football and basketball at this Philadelphia school.

A shift in scenery found Ben pursuing his studies at Villanova. As a member of the freshman team, he gave an excellent account of himself.

BEN MORKUN . . . picks Detroit

In his sophomore year, Ben watched two fellows, named Buek and Mazzei, quarterbacking the team to an undefeated season. He was in most of the games, however, and showed considerable promise as a field general.

As number one understudy to "Baby Tank" Harry Mazzei last year, Ben picked up valuable pointers on playing his position. Now he was ready to go out there and take over that first string quarterback job.

More Morkun

Enough for Morkun, the football player; we want to introduce you to Ben Morkun the individual, the student, the Fedigan Fashionplate.

A modest fellow he is. After he was assured we'd make our article as short as possible, he broke down and started to talk a bit about himself.

Ben is a student in the School of Education. He is majoring in Social Studies, and takes a great interest in the improvement of the lot of the underprivileged.

Ben's "suite," situated on the second floor of Fedigan, is shared by his roomie, George Balmore, one of Doc Jacob's ballhawks. They go in for "bull sessions" in a big way. The quiet-spoken Morkun is a tough one with whom to argue during one of these "orgies."

A believer in lots of pinstripes, Ben is one of the best dressed men on the campus. Take a look at him the next time he passes.

Being no different from the average Villanova football star, Ben chose Detroit as the toughest team he has played again, and, what do you know! As the greatest player he has ever faced, he nominates that fellow on the Aggies. His name slips our mind. (Editor's Note: We think it's Kimbrough!)

Ben has no yen to do anything spectacular while a member of the Wildcats. He hopes to play a steady game in the backfield for the remainder of his college days, and hopes almost to the point of being determinted that the team wins the rest of its games, above all, the Temple game.

Future Prof

As to his future, Ben does not intend to seek a career in the pro ranks. When he graduates, he will have the background to look for success as a teacher or coach. During the summer, Ben works as a playground instructor. The experience he has gained should be valuable to him. Then again, Ben may look neat in a private's uniform. He remained non-committal on this count.

There you have Ben Morkun — gentleman, scholar, a man whom Villanova well may be proud of. But we think Ben would like it better if we closed this column with a sincere wish for the best of everything to a great fellow.

Lightweights Play Rutgers Friday

Battling elements and injury the 150 lb. gridders are digging in this week for the looming fray with Rutgers U. Still smarting from last year's defeat the kittens are determined to wipe the slate clean and bring their winning streak up to three victories with the final whistle on Friday afternoon.

With Logan Phillips, Bill Sykes, and Bill Brown beset with injuries, Coach Casper is grooming Paul Waters for the quarterback post and Larry Eichman at the tackle spot.

Should the Kittens triumph this week they will set up a record unparalleled in the history of 150 lb. football at Villanova. With two victories and two defeats, they now occupy third place in the league standing and are in the running for top honors.

Score Two Safeties

Temple's football teams never scored a safety until the 1939 season then 2 were tallied . . . The first came in the Georgetown game, the 1939 opener, but a field goal by the Hoyas enabled them to defeat the Owls, 3-2 . . . Temple tallied its other two-pointer against Bucknell.

Owls Travel Far

Temple's football team will travel more than 6000 miles this fall in playing Oklahoma, Bucknell, Holy Cross and Boston College away from home . . . The Owl gridders of the past averaged about 1000 miles for their 36 away games . . . The longest trip made by Temple was to San Francisco in 1936 to meet St. Mary's . . . The Owls have also played in Tyler, Tex., New Orleans, Denver, Milwaukee, Kansas City, E. Lansing, Pittsburgh and other large cities. . . .

Lovett

permost in his heart for he still speaks glowingly of their deeds and presents an account of their games almost play by play from brute memory.

He believes that the '37 team was one of the greatest clubs ever to operate on any gridiron anywhere and cites their 25-0 conquest of Loyola University on the coast as the day they reached their peak. "On that day," says the exhuberant Mr. Lovett, "they could have beaten any football team ever put together."

Year Away

Of this year's teams Tommy speaks fondly but not quite so glowingly as of their predecessors. He considers the present Wildcats to be "a year away" because of lack of experience but he thinks that they have the makings of an even better team than was had in '37 if the breaks fall the right way.

Speaking of Saturday's traditional Temple tilt Tommy said that for the first time in several years the game will be an absolute toss-up. "Temple," says Tommy, "has a better team than any Owl outfit since 1936, while Villanova we all must admit is below it's usual standing."

Family Affair

Despite his prediction we could see a Blue glint in Tommy's sparkling eyes which almost shouted that if the Lovett family has anything to do with it the 'Cats will again be triumphant. We say the "Lovett family" because Tommy is not the only member of his tribe to take violent interest in the 'Cats. The little woman at home, lovely, charming Mrs. Lovett, is a 100% Villanova fan. She has never witnessed a Villanova team defeat and she doesn't intend to be saying anything different after Saturday's affair!

So closely is Mrs. Lovett connected with Villanova football that the Wildcats carry one of her sweaters as an omen of good luck when playing against Temple. The sweater was first used in 1937 and it hasn't missed yet!

And now to take a look at Tommy's Ledger account of just how we are going to take Temple. . .!

barring possible last-minute changes by Smith, will probably have Len Kolenda and Stan Stress at the ends; All-American possibility Paul Stenn and soph Bill Prohovich at tackles; polished Ed Collins and Bill Piscione capably taking care of the guards and iron-man Ed Korisky at center.

Villanova's backfield led by the outstanding Nick Basca will also include Sal Rosato, George Smith, and Ben Morkun.

For the Wildcats Joe Behot, Tony Anderson, Joe Murray, Steve Pritko, Stan Eusko, Bill Howlett, and several others are almost certain to see much action.

In the series Villanova has won eight, lost three, and tied one since the opening in 1928. Temple has not won since 1936 when they eked out a thrilling 6-0 victory. Highest score of the season was registered by the greatest team in Villanova's history, the 1937 eleven which notched an easy thirty-three points to Temple's none.

Close to 40,000 fans are expected to see Saturday's game.

institute. With him came grief to the Cherry and White. The Wildcats reached their highest peak of perfection and rolled over the Owls with a 24 to 0 count, the worst beating suffered by either team since the start of the series. Although "Whitey" Randour accounted for 15 of Villanova's points, there was no individual star on the team.

Wow! 22-0

Temple had been forced to taste the bitter gall of defeat for two years now, but in 1934 they supped on Wildcat stew. They were heavy favorites for this contest and performed true to predictions. "Dynamite Dave" Smukler, in the greatest one-man show of line-bucking talent ever displayed in the series, led Temple to a 22 to 0 victory and on to the Sugar Bowl. He was then only in his sophomore year and was named the best back in the city.

The following year Villanova was again the underdog. "All-American" Eddie Michaels and the whole team upset the opinions of the experts and licked their foe, 21 to 14. Stuhldreher soon after left Villanova to become head coach at Wisconsin of the "Big Ten."

The 1936 fray introduced "Clipper" Smith and Vince McNally to the Philadelphia sporting world. The new coaches at Villanova were warmly received at the college, but the hospitality of Temple was something different. Pappas and his teammates defeated us by a 6 to 0 score.

Our Big Year

The Villanova players must certainly have resented the reception tendered their new guardians, for in 1937 they figuratively slew the Owls. Sleet, snow, and rain didn't even hamper their rampage. Four touchdown passes and a line plunge tallied a 33 to 0 record for the Wildcats, rated fifth best team in the United States.

In 1938 the boys were in a hurry to stop the Temple clan and went right to work to accomplish their aim. Twenty seconds after the opening whistle they were a touchdown ahead. Not three more minutes were allowed to pass before the Wildcat scoreboard read 13. Then, just to satisfy the 30,000 fans, they added another score to their mark on a 40-yard scamper in the fourth quarter. Final tally, Villanova 20—Temple 7.

Last year's contest was a thriller few will forget. Paced by Nick Basca, the Wildcats triumphed 12 to 7. Nick intercepted a pass in the first quarter and ran 60 yards for a touchdown. Temple tied the score, and then added the point to lead. This lead remained intact 'till near the finish of the last period when Nick again came to the rescue and pulled the same trick, the turning trick, with an interception and long run to the three-yard line, setting up the Worthington-Howlett pass touchdown that spelled victory for Villanova.

Fediganites Lose To Alumni Five In Upset, 28-27,

By BOB FUNABASHI

A day for the underdogs was proclaimed last week in the Intramural basketball league as the seasoned top-notchers were knocked from their lofty perch by their opponents.

Alumni's green wave swept back into the thick of the battle by defeating a favored Fedigan contingent on a last minute field goal, 28-27. Mendel Day-hops blocked the winning paths of Austin Hall in the initial battle of the week by winning 35-29 and Mendel Residents, on Wednesday night defeated Alumni in an easily fought affair.

The latter part of the doubleheader on Wednesday saw Fedigan fall for their second successive time, this time against a revenging Austin squad, 29-21. Finishing touch for the week's tilts was featured by a high-riding C. & F. quintet who emerged victorious against the Mendel Day-hops, 43-38.

McQuade High Scorer

High man for the night for the Greenies was Joe McQuade who tallied 12 points against a weak Fedigan defense. He set up plays and furnished the big guns for the Greenies. A last minute foul completion by Milde gave Alumni its win. It was a neck-and-neck battle to the finish with Alumni holding to a slight lead throughout.

With high claims on the first leg of the race, Austin Hall's squad met a slight complexity against the Mendel Day-hops as they bowed in the first battle of the week. Holding a 17-12 advantage at halftime, it was just a matter of time before the Day-hops outplayed their opponents to cinch the victory.

Bob Dipersio and Dan Dalina together scored 18 points for the winners while Duke King and Dan Keating paced the losers with 16 points.

Austin Meets Fedigan

Wednesday night provided the action for the league's big rivalry game with Austin and Fedigan colliding. This time Austin defeated Fedigan, fairly puncturing any attack that Fedigan offered. The Fediganites were hopelessly outclassed at the midway on the tail end of 16-4 count. Their last half gesture only came close to the Blue's large margin. Keating led the evening's scoring with 8 points.

With Jim Buxeda and Chick Meehan leading the scoring parade, C. & F.'s Day-hops easily outscored the Mendel Day-hops to knock the latter team further into the cellar. Buxeda tallied 14 points for the White while Meehan ran a close second with 10 points. Half time score found C. & F. ahead with a 20-11 lead.

Fourth Owl Coach

Ray Morrison, new head coach, is the fourth Temple mentor in 15 years. He succeeds Fred H. Swan, who served in 1939. . . Henry J. Miller, now coach of the Philadelphia Eagles; Glenn S. (Pop) Warner and Swan were the other Temple mentors.

Record For Ties

Temple holds what is listed as an intercollegiate record as far as scoreless ties in one season is concerned, the Owl team of 1937 playing four 0-0 games . . . The 26-26 deadlock with Boston College in 1938 not only stands as a record for Temple football, but is also one of the highest scoring tie games in football history . . .

flipped a 35 yd. pass to Steve Pritko early in the third frame, putting the 'Cats down on the Kansas 3 yard stripe. On the second down Basca swiveled his way through the line to score. A moment later he converted. Big Paul Stenn and Ed Collins paved the way for Basca's tally by opening up a big hole which Nick promptly stepped through.

It was in that same quarter when the Jay Hawkers scored. Pollom's punt rolled out of bounds on the 1 yard line and immediately Bill Howlett was rushed in the game to kick out of danger. Standing deep in the end zone in a quagmire of mud, Howlett punted out on the 25 offering temporary resistance against the K. U. team. But four successful passes by Hayden, the last to Chet Gibbons, gave them their lone score.

Villanova's fourth touchdown saw Basca and Joe Behot collaborate on a pass good for 18 yards and then Stan Stress on an end-around play romped 22 yards on a wide sweep to score.

The fifth and final 'Cat touchdown of the night put the able Howlett in his favorite reverse play. He stepped off seven yards, starting around end, then cutting in, eliminating several would-be tacklers, and tallied standing up.

Taking up from last year the line was superb in its play, acting well on all the plays and holding the Kansas running game to 61 yards. Stenn, Collins, Korisky, Kolenda, Kasky, Anderson and Piscione were stand-outs on the line, while the backs regained their normalcy of the P. M. C. and Florida games.

HERE AND THERE

By JIM HAUGHTON

As Red Smith would say, this department's only qualifications as a football expert are a cheerful disposition, new glasses and a good crop of hair. But inexpert as we are, there is little need to remind you that next Saturday afternoon will find a band of Villanova moleskinners in a very Owlish position.

Since the Smith regime came into power Villanova has had the decided edge over Temple. But this year finds a different situation. Even though the locals did have fun with Kansas and Temple trimmed Bucknell by a narrow margin, the Owls must be given more consideration.

The Owls have an alert aggressive club with plenty of surprises in the basket. They are not the plodding Owls of former years but rather a deceptive, pass conscious and never beaten organization. They demonstrated that fact against Boston College; they added emphasis to it against Bucknell. Tied with only minutes remaining, they mustered enough power to move the ball to within a suitable spot for a successful field goal.

Some may ask why Temple barely beat Bucknell. That is easy to answer. Bucknell and Temple are old rivals and the Bisons always rise to new heights when playing the Owls. Just as Army did against Notre Dame. We recall that several years ago we watched these two clubs when the Philly school had a powerful outfit with Dave Smukler leading the way. Yet an average Bucknell team pushed Temple all over the field and won.

Temple is the same way against Villanova yet they always fail to win by strokes of fate. Time after time they have outplayed the Blue and White but come out on the wrong end of the score. This game may tell a different story.

Last Friday the 'Cats looked somewhat like Villanova teams of old. They had the opportunist spirit; they had some of the poise and fluency associated with Smith-McNally products; they passed and lateraled as in days of old. Yet they lacked something.

Bill Connelly, Rooter No. 1, hit it on the head with his remark in the press lounge last Friday. "They lack a leader," he said. "There was Michaels, Raimo, Wysocki and Nowak. But this year they do not have one. But Paul Stenn is doing his best to become one."

Leaders usually do manage to come forth for a Temple-Villanova game. There was Wysocki with his end-around play in '37; aided by hulking Bill Rogers' amazing run. There was Walt Nowak's interception early in the '38 fiasco. There was Nick Basca's scoop last year. Who will rise as the leader no one knows. Only time will tell.

But come Saturday afternoon and a leader must come out of the Villanova ranks or several thousand 'Cat fans will join with Messrs. Smith and McNally at the crying post.

CAMPUS WAGS are talking about . . . how a guy with a name like Sullivan managed to sneak into that tongue twisting Frosh lineup last week . . . And how he played such stellar ball that many are predicting he will be a new end star to replace Wysocki, Nowak, etc. . . . About the beautiful punt by Frosh Mosca which travelled 68-yards in the air and 85 yards with the roll . . . And the 150's fine comeback against Cornell and Lafayette . . . along with certain rumors about starting players who like to take vacations at practice yet come around at game time . . . Taint nice boys . . . and there is a nice award coming up.

Spector Recovers From Foot Injury

No improvement has been shown lately by the varsity basketeers in their scrimmages with the freshmen. Fundamentals are still being stressed and will continue to be stressed until the boys produce something, according to Coach Severance.

The only new development is the return of Art Spector to practice. "Spec" has been out for two weeks with an infected foot. His return may bolster the prospects of the offense.

Ben Morkun, Sub For Two Seasons Makes The Grade In Last Year

Follows Trend in Aiming for Teacher-Coach Career After His Graduation

Ben Morkun, as elusive on the campus as on the gridiron, presented quite a problem when we set about to interview him. For two days our search availed us nary a glimpse of him. We cornered him finally as he emerged from an afternoon class.

Situating his 5' 10", 180 lb. frame comfortably on a windowsill, the agreeable quarterback gave us the sign to proceed with the old crossfire.

Ben is one of the few local boys on the squad this year, earning his spurs as a leather-lugger at Overbrook High. Unfortunately, in those days, Overbrook did not rate as a power in the Public League. For three years the consistent play of Ben was a bright spot in an otherwise drab setup. He captained the team in his senior year, and was an unanimous choice for "All-Public" quarterback.

Brown Prepper

Following his graduation, he enrolled at Brown Prep. He was outstanding in football and basketball at this Philadelphia school.

A shift in scenery found Ben pursuing his studies at Villanova. As a member of the freshman team, he gave an excellent account of himself.

In his sophomore year, Ben watched two fellows, named Buek and Mazzei, quarterbacking the team to an undefeated season. He was in most of the games, however, and showed considerable promise as a field general.

As number one understudy to "Baby Tank" Harry Mazzei last year, Ben picked up valuable pointers on playing his position. Now he was ready to go out there and take over that first string quarterback job.

More Morkun

Enough for Morkun, the football player; we want to introduce you to Ben Morkun the individual, the student, the Fedigan Fashionplate.

A modest fellow he is. After he was assured we'd make our article as short as possible, he broke down and started to talk a bit about himself.

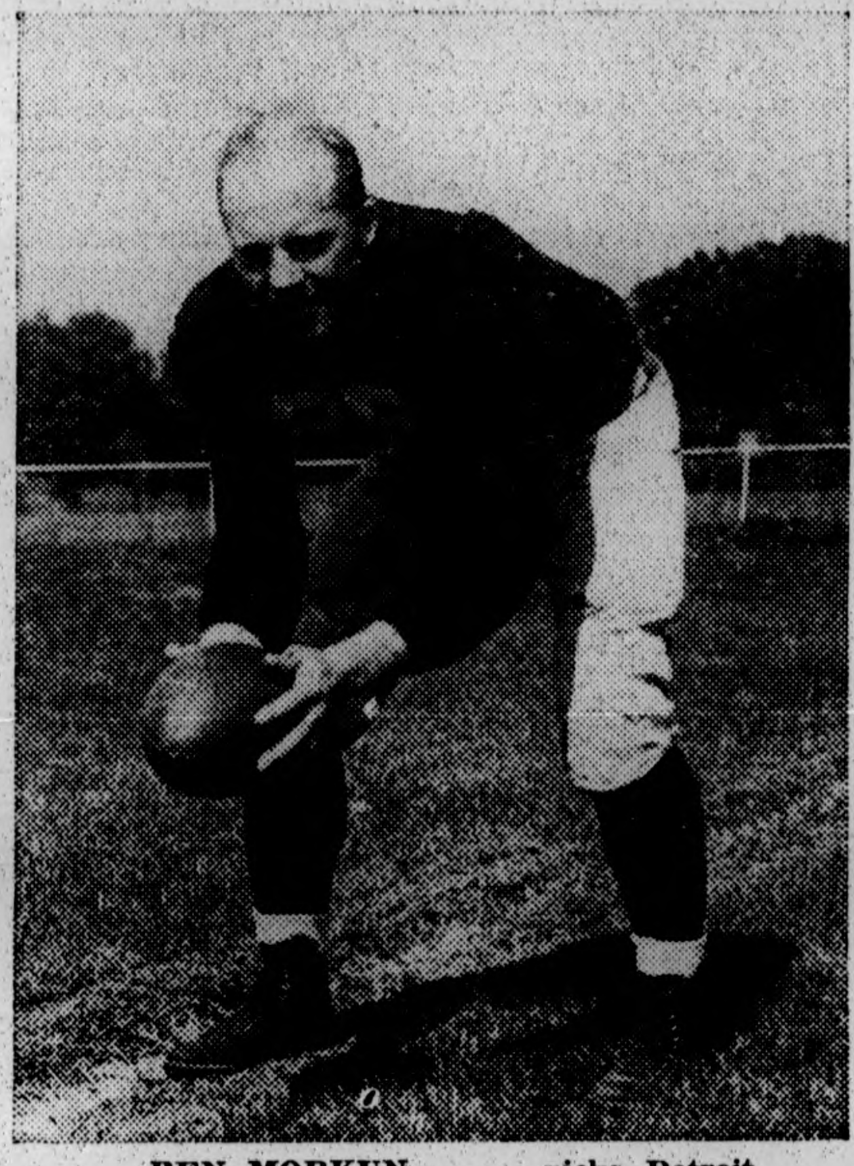
Ben is a student in the School of Education. He is majoring in Social Studies, and takes a great interest in the improvement of the lot of the underprivileged.

Ben's "suite," situated on the second floor of Fedigan, is shared by his roomie, George Balmore, one of Doc Jacob's ballhawks. They go in for "bull sessions" in a big way. The quiet-spoken Morkun is a tough one with whom to argue during one of these "orgies."

A believer in lots of pinstripes, Ben is one of the best dressed men on the campus. Take a look at him the next time he passes.

Being no different from the average Villanova football star, Ben chose Detroit as the toughest team he has played again, and, what do you know! As the greatest player he has ever faced, he nominates that fellow on the Aggies. His name slips our mind. (Editor's Note: We think it's Kimbrough!)

Ben has no yen to do anything spectacular while a member of the Wildcats. He hopes to play a steady game in the backfield for the remainder of his college days, and hopes almost to the point of being determinted that the team wins the rest of its games, above all, the Temple game.



BEN MORKUN . . . picks Detroit

Future Prof

As to his future, Ben does not intend to seek a career in the pro ranks. When he graduates, he will have the background to look for success as a teacher or coach. During the summer, Ben works as a playground instructor. The experience he has gained should be valuable to him. Then again, Ben may look neat in a private's uniform. He remained non-committal on this count.

There you have Ben Morkun — gentleman, scholar, a man whom Villanova well may be proud of. But we think Ben would like it better if we closed this column with a sincere wish for the best of everything to a great fellow.

Lightweights Play Rutgers Friday

Battling elements and injury the 150 lb. gridders are digging in this week for the looming fray with Rutgers U. Still smarting from last year's defeat the kittens are determined to wipe the slate clean and bring their winning streak up to three victories with the final whistle on Friday afternoon.

With Logan Phillips, Bill Sykes, and Bill Brown beset with injuries, Coach Casper is grooming Paul Waters for the quarterback post and Larry Eichman at the tackle spot.

Should the Kittens triumph this week they will set up a record unparalleled in the history of 150 lb. football at Villanova. With two victories and two defeats, they now occupy third place in the league standing and are in the running for top honors.

Score Two Safeties

Temple's football teams never scored a safety until the 1939 season then 2 were tallied . . . The first came in the Georgetown game, the 1939 opener, but a field goal by the Hoyas enabled them to defeat the Owls, 3-2 . . . Temple tallied its other two-pointer against Bucknell.

Owls Travel Far

Temple's football team will travel more than 6000 miles this fall in playing Oklahoma, Bucknell, Holy Cross and Boston College away from home . . . The Owl gridders of the past averaged about 1000 miles for their 36 away games . . . The longest trip made by Temple was to San Francisco in 1936 to meet St. Mary's . . . The Owls have also played in Tyler, Tex., New Orleans, Denver, Milwaukee, Kansas City, E. Lansing, Pittsburgh and other large cities. . . .

Lovett

permost in his heart for he still speaks glowingly of their deeds and presents an account of their games almost play by play from brute memory.

He believes that the '37 team was one of the greatest clubs ever to operate on any gridiron anywhere and cites their 25-0 conquest of Loyola University on the coast as the day they reached their peak. "On that day," says the exhuberant Mr. Lovett, "they could have beaten any football team ever put together."

Year Away

Of this year's teams Tommy speaks fondly but not quite so glowingly as of their predecessors. He considers the present Wildcats to be "a year away" because of lack of experience but he thinks that they have the makings of an even better team than was had in '37 if the breaks fall the right way.

Speaking of Saturday's traditional Temple tilt Tommy said that for the first time in several years the game will be an absolute toss-up. "Temple," says Tommy, "has a better team than any Owl outfit since 1936, while Villanova we all must admit is below it's usual standing."

Family Affair

Despite his prediction we could see a Blue glint in Tommy's sparkling eyes which almost shouted that if the Lovett family has anything to do with it the 'Cats will again be triumphant. We say the "Lovett family" because Tommy is not the only member of his tribe to take violent interest in the 'Cats. The little woman at home, lovely, charming Mrs. Lovett, is a 100% Villanova fan. She has never witnessed a Villanova team defeat and she doesn't intend to be saying anything different after Saturday's affair!

So closely is Mrs. Lovett connected with Villanova football that the Wildcats carry one of her sweaters as an omen of good luck when playing against Temple. The sweater was first used in 1937 and it hasn't missed yet!

And now to take a look at Tommy's Ledger account of just how we are going to take Temple. . .!

PROF. BUECHE CHAIRMAN

At the recent District Convention of the A. I. E. E., held at Cincinnati, Ohio, Prof. Harry S. Bueche of Villanova College was elected Chairman of the Counselors for this district. There are 22 colleges and universities represented in this District and it will be Prof. Bueche's task to prepare the program for the next convention, to be held at the University of Maryland, College Park, Md., in October of 1941.

CHEM GROUP VISITS

At its most recent meeting, held Wednesday, Oct. 30, the Plant Trip Committee of the Villanova Chem Society decided that on Tuesday, Nov. 12 the members of the society will view the industrial chemical processes of the Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Company.

Approximately 47 members will make the trip to the plant which is situated at Oregon and Delaware Aves. in Southeast Philadelphia, and which, contrary to its name, does not merely manufacture common table salt. In fact salt is one of the least important of its products. The more important are hydrochloric, sulfuric, and nitric acids, alum, bleaching agents, chlorine, and caustic soda.

The following seniors have not as yet submitted write-ups for the Belle Air. These autobiographies must be handed in at this time or no write-ups will appear in the book.

They are as follows: Abbot, Appel, Begley, Boudon, Coupe, Deasy, T. Donovan, Flannery, Gleason, Holuszka, Jernee, Kelley, Kull, Maher, Miller, Monseart, Morkum, Moses, Murray, McGovern, McMenamin, Nugent, Olion, O'Mahoney, Piscione, Robinson, Russo, Sachetti, Schaeffer, Schneider, F. Smith, N. Smith, Valentine, Ventry, Way, Webre, Winterbottom.

All picture proofs must be personally returned to the photographer's agent today, tomorrow, or Thursday in the Mendel Reception Room.

A. S. M. E. MEETS NOV. 2

The next meeting of the local chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will be held on Monday, Nov. 2. If possible, a movie on "The Construction of the Golden Gate Bridge" will be shown.

VARANI ADDRESSES K. G. S.

Friday's meeting of Kappa Gamma Sigma will be devoted to a paper presented by Harold Varani, sophomore science man, who will speak on some aspects of radio insofar as their relations lie in the immediate scope of physics. The theories of sound and electricity in their fundamentals will be reviewed so as to facilitate understanding for those as yet somewhat unfamiliar with these subjects.

D. P. E.'S LAST CALL

Last call for applications of upperclassmen who are desirous of joining Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity has now been issued, according to Thomas H. Doyle, chairman of the membership committee. Unless the applicant hands in his form to some member of the membership committee by Friday noon, Nov. 8, said applicant will not have another chance to join the fraternity until next year. On the following Tuesday, Nov. 12, the membership committee will have its final meeting of the current season to pass upon the qualifications of applicants.

The Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O. S. A., told the Science Forum last Thursday of some of his experiences in war torn Europe during the past year and included in his talk a description of the halting of the S. S. Washington, on which he was traveling, on the high seas by a belligerent submarine.

ELECTION SPEECHES

This afternoon the History Seminar will discuss the closing political speeches given last night by the two rival candidates in relation to the possible outcome of today's national election.

ON THE RUN, FROSH!

Today at 1:00 P. M. the Freshman Class will meet in 215 Mendel for instructions as to the gathering of wood for the annual Temple bonfire.

At 1:30 P. M. on both Thursday and Friday all available Freshmen will congregate in back of Mendel to actually begin the process of finding the wood for the bonfire. Not several but all of the Freshmen are to take part in this search.

When each of our battles was over, and lost, yearly, right after the first white frost, we each began to pay the cost—by haunting, in sunshine or in rain! And if you've ever been a ghost, (you haven't, or, at least, the most of you haven't) —but anyway, if — thou know'st what weight there is to chains.

For chains we have, and always will, unless the lads from Broad Street's hill add victory to their share of the till, and rid us of our bane. And will they do it? That's the thing that puzzles. Death would lose its sting, and all we ghosts could dance and sing if the 'Cats, say, missed their train.

That's why we're here; we want to see what chance there is that in the year A. D., 1940, our family tree can cease to roam the plains. (That's mixing metaphors, I'm sure.—At creative writing, ghosts are poor, election or no. Great is the allure of writing without brains.)—No matter. If this should come to pass (in twenty years or so, no less), we'd like this for our epitaphs:

"The Wildcat changed his spots—sleep at last!"

'34 Top Crowd

The largest crowd ever to attend a Villanova-Temple game was that of approximately 40,000 people, in 1934. The smallest turn-out in recent years occurred in 1932, when about 10,000 people braved torrential rains to witness the struggle.

Last year, there were 25,000 present, while the year before 32,000 fans attended the game . On the whole, attendance has averaged between 25,000 and 35,000 rooters. In 1930, while the series was still in its infancy, 25,000 people filed through the gates of Municipal Stadium, while in the following year, in Temple Stadium, 30,000 were present.

Plans Laid For Reception Night

Belle Masque Arranges Full Evening's Entertainment on November 26 Date

A full evening's entertainment has been arranged in connection with the annual Dramateurs Reception, to be held on November 26 at 8:30 P. M. in the Field House. John T. Gallagher, Business Manager, is in charge of details and is soliciting patrons, advertisements, and posters.

Prior to curtain time, melodic recordings will entertain the guests. Between plays, variety acts will hold the attention of the audience under the direction of a popular Master of Ceremonies. Following the conclusion of the evening's program, refreshments will be served to all ticket-holders and additional recordings will be played.

Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, faculty director of Belle Masque, attended the separate rehearsals of the individually directed one-act plays and expressed satisfaction at the progress being made. In approximately two weeks, four of the six casts will be selected to produce their shows based upon the quality of the play displayed in rehearsals.

Tickets have been distributed to all the members of Belle Masque during the past week and student support is urged. Everything is included in the admission price of twenty-five cents.

The student bodies of Rosemont, Immaculata, and Chestnut Hill Colleges have expressed their intentions of attending en masse.

This is the initial dramatic endeavor of the Belle Masque Society this year. Its prime purpose is to uncover talent for the annual spring presentation.

McCall And Belz, Relations Officers, Visit Georgian Court

Howard McCall and Gerald Belz, junior artsmen, were appointed president and vice-president respectively of the International Relations Society at the meeting held last Wednesday in Simpson hall. The meeting was supervised by the new moderator, Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O. S. A.

The discussion was chiefly concerned with "The Catholic Student Peace Conference," which will take place this Saturday, November 16, at Georgian Court College, Lakewood, N. J. The officers, McCall and Belz, will represent the International Relations Society of Villanova at this conference.

The three main topics to be discussed at Georgian Court are:

1. "The Americas," which deals with the military, economic and political relationship of the United States with Canada and Latin America.
2. "Territorial United States," which deals with the racial, economic and political problems, and the question of independence in the Philippines, Puerto Rico, and Hawaiian Islands.
3. "The Christian Way of Peace," which is concerned chiefly with the causes of war and the nature and conditions of peace.

Due to the quarterly examinations, tomorrow's scheduled meeting of the society will be postponed until the following week.

Soph Dance Proceeds Voted To Their Fund

At a meeting of the Sophomore class last Thursday Fr. McGuire read the financial report of the Soph Cotillion and announced that the proceeds of the dance amounted to $398.81.

James Walsh, chairman of the dance, and his committee were given a vote of thanks on conducting the most successful cotillion in many years.

After a rather lengthy discussion, the class voted, in accordance with custom, to turn the proceeds of the dance over to the class scholarship fund. The money turned over to the fund is to be placed in trust and will perpetuate the memory of the class of '43. It will be used at a later date to provide a scholarship to the college.

All Dressed Up—But What Happened To The Party?

Fedigan Again Captures Connelly Decoration Prize

By THOMAS A. SULLIVAN

Once again the Connelly Plaque has Fedigan Hall for its home for another year. This award for the best decorated hall in the Pre-Temple game festivities was presented at the rally last Friday night to Jim Jernee, Fedigan's decorations chairman, after a vote of the student council judges decided the issue.

Mendel's Hall of freshman residents captured second place in the contest and therefore had the privilege of igniting the giant bonfire after the rally. Austin, Alumni, and the C. & F. Day Students shared the decorative spotlight with the winner and runner-up.

Fedigan Hall became Fedigan Music Hall last Friday. A large red banner containing the words, "Swing and Sway the Wildcat Way," in white, was stretched across the upper part of the building, and seven streamers with the names of seven varsity players were placed perpendicular to it.

Another huge banner running lengthwise the width of the entire building contained the words and music to the college song, "The March of the Wildcats." On the left side of the building was a list of songs on the "Temple Hit Parade," with "I'll Never Smile Again" in the number one position. The "Villanova Hit Parade" balanced this list on the right side with "The Same Old Story" being given top billing among this group of melodies.

Also eye-catching was a large poster which showed a wildcat playing a fiddle, and entitled "The Cat Played the Fiddle — The Owl Jumped Over the Moon." In each window of the dormitory a drawing was placed containing a musical cleff inside a "V" under which was printed the name of a member of the varsity football squad. Two spotlights placed in the two trees bordering the entrance illuminated the exhibit.

Mendel Hall's exhibit included many huge posters placed on the front of the building. One of these showed Clipper Smith in the role of barber, and beseeched him to "mow Temple down." Another heralded the production "Owls A Poppin'" held in Temple Stadium on November 9. Mendel also conducted a Pre-Rally Pep Fest at which "Doc" Jacobs, varsity baseball coach and football scout, and Fr. Dougherty, Dean of the Science School, spoke over a specially arranged amplifying system. Mendel Residents, dressed in varied Gay Ninety outfits, cavorted about throughout the proceedings.

Austin Hall used a picture of a huge wildcat with an owl on its plate to highlight its display. Directly below this drawing were the words, "Beat Temple" in blue and white electric lights.

A large banner entitled "The Owl Roast" created the most interest, however. This streamer showed "Clipper" Smith and Vince McNally carving a roast owl for 35 hungry Villanova gridmen seated at a banquet table, and was unique in that photographs of the heads of the football players and the two coaches were enlarged and superimposed upon drawings of the bodies.

Alumni Hall, directed by Father Dunne, used Villanova songs as its theme. The words "March of the Cats" in electric lights, with one letter being placed in each window, featured this display. One poster bore the song title, "Practice Makes Perfect," with the years 1937, '38, '39, and '40 listed on the side. Among other melodies listed were "The Great Waltz" (1937), and "I Hear a Rhapsody" (1941). Posters listing the scores of the last three Villanova-Temple freshman games were placed in the basement windows.

The Commerce and Finance building, decorated this year by a committee of Day Students headed by John DiCarlo, sophomore, considered the Temple game in the light of a theatrical production. The "Ceeneff" theater presented Clipper Smith's production, "The Cats' Night to 'Owl," with Basca, Stenn, and Behot being listed in the starring roles. A marquee was placed over the door leading to the auditorium to further the theatrical idea. On the roof, drawings of two wildcats in Villanova uniforms were choking the picture of an owl.

J. Donovan Leads Arts Fraternity In Initiation

Epsilon Phi Theta, arts fraternity, appointed James F. Donovan, senior student, chairman of the initiation program to be held in the Blue room of the Field House on Nov. 20, at 8:30 P. M. This affair will be the initial social event of the fraternity for the ensuing year.

The names of the students who will assist the chairman in arranging this event were released with this appointment. The committee is as follows: Thomas McKimmey and David Daly, who will supervise the selection of pledges. Thomas Moore and Andrea D'Angelo, whose duties include the choice of speakers and entertainment; and Thomas Harford, director of the refreshment board.

In addition to the initiation, the activities calendar includes the Choral Concert on Dec. 8. This concert, jointly presented by the Villanova and Rosemont Glee clubs, will be under the supervision of the fraternity.

Haenisch To Address Valley Forge Cadets

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, associate professor of chemistry and chemical engineering, will deliver a talk on the field of chemistry before the students of Valley Forge Military Academy at 1:00 P. M. tomorrow.

The second of two outside-college speeches by Dr. Haenisch, who is in charge of the Villanova chemistry curriculum and acts as advisor to students majoring in chemistry and chemical engineering, this talk will be made at the request of A. W. Bass, Dean of the Military Academy's Academic Department. Its purpose, according to Comdr. Bass, is to act as a stimulus to better preparation and serious study on the part of students taking scientific study at Valley Forge.

The first of Dr. Haenisch's talks was delivered before the assembled members of the Chemistry Club of Haverford College at Haverford on Monday, November 4. The topic of the speech was "Spectography and Chemistry."

Candidates for membership will be received at the next meeting. President John J. Maguire has announced that all students in the civil engineering department are eligible to apply.

The newly-elected officers will report on their progress at the meeting. Meeting and trip programs will be presented and definite plans for the year will be made.

Ring Contract Let To Murchison Co.

New Jersey Firm to Make Junior Jewelry for Second Successive Year

Loren Murchison & Co., Newark, N. J., jewelry firm, has once again received the contract for the Villanova college junior class rings. After considering the bids of many reputable concerns, Richard Gray, Ring Chairman, and his committee chose to select the same firm which has made the rings for the past few years.

Measurements will be taken today, Wednesday, and Friday, Nov. 12, 13 and 15, respectively, in the reception room of Mendel hall from 11:30 A. M. 'till 5 P. M. daily. A schedule has been posted on the bulletin board in this building listing the hour at which individual students are to report for their measurements.

The prices for the rings themselves are: 12 Dwt., $14.50; 14 Dwt., $16.50; and 16 Dwt., $18.25. There will be a selection of eight different stones ranging in price from $2 to $5. A computation reveals that the complete ring, which can be made in green, rose, military, or yellow gold, will cost a minimum of $16.50 and a maximum of $23.25.

Students who pay a deposit of $5 on any of the three days listed are promised that their rings will be delivered during the Christmas holidays. This year, as distinct from previous yuletide deliveries, there will be no additional charge for postage.

"Engineer" Out Under New Form

The Villanova "Engineer," the magazine for the engineering school, which appears today, departs from all traditions by adopting the process of photolithography to portray features which are of interest to the engineer. The process tells the story by means of adequate pictures.

The cover picture is of the front of Mendel hall, superimposed by a photograph of an engineer sighting through a transit. The index page is framed with the pictures of the various buildings of Villanova with which the engineers have contact.

The picture of the month, which is to become a regular feature of the "Engineer," appears on the second page. This month's prize shot is of a baby wearing the traditional Frosh "regs" and is captioned as a freshman giving the "Yea Frosh" yell.

The regular feature story in this issue portrays with numerous pictures the various parts of Villanova's heating system. Campus news, which is also to be a regular feature, comes out with shots of life here on the campus.

In the section devoted to off-campus activities, appears an article on stroboscope. The application of this instrument to the engineering field shows the values that may be had from taking a picture of a rapidly moving object in a particular phase.

The frat news appears on pages ten and eleven of this recent issue. This is the only part of the publication that is not supplemented by pictures, but gives the news in the conventional printed form.

"Defense"

Problems of national defense will be discussed in the History Seminar today at 3:00 P. M. in Simpson hall.

Last Tuesday, election day, the study group discussed the personalities concerned and hazarded some predictions as to the outcome of the election. Further opinions were offered concerning internal issues, Democrats opposed to the third terms, and "smear tactics" employed by irresponsible parties.

GERMAN CLUB

Last Tuesday evening sixteen members of the Villanova German Club attended the combined meeting held at the College of Chestnut Hill.

Due to the examinations there will be no regular meeting this week.

Once again the Connelly Plaque has Fedigan Hall for its home for another year. This award for the best decorated hall in the Pre-Temple game festivities was presented at the rally last Friday night to Jim Jernee, Fedigan's decorations chairman, after a vote of the student council judges decided the issue.

Mendel's Hall of freshman residents captured second place in the contest and therefore had the privilege of igniting the giant bonfire after the rally. Austin, Alumni, and the C. & F. Day Students shared the decorative spotlight with the winner and runner-up.

Fedigan Hall became Fedigan Music Hall last Friday. A large red banner containing the words, "Swing and Sway the Wildcat Way," in white, was stretched across the upper part of the building, and seven streamers with the names of seven varsity players were placed perpendicular to it.

Another huge banner running lengthwise the width of the entire building contained the words and music to the college song, "The March of the Wildcats." On the left side of the building was a list of songs on the "Temple Hit Parade," with "I'll Never Smile Again" in the number one position. The "Villanova Hit Parade" balanced this list on the right side with "The Same Old Story" being given top billing among this group of melodies.

Also eye-catching was a large poster which showed a wildcat playing a fiddle, and entitled "The Cat Played the Fiddle — The Owl Jumped Over the Moon." In each window of the dormitory a drawing was placed containing a musical cleff inside a "V" under which was printed the name of a member of the varsity football squad. Two spotlights placed in the two trees bordering the entrance illuminated the exhibit.

Mendel Hall's exhibit included many huge posters placed on the front of the building. One of these showed Clipper Smith in the role of barber, and beseeched him to "mow Temple down." Another heralded the production "Owls A Poppin'" held in Temple Stadium on November 9. Mendel also conducted a Pre-Rally Pep Fest at which "Doc" Jacobs, varsity baseball coach and football scout, and Fr. Dougherty, Dean of the Science School, spoke over a specially arranged amplifying system. Mendel Residents, dressed in varied Gay Ninety outfits, cavorted about throughout the proceedings.

Austin Hall used a picture of a huge wildcat with an owl on its plate to highlight its display. Directly below this drawing were the words, "Beat Temple" in blue and white electric lights.

A large banner entitled "The Owl Roast" created the most interest, however. This streamer showed "Clipper" Smith and Vince McNally carving a roast owl for 35 hungry Villanova gridmen seated at a banquet table, and was unique in that photographs of the heads of the football players and the two coaches were enlarged and superimposed upon drawings of the bodies.

Alumni Hall, directed by Father Dunne, used Villanova songs as its theme. The words "March of the Cats" in electric lights, with one letter being placed in each window, featured this display. One poster bore the song title, "Practice Makes Perfect," with the years 1937, '38, '39, and '40 listed on the side. Among other melodies listed were "The Great Waltz" (1937), and "I Hear a Rhapsody" (1941). Posters listing the scores of the last three Villanova-Temple freshman games were placed in the basement windows.

The Commerce and Finance building, decorated this year by a committee of Day Students headed by John DiCarlo, sophomore, considered the Temple game in the light of a theatrical production. The "Ceeneff" theater presented Clipper Smith's production, "The Cats' Night to 'Owl," with Basca, Stenn, and Behot being listed in the starring roles. A marquee was placed over the door leading to the auditorium to further the theatrical idea. On the roof, drawings of two wildcats in Villanova uniforms were choking the picture of an owl.

Haenisch To Address Valley Forge Cadets

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, associate professor of chemistry and chemical engineering, will deliver a talk on the field of chemistry before the students of Valley Forge Military Academy at 1:00 P. M. tomorrow.

The second of two outside-college speeches by Dr. Haenisch, who is in charge of the Villanova chemistry curriculum and acts as advisor to students majoring in chemistry and chemical engineering, this talk will be made at the request of A. W. Bass, Dean of the Military Academy's Academic Department. Its purpose, according to Comdr. Bass, is to act as a stimulus to better preparation and serious study on the part of students taking scientific study at Valley Forge.

The first of Dr. Haenisch's talks was delivered before the assembled members of the Chemistry Club of Haverford College at Haverford on Monday, November 4. The topic of the speech was "Spectography and Chemistry."

J. Donovan Leads Arts Fraternity In Initiation

Epsilon Phi Theta, arts fraternity, appointed James F. Donovan, senior student, chairman of the initiation program to be held in the Blue room of the Field House on Nov. 20, at 8:30 P. M. This affair will be the initial social event of the fraternity for the ensuing year.

The names of the students who will assist the chairman in arranging this event were released with this appointment. The committee is as follows: Thomas McKimmey and David Daly, who will supervise the selection of pledges. Thomas Moore and Andrea D'Angelo, whose duties include the choice of speakers and entertainment; and Thomas Harford, director of the refreshment board.

In addition to the initiation, the activities calendar includes the Choral Concert on Dec. 8. This concert, jointly presented by the Villanova and Rosemont Glee clubs, will be under the supervision of the fraternity.

A. S. C. E. Chooses

Schneider, Skelly, Talvacchia Chairmen of Activities; Membership Candidates To Be Received

Louis Schneider, John J. Skelly, and Bruno J. Talvacchia were elected Program Chairman, Trip Chairman, and Publicity Director, respectively, by the members of the A. S. C. E. at the last meeting held by the organization.

Candidates for membership will be received at the next meeting. President John J. Maguire has announced that all students in the civil engineering department are eligible to apply.

The newly-elected officers will report on their progress at the meeting. Meeting and trip programs will be presented and definite plans for the year will be made.

Ring Contract Let To Murchison Co.

New Jersey Firm to Make Junior Jewelry for Second Successive Year

Loren Murchison & Co., Newark, N. J., jewelry firm, has once again received the contract for the Villanova college junior class rings. After considering the bids of many reputable concerns, Richard Gray, Ring Chairman, and his committee chose to select the same firm which has made the rings for the past few years.

Measurements will be taken today, Wednesday, and Friday, Nov. 12, 13 and 15, respectively, in the reception room of Mendel hall from 11:30 A. M. 'till 5 P. M. daily. A schedule has been posted on the bulletin board in this building listing the hour at which individual students are to report for their measurements.

The prices for the rings themselves are: 12 Dwt., $14.50; 14 Dwt., $16.50; and 16 Dwt., $18.25. There will be a selection of eight different stones ranging in price from $2 to $5. A computation reveals that the complete ring, which can be made in green, rose, military, or yellow gold, will cost a minimum of $16.50 and a maximum of $23.25.

Students who pay a deposit of $5 on any of the three days listed are promised that their rings will be delivered during the Christmas holidays. This year, as distinct from previous yuletide deliveries, there will be no additional charge for postage.

"Engineer" Out Under New Form

The Villanova "Engineer," the magazine for the engineering school, which appears today, departs from all traditions by adopting the process of photolithography to portray features which are of interest to the engineer. The process tells the story by means of adequate pictures.

The cover picture is of the front of Mendel hall, superimposed by a photograph of an engineer sighting through a transit. The index page is framed with the pictures of the various buildings of Villanova with which the engineers have contact.

The picture of the month, which is to become a regular feature of the "Engineer," appears on the second page. This month's prize shot is of a baby wearing the traditional Frosh "regs" and is captioned as a freshman giving the "Yea Frosh" yell.

The regular feature story in this issue portrays with numerous pictures the various parts of Villanova's heating system. Campus news, which is also to be a regular feature, comes out with shots of life here on the campus.

In the section devoted to off-campus activities, appears an article on stroboscope. The application of this instrument to the engineering field shows the values that may be had from taking a picture of a rapidly moving object in a particular phase.

The frat news appears on pages ten and eleven of this recent issue. This is the only part of the publication that is not supplemented by pictures, but gives the news in the conventional printed form.

"Defense"

Problems of national defense will be discussed in the History Seminar today at 3:00 P. M. in Simpson hall.

Last Tuesday, election day, the study group discussed the personalities concerned and hazarded some predictions as to the outcome of the election. Further opinions were offered concerning internal issues, Democrats opposed to the third terms, and "smear tactics" employed by irresponsible parties.

GERMAN CLUB

Last Tuesday evening sixteen members of the Villanova German Club attended the combined meeting held at the College of Chestnut Hill.

Due to the examinations there will be no regular meeting this week.

Can We Forget?

YESTERDAY America commemorated Armistice Day. (France did not!) On most calendars it was marked in red. Why? Because of its significance. The red mark on the calendar sets that day apart as a national holiday, but the Red that drenched the fields of Flanders has seared that day indelibly in the hearts of most Americans.

Yesterday marked the 22nd anniversary of the peace treaty which was to end all wars . . . remember? In '17 we Americans, imbued with the spirt of humanitarianism, and propaganda, were going to have peace even if we had to fight for it.

Well, we did just that.

But it wasn't a peace we saw established; rather it was a suspension of further hostilities until a new generation had arisen, full of youthful ideals, to take the place of their fathers on the battlefields, and one by one find the same ideals shattered and their faith in human nature shaken as did the fathers before them.

Peace is not brought about by war. Peace comes from inside the individual, from an external expression of his love for God and neighbor. Only when men have learned to find peace in their hearts and charity and justice will nations arrive at permanent peace.

More Power To It

LAST Sunday The National Federation of Catholic College Students held its second meeting here at Villanova, which is the regional centre of the Philadelphia area for this organization. Unfortunately, Villanova College was the only institution represented from this area—unfortunately, for the ideals and purposes of the N. F. C. C. S. should be close to the heart of every Catholic college student.

In brief, the organization is designed to give a unified voice to the great number of Catholic college students in America. The motivating force behind the body is the putting into practical operation in school and social life the teachings of the Church.

Individual effort in this respect is praiseworthy, but when a well-organized body of upstanding men put the teachings of the Church into operation publicly, one can readily see that it will not be long before they will have an effect on the general morale of the people.

The N. F. C. C. S. not only affords an outlet for the solution of individual problems, but also a medium for the concentrated and organized approval or disapproval of existing conditions or movements which will affect the social and private lives of each individual in the colleges.

The need for such an organization does not have to be emphasized; it is easily recognized, and, therefore, it should not be necessary for anyone to exhort any Catholic college to see to it that it has a representative at every meeting.

First We Are Americans

THE election is already a week old; the votes have been tabulated; the people's choice has been made clear through their reelection of Franklin D. Roosevelt to the presidency of these United States in a history-making departure from the long established "no third term" tradition.

Mr. Roosevelt must recognize under the circumstances that besides the singular honor bestowed upon him by the citizens of America, he also is directly responsible to them in that they have placed their faith and future of their great nation in his hands.

The burden is enormous for one man to assume, and the dangers in the way are many. To overcome these dangers the president must have the cooperation and the restraining influence of the nation as a whole.

Now is the time for every good citizen, regardless of political affiliations, to rally behind the president in his efforts to preserve the American way of life.

Now is the time for every partisan to throw aside bias and prejudice and discard campaign animosity to reunite as the great body politic—All Americans.

"United we stand; divided we fall."

We can all benefit from one another; each of us has something to contribute to the other; and so it is with the political parties. Although the Democratic party is now incumbent, they can well, and should, accept the restraining influence of the conservative elements in the Republican ranks.

This continual fusion of ideas will tend to preserve a dynamic America, an America which the rest of the world will consciously or subconsciously strive to emulate when sanity is restored "over there".

To Mr. Roosevelt: Congratulations, sir! Onward with America!

To Mr. Willkie: It was a good fight, a noble attempt. We need more men like you.

A. J. D'A.

THE following is an excerpt from 'Sonnet of the Cross" by Thomas S. Jones, Jr. which admirably paints a poetic picture of St. Augustine, the founder of our own monastic teachers, the Augustinian Fathers:

Within the harbor restless sails are furled,
And from the distant hillslopes dark with pine
A night wind trembles in the purple vine,
Lifting the leaves about his casement curled;
Low on the waves a horn of light has pearled
To amethyst the sky's long amber line,
But he who sees the silver pathway shine
Looks through his window on another world.

There glows a beauty deeper than the sea,
Light fairer than the moon that rides above
The moving wall of foamheads shoreward blown
And like a white gull circling wide and free,
The Lover seeks the changeless Face of Love,
The Lonely wings his flight unto the Lone.

Monks' Latin

By Fr. John J. Gavigan, O.S.A.

"THE WORK is expressed in an uncouth, barbarous style that reflects the low intellectual level of the writer." Such an expression used to be a stock condemnation airily made by apparently competent historians of the Middle Ages. The assumption underlying such a condemnation would sound somewhat like this: "The Latin of the Middle Ages was barbarous; but, this book is written in Latin of the Middle Ages; therefore, its Latin is barbarous." The formula, if not true, was certainly convenient. It demanded no gigantic intellectual effort to accept such an expression; besides, it gave just one more opportunity to express disdain for anything connected with the Ages of Faith.

Today, fortunately, a more objective attitude has been taken by scholars. The sweeping statement that medieval works are negligible both in form and content is no longer accepted as a convenient excuse for a modern writer's hopeless incapacity to estimate a book rightly. Such an outworn formula, an inheritance of the self-complacent Renaissance period, has been rejected today by men who have dared to read those formerly despised pieces of literature and then form their own judgment.

Did They See Them

Incidentally, it is seriously doubted whether later writers who used such expressions ever saw the books, with which they deal so summarily, even from the outside. Still further can one doubt whether they ever saw the handsomely illuminated manuscripts by which many such works have been preserved.

The very term "Middle Ages" most probably carried with it a note of scorn in the centuries immediately following the medieval period. To the Renaissance historian, there were two important ages in the world's history: first, that which witnessed the admirable efflorescence of classical literature; and second, that which marked the rebirth, or renaissance, of that same literature. The period in between the two, the negligible middle link for the two important periods, received the title of "Medium Aveum" — the Middle Ages. This being the case, it is not hard to see why Medieval Latin should come into disdain along with the age to which it belonged.

Usual Exceptions

This does not mean that absolutely all interest in late Latin documents, purely literary or otherwise, entirely died out. In Germany, the humanist, Conrad Celtes edited in 1501 some works from the darkest of the dark ages, the poems of Hrotsvitha of Gandersheim; Hermann von Neuenahr published Einhard's Life of Charlemagne. Even Erasmus, prince of humanists, published patristic and early medieval material. In France, Du Cange published his "Glossarium," still an indispensable work. Yet, these were the efforts of individuals, not the result of a wholesale enthusiasm for medieval Latin looked at as language or literature.

It remained for the last century to open up scientifically the vast stores of erudition that could be expended on Medieval Latin Philology. Ludwig Traube waged a bitter, but finally successful, battle to inaugurate a seminar in that subject at the University of Munich in 1888. The battle was so difficult because the Classical Renaissance had left a prejudice against Medieval Latin, contemptuously styled "Monks' Latin," or "Kitchen Latin," along with other epithets no less belittling.

Prejudice Broken

Little by little, that prejudice has now succumbed before the disarming intellectual treasures that have been given fair consideration by competent scholarship. The essential relation between Medieval Latin Literature and the vernacular works of the same period has added further zest to this study.

Those who take the trouble find that this literature by no means consists of useless speculations or dry-as-dust chronicles. It is to many both a surprise and a delight to find the variety of literary forms represented in the Latin of the fifth to the fifteenth centuries. Beginning with a galaxy of dynamic personalities like Augustine, Boethius, Cassiodorus, Pope St. Gregory, and Isidore of Seville, we find Christian Humanism preserving and refining the best in classical philosophy and literature. In poetry we find a Venantius Fortunatus, a Prudentius, an Adam of St. Victor, a Thomas Aquinas; many of their hymns still live today. In history we find Paulus Orosius (a disciple of Saint Augustine), Bede, Jordanes, Gregory of Tours, Einhard, Paul Warnefrid, Adam of Bremen, Otto of Freising, and a host of others.

Not Sterile At All

In philosophy and theology we find an impressive line of writers from St. Augustine — the first modern man, as Harnack called him — to St. Thomas Aquinas, the prince of Scholastics. Hagiography, romance, fable, science, legend, biography, encyclopedic learning educational theory, dramatic tropes, liturgical plays, reading guides, satire, student songs, lyric and epic—all these genres are contained in the impressive literary heritage of the Middle Ages. Last but not least, the Missal used daily in the divine service of the Church, and the Bre-

College Chatter

By Joe McCabe

LAST WEEKEND saw the annual hall decoration contest in full swing with the "clubsters" of Fedigan trying to outdo Austin in "tone," if nothing else. The blaring of Miller and the other swingsters resounded over the campus far into the night. After a while the music if that's what it can be called, became very stale and the relative quiet of Austin was a relief. Even Alumni came through with something resembling Macy's window at Christmas time.

Jim Nunnemaker, better known as "Swifty," is apparently on the spot with his organization. It seems he has the idea that every young lady he meets is more beautiful than the other. According to his intimates and in the strictest confidence, the majority are far from "beautiful." In fact they might even be called a bit on the off side.

WHAT THEY'RE SAYING:

If the gentlemen who temporarily purloined the insignias from Temple's fraternity and sorority houses thought they were getting even for the premature setting off of our bon-fire last year, they're mistaken. The real culprits were not Temple students but some gentlemen from along the Main Line. . . . "Tony" Steuver, a Frosh, is the type generally referred to as strong and silent. Although he says little it appears that he has been well versed in the femininity found hereabouts.

Dick Gray and Tom Harford, apparently another pair of the quiet type, are really not that way. If you can keep up with the gentlemen you would soon discover that they have their eyes not on their books but on fair lassies . . . Jim Brady, whose heart formerly belonged in Brooklyn, has shifted the scene of his attentions. What would the girls in Flatbush say if they knew about "Dottie" . . . Bill Howlett must have a definite something if one is to judge by the number of phone calls he receives in a single night. Things have come to such a state that he finds it necessary to leave the message "not in" so that he may better concentrate on his "work" . .

Joe Connor is trying to get the job of faculty chauffeur to Rosemont. He claims he wouldn't mind the necessary waiting, for the attraction found over there would more than compensate for his "valuable" time.

A LITTLE STORY:

Hallowe'en comes but once a year and with its appearance come also Masquerade Balls. It is with reference to one of these balls, or "brawls", that our story concerns itself.

Two of the more upstanding Juniors initials R and D were invited to the ball. Dressing as a policeman and matador respectively our heroes picked up their dates, one of whom was "blind" (not in sight, however) and proceeded on their way.

As the evening progressed, the "bull thrower" and the "bull" began to wander around a bit. As a consequence, while one took time out the other entertained the ladies; but this did not last for long, for "senor" absconded with one of the ladies and there was war. As yet the war has not abated and our two heroes are walking around now a bit on the sheepish side.

Well, me lads, it only goes to prove the evils of something—if you get what I mean.

Andy Melton wishes it to be made known that anyone desiring a date for the Immaculata prom should contact him. Evidently the reason for this action on his part is the cold shoulder he's gotten from another local school in regards his availability.

Tickets On Sale

Student tickets for the Villanova-Manhattan game will be on sale at the Field House ticket office during the latter part of the week. Matriculation cards must be presented to purchase a ticket.

Meet The Boys:

Maguire & Donovan Sure This Can Be Read Again: Careers Of 'Mutt & Jeff', 125 Fedigan

By DAVID N. REARDON

IN room 125, Fedigan hall, lodge two of the most amiable roommates on the campus. Inseparable since their matriculation, Jack Maguire, tall, robust and tousle-haired is "Mutt" to his roomie, Jim Donovan, glint-eyed and slight of stature, the "Jeff" of the pair.

Both were exceedingly agreeable interviewees concerning the chronological list of the events of their lifetimes, but upon questioning them upon their social status, yours truly was cross-deluged with disparaging remarks concerning the intensive love lives of our roaming Romeos. Determined to nose out a scoop, our findings were quickly jotted down previous to their inclusion in this article, but a subsequent threat of a libel suit forced us to withdraw some of these ever-so-interesting sidelights. The idea of paying "hush money" was immediately rejected by the plaintiffs in favor of the aforementioned legal suit.

The New Yorker

Prior to our social debate, we managed to compile these vital statistics. Jack Maguire claims May 29, 1919, as his natal day in picturesque Washington Heights, New York City. Upon donning knickers, he entered Our Lady of Lourdes elementary school. After four years, he transferred to All Hallows school where he completed his elementary and high school education.

September, 1937, found Jack matriculating at Fordham University but the depressive urban atmosphere of this skyscraper of learning displeased him and, after one day's attendance, he decided to enroll at Villanova, nestled among the hills of Delaware County. The first year and a half here found him preparing for a medical career, but at this time he decided the Commerce curriculum offered greater opportunities to his inclinations. Marketing is his major, but at present he is undecided as to his vocation.

For three years he's cut quite a figure on the intra-mural baseball diamond, being a mainstay on Alumni and Austin halls' nines. Basketball also attracted him in the intra-mural play and the Sanctuary Society claims him as a member. However, the crowning achievemnt of his extra-curricular career was his chairmanship of the Junior Class Dinner Dance held at the roof garden of the Ritz-Carlton hotel in Philadelphia last spring. It was the largest attended affair of its kind ever held at the college.

Concerning his social life (one paragraph here censored) Jack has squired various girls from the institution across the tracks, but this year upon his attainment of majority a blonde lass who answers to the name of "Bobby" and who resides at a local junior college is the object of his affections. She may be seen at any of our home football games escorted by this man of the hour.

JIM DONOVAN, congenial dramateur de luxe, was hatched in that Hague stronghold, Jersey City, on Dec. 13, 1918. Our post-war baby was of molecular size, so minute in fact that the doctors were dubious as to his future physical development, but fighting Jim emerged from the crisis to develop into a physical and mental dynamo. Claims Jim, "size is no criterion; take dynamite for instance, its compactness does not evidence its devastating effect."

St. Joseph's grammar school and St. Peter's Preparatory school bore the brunt of his intellectual development. After much deliberation, he selected the Main Line college as his No. 1 choice. Enrolling in the School of Arts, he has carved for himself an enviable niche in scholastic achievement. Aside from this, he has participated in innumerable extra-curricular activities.

"Alas, Poor Yorick. . ."

Foremost has been his acting in the Belle Masque dramatic society. His sophomore year found him portraying the role of Dr. Glass in "Room Service" while last year he performed as the Governor in the "Tavern." Climaxing his thespianic endeavors was his election to the presidency of the dramatic group for the coming year.

For two years he labored on the VILLANOVAN staff and was a member of the Beta Gamma debating club, of which he was manager in his second year. Twice has he entered the oratorical contest, advancing to the finals last year.

The Sophomore Cotillion dance committee, chairman of the Epsilon Phi Theta fraternity initiation committee, and the Junior ring committee comprise the rest of his campus doings listed in the catalogue.

Our fickle glamour boy nearly went into tantrum upon our threat to include some interesting points concerning his non-scholastic life. However, his obliging roommate informs us that Rosemont has been graced with his social presence for the last four years. This year though, a petite, young sophomore named Connie F. appears to be his main attraction. It is reliably reported that she numbers an heiress and an outstanding polo player among her acquaintances. Notwithstanding, Jim denies that he is soon to be introduced to New York society.

Many of his fellow-lodgers seek out Jim for advice to the lovelorn because our hero has reputedly carried on an unbroken correspondence with one Anthony B. Anthony, the family relations king.

Fallen Foliage

By JOHN P. FULLAM

The glories of Autumn have often been praised —The red, gold, and brown of the trees—
But one aspect to which almost no psalms are raised
Is the dull, dirty, dead, fallen leaves.

The reason for such a deplorable lack
Is that most of us live in the city
Where leaves, once they've fallen, are pains in the back
Of the neck — What a terrible pity!

Dead leaves in the forest are not really dead
—They'll be storehouses soon for the rain—
They leap up, and up, far over one's head,
And seem meant for children to play in.

Rural leaves are like snow, but not nearly so cold.
And fine adjectives rightly they've earned.
But their chiefest advantage remains to be told;
It's just this: THEY DON'T HAVE TO BE BURNED!

Local Poll Favors Dorsey 'Bruds,' New Dance, But Formals Are Duds

By WILLIAM J. TOY

AFTER a short lull due to football contest with a certain institution known as Temple, the remaining results of our celebrated poll are to be published, even though our individual faces may be a little on the scarlet side because of our failure to elect the "proper" President. Some consideration should be shown, though, for it isn't every poll that can get publicity in Temple's University News. They didn't make the same mistake.

Hoping there will be no repetition of the celebrated Presidential upset as far as we were concerned (incidentally, your writer was a rabid Roosevelt man — no bias shown, contrary to adverse reports), the VILLANOVAN now releases to its admiring readers the band of the week, the band of the month, the band of year, in fact the band of all time. Ye of the student body in our Forum of Public Opinion have selected Tommy Dorsey and his Sentimental Gentlemen of Swing as your favorite band among bands by an overwhelming majority of 43% of the votes. The counter of the ballots read so many votes for Tommy Dorsey that he dreamed for two weeks that we'd have him for the Belle Air Ball (I can dream, can't I?).

With Tommy winning first honors in the unrestricted class, brother Jimmy made it a family affair by taking that section from which Tommy, along with a few more of the higher priced bands, was restricted. These Dorseys must have connections on the campus or else an awful lot of relatives. It has been rumored that a certain red-headed fellow in the C. & F. school is a 25th cousin, but it's just a rumor.

However, let us inform you that no prejudice was shown. One brash individual even went so far as to suggest the employing of the United States Marine Band for the annual Senior hop. After seeing some of the boys dance, I can see the wisdom of this choice.

If we guide ourselves by the results of this poll (we're running competition to the Fortune Magazine, boys), I'm afraid you'll come to the Belle Air Ball adorning yourselves in your best sack suits since the prevailing student opinion is that formal danc-es are taboo. The tidy number of 56% of our collegians gave vent to their emotions favoring informal affairs. So, as anyone can plainly see, you may just as well sell your tails as there will be no use for them at Villanova for yourselves or posterity. See me, I'm in the market for one.

There was a slight inconsistency in our illustrious student body's decision, as it seems they heartily accepted our proposal of an innovation to the social calendar in the way of a Fall formal dance. Although the sentiment was definitely against formal affairs, the boys saw fit to accept another formal in the Fall. Maybe I'm "punchy"—I'm a senior, I think.

As to our final query of whether or not the students liked the new Intra-mural setup, there was a nearly unanimous vote of YES on this issue. We'll regard the few dissenters as being behind the times and passe and attribute their votes to ignorance.

Now, my readers, I fear the time has come to say adieu; so, with a sad and weary heart, I take my parting of you to partake of a wee bit of food. You wouldn't want me to starve, or yould you?

With Scouting Thomas

By Tom Moore

WE CERTAINLY agree that a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, but what do we do when said bird gets in our hair? Last Saturday Ouch, that's a touchy subject!—the owl definitely gave us the bird, a thorough going-over, and to top things off built its nest in our none too plentiful locks. But all that is passed—thank Heavens—and it decisively becomes but a horrid memory as we describe it for the last time—and you may quote us—"Ugh! Tomasic runnum 'round like gossip. Him faster than both McGulp Sisters put together after they drinkum gallon of Kickapoo Joy Juice."

It was a bleak night last Friday when the Council began its long tour of the campus halls and passed judgment on the decorations. But what was sharper than the biting blasts of Aeolus to the huddled, whispering student leaders was the crack that emanated from the doorway of Alumni Hall as the group of judges approached to give the freshman dorm's display an inspection. Said one brilliant frosh in a loud tone to his associates: "Get Ready! Here come the Fediganites!"

One time last year there arose from our mountainous plie of exchanges a faint, but ever so pleasant aroma. At first we thought the good old VILLANOVAN was just backfiring with its usual journalistic sweetness, but for once tha was not he case. Inveigation showed that the heavenly odors issued from the COURT PAGE, publication of Georgian Court. Wonder, then delight, seized the onlookers now completely hypnotized by the perfume. But aslas and alachey, no solution to this phenomena could we find. No answer came from our published quips about the matter. And now we find that the very editor-in-chief of that noble periodical, a very lovely little blonde miss, incidentally, set her dainty feet upon our own campus last Susday without our knowledge at the time. Another chance o solve his Aromatic Mystery of the Court Page lost! But we haven't forgotten the baffling challenge and once again we petition this becoming editor who escaped us Sunday, Miss G. Lauby, to ease our troubled minds. Dear Miss Editor, won't you tell us how to arrange a paper that not only pleases he eye and mind but also tickles the sense of smell (in a pleasant manner, of course) and set all our readers sniffing, delightfully sniffing. Then on Tuesday the boys could really say: "I smell the VILLANOVAN! It's out. Sniff! And, oh, goody it has a lavender scent today, my favorite! I like it ever so much better than tha nasty old musk!"

If we seem a bit erratic today, it's because I, the fellow whose pix is shown above, am not writing this. (That's a peculiar situation, isn't it? I'm not writing the column this week, what am I doing here? Wory, worry, I'm punchy again). In truth Tom Moore is not the author of all this, so please do not blame him for what has been written. Who am I? Oh, now, that's telling! I'm just a little old ghost who flunked freshman composition and am still haunting my English prof. Boo!

But I do hope to see you soon again, folksies! Bye, now!

Football Rally Held In N. Y. C.

With the cooperation of Major Bowes, famous radio figure and an honorary alumnus of Villanova, the Villanova Club of New York City will conduct a huge rally at the Murray Hill Hotel, Park Avenue & West 40th St., at 8:00 P. M. this Friday night, the eve of the Manhattan-Villanova football game.

With refreshments free for all and an all-star entertainment program planned, the club promises a memorable night for students, alumni, and friends of Villanova in New York for the Saturday game. Although the event is alumni-conducted, all Villanova students who will be in New York for the week-end are invited to attend this rally, which will be a stag affair.

Tickets are being raffled off by the association for the following football games: Villanova Manhattan; New York Giants-Washington Redskins, Nov. 16; and Fordham-New York University, Nov. 30. First prize will be two tickets for each game; second prize—two tickets for each game; third prize—two tickets for one game. The drawing for these prizes will be held at the rally.

All the tickets are for choice reserved seats located on the side of the gridiron you prefer. Chances for these tickets are ten cents apiece, or three for a quarter, and may be obtained from John T. Gallagher, 304 Austin hall, or the Villanova Club of New York City.

ASME Plays Host To Nearby Schools At Annual Smoker

The local chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will hold its annual Smoker this Thursday evening, November 14 at 8 P. M. in the Blue Room of the College Field House. The society will act as host to representatives of the neighboring technical colleges.

Among the guests will be Professor L. Gulick, Dean of Engineering at the University of Pennsylvania; Professor W. Stevens, Dean of Engineering at the Drexel Institute of Technology; and Professor C. Thatcher of Swarthmore College.

Dean J. Stanley Morehouse will introduce the speakers for the evening: Mr. V. Jones, Assistant Director of the Personnel Department of the Philadelphia Electric Co., and Mr. Hines, who is the Chief Engineer at the same company.

Frederick Bergner, President of Villanova's chapter, has announced that although the Smoker is being directed by members of the A. S. M. E., all mechanical engineers, regardless of whether or not they are members and irrespective of their class, are invited to attend on Thursday evening.

After the formal proceedings are completed, the bowling alleys and the billiard room will be opened for the use of the guests for the remainder of the evening.

The program for the evening was arranged by a committee consisting of Boudon, Hardwicke, Ehmer, McNamara, Welsh and Hagan.

Informal "Owl Hop" Next On Social Roll

First event on the social calendar following the pre-Temple Game festivities is the "Owl Hop," the annual informal fall dance conducted by the Phi Kappa Pi engineering fraternity.

This year it will be held in the Field House on November 22, from nine o'clock to one. The music will be furnished by the "Villanovans," the orchestra composed of Villanova students. The subscription is to be $1.50 per couple.

Although primarily supported by engineering students and Alumni, the dance is open to the public, and all the students of Villanova and nearby schools are invited to attend. This year's dance is unique in that it is scheduled for the night before the Villanova-Duquesne game, Villanova's last home game.

The Phi Kappa Pi is one of the oldest and most active fraternities on the campus, and their dance is one of the high-lights of the social calendar.

FR. DOUGHERTY SPEAKS

Students of the Science School who were interested in taking the Aptitude Test of the American Medical Association last week heard a reassuring talk by Rev. Joseph Dougherty, O. S. A., Dean of the School of Science.

Fr. Dougherty told the aspirants to the medical profession that a good mark in the Aptitude Test was to be the goal of all those who were desirous of entering a medical school next fall.

"Curies" To Be Topic At KGS Friday Week

No meeting of Kappa Gamma Sigma will be held this Friday because of the conflict with examination schedules. However, Friday week will be devoted in the main to a paper presented by Francis MacLaughlin, sophomore science man and treasurer pro-tem. His topic will be restricted to the "Curies" and will include for the most part a discussion of their contribution to the physical sciences, especially in the field of radio-activity.

Including a lucid explanation of the physics of radio, Harold Varani presented a paper before the physics society last Friday. The paper was well received.

Because of the impatience of the members to present papers, President Joseph M. Gambescia has announced that whoever desires to present a paper should make this known by filling out the required blank. Moreover, it has been recently announced that the Physics Laboratory will be open to all who desire to carry out an original experiment or any research work.

The next meeting will be on November 15 at 10:45 P. M. in the Physics Laboratory.

Atlantic City Site Of Debate Thursday Against St. Joseph's

Beta Gamma, college debating society, will inaugurate their competitive season with the Villiger Debating Society of St. Joseph's College on Thursday evening, November 14 at 9:00 P. M. in the Knights of Columbus Hotel, Atlantic City, N. J.

The topic to be discussed will be, Resolved: that the U. S. Government should conscript industry in the event of its failure to comply with national defense needs.

Upholding the affirmative for Villanova will be Thomas J. Moore, senior artsman and president of the society, John P. Fullam, junior arts, and Robert J. McIntyre, junior commerce.

Beta Gamma inaugurates its 1940-41 participation in the Philadelphia Forensic League on the evening of Dec. 4. In the debate, to be held in St. Stephen's Church Hall, Villanova will meet the Charles Morris Price Forum.

Resolved that the United States should conscript industry in case of national emergency will be the topic of the evening, with Villanova upholding the affirmative.

At the last meeting of the Forensic League, Thomas J. Moore, chariman of Beta Gamma, was elected director of publicity. The present schedule is incomplete, but debates have already been scheduled between Villanova and Drexel Institute of Technology on December 16, and between Villanova and Immaculata College on January 13, 1941.

Practice debates were conducted on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. Wednesday found Burt Collins and David Reardon meeting Charles Callahan and Robert McIntyre on the "conscription" resolution. Thursday, Thomas Devine and Joseph Mahoney debated two other members of the society on the same resolution.

Contests Attract College Students

It is with a view to those interested an opportunity of distinguishing themselves that the following notices of naion wide contests are presented.

One is a national photo contest paying more than $1500.00 for the best picture about Yousg America. The subject, skill, and story will determine the winners. Photos of students at work or play on the campus are sought. Entry forms, rules, and other information about the contest may be had from Youth In Focus, 1775 Broadway, N. Y. This particular contest closes on November 30, 1940.

The second annual contest sponsored by the Gruen Watch Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, requires students to submit a layout for a Gruen magazine or newspaper ad, a sketch of a Gruen billboard or carcard or a script for aGruen radio show. This contest which closes on December 31, 1940, offers a first prize of $500 and many other valuable awards. Official entry blanks may be obtained from the Gruen Watch Company, Time Hill, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Campus Learns Of Bishop Ochoa's Work In Large Chinese Territory

By THOMAS A. SULLIVAN

VILLANOVA has been honored since Sunday, October 27, by the presence of Bishop Francis X. Ochoa, the Vicar Apostolic of Kweitehfu, in the province of Honan, China. Bishop Ochoa, a former Villanova student, is visiting America to encourage mission work in China and to obtain financial aid for his mission.

Last Tuesday night Father Ochoa spoke to the resident students at Chapel. He outlined his work in China, and stated that his field covers approximately 6,000 sq. miles, and contains about two and a half million souls. Only 18 priests assist him in his missionary endeavours in this immense territory.

Bishop Ochoa has also addressed the Seminarians on two occasions, at which times he has encouraged mission work in China. He has paid visits to Rosemont and Raven Hill Academy, where he spoke to the Nuns. On several occasions he has visited New York to renew acquaintances with pastors who studied with him at Villanova. After leaving Villanova about the middle of this month he will go to South America.

American sports have been of much interest to Father Ochoa while visiting the campus. He watched the 150 lb. football team defeat Lafayette, and has attended several intra-mural basketball games.

His Excellency Bishop Francis Xavier Ochoa, O. R. S. A., was born at Monteagudo, Spain, in 1889. He joined the Augustinian Recolect Order in 1906 after studying at the Seminary of Tarazona. Bishop Ochoa attended Villanova from 1911 to 1914 to complete his theological studies. After being ordained at the Cathedral of S. S. Peter and Paul, in Phila., he went to Venezuela and Trinidad.

In 1918 Bishop Ochoa went to the Philippines, where he stayed for two years before being sent to China. When the Holy See granted the Recolect Fathers a large territory in the province of Honan, China, he was appointed head of the new mission. At first he had little to work with, since there were no Catholics, nor houses for the missionaries. Because of his fine work under these conditions, the Holy See appointed him as the Apostolic Prefect of Kweitehfu in 1929. In 1937 he was nominated as Vicar Apostolic of Kweitehfu, and was also consecrated a Bishop of Manila.

Upon returning to China from Manila, Bishop Ochoa found that the Chino-Japanese war had used Honan as its battle front during his absence. All his work was lost, and he was forced to come to the United States to ask help to restore the buildings, the mission house, and to seek vocations for China.

P. K. P. Continues Art Lectures

Last Monday the Phi Kappa Pi held the second of its new series of meetings featuring a talk by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A.. The meeting was held during the fourth period in Simpson hall.

Fr. Vrana's lecture was an informal talk on "An Introduction to Art Appreciation." The lecturer pointed out the erroneous concept of art that a great number of people have. According to him, "Art appreciation is not just something for the 'high class.' It is a development of the senses of perception and creation. Because the Chinese have developed the sense of touch they can find enjoyment by running their fingers over a vase.

"Art is found everywhere in creative genius. Any little gadget that someone makes is an expression of what is in that person's mind. In the same way a picture is pointed out by means of slides and pictures, what to look for in a work of art. He defined and explained each factor as it was brought up. These factors were unity, infinity, repose, vitality. Fr. Vrana defined "the best way of doing things."

A. I. E. E. TRIPS DECIDED

The A. I. E. E. Trip Committee, at a recent meeting, made known their schedule for the coming year—which consists of inspection trips to R. C. A.; Radio Station WCAU; General Electric; Conowingo Dam, and other large plants of a similar nature.

The dates for these trips will be announced in the near future.

Two Good Reasons For Being Dazed

PARTICIPATION in last week's election, at least, to the extent of listening to the returns until sleep set in, has made us and many others like us feel like Observers of National Affairs. The disease is chronic, with the result that, as much as two days after, we still are observing.

What we saw was disconcerting, to say the least. We observed certain Villanova students, in broad daylight, walking about the grounds, and even attending classes, all dressed up. So revolutionary, so overwhelming was this sight that, when we recovered, we determined to determine its cause. We found two.

The first was the visit to our campus of Miss America, in person (so it wasn't a dream, fellows!) Somewhat after the manner of Florence Nightingale, this lovely creature set foot within the confines of our beautiful but essentially woman-less campus and, upon the Fortunate Few who saw Her, had the effect described above. Said they to themselves, after a few preliminary "Hmmm, not bad!"'s and some tastefully executed low whistles: "Maybe she'll be back!" They are waiting, and they are, as you may have noticed, dressed for the occasion.

But a more far-reaching cause of this Esquire-ish attire is the fact that Villanova's Choral Society has shifted the scene of its endeavors to nearby Rosemont. The proximate effect of this shift has been almost perfect attendance at rehearsals on the part of Villanova, and cotton cleverly concealed within ears on the part of Rosemont. Some of them have to wear sun-glasses, too.

Even our theoretically humble freshmen have abandoned the staid, traditional, black bow tie for the more exquisite shades (or is it tints?) of orange and purple.

To be brutally brief, a Glee Club practice, now, is truly a sight, but not, oh, definitely not, for sore eyes!

150's Clip Rutgers For Third Victory With 14-6 Margin

Lombardo, O'Donnell Star as Lightweights March On to Most Successful Season

By FRED CLARK

Villanova's 150 pounders continued their march toward the upper strata of the Eastern Intercollegiate 150-lb. League on Friday afternoon when they defeated the lightweights of Rutgers University by the score of 14 to 6 at the Villanova Stadium.

Although the weather was a bit on the freezing side, nevertheless the largest crowd of the season turned out to witness the third straight victory for the home team. The lightweights did not disappoint their rooters, as they once again played a smart and aggressive brand of football and maintained that "never-say-die" spirit which Coach Tom Casper has instilled so deeply into them.

Rutgers Scores First

Rutgers got off to an early but short-lived lead by scoring a touchdonw on a 30-yard pass from halfback Bill Moss to right end Bob Freeman in the opening period. Freeman made a spectacular play as he leaped high above the heads of two Villanova defenders to snag the pass in the end zone. Avery missed the try for the extra point.

Villanova put the game on ice in the second quarter when they scored on a perfectly executed end-around play and also added the extra point. Left-end "Bud" Dowling carried the ball and not a hand was laid on him as he raced the 12 yards to the goal-line. Lombardo converted.

Not satisfied with a 1 point lead, Villanova added 7 points more in the last period. This tally was indirectly due to the great kicking of left halfback O'Donnell. With the ball deep in his own territory and a favoring wind behind him, O'Donnell got off a boot that rolled out of bounds on Rutgers 4 yard line.

O'Donnell Goes Over

Rutgers was forced to kick and Villanova took possession of the ball on Rutgers 25 yard line, thus gaining 35 yards on the exchange of kicks. In three plays the 'Cats moved to the 1 yard line and from there O'Donnell went over for the score. Lombardo again converted.

Outstanding for Villanova on the line were Joe McCabe at tackle, and Bud Dowling and Charlie Urie at the end positions, while Manus O'Donnell and Frank Lombardo

NICK BASCA PICKS UP FOUR YARDS AGAINST TEMPLE

SPORTORIAL

By JOE BARNES, Sports Editor

WILLKIE, Villanova, and St. Joe Prep! It's been a very bad week for the conductor of this line. With Roosevelt burying candidate Willkie under a 38-10 landslide, Temple topping Villanova under a score which we don't like to think of and alma mater St. Joe losing its first game in the last 16 we are just about ready for the cleaners.

We stood up under Willkie's loss fairly well and we are a little too long away from St. Joe days to cry the blues about them any more but that 28-0 affair last Saturday does hurt . . . but definitely. Were this the "crying Crimson" of deah old John Harvard or the student rag of yelping Yale this issue would be devoted to finding ways and means of taking side slaps at Temple and finding reasons for Villanova's defeat. However, this is the VILLANOVAN of VILLANOVA COLLEGE and VILLANOVA MEN DON'T CRY!

Temple beat us Saturday, badly and quite decisively. They had it coming after a three year famine and we hand them well-earned bouquets. They looked good enough Saturday to take over any team in the nation. Villanova was very sad. Net result: a Temple landslide with all electoral votes going to Owl coach Ray Morrisson. He certainly had all his boys well keyed up for this one!

—V—

Court Coach Al Severance has a bad case of the disease which has long affected "Gloomy Gil" Dobie of football coaching fame. Perhaps Al has a little more reason to cry than Dobie for he certainly carries a convincing argument that this year's Villanova five will be definitely below par.

"We will," says Al, "be lucky to win half our games this year, very lucky." Which seems to be 'nuff said!

—V—

We wonder how many noticed the good sportsmanship of the Villanova gridmen last Saturday after the game. Nice going, boys!

Several issues ago this column quoted Stoney McLinn, WIP radio announcer as making remarks derogatory to Villanova's football team. Checking on the quotation has shown that it was not McLinn but another radio commentator, who possesses a radio voice greatly resembling that of McLinn. Our sincere apologies are rendered to Stoney and we hope that this will correct any harm that may have developed from the misquotation.

—V—

With Temple a thing of the past as far as this year is concerned the next hurdle for Clipper Smith's Wildcats is Manhattan College. Usually a breather in the past the tide has changed this year as Villanova will probably go into the game on the short end of the betting odds.

Manhattan has a powerful club and like Temple before Saturday's game it has been pointing all season at this chance to avenge years of slaughter at the hands of Villanova's Wildcats. It will take a different Villanova eleven than that which played Saturday to hurdle Manhattan.

—V—

Speaking of Manhattan reminds us that this is the away game that each year attracts the greatest number of Villanova students traveling to follow the 'Cats and at the same time give the Big City a treat.

This year there is an added incentive for student travelers in the gigantic rally to be held by the Alumni of New York at Murray Hill Hotel on Friday night. With the invaluable help of Villanova's adopted son, Major Bowes of radio fame, the Gotham alumni have planned a great evening for all Villanovans of the past and present. We wouldn't miss it for the world and we can back up the guarantee of Joe McNamara, '40, that a great time will be had by all. Thanks, Major Bowes!

Coach Gloomy On Court Future

Al Claims 'Cat Five Is Far Below Par; Material Scarce and Inexperienced

With a month of daily workouts behind them the Wildcat courtmen have failed to impress anyone from Coach Al Severance down to the casual observer who may stroll into the Villanova Field House.

Besides failing to give a favorable impression the team is a serious disappointment to Severance. He claims he will have to struggle by with a seven man team, and this is about ten miles below par.

Facing some of the leading teams in the country, such as Geneva, Loyola of Chicago, Wake Forest, Waynesburg and a host of others, Al says they'll be lucky if they finish up the season with a .500 average.

The sad part of it all is that Al wants it made clear that he's not trying to use the well known crying towel.

Counting on building the team around the two seniors, Chuck Yund and Gerry Nugent, Al just can't seem to find the men to fill the openings.

Relying on last season's star freshmen to continue in their spectacular ways, Severance finds that they can't even find the basket this year.

Dick Gray who is showing a little something presents a problem in stature. He'll really have to sizzle to make any headway in the big time circles.

Adding to Al's worries is the injury to Art Spector. After hobbling around on an infected foot for a week, Spec now has to nurse a twisted ankle.

The absence of Mike Pruzyki in the lineup is another loss, as he'll be busy with football 'till the second week in December, so with Nugent, Yund, Gray, Spector, Woods and Kelty to do most of the playing the situation really looks serious.

Manhattan Team Host To Wildcats At Polo Grounds

Blue Gridders Need Win to "Save Season"; Huge Throng Expected to Witness Traditional Tilt Saturday

By BOB FUNABASHI

Manhattan's good little football team, pride of the Gotham, intact after a series of stands against the nation's best, will tackle Villanova, at the Polo Grounds Saturday.

After a sensational intersectional contest the past week-end with Marquette, in which the Jaspers won 45-41, action will be fast and plenty against the invading Wildcats. For in this modern series between the two, Manhattan has yet to score upon the 'Cats.

This game is a "must win" affair with Coach Herb Kopf and his contingents for already the team has gone down to four defeats in its murderous program. Now Coach Kopf has a fighting chance of ending up the year in successful style and special emphasis will be placed on the Villanova game.

Without doubt Manhattan will employ a heavy aerial game with John Supulski, leading aerialist in Gotham, doing the pitching. For the 'Cats, Nick Basca will oppose the Jasper squad in the way of pitching the passes. To combat the heavy Villanova line, the Jaspers will in no uncertain fashion go into the battle with a strong running attack combined with much trickery.

Featured star of the Manhattan team is diminutive Ted Mazur, an all-around ace weighing 147 pounds whose explosive kicking is a double-edged weapon. So far this season his kicking average is around 44 yards which spells trouble to Villanova's safety man.

Barring last minute switches, Manhattan will start Chet Smolenski and Ellwood Varner, ends; Fraser Donlan and Frank Czekalski, tackles; Art Rogers and Sal Marone, guards; Felix Bonadio, center; Captain Frank Gnup, quarterback; John Supulski and Ted Mazur, halfbacks, and Charles McNulty, fullback. This is the same combination which successfully defeated the Marquette team.

Kopf will work hard this week, with special emphasis due to be placed on the attack, which has been quiescent in the face of the rugged opposition that has been faced. And one can hardly call Boston College, Detroit, Dusquesne and George Washington as set-ups. Villanova's record indicates that it can be scored on; therefore, Manhattan will be doubly-dangerous for their hopes are running high for this annual tilt with the 'Cats.

As Temple and Detroit were turned away in previous years and then this year they turned the tables,

Violet Freshmen Hosts To Kittens

Villanova's freshman football team after winning a decisive victory over the Temple frosh are pointing their claws toward the Violet Yearlings of N. Y. U. who they play in the big city this Friday.

The frosh will be gunning for their third straight win of the season, having defeated St. Benedicts of Newark and the Owls earlier in the year.

As was proven in the Owl game Jacobs has a good backfield combination in Joe Pezelski and Jack Dzitko. The team as a whole are gradually gaining that experience and confidence they need. They have proven in the past that they are a good defensive team and can keep cool under fire.

For the past week or so the frosh have been showing their wares in scrimmages against the varsity who were busy preparing for their greatly talked about tussle with Temple.

The Kittens will have to be on their look-out for the strong aerial attack which the Violets have and which they showed against a superior freshmen eleven from Fordham a week ago.

The Violets have a great passer in Lester Berkowich who completed thirteen passes in twenty-seven attempts against Fordham.

Kitten Courtmen Set For Opener

With the opening game scheduled about a month away Al Severance's frosh courtmen are rounding into shape for the coming season.

Since the October 31 cut Severance has settled to a twelve-man squad headed by Lou Klotz, a snappy forward from Southern High and Brown Prep in Philadelphia and Herman Drizen.

Although the schedule is not yet ready for release there is an indication that the type of competition may exceed that of the past two years when the frosh had rather a too easy time of it. This type of competition, according to Severance, does not give the players an opportunity to test their skills under pressure and results in the many faults which this year's sophomores on the varsity seem to have.

Good Squad

Severance claims that the frosh excel his varsity five at many of the intra-squad scrimmages conducted daily at the Field House. The frosh seem to have more zip and fire than in past years and they are much taller and heavier than their predecessors of the past few seasons. Whether or not they will possess the same fire against outside competition as they have against the varsity remains to be seen.

The squad at present consists of the following men: Klotz, Drizen, Ted Repella, Joe McDonald, Julius Stalsitz, Al Celloto, Lord, Ted Janeczek, Bob Casey, Ernie Melofchik, Finegan, and Dowd.

Temple Owls Vanquish Villanova Gridders By 28-0 Score For First Win Since '36 And Fourth In Thirteen Years

Villanova's football supremacy over their beloved brethren from Temple University came to an abrupt ending last Saturday afternoon as a rejuvenated Owl eleven ran roughshod in their home stadium to a 28-0 conquest of the 'Cats before a crowd of some 20,000 fans.

Beginning early in the initial period when the Temple eleven marched straight down the field, met stiff interruption on the three yard line, were hurled back to the thirty one, and countered with a thirty yard field goal from the rather well-educated toe of one Sidney Beshunsky to rack up the first score of the day, the Owls were complete masters of all ceremonies.

The day was definitely all Temple as Andy Tomasic, Owl junior, led his club to four touchdowns and one extra point in addition to Beshunsky's contribution, while the Cats failed to threaten at any time throughout the morose afternoon.

Tomasic Whole Show

Tomasic was the whole show as he ripped around for a total individual gain of 140 yards in addition to completing nine out of ten passes for eighty-five yards. He scored one touchdown, going over on the first play of the second quarter to put the Owls ahead 9-0.

The second Owl score came midway in the second period when Tomasic hit George Sutch with a 42-yard picture pass for a touchdown. At the end of the first half Temple led by a 16-0 score.

Expect Revival

Even Temple fans held their breath between halves, expecting a Wildcat revival in the second session, but it never materialized as early in the third period the referee marched off thirty yards against the Cats on two plays for alleged clipping and gave Temple the ball and an invitation to score on the Villanova twenty-five yard line.

From the twenty-five Tomasic led the Owls to the three on four plays and Jimmy Powers hit off tackle

Austin Leads Loop Into Final Lap Of First Half Race

Firemen Hold Six Wins Against Two Losses; C. & F., Mendel Tied for Second Place

By SAM CANNING

With only two more games to play, Austin Hall is leading the I. M. Court league having won six games and lost two, followed by the C & F Day Hops and the Mendel Residents each of whom have lost three games and won five.

Fedigan holds disputed 3rd, with a five hundred average winning four and losing four. Bringing up the rear are the Mendel Day-hope and Alumni Hall who have lost six and won two.

The league leaders started off the week's program by downing their close rival, C. & F., in a tight 37-33 contest. Led by Di Pollito and Martin who rang up 22 points between them, Austin took a slight lead of 3 points at the half and managed to hold it despite the desperate efforts of the commuters to wipe it out.

Fedigan Winner

Then the fast sinking Gigoloes from Fedigan barely nosed out a 33-32 victory in the final seconds to down the freshmen from Mendel Hall, who protested the game on the basis that the final basket scored by Jim McElligot was completed after the whistle had blown. The frosh were leading 20-7 at the half as Fedigan started its scoring drive and ran up to within one point of Mendel with barely a fraction of a second left to play.

As the whistle blew "Big Jim" McElligot pivoted the ball and threw the hoop for two points which gave the Gigoloes a one point victory. A heated discussion followed but the referees, Janezcek and Corrao and the time keeper, Father Dunne, all agreed that the basket was scored in time. But Mendel has filed a protest of the game.

Finishing up a day of thrilling battles Mendel Day Students came from behind to down Father Dunne's Green Wave by a bare 38-32 margin. Nursing a two point lead at the half Mendel weakened and the frosh forged ahead and stayed ahead until the closing minutes when the Day Boys, led by Dan Dalina with 16 points, barraged the basket and came out six points to the good.

Playing the hardest game yet witnessed in the league this year, Fedigan and C. & F. battled their way into a five minute over-time period before the Business men eked out a 25-22 triumph. This game was the lowest scoring game of the season, having only an 8-7 margin at the half in favor of the Day Hops. Staging a thrilling fight Fedigan tied the score at 19 all when the whistle ended the official time. In the five minute over-time period Fedigan drew first blood on a foul shot made by Abbot. Coupe counter-acted with a basket for C. & F. which put them ahead. Fedigan scored again but Meehan evened this up and McGurk tossed one in for good measure to drop Fedigan into third place.

Alumni Trounced

Austin then proceeded to run all over Alumni as "Whitey" Moore rang up 16 points in downing the Frosh 47-31. There was a great deal of fight and spirit along with the game as the Greenies from Alumni tried valiantly to pull themselves out of the cellar and win the game. But Austin was too strong and the Greenies bowed before the league pacers.

Due to the lack of men the Mendel Day Students were forced to default their game with Mendel Residents. An unofficial game was played as Jim Connolly played with the Day Hops to make the fifth man. The residents won this by a 36-28 score.

No games will be played during the exam week.

Track

Candidates Work Out Daily at Individual Distances in Preparation for Indoors

Dividing their time between the cross country course and the cinders, the track men are reaching their conditioning form, the purpose of these fall workouts.

Mentor Jim Elliott decided to vary the practice schedule to relieve the pressure and monotony of the long and tedious harrier grind.

Of course the track workouts are confined to fast striding 660's and 880's. Showing well in these distances is Bill Hooper, last year's mile discovery. He just started to train about a week ago and is displaying his last season form.

Sophomores Johnny Di Carlo and Harry Keefrider are moving along with steady improvement while Frosh Stars, Dixie Dunbar, George Guida, Ed Danning and Dutch McCarthy are living up to expectations.

While strength continues to be built up in the runners, Elliott knows that these occasional short workouts on the track will help the men to retain their speed and form.

In about another month, Jumbo expects his men to really be ready and conditioned. He will give them a rest from mid-December to after the Christmas holidays when they will begin the serious training for the 1941 indoor campaign.

Severance Gloomy

Woods is nowhere near fulfilling his previous buildup, while Tom Kelty has just recently looked to be fairly promising.

When midgets like Freshmen "Major" MacDonald and "Reds" Klotz run rings around the varsity it's easily seen that the team will look pretty sad against seasoned giants.

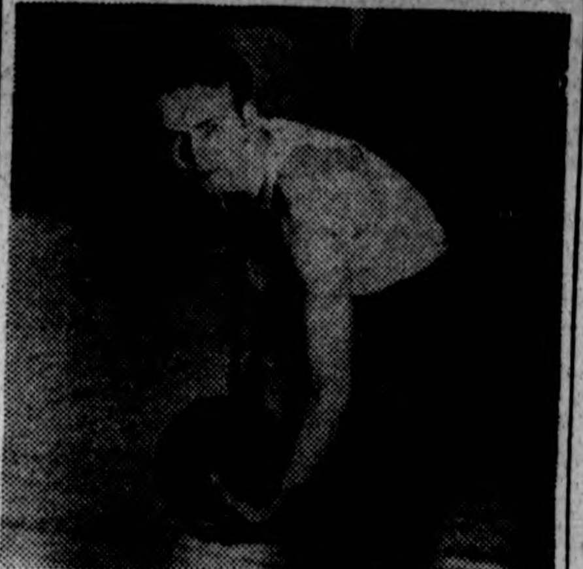
Already Severance is talking about the team next year, when he feels that the men will have a little experience and replacements that can be counted on for a few points when needed.

So unless a miracle takes place down there at the gym, the boys may as well get themselves ready for a lot of defeats.

Jack Earle Improving

Jack Earle, former Villanova grid great, is rapidly recovering from his serious illness and is expected to leave the hospital soon. Jack was given a blood transfusion by a former Collingswood High School gridder after the Villanova team had offered its blood as a whole to help Jack. Due to the proximity of the Temple game and due also to the fact that the Collingswood man had the right type of blood it was not necessary to use the Villanova men.

Top Scorer



DAN KEATING, Austin Hall senior and former St. Joseph's Prep star, leads intramural basketball league in individual scoring to date with 71 points.

Dan Keating Tops Mural Scoring

Austin Star Has Netted 71 Points Despite Absence From Two Games

Dan Keating, Austin Hall's big center is pacing the Intra-Mural Basketball league in scoring with a total of 71 points in six games.

Due to a strained leg Dan was forced out of two games but came back to make up his loss by ringing up as high as 16 points in one game. This is the highest individual score of the season for any one game and has been duplicated by Dan Dalina of Mendel Day Hops.

In second place is the long shot expert Jim Buxeda of C & F with a total of 61 counters. Jim is followed in close third by Bob Depersio of the Mendel Day Hops with 60 points.

The ten high scorers follow:

Keating—Austin	71
Buxeda—C & F	61
Depersio—Mendel Day Hops	60
Dalina—Mendel Day Hops	58
Meehan—C & F	58
Coupe—C & F	56
Martin—Austin	54
Forkin—Fedigan	54
Amicone—Mendel Day Hops	51
Milde—Alumni	44

Jacobs At Manhattan

Villanova's freshman coach and scout, Doc Jacobs, was among those missing at the Temple game Saturday. Doc was in New York mournfully watching Manhattan slug Marquette down to a 45-41 defeat with an amazing last period offensive.

Take A Lacing

One good thing about the defeat of Villanova at the hands of Temple Saturday was that the gents who gamble on college sports took quite a lacing. The professional bettors were taking Villanova and giving from one to six points. To the cleaners boys?

for the score, making it Temple 22, Villanova 0.

The third period saw no more scoring as the 'Cats continued to battle for a score but were hit severely by penalties—a total of ninety-five yards all afternoon—and couldn't make any appreciable headway.

Temple's fourth touchdown was the result of a valiant Villanova attempt to dent the scoreboard in the fourth period. Nick Basca, Villanova back, drifted behind his own goal line and let fly a pass which, in successful would have meant a Villanova touchdown. However, Moister of Temple snared the ball on the nine yard line and set up a touchdown which was helped along by another penalty on Villanova, this one five yards for offsides. Al Juralewicz, Owl halfback replacement for Tomasic, went over from the four for the final score of the day.

Twice in the final period the Villanova eleven managed to smash their way into Temple territory but never far enough to get a decent shot at the Owl goal.

First the 'Cats got to the Temple forty-five and a Basca to Murray to Kasky pass put the ball on the thirty-five but Kasky attempted another lateral which was snagged by a Templar to end the threat.

Later the Cats slammed to the Temple thirty-seven where they were halted on downs and Temple took over and kept the ball in safe territory for the remainder of the last session.

Temple's victory was her first over Villanova since 1936 when the then Pop Warner-coached Owls hit the 'Cats for a 6-0 win. Temple still is very far behind in the 13-year series with Villanova on the winning side eight times to Temple's four. One game, the first, ended in a 0-0 tie.

While the entire Temple team was standing out and playing most inspired football Saturday only a few of the Villanova squad showed capable play. Stress in the line and Basca and Rosato in the backfield were the main Villanova rays of hope.

Stress, especially, shone for the 'Cats. Despite the odds Stan played what was probably the best game of his college career, making a large percentage of the Villanova tackles and breaking up Temple interference consistently.

Paul Stenn, junior tackle, also showed well while in the game but a severe leg injury cramped his style for the day. Collins and Piscione at guards, along with "Iron Man" Korisky at center also did yeoman work at times.

In the backfield Rosato carried the brunt of Villanova's attack, carrying the ball six times for a total gain of twenty-four yards. Nick Basca carried seven times for fifteen yards, decidedly an "off day" for Nick.

Field Judge for the game was "Albie" Booth, one time great dropkicker at Yale University.

Bill Piscione, Ben Blue's Double, Looks To Bacteriology Career

Stellar 'Cat Guard Nears End of Long Grid Career at Three Schools

When not persuading someone that he is not Ben Blue, Villanova's scrappy guard, Bill Piscione, can be found breaking through the opposition's line, or working in the Bacteriology Lab.

Bill is that lad who rushes the passers and harries the kickers, always causing the other team's play to go off a little less smoothly. As competent in the lab as on the football field, Bill spends a great deal of his time studying Bacteriology, his major study in school. He intends to make this his life's work. During the summer Bill picks up lots of practical experience as a laboratory assistant.

Bill Piscione . . . Ben Blue's Double

Piscione comes from Everett, Mass., not far from Eddie Collins" home town, Lawrence. However they never faced each other as high school footballers. In this New England city near Boston, Bill began his gridiron career. As a member of the Everett High eleven, Bill produced the spark which brought a championship to that institution. He alternated between halfback and end, doing a great job at both positions.

Class Prexy

Not limiting his activities to football, Bill went in for high school politics. Proof of his popularity is that he was elected president of his class.

After graduating from Everett, Bill moved on to Bridgeton Prep in Maine. Here he held down the left halfback post.

Following the advice of Art Raimo, former Villanova great, Bill decided to enroll at Villanova, and put his football destiny in the hands of "Clipper" Smith.

On the Kitten team Bill was an end. When Clipper took him in hand the next year, he saw in this lad great possibilities as a guard, and that is where Bill has been playing ever since. It's plain to see that he has not discredited the Clipper's judgment.

Rooms With Dhue

Bill lives way up on Fedigan's third floor with Harry Dhue, husky tackle. When you enter the Piscione portals you will probably hear the smooth strains of the sweetest music this side of heaven, played by Guy Lombardo. Bill goes for the Royal Canadians in a big way. Bill shut up as tight as a clam when asked if he went for any other sweet stuff. Opinions are inexpensive to form, so we have our own ideas.

Piscione and his roomie, Dhue, are looked upon as the quietest fellows on the campus. But put a jersey on his back and place that Temple line, any line in fact, in front of Bill, and he becomes the "fightin'-est," "chargin'-est" linesman in these parts.

When spring rolls around, Bill puts a cap on his head, picks up his glove and heads toward Mendel Field to get in on the pepper-games and the choose-ups. Doc Jacobs has been passing up a prospect for his diamond aggregation. There's still time, Doc.

For the present, Bill is not worrying about the army. His number, about 2000, shouldn't be called for some time to come. In Bill the army has the makings of a sky fighter, as he takes a great interest in airplanes.

F. D. R. O. K.

Bill seemed satisfied about the recent election. We agreed that it must have been the people's choice.

The Science Forum receives a generous portion of Bill's time. With such an interest in his work, Bill should attain a high degree of success. He deserves it.

There is one thing Bill has definitely earned in his days at Villanova. That is the friendship or respect of every man on the campus. There is no one that does not speak highly of him, and Bill himself has a pleasant greeting for every one he passes.

Future Foes Fare Well

Saturday marked a turn for the better in the fortunes of Villanova's grid opponents, Auburn, Detroit, Manhattan, Duquesne and Florida Kansas, P. M. C., and Baylor fought hard and well but their efforts were wasted in losing causes.

Auburn turned in the most scintillating performance on the winning side by subduing the highly-regarded Clemson team 21-7.

Manhattan engaged Marquette in a thrill-packed scoring marathon and, by virtue of two late touchdowns, was able to overcome the high-scoring Golden Avalanche of Marquette by a 45-41 score.

Detroit returned to the winning side of the ledger—from which it had been removed for the first time last week—and registered a choice 3-0 win in an intersectional contest with Texas Christian.

Florida came back from a week's lay-off following the impressive performance against mighty Tennessee and registered a surprise win over Georgia 18-13.

Kansas was able to hold Oklahoma down for three quarters but finally had to bow to superior manpower in a 13-0 loss.

Baylor, cracking under the strain of a stiff schedule, could not deny the late surge of Texas and consequently was on the short end of a 13-0 score.

P. M. C.'s three game winning streak was snapped by a fighting Delaware team. The latter staved off a last minute Cadet threat to emerge with a 14-7 triumph.

Duquesne, on Sunday, scored a stunning 7-6 win over St. Mary's (Calif.) to complete a highly successful week-end for the opponents of Villanova this season.

One-Fifties Win

continued to shine in the backfield.

Bill Brown, veteran first string quarterback, who has been out with an injured leg, played for the first time in two weeks.

Meet Yale Eleven

Although they have already compiled a record that far surpasses any hung up by past elevens since the sport was inaugurated at Villanova, Tom Casper's charges are not basking in past glories. This Friday they meet the undefeated and championship-bound Yale team and that is the game the boys want to win. Each member of the team feels that the two losses to Princeton and Pennsylvania in the first two games of the year can be charged to inexperience and bad-breaks, and they are out to accomplish a feat that the rest of the league failed to do—beat Yale.

Manhattan Eleven

Manhattan feels they are able to turn over a new leaf. Their veterans of the past years have watched Villanova triumph with ease and thus Saturday marks a special day for the Jasper squad. They will be gunning with full force against Clipper Smith & Co.

Manhattan came through its succession of major battles in pretty good shape and while most of the regulars are somewhat bruised and battered none of the injuries are of such a nature that the players will not be available for starting services.

There will be plenty of experimentation with reserves, however, for it is asking a lot of the light Jasper first string to play 50 and 60 minutes a game. Sophomores are in the forefront of the second string and it is likely that from now on Kopf will call frequently upon them.

Past performances will play a minor part in this gridiron battle on Saturday, for both teams will take the field on even terms. Quite so with the members of the team for whther victory or defeat in the past, it will be regarded as the one and only game.

Under Coach Kopf, the Jaspers have been coming along rapidly in the past few years. In this rivalry, begun in 1897, dropped in 1900, and resumed in 1934, the 'Cats have won 8 and lost 5. However, each year the Jaspers have been coming closer to victory. This may be their year.

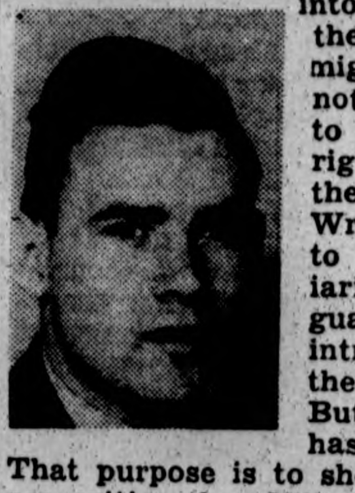
HERE AND THERE

By JIM HAUGHTON

(Wnth apologies to the Dramatic Editor)

COME Saturday and a not too traveled Villanova Varieties de la Swing Football leave the hayloft circuit and move into the big town—Broadway—for its annual one day super duper ballet show of pigskinnery at the Polo Grounds Playhouse.

Until now, the Smith-McNally presentation has made only one road stop, a trip to the wilds of Texas. But the cowhands didn't exactly appreciate their humor and sent the 'Cats home very disappointed.



This excursion into the land of the high and mighty experts is not being made to show the right flank of the chorus the Wrigley sign; or to better familiarize the left guard with the intricacies of the Automat. But rather, it has a purpose. That purpose is to show the Gotham critics that Villanova can and does produce some pretty good combinations.

While playing the local circuit the production has done fair to middlin.' The home bailiwick has shown an increased appetite for football with a swing. Why, one show even broke the home attendance record.

When the critics, who are familiar with every move on the playing stage, cast their analytical eyes on the local actors they should find a polished group wearing embellishments which only experience can provide. This cast varies in that much of the talent is young, but more diversified. Still they have the pungency associated with Wildcat performances, but possessing a more necessary dramatic quality-power.

Several of the experts have already viewed the show, being lucky enough to catch it in an early start, Florida. Among the early birds was Mr. Stanley Woodward, the Tribune's astute observer of gridiron exposition. This same Mr. Woodward also has a hand in selecting the talent par excellence for the Tribune's All-Star production each fall.

Needs Brushing Up

Woodward admitted the show needed a bit of brushing up, but was more thas pleased with the work of the leading man, Nick Basca.

The chorus also was reason for several nice remarks by Stanley. He liked the precision and smoothness with which the group moved. He especially favored the work of one chorine, Bill Piscione. This youngster showed an aptness for being in the right place at the right time. This individual would add spark to an All-Star production.

This department has been somewhat critical at times of the performances offered, but only with good intent. Maybe it was because we are now a bit familiar with Villanova shows and were just expecting too much. But this time we help to relay the news that "The Time Has Arrived." Broadway is calling. . .the spot where all the big shows play. . .an all-star billing. . .the yearly chance has again put in its appearance. . .let's hope the critics can be moved to appreciate the talent which the show has . . .But that depends on the personnel.

A United Press dispatch last week reported that a Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Ice Hockey League had been formed with Penn, Lehigh, Lafayette, St. Joseph's, LaSalle, Drexel and Temple making it up. All this struck us as very interesting, but rather surprising, for Villanova was not mentioned.

Top Sport

Why this is we do not know. A while back Villanova listed hockey among its favorite sports. Several pictures in the Field House will testify to that fact. Oldtimers often mention the success of the skaters.

But now a chance has arrived to again revive the sport and Villanova is not included. This school has many good ice hockey players who could easily form the nucleus of a team. The boys from the New England states and New York, especially, have a great interest in the sport and would appreciate its resumption.

College hockey has been making great advances in recent years. There are several other intercollegiate leagues now functioning. The expense involved is not too much and the benefits derived are many. Why not have Villanova join in the advance?

Award Expected Soon For "150" Gridders

The Alumnus Award for the most valuable member of the 150-pound football squad is expected to arrive this week and will be put on display immediately.

This marks the second year for the award, with Victor Domenick, an end, being the winner last season. The valuable prize will go to the member of the lightweight squad which shows the greatest sportsmanship on and off the field, support for the team and having the greatest interest in the team's advancement.

Pre-Med Tries To Study 'Cat' But Big Terms Knock Him Flat

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

IT wasn't more than several days ago that a bunch of freshmen came swooping down upon the highly-touted sophomores for a couple of pointers for this exam and that one, depending on the fact that we had already gone through the mill. This was more than laughable, as a matter of fact it was practically delirious because we were never able to figure the exams ourselves, and, though we had been through the mill, many of us had been sort of ground up. Anyhow, we gave them plenty of pointers, but we hoped they would not listen to us because no progress would come of it. We knew because we ourselves tried, and the results were sad—so sad.

This occurence forceably brought to the conclusion that the quarterlies were right around the bend, and that we'd better get on the ball, or else we might fall off and find a big number 8 staring us in the face. Hence the first thing we went to was the cat, otherwise known as the blight of the sophomore science life.

We rolled up our sleeves and prepared for an arduous orgy and sojourn with that member of the felines which probably was put on this earth for the total discomfitture of science students. If you don't believe us ask any science man. We began with the bones and subsequently went to the joints — not the Greek's. Diarthroses snyarthoses, symphysis, ginglymis, sutures—dentate, saggitate—nuts. We gave that up as a bad job and figured that someday we'd be able to pick a bone with the diabolical schemer whose intellectuality had been so perverted and distorted as to conceive of such horrors for the added trials and tribulations of sophomore science life.

From thence to the muscles. Oh, yes the muscles, heh, heh, the muscles. Think we'd better get some system down for this. We'll really have to bone on this, or should we have said muscle down to it? Anyhow here goes. . .acromiotrapezius, rhomboideus, latissimus dorsi —shux, this is easy (oh yeh). Extensor carpi radialis brevis (holy smokes! how did that sneak in?) . . .flexor sublimis digitorum, flexor profundus digitorum. Gee, this is getting worse by the second. Holy cow, we never saw this one before. Anyhow we're getting sleepy. Why do cats have to haunt us?

We can see that cat now—in all his glory, with a triumphant, gloating, irking smile. "Huh, so you cut me up, huh? A martyr to science am I, for the alleviation of human suffering, huh? Well, I'd hate to have you operating on me especially after what you did to all my flexors, extensors and what not. Do you realize what a terrible job that was? You'd better rack up and start digging ditches, bud, and personally I hope you flunk."

Well, I'm still sleepy and this exam is a cinch (are you listening, Dr. McClain? Thank heaven that exam was yesterday! !) Think I'll try something else. Math! Fr. Crawford said that this course will make me think straight. If it makes me think, it has done wonders and miracles, imagine that—cosine squared plus sine squared is equal to one. That's one way of getting one. Jiminies, think I'll make a phone call. This stuff is easy.

P. S. To all my profs. . .I'm only kidding. . .honest.

Delta Pi Epsilon Closes Membership Ranks Today

The membership committee of Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity meets this afternoon at 1:05 P. M. in the Mendel hall auditorium to pass upon the qualifications of new applicants. No more new members will be accepted until next year.

The acting initiation committee also will hold a meeting to set up plans for the formal initiation of those applicants who are admitted into the fraternity at the same time as the fraternity officers, who are meeting in the Amphitheatre at 1:00 P. M. to formulate a definite policy for the distribution of fraternity pins to eligible members.

N. F. C. C. S. Leaders Meet On Campus For Discussion

The Council of the National Federation of Catholic College Students, under the guidance of president Miss Gertrude Kirk of Dunbarton College and the Rev. Vincent Mooney, C. S. C., director of the Catholic Youth Council, met at Villanova on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 10, in Simpson hall.

Discussion centered around the problems and experiences of the regional leaders and hope was expressed that a regional group would soon come into being in the Philadelphia area.

Participating at the affair were the Rev. Francis X. Maguire, O. S. A., the new moderator of the Villanova group, Rev. William J. Lunney, O.S.A., and James P. Collins, editor-in-chief of the VILLANOVAN.

Representing the Washington region were Miss Margaret Doherty, president of the regional group, and Frank Horka, of Loyola of Baltimore.

The New York area was represented by the Misses Schildkraut and Lauby from Georgian Court College and Jack Murray of St. Francis of Brooklyn.

"Present War"

"The Nature and Conditions of the Present War Situation" was the chief discussion at a short meeting of the Sociology Seminar, held last evening in Simpson hall. The topic was a continuation of last week's discussion.

The next meeting of the seminar will take place Monday evening at the regular time and place.

Visiting Trio "Just Like Other Girls"

By THOMAS C. MURASKI

WE'RE just like any other girls of our age" was the reply to the many queries put to the three accomplished young musicians who were the guest artists at last week's music seminar. And true it is, for they, in their time given to recreation, like to dance, attend the movies, and sip sodas. It was made quite definite that "we are not beings with long hair that run around with our noses in a book or a score sheet. We are a group of students taking that subject which interests us most."

The group was a trio of pretty young ladies from the Curtis Institute of Music, brought to Villanova by Fr. Vrana as one of the features of this year's seminar calendar. The trio in chamber music was a new experience for the regular attendance of the Seminar. It was the first time in the history of the seminar that chamber music was on the program, and contrary to the belief that such music is dry and stiff, the informal atmosphere and the program were enjoyed by all.

The artists started the program with the second and third movements from trio in D minor, opus 49, by Mendelssohn. Winifred Schaefer, an experienced violincellist, captured the audience with her two solo selections, namely "Apres une Reve" by Faure and "Serenade Espagnole" by Glazounov. These two selections showed the distinct individuality of the cello and why it holds such an important place in the symphonic orchestra.

Marguerite Kuehne followed Miss Schaefer with two violin solos that displayed the majesty of the tone of the violin. She played "Arioso" by Bach-Franko and "Gypsy Airs" by Sarasate. Miss Eileen Flissler, a young but accomplished pianist, accompanied the soloists.

All three girls are studying at the Curtis Institute and hope that some day they will become renowned for their respective instruments. Miss Flissler has had previous experience and study in New York, her native city. Miss Kuehne who started studying in Los Angeles has appeared as soloist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra and has been playing the violin for more than half her life. Miss Schaefer, who has been studying the cello since the age of ten, has played in numerous concerts in Yakima, Washington, and was a member of a string trio for three years while attending Yakima Valley Junior College.

After a lapse of one week, due to the quarterly exams, the seminar will resume its weekly meetings with a "A Vocal Concert" featuring guest artists.

ATTENDS INDUCTION

Dr. William H. McHugh, professor in the education department represented Villanova College at the formal inauguration of Dr. Raymond M. Kistler, president of Beaver College, last Friday afternoon.

Kistler was the third college president installed recently in this vicinity. Felix Morley of Haverford College and John Nason of Swarthmore College were the others.

"Town Meeting" Back This Year

Speech Students Will Hold Daily Debates Under Mr. Frayne's Supervision

"Town Meeting" will be assembled for a repeat performance, Anthony J. Frayne, head of the speech arts department, announced late last week.

Following its successful inauguration last year it has been decided to hold these varied lunch-time oratorical sessions daily in the Mendel hall Amphitheatre at 1:00 P. M.

Parliamentary procedure will be followed and decisions rendered by a supervisory committee composed of junior pre-law students. Most of the participants will be students of the engineering school.

Three minutes will be the extent of the speeches and five embryo forensists will debate each day on current topics. Anyone interested in these discussions is invited to attend. The schedule for this week will be as follows:

Today: Connelly, Cryor, Dolan, Elman and Farley. Wednesday, E. Gallagher, Gasparovic, Golden, Gruss and Wickland. Thursday: Larkin, Puleo, Sykes, Amicone and Burke. Friday: Collins, Coursault, Franko, Geiling and Klein. Next Monday: Koob, Muraski, Pajolek, Quinn, and Schlotterback.

Supervising committees are: Mondays: Gaylsh, Grabosky, Halpin, Holland and Howlett. Tuesdays: Belz, Daly, Gray, Maher, McCall and Schubert. Wednesdays: Hursh, Kaczorowski, Klappenbach, Melton, McCabe, and McIntyre. Thursdays: Barnes, Carey, Connor, Finn, DeGrace and Gallagher. Fridays: McKay, Parson, Phillips, Schreck, Seidel and Shea. The first-named man for each day is chairman of the committee.

Current Book Club Head Stresses No Dues Needed

Tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 P. M. the Book Club will have its second bi-weekly meeting at Simpson hall. It has been planned that each member give an individual report on some current novel and its author. The Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., will act as moderator of the meeting.

Because the attendance of the last meeting was comparatively small in proportion to the number expected, Fr. Falvey would like to have it known that there are no dues or fees whatsoever attached to being a member of the organization.

He feels that many fail to join because they are under the false impression that they must take their current readings from the rental collection in the library.

FR. HANDRAN'S PROGRAM

"Doxology," "Teach Me to Pray" and variations on "Lord of Mercy and Compassion," by Sheedy, will constitute the organ program to be presented tomorrow night after chapel.

The Rev. Ralph J. Handran is in charge of the program and invites all to be present.

DPE Holds Initiation Thursday In C&F; Murphy Is Chairman

Delta Pi Epsilon, commerce school fraternity, will hold its first initiation of candidates for admission since its revival last year this Thursday at 8:00 P. M. in the C. & F. auditorium.

Vincent Murphy, senior, and chairman of the initiation committee, will supervise the proceedings, along with George Flannery, frat president. Other members of the committee are seniors George Coupe and James Jernee, and juniors David Reardon and Daniel Haley.

V. MURPHY

Approximately 45 students will be received into the organization if all come through successfully. At first it was planned to initiate all members of the fraternity, since no initiation was held last year, but it was finally decided that only new members should be subjected to the ordeal.

Chairman Murphy, in discussing the work of his committee, has promised a completely new type of initiation. He believes that the new members will treasure the memory of this event long after they have left Villanova and that "they'll certainly remember."

Following the affair, refreshments will be served to all those present.

ASCE To Get Report

Joseph Light, senior engineer, has been appointed by the college A. S. C. E. chapter to make a study of the failure of the Tacoma Wash., suspension bridge and to make a report on the disaster to the society in the near future.

As the West Coast disaster is considered unparalleled in the history of modern bridge building, Light will attempt to analyze its causes.

The student branch has contacted the parent A. S. C. E. chapter to get lantern slides on engineering projects for its meetings. Louis Schneider, in charge of this, has announced that he expects to get slides on projects in all parts of the country.

A member of the civil engineering faculty will address a meeting of the society in the near future; a definite announcement on this is expected next week.

Commuting Students Hear Music Program

"Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," by Mozart, will be featured in the program to be presented at the weekly meeting of the day Student Music Seminar tomorrow afternoon from 12:40 to 1:20, Room 215, Mendel hall. Also to be included in the program are: "Poet and Peasant Overture," "Moonlight Sonata" as played by Paderewski, and "The Ballet Music from Rosamunda."

Doctor Edward L. Haenish and the Rev. John J. Vrana, O.S.A., are the conductors of the recording machine.

Four Best Plays Picked This Week

Belle Masque Rehearses "One-Acters" Tonight and Thursday

Tonight Anthony J. Frayne, faculty director of Belle Masque, will review the preliminary staging of six one-act plays, now far advanced in their progress toward production on November 23.

Student directors John McGovern, James Donovan, Andrew Melton, Joseph McCabe, Robert McIntyre and Frank Buckley have been drilling their casts intensively for this annual Dramateurs Reception. The subjects selected offer a combined program of comedy and drama.

Thursday evening the director will hold a final dress rehearsal, following which he will decide upon the four presentations to be staged. Advance reports evidence a hotly contested dramatic battle for the opening night performances. Never before in the history of Belle Masque has such widespread student interest prevailed.

Robert J. Dooley, stage manager, and his crew have been working feverishly during the past week on the construction of the numerous sets which will require frequent changing during the course of the evening.

Members of the society are requested to make all returns for tickets and patrons at the meeting to be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 in room 103, Mendel hall. It is requisite that everyone be present because at this time representative membership cards will be issued to those who have proven their qualifications by previous cooperation in dramatic performances.

Ticket sales are progressing rapidly. Those wishing to procure tickets should do so as soon as possible in order to obtain the best seats.

Mixed Quartet

To Give Recital Before Music Seminar on the Features of Operatic Singing

Under the supervision of Mr. Eugene Sullivan, private music instructor for many of Villanova's students, a mixed quartet will perform before the members of the music seminar at their meeting tomorrow evening in Simpson hall.

The program will consist of an exposition of the various types of voices used in operatic singing and a demonstration of them. Mr. Sullivan will provide the explanatory remarks and accompany the singers on the piano.

J. Gordon Brosmer, Senior Business Student, Receives Belle Air Ball Chairmanship In First Appointment

Cooperating Committee for First Senior Social Will Be Chosen Very Shortly to Facilitate Preparations

Class President Deasy Urges Early Payment of Assessment So That First-Class Orchestra Can Be Had

By WILLIAM J. TOY

J. Gordon Brosmer, senior Commerce and Finance student, has been appointed chairman of the annual Belle Air Ball on February 26, as was recently announced by William J. Deasy, senior class president. Very shortly the names of the entire committee will be made known, possibly next week.

Brosmer, a resident of Fedigan Hall, has been active in many events on the Villanova campus. Last year he was favored by being appointed to the Junior Prom committee in charge of tickets and has therefore attained valuable experience in this line.

Delta Pi Epsilon, the Commerce fraternity, has a very active member in Brosmer who has also devoted much of his time to the Belle Masque both in the capacity of a business man and an actor. While making a name for himself in these activities, he has been a three year member of the Belle Air and has not been lax in the literary field. He has shown himself to be a most valuable man on the staff.

Brosmer has participated in the intra-mural activities of the college under the colors of Fedigan hall. Thus he has been very active on the campus and has participated in a wealth of extra-curricular activi-

Owl Hop Closes Fall Season Friday

"Villanovans" to Serenade Dancers at Engineer-Sponsored Social

The Owl Hop, annual fall dance of the Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity, will be held on the night of November 22 in the Field House. It will feature the music of the "Villanovans," the college dance band, under the direction of Joseph Rozum, senior science man.

Co-chairmen John Maguire and Joseph Norton have appointed a ticket chairman for the event and tickets were put on sale yesterday,

Chairman Maguire, in announcing the ticket sale said, "The Owl Hop is the last Fall dance listed on the social calendar of the school For this reason I expect not only the engineers and members of PKP to support this dance but also the members of the other schools as well.

"We have successively enjoyed the dances staged by the Sophomore Class and by our brother fraternity, Lambda Kappa Delta. Now it is our turn. To one and all who attend I guarantee a dance that will be enjoyed by everyone."

Tickets, priced at one dollar and fifty cents, can be obtained from any member of the committee. These include R. Boudon, H. Boyle, J. Skelly, K. Vogel, F. Abbott, D. Dalina and J. Light, seniors; R. Ayerle, E. Hagen, V. Gordon, J. Muench, and T. Shallow, juniors and sophomores D. Boyle, M. Boyle, J. Donnelly, T. Muraski and J. Quinn.

FLYING CLUB MEETS

Mr. William Gorman, Moderator of the Flying Club, will speak to the members of the Club at their meeting in Room 110 at 1 o'clock on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Gorman will explain the method by which the members can construct a model airplane engine, and he will also discuss plans for a visit to the Philadelphia Skyport together with an outline of the program for the coming year.

"Clipper" Speaks

Head football Coach "Clipper" Smith will be the guest speaker at the Epsilon Phi Theta, arts fraternity, initiation tomorrow evening at 7:45 P. M. In addition to his talk Coach Smith will show the moving pictures of 1939's losing clash with the Auburn team as played in Alabama.

James Donovan, chairman of the affair, likewise made known that the informal social will also feature addresses by Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., moderator of the fraternity, and Rev. John A. Burns, O. S. A., Dean of the School of Arts. In addition, Donovan himself and James P. Collins, president of the group, will give short talks.

Prospective members of the organization have been voted upon, and those successful pledgees' names will be posted upon the Arts bulletin board today. It is imperative that these latter contact John M. Bader, Treasurer, or some other officer concerning payment of their assessments before Wednesday, the date of the initiation.

Active members of E. P. T. will also oblige with a partial payment of dues upon that date.

The Blue Room of the gymnasium will provide the scene of activities. The billiard room, and bowling alleys will be at the disposal of the fraternity members. At the conclusion of the evening, refreshments will be served.

Pity The Plight Of The Poor Turkey: 2 'Bird-Days' Drive Him 'Berserky'

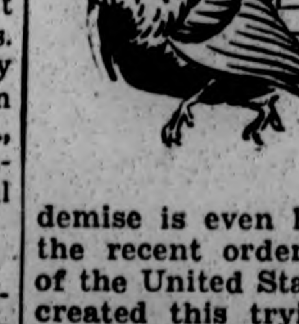
By WILLIAM J. TOY

COMES Thursday and once more the gobblers will receive the full vent of the fury of hungry appetites as the second annual Roosevelt Thanksgiving day rolls around. However, at Villanova, there may be many vacant tummies, since the college has recognized Thanksgiving number 2 as the official turkey time and, accordingly, classes will continue through holiday number 1.

All this is pretty involved, isn't it? Well, it all boils down to this. If you live in Pennsylvania, turkey will be yours; but if you reside in New York, New Jersey, etc., etc., classes will be in session and instead of consuming turkey you will be eating up knowledge.

Foul Trick

While we take this selfish attitude of considering our own personal troubles, trivial as they are, there arises in your writer's mind a far more serious problem concerning this national holiday. Have you ever thought of the plight of the innocent young turkey? For no good reason at all—with the possible exception of our gluttony—thousands of these harmless fowl meet their doom every Thanksgiving.



To me there seems to be a misnomer in the name Thanksgiving. What have these turkeys to be thankful for? Their demise is even hurried a week by the recent order of the President of the United States when he again created this trying situation of a dual holiday.

If he has no consideration for Save Us The Neck!

SINCERE condolence is extended to the 46% of the student body who will go home on the 28th of this month to a turkeyless dinner. It is with sadness that this event has arisen. Your thanks this Thanksgiving may be extended to the personal prejudices of the law-makers of this state. With the national cry for unity, it is indeed strange that our petty politicians cannot even agree on a distinct date for Thanksgiving.

To the mothers and fathers of these boys, we are also sorry that you could not have your sons for this solemn event. However, as they are not with you at the table, they are with you in mind. Direct in your prayers their Thanksgiving to God, for it is their intention that you do so.

—M. P. Z.

Mote And The Beam

DEVELOPMENTS recently in the world scene cannot but make us believe that the high-sounding phrases the propagandists hurl at the people with crocodile tears in their eyes and a melodramatically throbbing voice are just low-down tricks to arouse the masses in all countries to a highly emotional pitch of patriotism so that they may be blinded to the covert, hypocritical behind-the-scenes activities of the big men "in the know."

In times like these, when crisis after crisis is manufactured, it is almost treasonous to sound a pacific note. Our stand as Americans is made painfully clear—we are in effect a non-belligerent ally of Great Britain, which is supposed to be synonymous with the interests of democracy and freedom. Let us review the facts which still lead us in a vicious circle about a huge, bloody question mark.

Through powers vested in him by the Faddis Bill, the President announced that Russia would receive all war materials she wanted except those which experts said we needed for our own defense. This means that Russia was regarded as a friendly Power. Here's the rub. It seems more than likely that the Axis nations and the Soviet Union will arrive at some kind of agreement in the near future, if they have not done so secretly so far. So . . . we supply the Reds with guns while they barter with the Nazis as to how to settle the fate of the remaining free countries of Europe.

And what about the Asiatic end of the Axis? Let's see how we are bolstering the ramparts of Democracy in the Far East. Surely there England and the United States, as they have repeatedly stated, must aid the cause of China, who is fighting for her freedom.

We opened the Burma Road for China, "Viva Democracy!" We lent China more money to carry on the war. "Long live freedom!" We also put an embargo upon Japan . . . Great.

But . . . something is wrong here. We forgot to mention that a deal denied Japan a month ago and last Wednesday has just been affected. British and American oil companies have agreed to supply Japan with oil from the Dutch East Indies, 1,800,000 tons of oil per year—equal to seven-tenths of Japan's oil import from the United States which makes our oil embargo against Japan "a scrap of paper."

We are quite sure that good, freedom-loving Americans, really tolerant Americans, will like this. After all, should we play favorites and help only that which is closest to us? Of course not, we must also see to it that the guns which may someday face us be well equipped!

—A. J. D'A.

Back In The Saddle

MOST of us have practically forgotten that a presidential campaign was recently waged. We know that Mr. Roosevelt is "back in the saddle again" and accept that fact as the will of the majority, whether we were for him or against him. We have determined to forget partisan arguments and follow him through the next four years in a body—"unity" is the word in vogue at present—so that we will present a solid front to any belligerent nation.

It is only right, and the instinct of self-preservation demands it, that the United States be really "united states" against foreign powers. But many advocates of this "unity" insist that all must agree with the President no matter what he chooses to do, that no dissenting arguments be raised in opposition to any of his proposals and programs lest we "weaken ourselves internally and be easy prey to foreign attackers."

This is absolutely against all basic American principles of democracy; more, it is against common sense. As the vacationing Mr. Willkie pointed out in his post-election speech to his 22,000,000 minority followers, our safety depends upon constructive criticism of bad defense measures. If all were to blindly "follow the leader" without regard for the saneness of any measure, destruction would probably follow.

Those who voted against Mr. Roosevelt certainly should not criticize his actions just because they are opposed to him personally—for that is the height of folly—but Mr. Roosevelt must remember that this 43% of the nation has the right and the duty to actively oppose any measures that are seriously harmful to the nation.

For common sense tells us that more progress can be made when the lawmakers are subject to constructive criticism than when one man is allowed to rule the country pricisely as he desires, with all who might object remaining silent out of "patriotism."

"Just An Average Student"

By FR. DOUGHERTY

"JUST an average student." How frequently we hear that phrase repeated in academic circles in this age of aptitude tests, personality ratings and intelligence quotients. The very mention of the term carries with it a sinister meaning; it conjures before us such remarks as "inability to cope with situations", "lack of leadership" and all the other trite phrases invented by the sophisticated to prove their pharisaical contention that the vast majority of mankind is hopelessly entrammeled in the slough of mediocrity. And yet, it is the average student, with all his faults and shortcomings, who provides the very warp and woof of the collegiate fabric. Let there be a call for volunteers in an emergency on the Campus, let there be need for an exhibition of real college spirit, then we find the average student in the forefront.

Just as the average citizen comprises the backbone of the Nation, so in college life it not infrequently happens that the average student is the most likeable, the most reliable and, very often, the most successful student in after-life.

We do not thereby mean to decry the attainment of scholastic honors nor do we mean to belittle the accomplishments of that small group of college men who, by their unusual talents and application, are justly outstanding. Experience has shown that such students take care of themselves very well. But we do decry the tendency that is quite widespread in these United States, that of belittling the efforts and magnifying the shortcomings of the average student. Such an attitude destroys the initiative of those who may be handicapped for one reason or another, and it inflates the ego of the sophisticated student beyond all tolerance. Thus is defeated one of the fundamental purposes of all education, namely the control of pride with which all of us are plentifully supplied.

Time was when college men attained their training in the exclusive mastery of the ancient doctors and philosophers coupled with a study of the classics, but in our day specialized efforts and mass production necessitate a new type of training. The all importance of the physical sciences in our work-a-day world has had its effect on our academic outlook, where a very strong tendency has developed of reducing human qualities of mind and character to the confines of a mathematical equation.

We sometimes wonder, as we observe the evidence of your carefree boyish antics, whether you will acquire the real spirit of Catholic manhood which we are striving, at great sacrifice, to impart at Villanova. But as we review the past few years we are encouraged by the attainments of so many of our average students and we are filled with hope

Whispering Grass

By Jim
Donovan

FRANKLY, boys, we're a little non-plussed. For years, Villanova has been really hep to the jive, strictly heide-ho. But the past week really was a social wash-out. Compared to the land of the carousing Wildcat, King Tut's tomb looked like Leon and Eddie's. The quarterlies, those mental gymnastics imposed by our intellectual authorities, made strong men howl and weak men fade like Willkie. However, even in these trying days throw that Republican out!), a few valiant souls ventured out to raise a little of what is more politely known as "whoopee." So away with these sober thoughts! On to those who love and lose!

Ed "The Usual Coke" Jones braved a deluge to swim across the road to the Pennsylvania Home for Ageing Stags. We have it on the best authority that our little boy love is doing quite all right with his "boo-ful" lass. Who knows? Maybe Walt "Richard Greene" Smith has been tutoring Danbury Ed in the ways of successful lovers.

Joe "When the Swallows Come Back to Capistrano" Clarken is still blasting his way through Rosemont's love line in a way that smacks of Andy Tomasic. However, Bill "I Love Life" Larkin is still the star triple-threat man in the combination's backfield. All they need for a successful season is someone to block Gene "Marymount Lover" O'Brien's passes.

Bill "I Ain't Ugly; Just Unattractive" Epifanio is having quite a feud with Wayne "Hello, Central" Hughes that will get better and better as the years progress. We're betting our two kopecs on Wayne, but Wee Willie has told us he's got a couple of hairs up his sleeve.

Most of Villanova's faster, younger, rah-rah set coasted up to New York this past Saturday to embellish the Polo Grounds with their charm. Gene "I Got Dark Rings Under My Eyes from Studying" O'Brien was there with his Marymount delight. The good O'B. was oh, so attentive because he has it oh, so bad.

It was also reported by our Gestapo that Jack "Killer-Diller" McGuire squired his usual wee bit of Harcum loveliness. Jack, we understand, is doing a little bit of all right for himself this charming semester.

On the "choo-choo" to New York Jack "Big Deal" Gallagher, all decked out in his best bib-and-tucker, was his usual Don Juan-ish self to all the fair damsels that decorated the seats. Running a beautiful game of interference for our Flatbush Floogie, oh, so coy, coy was Ed "Life Can Be So Cruel" Bennis. The boys were really in tip-top shape.

We're willing to bet our last soggy doughnut that Al "Asbury's Delight" Skaf will steal the Amateur Show again this year if he's given a chance to use his Buick-eight imagination on a skit. Remember last year? Al did everything but take tickets and sweep the floor.

And so the week has passed sadly on. It started in Lindsey's Diner and ended in the Polo Grounds. In both spots Villanova made its usual spirited showing.

John "I'll Never Smile Again" Burke and Dan "I'm Stepping Out with a Memory" O'Mahony are still on top in the social whirl. But the seven days were slow, very slow. We think it's just the lull before the storm, folks, the lull before the storm.

Messers. Paul Stenn, Henry Christman, and Walter Smith are at present the personnel of the complaint department.

Meet The Boys: Bill E. And Jim B. Are Handsome To See, But From Praise They Flee

By GEORGE FLANNERY, JR.

I ain't got nobody" (a melodious voice from the washroom).

"Shut up!" (a chorus of pleading voices.)

"I ain't got—" repeated the washroom voice and was followed by a tremendous outcry of protesting voices. Wondering what could be the cause of commotion, we drifted into the washroom and found "Bill" Epifanio surrounded by a "hostile" group of Fedigan "gigilos." Rescuing "Bill" from the rapidly rising "hostility" of his mates, we engaged him in a verbal bout to safeguard ourselves from any further attempts of melody by the "Bing Crosby" of Fedigan hall.

He's Persecuted

"Ever since I came to Villanova my voice has been unappreciated by the Villanova student body. Why, take the instance when I attempted to sing that song during the Freshmen Initiation week. I was walking past Mendel hall and had progressed as far as the words "I ain't got"—when a mop fell with a thud a foot ahead of me. Leering down at me from a second story window was the disappointed face of an Orientation Committeeman."

Like many another Villanovan, Bill has a girl friend back home (his happens to be in Stanford, Conn.), yet it is a proven fact that Bill knows more girls from Bryn Mawr Hospital than any two other Villanovans put together. Yet he'll actually tell you he rarely goes out with girls—that he's a man's man!

"Eppie" is a fast thinking staff writer on the sports end of the VILLANOVAN and has been for two years. As for activities, just listen: Sophomore Cotillion, Orientation, Junior Prom committees; Glee Club, Delta Pi Epsilon Frat; intra-mural baseball and golf; a members of this paper's staff, as mentioned; Sanctuary Society, the bishop of a mock religious cult in Fedigan; and chief producer of laughs on F.'s first floor. 'Now, ain't dat sometin?' We think so.

Didn't Do Him Justice

We realize our lack of utility as a good biographer because up to now we have been generally jovial and now have little space remaining to delineate the seriousness of Wee Willie. And he can be serious, too, Toni Scelba!

Bill is a sturdy portion of masculinity towards whom one naturally feels disposed. He ever presents a nice appearance, is nice looking, though well-bearded, seems never to alter his permanently happy disposition; there's a merry twinkle in his eye at all times that bespeaks the fine character Bill has.

Bill is someone you would value as a true friend, if you could know him, and knowing him isn't difficult at all. We do, and let me tell you, Bill Epifanio, we're mighty proud of it as are your fun-loving hecklers!

WALKING into room 209 Fedigan hall, you will immediately perceive from what part of the country the inmates hail, for plastered on the wall are the pictures of the entire Brooklyn Dodgers' baseball team. "Sure, I'm from Flatbush," Jim Brady will tell you; "in fact I used to work as an usher at Ebbetts Field just to watch the "mighty Dodgers play baseball."

No relation to "Diamond Jim" Brady of "Gay Nineties" fame, this Villanovan was born twenty-one years ago at Brooklyn, New York. After sipping his first drink of the "wine of knowledge" at St. Jerome's Grammar School, Jim liked it so well that he decided to get more and accordingly enrolled at Brooklyn Prep. While there, he earned two letters in track and during his senior year was elected Vice-President of the Student Council, graduating in June of '37.

His Big Moment

Despite the fact that he spent his Freshman year at St. John's of Brooklyn, Jim has lost no time swinging into the Villanova social whirl. Witness the testimony of a lovely Rosemont lass from Wynnewood who things Jim is just "too, too divine." Unfortunately her name isn't "Lillian Russell," so the "Diamond Jim" Brady business doesn't work out, as we warned you.

A good social mixer, generally seen "palling around" with Fred Clark, his room-mate, Jim is not averse to practicing his woodwork craft at the "Mill" once in a while. That miniature "Beer" truck on his desk has no special significance, so he says!

Run, Jim, Run!

One of "Jumbo" Elliott's track men for three years, "Jim" carried his "running" ability over into politics and emerged the successful candidate as our Senior Class Treasurer.

Definitely not a "book-worm," Jim has managed to get good marks in the Pre-Law course he chose for his college major. Fordham law school is the first step after graduation in June that Jim plans. His final goal—a corporation lawyer.

James B. indeed is one fine fellow, and so nice looking, girls. He's Hollywood material with his brown curly hair, healthily ruddy complexion, friendly blue eyes, and his delicately regular features. He dresses well, too, and all the time.

What we like to say most of all about him is this: J. B.'s consistently natty, immaculate, and conservative dress really mirrors the inward Jim Brady. He has been considerate of others at all times and naturally is a popular fellow. For proof ask any of the many fellows for whom he has gotten blind dates—and don't you think that praise from them isn't something!

Preston Foster Likes Football But Not All-American "Maul"

By "MATT INEE"

DID you see "Moon Over Burma"? Then, of course, you remember that suave individual who had a spot in the top billing, Preston Foster? Certainly, you do. Well, let me tell you, he is one regular fellow. How do I know? Listen.

The masculinely handsome Mr. Foster, upon his return from location in Saskatchuan, Canada, where he was cast in "Northwest Mounted Police," was visiting his parents in Ocean City, N. J., his birthplace, when business interferred. The Philadelphia representatives of the Paramount studios prevailed upon Mr. Foster to undertake a series of curtain bows at the Stanley Theatre in Philadelphia. during the showing of his picture, "Moon Over Burma."

One day, during a lull between scheduled curtain bows, a trip out here to the Villanova campus was suggested by the Paramount officials as a means of relaxation for the actor. It was immediately made.

Mr. Foster was shown around the campus, and, since he evidenced great interest in our football teams, was introduced to head coach "Clipper" Smith. Upon meeting, the two "greats" in their respective fields — although a great many Wildcat rooters claim that the "Clipper" could transform himself into a smashing box office attraction as a matinee idol without [illegible] so pleased — immediately took to one another.

Hollywood's cinema representative that day made everyone like him. He talked to whoever showed an inclination to reciprocate—very congenially, too, not as a tin god acknowledging the plaudits of his worshipping subjects; no, not at all like that. He amiably posed for publicity pictures with the football squad and seemed as though he really enjoyed it, as though all this were something new to him, not the everyday job that in reality it must be.

Personally, we ourselves had a nice long twenty minute chat with the celebrity and enjoyed it so much as a friendly talk with someone whom we had known for a long time that we neglected to ask the questions of him which we had previously intended. However, we did learn a few interesting things.

Seated in "Clipper's" office, we disovered that Mr. Foster has previously worked on the advertising end of three Philadelphia newspapers, the Ledger, the Daily News, and the smaller Courier. We learned also that the Villanova Wildcats are comparatively well known on the Pacific Coast for their prowess at football, but are familiar particularly to the really rabid fan. Football brought up the subject of the picture, "All-American," of some time ago in which Preston Foster and Andy Devine played together with the complete All-American team of 1931.

[illegible] a massage in several of the scenes," Mr. Foster ruefully remarked. "When an inexperienced, out-of-shape actor attempts to keep in step with a pack of perfectly conditioned U. C. L. A. and All-American players, he has no mean job, as I definitely discovered."

As for future plans, our interviewee mentioned a business trip to New York, from there a flight back to the Coast where he will begin work on "Reap the Wild Winds," and most particularly a vacation hunting trip through Mexico sometime in January.

The nattily dressed, ordinary-looking actor gave us a hearty good-bye with expression of thanks for our trouble. He was quite enthusiastic, so much so that when we left him we felt we were the celebrity, not Preston Foster, the movie actor. But we still feel that he is one fine, congenial, [illegible]

Post election thought:

Although Roosevelt was reelected, his popularity is not so great among college students as is Willkie's. Polls have shown that over half the college students favored Willkie. New England went 63% for W. W.; the Middle Atlantic district 52%; the central states and the West 60%, while the South went 63% the other way. Save Us The Neck!

SINCERE condolence is extended to the 46% of the student body who will go home on the 28th of this month to a turkeyless dinner. It is with sadness that this event has arisen. Your thanks this Thanksgiving may be extended to the personal prejudices of the law-makers of this state. With the national cry for unity, it is indeed strange that our petty politicians cannot even agree on a distinct date for Thanksgiving.

To the mothers and fathers of these boys, we are also sorry that you could not have your sons for this solemn event. However, as they are not with you at the table, they are with you in mind. Direct in your prayers their Thanksgiving to God, for it is their intention that you do so.

—M. P. Z.

Mote And The Beam

DEVELOPMENTS recently in the world scene cannot but make us believe that the high-sounding phrases the propagandists hurl at the people with crocodile tears in their eyes and a melodramatically throbbing voice are just low-down tricks to arouse the masses in all countries to a highly emotional pitch of patriotism so that they may be blinded to the covert, hypocritical behind-the-scenes activities of the big men "in the know."

In times like these, when crisis after crisis is manufactured, it is almost treasonous to sound a pacific note. Our stand as Americans is made painfully clear—we are in effect a non-belligerent ally of Great Britain, which is supposed to be synonymous with the interests of democracy and freedom. Let us review the facts which still lead us in a vicious circle about a huge, bloody question mark.

Through powers vested in him by the Faddis Bill, the President announced that Russia would receive all war materials she wanted except those which experts said we needed for our own defense. This means that Russia was regarded as a friendly Power. Here's the rub. It seems more than likely that the Axis nations and the Soviet Union will arrive at some kind of agreement in the near future, if they have not done so secretly so far. So . . . we supply the Reds with guns while they barter with the Nazis as to how to settle the fate of the remaining free countries of Europe.

And what about the Asiatic end of the Axis? Let's see how we are bolstering the ramparts of Democracy in the Far East. Surely there England and the United States, as they have repeatedly stated, must aid the cause of China, who is fighting for her freedom.

We opened the Burma Road for China, "Viva Democracy!" We lent China more money to carry on the war. "Long live freedom!" We also put an embargo upon Japan . . . Great.

But . . . something is wrong here. We forgot to mention that a deal denied Japan a month ago and last Wednesday has just been affected. British and American oil companies have agreed to supply Japan with oil from the Dutch East Indies, 1,800,000 tons of oil per year—equal to seven-tenths of Japan's oil import from the United States which makes our oil embargo against Japan "a scrap of paper."

We are quite sure that good, freedom-loving Americans, really tolerant Americans, will like this. After all, should we play favorites and help only that which is closest to us? Of course not, we must also see to it that the guns which may someday face us be well equipped!

—A. J. D'A.

Back In The Saddle

MOST of us have practically forgotten that a presidential campaign was recently waged. We know that Mr. Roosevelt is "back in the saddle again" and accept that fact as the will of the majority, whether we were for him or against him. We have determined to forget partisan arguments and follow him through the next four years in a body—"unity" is the word in vogue at present—so that we will present a solid front to any belligerent nation.

It is only right, and the instinct of self-preservation demands it, that the United States be really "united states" against foreign powers. But many advocates of this "unity" insist that all must agree with the President no matter what he chooses to do, that no dissenting arguments be raised in opposition to any of his proposals and programs lest we "weaken ourselves internally and be easy prey to foreign attackers."

This is absolutely against all basic American principles of democracy; more, it is against common sense. As the vacationing Mr. Willkie pointed out in his post-election speech to his 22,000,000 minority followers, our safety depends upon constructive criticism of bad defense measures. If all were to blindly "follow the leader" without regard for the saneness of any measure, destruction would probably follow.

Those who voted against Mr. Roosevelt certainly should not criticize his actions just because they are opposed to him personally—for that is the height of folly—but Mr. Roosevelt must remember that this 43% of the nation has the right and the duty to actively oppose any measures that are seriously harmful to the nation.

For common sense tells us that more progress can be made when the lawmakers are subject to constructive criticism than when one man is allowed to rule the country pricisely as he desires, with all who might object remaining silent out of "patriotism."

"Just An Average Student"

By FR. DOUGHERTY

"JUST an average student." How frequently we hear that phrase repeated in academic circles in this age of aptitude tests, personality ratings and intelligence quotients. The very mention of the term carries with it a sinister meaning; it conjures before us such remarks as "inability to cope with situations", "lack of leadership" and all the other trite phrases invented by the sophisticated to prove their pharisaical contention that the vast majority of mankind is hopelessly entrammeled in the slough of mediocrity. And yet, it is the average student, with all his faults and shortcomings, who provides the very warp and woof of the collegiate fabric. Let there be a call for volunteers in an emergency on the Campus, let there be need for an exhibition of real college spirit, then we find the average student in the forefront.

Just as the average citizen comprises the backbone of the Nation, so in college life it not infrequently happens that the average student is the most likeable, the most reliable and, very often, the most successful student in after-life.

We do not thereby mean to decry the attainment of scholastic honors nor do we mean to belittle the accomplishments of that small group of college men who, by their unusual talents and application, are justly outstanding. Experience has shown that such students take care of themselves very well. But we do decry the tendency that is quite widespread in these United States, that of belittling the efforts and magnifying the shortcomings of the average student. Such an attitude destroys the initiative of those who may be handicapped for one reason or another, and it inflates the ego of the sophisticated student beyond all tolerance. Thus is defeated one of the fundamental purposes of all education, namely the control of pride with which all of us are plentifully supplied.

Time was when college men attained their training in the exclusive mastery of the ancient doctors and philosophers coupled with a study of the classics, but in our day specialized efforts and mass production necessitate a new type of training. The all importance of the physical sciences in our work-a-day world has had its effect on our academic outlook, where a very strong tendency has developed of reducing human qualities of mind and character to the confines of a mathematical equation.

We sometimes wonder, as we observe the evidence of your carefree boyish antics, whether you will acquire the real spirit of Catholic manhood which we are striving, at great sacrifice, to impart at Villanova. But as we review the past few years we are encouraged by the attainments of so many of our average students and we are filled with hope

By Jim
Donovan

FRANKLY, boys, we're a little non-plussed. For years, Villanova has been really hep to the jive, strictly heide-ho. But the past week really was a social wash-out. Compared to the land of the carousing Wildcat, King Tut's tomb looked like Leon and Eddie's. The quarterlies, those mental gymnastics imposed by our intellectual authorities, made strong men howl and weak men fade like Willkie. However, even in these trying days throw that Republican out!), a few valiant souls ventured out to raise a little of what is more politely known as "whoopee." So away with these sober thoughts! On to those who love and lose!

Ed "The Usual Coke" Jones braved a deluge to swim across the road to the Pennsylvania Home for Ageing Stags. We have it on the best authority that our little boy love is doing quite all right with his "boo-ful" lass. Who knows? Maybe Walt "Richard Greene" Smith has been tutoring Danbury Ed in the ways of successful lovers.

Joe "When the Swallows Come Back to Capistrano" Clarken is still blasting his way through Rosemont's love line in a way that smacks of Andy Tomasic. However, Bill "I Love Life" Larkin is still the star triple-threat man in the combination's backfield. All they need for a successful season is someone to block Gene "Marymount Lover" O'Brien's passes.

Bill "I Ain't Ugly; Just Unattractive" Epifanio is having quite a feud with Wayne "Hello, Central" Hughes that will get better and better as the years progress. We're betting our two kopecs on Wayne, but Wee Willie has told us he's got a couple of hairs up his sleeve.

Most of Villanova's faster, younger, rah-rah set coasted up to New York this past Saturday to embellish the Polo Grounds with their charm. Gene "I Got Dark Rings Under My Eyes from Studying" O'Brien was there with his Marymount delight. The good O'B. was oh, so attentive because he has it oh, so bad.

It was also reported by our Gestapo that Jack "Killer-Diller" McGuire squired his usual wee bit of Harcum loveliness. Jack, we understand, is doing a little bit of all right for himself this charming semester.

On the "choo-choo" to New York Jack "Big Deal" Gallagher, all decked out in his best bib-and-tucker, was his usual Don Juan-ish self to all the fair damsels that decorated the seats. Running a beautiful game of interference for our Flatbush Floogie, oh, so coy, coy was Ed "Life Can Be So Cruel" Bennis. The boys were really in tip-top shape.

We're willing to bet our last soggy doughnut that Al "Asbury's Delight" Skaf will steal the Amateur Show again this year if he's given a chance to use his Buick-eight imagination on a skit. Remember last year? Al did everything but take tickets and sweep the floor.

And so the week has passed sadly on. It started in Lindsey's Diner and ended in the Polo Grounds. In both spots Villanova made its usual spirited showing.

John "I'll Never Smile Again" Burke and Dan "I'm Stepping Out with a Memory" O'Mahony are still on top in the social whirl. But the seven days were slow, very slow. We think it's just the lull before the storm, folks, the lull before the storm.

Messers. Paul Stenn, Henry Christman, and Walter Smith are at present the personnel of the complaint department.

Meet The Boys: Bill E. And Jim B. Are Handsome To See, But From Praise They Flee

One day, during a lull between scheduled curtain bows, a trip out so pleased — immediately took to one another.

Hollywood's cinema representative that day made everyone like him. He talked to whoever showed an inclination to reciprocate—very congenially, too, not as a tin god acknowledging the plaudits of his worshipping subjects; no, not at all like that. He amiably posed for publicity pictures with the football squad and seemed as though he really enjoyed it, as though all this were something new to him, not the everyday job that in reality it must be.

Personally, we ourselves had a nice long twenty minute chat with the celebrity and enjoyed it so much as a friendly talk with someone whom we had known for a long time that we neglected to ask the questions of him which we had previously intended. However, we did learn a few interesting things.

Seated in "Clipper's" office, we here to the Villanova campus was suggested by the Paramount officials as a means of relaxation for the actor. It was immediately made.

Mr. Foster was shown around the campus, and, since he evidenced great interest in our football teams, was introduced to head coach "Clipper" Smith. Upon meeting, the two "greats" in their respective fields — although a great many Wildcat rooters claim that the "Clipper" could transform himself into a smashing box office attraction as a matinee idol without the slightest difficulty anytime he disovered that Mr. Foster has previously worked on the advertising end of three Philadelphia newspapers, the Ledger, the Daily News, and the smaller Courier. We learned also that the Villanova Wildcats are comparatively well known on the Pacific Coast for their prowess at football, but are familiar particularly to the really rabid fan. Football brought up the subject of the picture, "All-American," of some time ago in which Preston Foster and Andy Devine played together with the complete All-American team of 1931.

"And those boys really gave me a massage in several of the scenes," Mr. Foster ruefully remarked. "When an inexperienced, out-of-shape actor attempts to keep in step with a pack of perfectly conditioned U. C. L. A. and All-American players, he has no mean job, as I definitely discovered."

As for future plans, our interviewee mentioned a business trip to New York, from there a flight back to the Coast where he will begin work on "Reap the Wild Winds," and most particularly a vacation hunting trip through Mexico sometime in January.

The nattily dressed, ordinary-looking actor gave us a hearty good-bye with expression of thanks for our trouble. He was quite enthusiastic, so much so that when we left him we felt we were the celebrity, not Preston Foster, the movie actor. But we still feel that he is one fine, congenial, down- earth person.

DESPITE the disharmony and lack of unity found on the board of administration at Temple, Coach Morrison seems to have established a spirit of team play and coperation on his Owl eleven. Perhaps one reason for this is that almost half the Temple line, consisting of Frank Ford, end, "Bucko" Kilroy, tackle, and Bill Boyd, guard, played together in high school. They were on the same North Catholic team as our "Elk" Murray.

C. S. P. F. Meets

Last Saturday the Catholic Student Peace Federation held a convention of the Middle Atlantic groups at Georgian Court College in Lakewood, N. J. Representing Villanova at this convention were Howard McCall and Gerard Belz, and Fr. McCarthy, moderator.

The convention opened with the celebration of Holy Mass at ten o'clock, with the first morning session at 11:15. At this meeting Dorothy J. Brown, the president of the Georgian Court group welcomed the delegates; then Patrick McGee, the regional president, presided.

Three papers were read on "Canada and the United States", "Latin America and the United States", and "The Phillipines." Open discussion followed the reading of each paper.

At 1:15 a dinner was given in the college dining room and Rev. John F. Finnegan, Ph.D., S. T. D. presented a speech on the conditions of the world today, entitled, "Mars or Christ."

During the afternoon session three more papers were presented dealing with Puerto Rico, Hawaii and Alaska, and The Christian Way of Peace. Then, following the discussion on these papers, a resolutions committee presented three promptly adopted resolutions.

The convention closed with a tea dance at five o'clock.

Intra-Camp Debates

Sponsored by Beta Gamma Every Wednesday; Varsity Trio Meet St. Joseph's College

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 P. M., as on every other Wednesday afternoon from now on, Beta Gamma, the varsity society of forensics, will sponsor its second intra-club debate. The site will be 215 Mendel, while the topic will be one of the national debate council's propositions. It is hoped by manager Thomas Moore that these regular sessions will concern themselves with the topic which is next to be debated by the society in an intercollegiate, varsity meeting. Likewise fundamental training will be gained by the new members in these local debates.

Last Thursday evening, Beta Gamma engaged the team from St. Josephs' College in Atlantic City on the national question of industry seizures by the government in times of gravest crises. This was sponsored by the Knights of Columbus of Atlantic City, and no decision was given.

D. Klein And J. Donnelly Scheduled To Lecture Before Mu Alpha Theta

Donald Klein and James Donnelly, both sophomore chemical engineers, will be the first speakers to appear before the members of Mu Alpha Theta, Villanova's Mathematical Society, in the series of lecture programs planned for this year.

Klein and Donnelly have not as yet selected the topic on which they will talk, but their choice lies between the "Applications of the First and Second Derivative," and the "Applications of Mathematics to Photography."

Other lecture-programs will feature talks on "Aeronautical Mathematics" by Frank Mambretti and Herman Behnke, sophomore mechanical engineers; and on "Differential Equations" by George Fitzgerald, junior Chemistry student.

Highlight of the year's program, however, will be a meeting in conjunction with the math clubs of nearby schools. The program committee is at present attempting to arrange this meeting and hopes to have the details established in the very near future.

Gambescia To Discuss Poisons Before Seminar

Joseph M. Gambescia, sophomore science man and co-chairman of the Research Seminar, will present a paper to the group at the meeting which is to be held tomorrow at 4:15 P. M. in Simpson hall.

"Poisons" will be the title of the paper which will include a discussion of some of the most important poisons, their physiological effect, and the means by which death is effected. Arsenic, strychnine, phenol, hydrocyanic acid, and various other vegetable and mineral poisons will be included.

STAFF'S RATINGS

The bi-weekly honor roll for the staff of the VILLANOVAN will be posted today at 1:00 P. M., in the office as is the custom. A general meeting of the staff will precede the publication of the ratings. All are to be present.

Regional Society Guests Entertained

ties since his induction at Villanova.

This year the Chairman has been named at this early date so that he, together with his committee, may collect the class dues as soon as possible. This is being done with the intention in mind of securing for the class the best band that can be obtained at that time.

According to Deasy the sooner the assessments are secured the higher the calibre of the orchestra which may be signed. Every band requires a large deposit and if the class does not have sufficient funds in the treasury to post this deposit, a second rate band will be the only alternative.

When asked about his reactions to his appointment, Brosmer replied, "I feel it a great honor and trust that I should be selected, naturally. I will do my best to secure a good and popular band for the Ball. My only request is that the fellows cooperate with me and pay the assessment as early as possible, by Thanksgiving if they can, and we'll make this the best Prom ever."

Chem. Society Members Inspect Penna. Salt Co.

The Pennsylvania Salt Company plant was thoroughly examined by the members of the Villanova Chemical Society on their first trip of the school year, Tuesday, November 12.

Under the supervision of the recently organized trip committee, headed by Karl Vogel, '41, chairman, and John Van Hook, '41, approximately thirty-five students and two faculty members made the trip.

During the inspection of the Company's Delaware Ave. and Shunk St. plant the members had demonstrated to them the methods of manufacture of alum and hydrosulfuric acid together with ways in which chlorine containers are filled.

History Group Considers National Defense Topic

Continuing in its usual manner of open forum, the History Seminar will hold its weekly meeting at 3:00 P. M. this afternoon in Simpson hall. Dr. Harold F. Hartman will preside over the group and more discussion on the topic of National Defense has been planned.

Two Turkey Days

students who will have to delve into their dusty volumes—and I do mean dusty—when they should be consuming one of these innocent but delectable fowl, he could at least let the turkey have its full span of life. After all, if Lincoln could, why can't Roosevelt?

A Happy Medium

This writer, in one of his brighter moments—assuming that he has any brighter moments—has delved into this situation of two holidays and has come to the conclusion that a stalemate has been reached by some of the authorities and that a single Thanksgiving will never again be celebrated unless some concessions are made.

Being a member of the brain trust of this sheet, your writer has a plan for reconciliation. Why not have both sides concede a point and, instead of holding the feast on either the 21st or 28th, select the day midway between these dates?

However, if we abide by my suggestion, there arises another problem. There is no middle date, since the 24th is nearer our Thanksgiving No. 1 and the 25th is nearer holiday No. 2. Therefore, another argument is bound to arise. About this I have no suggestions.

Tradition Suffers

All this is rather silly I admit, but it may be taken as a good parallel to the actions of some of our so called statesmen who insist on arguing on the date for this feast. To them it appears to be a matter of utmost importance, but this is only the outward appearance. The real truth of the matter, to my mind, is that it is merely a political football and a holiday of fine tradition is suffering badly.

In the case of hedging around this holiday, I am taking no political sides but merely ask why the statesmen of this country don't get together and let us have one Thanksgiving so that we can save the great tradition and respect that has been created for this day and avoid the confusion that seems to be a yearly recurrent factor.

Whether it should be the traditional last Thursday or the so-called "businessman's" holiday created by F. D. R. is up to them.

Tuesday Week Will Be Last Chance To Return Zamsky's Senior Proofs

On the Tuesday following Thanksgiving, a representative of Zamsky studios will be on the campus to collect proofs of pictures that have not been returned, Thomas J. Moore, editor of the Belle Air, announced today.

This will be the last opportunity for the seniors to return the proofs. Any student who desires a retake of the pictures should go to the studio before that time so that the representative will be able to bring the new proofs along.

Moore also asked that anyone possessing or knowing the whereabouts of pictures of the building of Villanova's chapel, any athletic teams, or pictures of a similar nature are requested to kindly notify the Belle Air.

Since the second 25 years in the history of the college, 1867-1892, are being featured this year, it is imperative that pictures of these and other incidents be obtained. The yearbook merely wishes to borrow them for a short time and will assure their return in the original condition.

The theme of this year's annual is to be announced at a later date because it has not yet been decided upon.

Penn Chemistry Head To Address Campus Society On November 21

Dr. M. C. Molstad, head of the chemistry department of the University of Pennsylvania, will lecture before the assembled members of the Chemical Society at their next meeting on November 11, at 8:00 in the evening.

Speaking on the topic "Economics for Chemical Engineers," Dr. Molstad will distribute bibliographies to the members on the subject of his discourse.

Arriving early, Dr. Molstad will lunch with the members of the chemistry faculty and inspect the laboratories before proceeding to Room 214 where the meeting will be held.

Blue Gridders Close Home Campaign Saturday

Sportorial

By Joe Barnes

LOOKING over the U. of Penn's basketball schedule recently we noticed that the Quakers are scheduled to meet Notre Dame's colorful courtmen on Saturday night, January 19, at the Palestra in Philadelphia. A quick perusal of the incomplete Villanova schedule as listed in the student handbook reveals that fact that the Wildcats have no date at all for that week.

Which brings to our typewriter the idea that it might not be such a bad idea to make an attempt in bringing about an athletic introduction between Wildcat and Irish while the latter is in town. Besides being an ideal meeting from a competitive standpoint the game would also jam the Field House to capacity at any reasonable price per customer. Which should be an attractive enticement.

Meeting Penn on Saturday night the Irish would probably be in town Friday, so that would be the most logical time for the game. Or else it could be played Sunday afternoon, which would be an even better time from an attendance viewpoint. Sunday afternoon games have never been tried at Villanova but they have met with success at St. Joseph's in Philadelphia playing against minor teams so with Notre Dame as an attraction there is no reason why there would not be a sell-out long before game date. Witness the customer success of Sunday football against Detroit, the best of the season at the ticket booth.

We leave the matter in the hands of Al Severance, which probably puts us in the doghouse!

—V—

While on the subject of athletic schedules we are reminded of a remark by Chick Meehan, former Manhattan coach, at a recent football dinner. Chick termed intersectional games for the most part as meaningless and supported the theory that natural local rivalries should be developed in their place.

With this we heartily agree. With all due respect to Baylor, Texas A. & M., Kansas, South Carolina and other far away opponents that Villanova has met on the grid in the past few years we ask the question, "So What!" To some we lost and those losses hurt. Others we beat and those wins meant very little. Philadelphia fans respect the names of Baylor, Texas A. & M., et al. They know that these teams are tough, but they know it in a vague way. They are more interested in things close to home, naturally, and that is why the game with Temple is the biggest one on the schedule from a year-in and year-out customer viewpoint.

We personally would enjoy Villanova football much better if the 'Cats would stick fairly close to home and limit themselves to no more than two intersectional frays.

Previously Unbeaten Yale 150's Scourged By Blue Lightweights

Casper Club Superb in 14-0 Victory in Final Game of Season At New Haven

By SID CAPLAN

Displaying a brand of football that would have pleased the "Clipper" himself, Villanova's scrappy 150-pounders stalked up to New Haven last Friday and soundly trounced an overconfident Yale aggregation, 14-0.

By this conquest of previously unbeaten Yale, which heads the rostrum in the league standings, the lightweights have assimilated a record of victories unparalleled in the history of 150-pound football at this institution. Amassing four consecutive victories in six starts the lightweights have won more games than all the former 150-pound teams combined, since the inauguration of this sport at Villanova.

From the opening whistle the lightweights displayed a determination and drive that set the Yale Bantams back on their heels and never once permitted them to recover their confidence. Outplayed and outshone in every department of the game Yale's attempts to strike back were fruitless.

Sparked by the dynamic quarterbacking of Paul Waters whose blocking and running back of punts was a marvel to witness, the lightweights played with machine-like precision opening holes in the Yale line through which backs galloped time and time again for long gains.

O'Donnel's passing and kicking coupled with Swede Newell's ground gaining end sweeps were highlights of the game, while Captain Lozowski and Charley Urie at the end positions were instrumental time and time again in halting Yale's highly touted fullback, in his attempts at end runs.

The first touchdown was set up by the blocking of a punt on the 25-yard line by Joe McCabe and the recovery by Bill Nihill. A pass from O'Donnel to Lombardo placed the ball on the one-foot line, to be carried over on the next play on a quarterback sneak by Paul Waters. The second score came in the closing minutes of the game when Swede Newell climaxing a field-long march skirted the left end for eight yards and a touchdown. Lombardo kicking both points after touchdown. The game ended with Villanova on the Yale six yard line first down goal to go after a 50-yard march.

This marks Tom Casper's initial endeavor in the coching ranks. Tom has succeeded not only in producing a winning team but also in winning the admiration of all those who played under his tutelage. Teaching his team not only the fundamentals of football but also the fundamentals of good sportsmanship, he has instilled a mental attitude in his players which was so lacking in the past years and which will be strong enough to remain in the years to come should Casper continue on to greater fields.

COACH CASPER

Slow Week For Grid Opponents

Villanova's past and future grid opponents of the current season did not fare so well in Saturday's games as five lost, two won and Duquesne took the day off to recuperate from a long but successful trip to the west coast to trounce St. Mary's last week.

Best performances of the week were turned in by Florida and Baylor. The latter trounced Tulsa University, first conqueror of Detroit, by a 20-6 score for one of the best showings in the nation.

Florida, rapidly developing into a fine aggregation took hold of Miami University early in the game and didn't let go until the Miami lads were well submerged under a thumping 46-6 score.

Auburn Victim

Auburn's vicious Tigers were the victims of the south's most outstanding upset of the year as they fell before a rejuvenated Louisiana State attack to the tune of a 21-13 score. The game is one of the most bitterly fought rivalries in the south and past records mean little in the "Battle of the Tigers."

Another upset took place at Worcester, Mass., where the heretofore hapless Crusaders of Holy Cross rose violently to hold Temple's Owls to a 6-6 tie. A violent let-down after their astounding defeat of Villanova was the attributed cause of Temple's slip.

In other games Kansas lost to George Washington, 6-0, while P. M. C. was dropping a tradition clad tilt to Delaware University by a 14-7 count.

Detroit's slipping Titans lost the second test of their season before a west coast power, Gonzaga University. The score was 13-7.

Tickets On Sale

Tickets for Saturday's football game will be on sale all this week at prices ranging from 60 cents to $1.75. The sixty-cent seats will be on sale only at the Stadium on the day of the game.

Due to the expectance of a huge crowd students desiring extra tickets are warned to purchase them early.

Revamped 'Cats Click In Winning Over Manhattan At Polo Grounds

By BOB FUNABASHI

A Villanova supremacy which had become more or less a mechanical victory for the past seven years, turned to an inspired victory Saturday afternoon at the Polo Grounds as the 'Cats toppled a valiant Manhattan team, 13-6.

Thus Villanova's gridiron mastery over their Gotham foes extended to its eighth straight year. Ever since 1933, when the teams first battled in Ebbets Field, Manhattan's victory song has not been played for the Villanova game, as the 'Cats went on in continued success.

The only consolation salvaged from the tilt for Herb Kopf was the historic fact that his Jaspers finally put across a touchdown after being blanked for eight years. That event occurred in the first period, when John Supulski, Jasper's ace back crossed the goal line to put his team into the fore with a 6-0 lead.

Another fact was that a gent by the name of Nick Basca, principal offender against the Jaspers would no more face his tribe. For it was Nick who three years in a row practically put Manhattan into its gloom.

In the fall of 1938, Nick's passing and running helped the 'Cats to a 20-0 triumph over Manhattan. Last year Nick accounted for a score against them and on Saturday his two touchdown passes, late in the second frame gave Villanova its margin of victory.

After a baffling first period in which Manhattan completely dominated the play and went to the lead, the Wildcats came staunching back in anger to complete two touchdowns on an aerial route. Basca to Kolenda for the first and Basca to Pritko for the second. Nick Kalso kicked the extra point.

Manhattan with its treacherous deception and fast backs in McNulty and Mazur, and a smart foward passer in Supulski carried over for their first score late in the first frame. After being re-

30,000 Expected To See Wildcats Meet Once-Beaten Duquesne Eleven

Renewal of Rivalry Pits "Dukes'" Donelli Brothers Against Renovated Cat Combination; Smoky City Club Has Lost One Game in Thirteen During Last Two Years

The Royal Raiders of Duquesne, better known as the "Dukes" will tangle with Villanova this Saturday at Shibe Park, in the season's final home game.

The Pittsburgh City Champions are led by a brother act, the Donelli boys. Coach Aldo "Buff" Donelli and Allan Donelli, the Dukes high scoring ace led the Smoky City team to the district championship lsat year at the expense of Pitt and Carnegie Tech. According to indications they should do the same this year.

Duquesne brings a fine record to Philadelphia. The "Dukes" have suffered one defeat in the last two years, that one coming a month ago at the hands of Mississippi, one of the nation's best. They hold decisions this year over South Carolina, Manhattan, Waynesburg, Marquette, and St. Mary's.

Backs Star

Teaming up with the younger member of the Donelli combination in the "Dukes'" backfield are George Gonda, Joe Chadonic, and Hub Ahwesh. The greatest threat to Villanova is Donelli, who will probably receive All-American mention. But even if the 'Cats are successful in stopping this watch-charm back their battle will not be over. Those other backs, rated as better than average ball carriers, fill out a very dangerous quartet, noted for its drive.

Backing up the line is another potential All-American star, center Al Demao, noted for his slashing style of play. Another key man in the line is Al DeLucia, 211 lb. tackle.

In three short years, "Buff" Donelli has brought Duquesne up through the ranks of the East, until now they are one of the leading teams in this section. This rise was climaxed last year by a victory over Pitt. The Duquesne-Pitt rivalry is closely paralleled by that between Villanova and Temple. The celebration over the "Dukes'" victory will not be forgotten for some time.

Donelli a Winner

Coach Donelli has given Duquesne a winning team. Once a team gets that habit the players are going to fight hard to keep it. They want to add Villanova to the list of tough opponents downed. The 'Cats will do well to be aware that it is a tough assignment to escape that list.

Over on the other forty yard line stands Villanova hoping to rescue what remains of not too successful a season.

The 'Cats have gone into most games this year as the favored team. That they did not live up to predictions is very evident. What is not clear however is why they have been in a slump. Wildcat

Casper Named

Tom Casper, '40, coach of the 150 pound football team was appointed yesterday to a physical education instructorship at Roman Catholic High School in Philadelphia. Casper will also take over the position of track coach at the Cahill school.

Casper was a guard on recent Villanova varsity elevens and after graduation he was appointed assistant football coach at St. John's High but resigned to take over the tutorship of the one-fifties. He believes that his new position will still permit him to retain his Villanova post.

Kittens Win, 12-0 Over N. Y. U. Cubs

Pezelski and Dzitko Again Lead Frosh Attack In Final Game of Current Season

The Villanova freshman football team kept their 1940 slate clean by chalking up their third straight victory of the current campaign on last Friday afternoon. The yearlings of N. Y. U. became the third victim of the smashing attack and polished style of Doc Jacobs' undefeated squad and bowed to the Kittens, 12 to 0.

ELEVEN YEARS

Friday's defeat of the N. Y. U. Frosh marked the completion of eleven years without a defeat for Doc Jacobs coached Kitten combines. The last defeat was incurred in 1929.

Due to the fact the turf of Baker Field was a veritable sea of mud neither team could make use of deceptive or tricky plays and so ordinary line bucks and spinners were resorted to. The Kittens proved very adept at this style of play and garnered their two scores on two sustained marches from deep in their own territory.

In the second period Villanova moved from their own 20 yard line to mid-field on a series of plays and at this point Joe Pezelski smashed off tackle, broke into the clear, and dashed the other 50 yards for the Kittens' first score.

Villanova increased their lead in the third quarter when Jack Dzitko culminated a 60-yard touchdown march by crashing over from the 3-yard mark. This concluded the scoring for the day and except for these two sustained marches the game was a dull affair due to the weather and the condition of the field.

The Violets never came within striking distance of the Villanova goal line and their attack was definitely on the negative side until their passing game started to click in the waning minutes of the last quarter, but the time clock put a halt to this sudden display of air power.

Pezelski, as usual, was the spearhead of the Villanova attack and the outstanding performer of the day. The two Villanova ends, DePalo and Sullivan, continued to display the fine form that they showed against St. Benedicts and the Temple Frosh earlier in the year.

Quartet Graduate

Four seniors on the one-fifty football team will be lost via the graduation route next June. They are Bill Nihill and Tony Sacchetti, linemen, and Bill Brown and Frank Lombardo, backs.

Courtmen Drill

Al Severance's varsity and freshman basketball teams are holding daily drills for the opening of the 1940-41 season two weeks hence. Prospects still appear dark for the team.

Three Way Fight For Crown Looms In First Half Of I-M Court Chase

Austin Five Leading Race Meets Both Mendel Teams in Week's Action; Commerce and Mendel Day-Hops Still in Running for Top Position in Half Standings

If you are looking for two nights of thrilling entertainment when sport and keen competition are at their heights, be sure to get over to Alumni Hall Tuesday and Thursday nights of this week when the I. M. Basketball Championshp for the first half will be decided. All the color, pep and excitement of any varsity game will be equaled and probably out-done during the evening fracas.

With two games left in the first half, Austin Hall is leading the league by one game, having won 6 and lost 2. If Austin wins their next two games, one against the second palce Mendel Residents and the other against the last place Mendel Day Hops, then they clinch the championship.

The whole outcome of the tournament depends on the plucky frosh from Mendel who are battling for all their worth to be the first frosh team to cop the title. They can keep the league open by beating the Austin Hall team in their game on Tuesday and throw the tourney into a three-way tie for first place between Austin, Mendel Residents, and C. & F., provided that C. & F. takes the last place Alumni, which they should do. The importance of this game may be more fully realized when one sees that if Mendel loses to Austin, then the "Firemen" will practically bag the league title because they no doubt will polish off the last place Mendel Day Hops.

Assuming that Mendel does take Austin and C. & F. takes the last place Greenies then a three way tie will develop. This will leave the C. & F. and Mendel to play for the privilege of a tie with Austin for first place. This is also assuming that Austin take over the Mendel Commuters. So any way you look at it there's going to be a tie for first place when the tournament ends, which will institute a play off, all provided that the Frosh take the "Firemen."

C. & F. hopes also depend on this crucial game since they can't get another crack at Austin unless Mendel puts out the flame and dampens the Austin Firemen's chances. Provided Mendel performs the feat then C. & F. has as good a chance as Mendel. This game between them will be the next important encounter and will determine who will meet Austin in the Play-off.

To me C. & F. has the best chance being that they are more experienced in playing together for the same team won the second half championship last year. This is a big factor and it will prove the deciding one because the frosh are not used to playing together, this naturally being their first year together.

As for Fedigan's chance of being in the running, this is pretty slim. The old "Gigaloes" have slipped into a bad slot and can only pull into a tie with Austin by having Austin, Mendel, and C. & F. all lose both their games. So Playboys are practically out of the half but look out for the next half!

The whole solution to the mix-up can be very easily amplified by Austin taking both these games and sewing up the whole affair which they will or most likely do. Their height in Dan Keating and Bert Collins, their speed in Ed DiPollito, their shooting accuracy in Dan Keating and Art Martin, and their experience in playing together will prove to be the down fall of the Mendel Residents.

But at any rate the games will be good ones and a big turnout is expected from all who like good sport and high competition.

'Cats Clip Manhattan

pulsed on the 3-yard line, the Jaspers came steaming back and not to be denied on their second attempt, Supulski scampered through the Villanova line from the 8 yard stripe.

This 147 lb. back, Ted Mazur kept Villanova back on its heels with his long booming punts, one which went 65 yards in the air. Halfway in the second period the 'Cats rose to their mightiest and with the pigskin resting on their own 20 yard stripe, as the result of one of Mazur's kicks, the advance started.

Basca faded back and with good blocking threw a 48 yard pass to Lindy Kolenda who made a remarkable catch on Manhattan's 45 yard line, at which point he fell to the ground. Two line bucks by Basca and Rosato carried to the 27 and a first down. Following two more line plunges which carried no gain, Basca on third down threw a quick pass to Kolenda, who cut over the goal in between two Manhattan defenders, to score.

Manhattan electing to receive placed themselves in a precarious position after Villanova scored.

They had possession of the ball on the twenty yard line and with only seconds remaining to play before the end of the first half, they gambled on passing. It was a poor gamble for Ed Collin's interception of Supulski's pass on the 16 yard line set the way for the second 'Cat score. With three seconds left Basca let go with a pass to Pritko who made a diving catch over the goal.

The second half saw Manhattan in its scrappiest mood rolling over the turf with much ease. In fact and in figures, the Jaspers tallied 8 first downs the second half and continually were deep in Villanova's territory. Supulski's passing was true to form until he reached the 20 yard stripe. Inside that point Villanova's secondary intercepted six of his passes.

For the Smithmen, the game became very much a defensive one, for once again the old nemesis of penalties and poor blocking halted every Villanova drive that afternoon, except for the touchdown drive.

Auburn, for one, is a worthy long-distance foe. One of the Big Ten or the better of the Big Six midwestern elevens would be ideal for another distance clash.

Omitting intersectional tests, where is the competition to come from? Well, we can name a half-hundred possibilities. Fordham for one would be an ideal foe. They rank just about on an even plane with the 'Cats and the game would be a yearly blood and thunder battle. Whether played in New York or Philadelphia the game would be an ideal customer attraction. In Philly Fordham is a well-known club and a favorite with thousands of fans.

Villanova's popularity in New York is evidenced by the fact that annually the 'Cats are Manhattan's biggest gate attraction, despite the fact that the Jaspers don't rate well with Gotham fans. Against Fordham the attendance would be trebled, for the annual Villanova-Manhattan throng is decidedly Villanova in make-up. Take this and add Fordham's following and you have quite a gathering.

Beating Fordham would mean an awful lot more for Villanova than would beating a power like Texas A. & M. despite the Texans' acknowledged superiority over the Rams.

Other outstanding naturals for Villanova grid competition would include Duquesne—which is already on this year's card and it is hoped that the meeting will be continued, —Penn State—a former rival,—Carnegie Tech, Syracuse, Colgate, Georgetown, Boston College, Navy or Army, Dartmouth, and the like. Temple of course is almost an indispensible, just as Villanova is for the Owls' schedule.

Perhaps the future will see a change in accordance with the national trend of instigating natural rivalries.

Best Manhattan Team In Years Beaten By Blue Saturday—Smith

Jaspers Had Most Deceptive Offense Faced by 'Cats All Season

By "CLIPPER" SMITH
Head Football Coach

The Manhattan team we faced Saturday was the best they have had since I came to Villanova five years ago. We were amazed at their almost incredible spirit despite the numerous misfortunes they have undergone throughout the season. Furthermore they possessed the most deceptive offensive I have witnessed this season.

In beating them I was very pleased and I was particularly elated at our coming from behind a 6-0 score to score twice and then stave off the valiant Manhattan scoring attempts.

In Supulski McNulty and Mazur the Jaspers had a fine set of backs and their Varner and Donnelon also played superb football. They should be complimented on fine coaching and a fine performance.

Basca Had Good Day

For our team Basca had one of his best days. Nick did a marvelous job all afternoon, especially from a passing and punt-return standpoint. Due to his fine job Saturday at safety under very poor ground conditions Nick will definitely play the safety position in the Duquesne game Saturday. I was especially pleased by one of Nick's returns which spectators should recall. It was on a very strong Manhattan punt which travelled far over Basca's head. Nick running toward our own goal took the ball over his shoulder in one of the most marvelous catches I have ever witnessed and without losing a stride swerved back towards the Manhattan goal.

Paul Stenn was steady at left tackle Saturday along with Ed Collins at the guard slot. Kasky also played well indicating that he has the skill necessary for a good performance when he puts his mind down to it. I was also pleased with the play of Prohovich, whose aggressiveness and alertness gained us some worthy advantages during those trying moments when the Manhattan team was threatening our goal.

Behot a "Lift"

Joe Behot's display of defensive play was a definite lift in that department after the several slips we had made in the past games of this season.

Ed Korisky also played well—so well in fact that he played himself out physically. This Saturday Bray may be depended upon to give Korisky some relief as Sam looked pretty good in there against Manhattan and seems recovered from the injury incurred against P. M. C.

Judging from reports that I have received from the coast, where Duquesne clipped St. Mary's, next week's opponents are a pretty smooth football machine. They have one of the finest backs in the country in Donelli, brother of their coach.

Two Team System

Like Detroit University the Duquesne team use two separate and distinct teams in the course of the game. They usually start what is called a second team but falsely so for it is on just as high a plane as the first eleven.

Doc Jacobs' report on Duquesne is identical with the one sent from the West Coast. According to Doc's report the Duquesne team has innumerable offensive formations, using men in motion, flankers, and other little tricks of offensive football which go to make up a flashy and deceptive attack.

Our job this week is to pick up on our blocking and tackling fundamentals. We will work out against the freshman team with Joe Pezelski wearing Donnelli's big number 19. This will give us a chance to try our defense against the Frosh's established cleverness with Duquesne's plays to add to our distraction.

The game in New York Saturday seems to have restored some of our club's confidence and we did show some definite improvement so that we hope to be able to give a good display of football Saturday. We are just about due for an explosion. Maybe it will come Saturday when everyone wants it so much.

Loss Of Pete Yankauskas Big Reason For Defeats In '40 Grid Campaign

"Big 35" Beset By Misfortune in Final Year of Lengthy Athletic Career

By PAUL McCANN

We dropped in at 321 Fedigan the other night to visit "Big 35," one of the main reasons why Villanova's grid season has not been as successful as it might have been.

"Big 35" is Pete Yankaukas, whose unfortunate injury in the Florida game in early season has been as big a blow to the Wildcats' victory habit as it has been to football-loving Pete.

There is no false-modesty in Pete's make-up—but we had to do quite a bit of prying to get him to reveal even a few of his many accomplishments. His achievements in sports (in which we were most interested) date back to his days at Kearney High School in Kearney, N. J.—which, by the way, is his birthplace.

Preps at St. Bendict

Throughout his career at Kearney high, Pete was quite a football player—earning a place on the All-New Jersey eleven in each of his last two years there. Prior to his entering Villanova he prepped a year at St. Benedict's in Newark. While there, he played football against two of his present teammates, Nick Basca and Ben Morkun when they were at Pennington Prep and Brown Prep respectively. At St. Benedict's Pete again was rated All-State.

His athletic prowess was not limited to football however. In those days as now he was more than an asset to a track team. In his senior year at Kearney,this versatile fellow was New Jersey State Champ at the "440" and "880" yard distinces, and in the javelin throw. Again, the following year at St. Benedict's, he retained his honors in track. Mention of his ability in track competition brings up an interesting sidelight.

In the summer of 1938 our nomination for a one-man track team competed as one of the 26 members of the American-Lithuanian Olympic Club, in the First Lithuanian Olympics. Overseas, he was even more impressive—judging from his performances in winning the 400 and 800 meter races, the javelin throw, and running on the victorious sprint, swedish, and medley relay teams. To say that Pete is an addition to Villanova's track team is an understatement.

After his preparatory school days, Pete had his choice of matriculating at Villanova, Fordham, or Georgetown and chose the "Villa" in recognition of its Pre-Med course, in which he is majoring in the Science School.

A member of Lambda Kappa Delta, Science Fraternity, Pete is one of the top men in his classes—proving that his talents are not restricted to athletic fields.

We were curious about "Pete the Versatile's" other devotions too. Thanks to the intercession of George Urvan, his amiable roommate throughout their Villanova careers, we learned that our hero is a dancer of no mean ability. The topic of dancing reverted our attention back to the beautiful portrait, adorning Pete's bureau, which we had noted with more than casual interest upon entering his quarters. We had to be satisfied with the incomplete identification, Loretta.

PETE YANKAUSKAS

Further inquiry revealed some of his hobbies and likes: such as coin collecting (he prides himself upon his evaluation of old coins), listening to dance bands (Sammy Kaye is his favorite), and bull sessions. He nominates Texas A. & M. as the best football team he has ever competed against, and he rates Kimbrough, Ghesquierre, and Tomasic as the best footballers he has opposed.

This mention of football again brings up the reluctant reference to the injury incurred in the Florida game, which has dogged "Big 35's" final season at Villanova, refreshing the unhappy memory of that occurrence. There is no denying the fact that the 1940 Wildcats have not been the same since that game. We hope that Pete will be cheered by the knowledge that all followers of Villanova football have missed him greatly.

Entry List Growing For Pool Tournament

The proposed bowling and pool tournaments are to commence about the first of December. More names are being entered into the various tournaments every day, with Gene Kramer, Jack Thoma, John Costello, John McGovern, "Panama" Bradley and numerous others already listed for the pool tournament.

It has been decided by the directors of the pool room that five fifty-point games will be granted for one dollar, that is five games of fifty points per game. The tournament wll be divided into two classes so that the less experienced shooters will be given an equal break.

The bowling tournament has grasped the interest of many of the students, but there is still an opportunity for many others to sign up before the tournament opens. Awards in the bowling tournament will be presented for the highest scores of three consecutive games for the month in duck pins and big pins.

Those interested in entering the tournaments are requested to hand in their names to the directors of the pool room.

City Champions

Saturday's grid battle with Duquesne will bring together two 1939 city football crownholders. Duquesne was acknowledged champion of the Pittsburgh district after trouncing Carnegie Tech and Pittsburgh, while Villanova waltzed it's way to the Philadelphia crown by topping Temple.

Dukes Old Friends

Villanova and Duquesne met once before this year on the football field. The game took place back in 1922 with the Wildcats clawing out a 10-0 victory over the Pittsburgh aggregation.

HERE AND THERE

By JIM HAUGHTON

WITH exams providing the tonic, the Villanova football forces let forth with pent-up energy to burst forth over the Eastern gridirons, much to the pleasure of thousands of 'Cat alumni and followers who were beginning to have doubts as to the grid strength of the local institution.

On all sides, the gents who wear the Blue and White did some fast stepping and offered one of the most successful football week-ends in Main Line history. It brought back memories of recent years when 'defeat' was only a word Webster had in his dictionary.

In tripping Manhattan the varsity club resembled somewhat the '37 and '38 elevens. They were a new club after the Temple disaster and had the spirit and opportunist outlook. They had zip and alacrity, yes, even some of the poise which "Clipper" thought had been lost. The six interceptions will verify that fact, for the intercepted pass has always been the locals' best play. For the first time this season the running attack alternated with the passing department. Nick Basca received some needed blocking and took advantage of it.

From our excellent, but cold, spot we had a good view of the proceedings and spent all our time close on the work of the 'Cats. One thing that struck us was the fine blocking from the guards. All did yeoman work and Collins especially dropped out of the line to lead the interference very nicely. Paul Stenn also looked well as time after time he went down under punts to slow up the safety man.

With Basca playing his best game of the season, along with some nice play from the rest of the club, it was one Joe Behot who sparked the club. He was alert in his backing up post and looked fine in his running. Joe seemed to be the tonic needed to spur on the club.

Naturally there were mistakes made and Manhattan found weaknesses. The pass defense wasn't perfect and the Jaspers did make substantial gains on the ground. But the point is that the local club held in the tight spots. They tightened the defense when things got tough.

The Gotham club was snappy, with probably the most deception Villanova has seen all year. Their double reverses were tricky and they very deceptively hid the ball on the hip on several plays. Many of the varsity boys felt that if Manhattan had a heavier line their trick plays would click. The Jaspers have met some good clubs and the breaks have been against them all year.

They almost clipped Duquesne's wings and, as you know, the Dukes have quite a club. Villanova will find this true on Saturday. But with the redeeming game under their belts the Blue proved they could come back. They might have lost a few games, but that doesn't matter now. Potentially Villanova has a great club. "Clipper" knows that; the boys have the same idea. But things just haven't clicked. Some of the potentiality came out last week but we all hope to see it burst this Saturday.

Another victory that brought smiles to the local followers was the news of the 150's success against powerful Yale. For with this win the lightweights justified the faith the school had in them by continuing the work. They justified the boys who worked so hard that 150 pound football might succeed here—lads who worked hard and met with little success.

It's easy to praise each individually but suffice it to say that they have a GREAT team and the other clubs in the league know it. Yale fans could hardly believe that this was the same club which lost to Penn and Princeton. It must be pleasing to fellows like Frank Lombardo and Bill Brown who worked so hard for three years to finish their work on a winning eleven. It was pleasing to everybody on the campus and you can be sure Tom Casper is satisfied. He did some hard work and it brought results.

Now the opportunity has arrived to bestow some long-awaited honor on the club. An alumnus has cheerfully donated an award for the most valuable man on the squad. Why not honor the team as a group with a little reception of some sort? They deserve it.

Not to go unnoticed on the praise menu this week are the Frosh for their nice play in trimming N. Y. U. They have maintained the long-winning streak which has been running over a period of years. Several men on the squad should take over starting spots next term. It makes us chuckle to think of Steve Filipovich, Fordham soph ace, and Joe Pezelski, star on the local yearlings. Steve is quite a sensation up "Noo Yawk" way and yet Joe was rated much the better of the two when they played at Kulpmont, along with Sam Bray. The thought arises as to whether Joe will continue when he hits varsity play. We join with the many who think he will.

rooters are waiting for the day when, as they say, "comes the revolution." They figure that one of these games Villanova is going to hit its stride. If that happens against the "Dukes," Joe Frosh will know what other Villanova men mean when they speak of a real Wildcat Swing Session.

"Buff" Donelli's Pittsburgh Champs are set to take home a Wildcat pelt to put in their trophy case. Clipper Smiths' Aroused Felines are out to topple the Pride of the Smoky City.

Which makes it the "must" game for the two schools.

Informal Drills Begun By Natators

Thrashings and splashings have been heard for the past week now in the natatorium down at the Field House. The water is being churned from one end of the pool to the other by the "Wildcat" swimmers who are getting in shape for the coming tank season.

Ace Walt Kelley and his cohorts Bill Hooper, John Pholeric, Johnny Maher and several others have been swimming for over a week and the rest of the team including members of last year's frosh club will start this week.

Since last spring the manager and the athletic authorities have been trying to arrange a schedule of five meets away from home and five meets at home.

Relay Strength Shown

Continuing their workouts, the track men are beginning to show promise of relay strength. With a bevy of top notch middle distance men, coach "Jumbo" Elliott has reason to rejoice.

Sophomore Johnny Di Carlo promises to be the college's outstanding quarter-miler and will be a serious threat to Jumbo's own records set while he was carrying the silks of the Blue and White.

Harry Keefrider and Bill Hooper are beginning to look strong already, and some pretty good duels can be expected from these two in the half and mile events.

Exceptional freshman material has been found in Dixie Dunbar, Dutch McCarthy, Ed Manning, George Guida and Bob O'Sullivan.

These men have raised Villanova's hopes for climbing back into the track spotlight held back in '33, '34 and '35, when they shot into prominence by capturing a few Penn Relay titles.

In the injured column still are Bill Carey and Stan Nazian, the two hurdlers. Nazian has been able to take a few workouts on his weak ankle, while Carey is still recuperating from a torn knee ligament, but expects to get some work in in the next few weeks.

He's The Leader-Man Of The Band, And How He Thrills The Grandstand!

By JOHN P. FULLAM

LISTED high among the elements which go to make up a football game, headed only by the football itself and twenty-two brawny braves, is the band. Not just music, although that is important. No, no football game would be complete without a brilliantly decked-out, high-stepping, rootin-tootin' band. . . .

The hard-fought first half is over. The crowd individually settles back in its own or someone else's seat. The amplifier's foggy baritone is silent. It is then that the Band marches down the field. At its head is a magnificent figure in white, a tall plumed hat on his head and a long, glittering baton in his hand.

Like a "Good-old-days general" he directs his troops upon what was only a moment ago a battlefield. And as they approach the center of the field, there begins what everyone has been waiting to see. He starts to twirl his baton. Faster, faster. . .from one hand to the other. . .high in the air its goes, only to be caught as though it were cardboard when it comes down.

He's down at the end of the playing field now. In the most crucial test of all he flips it over the goal posts and, while the crowd holds its breath, catches it behind him!

His name is Eldracher—John Eldracher, and his home is in Trenton.

Off duty, he exchanges the white of his uniform for the slightly soiled but still recognizable white of a laboratory coat. Later, he may exchange that for the white of an interne, medicine is his ambition.

Jack first started twirling about five years ago, when he was a Senior at Trenton Central High School. He saw somebody else doing it, tried to imitate him, was shown how by a friend, and behold—the Man He is Today! He has led Villanova's marchers ever since his entrance here in the Fall of '37.

How is it done? It's just a simple "twist of the wrist." We have the Eldracher word for it. "The main thing is to keep it from touching your elbow," he advises.

And let's not hear any punster say anything about trying to "elbow his way" into the business!

Some hidden demon made us ask what he does when he drops it. "I say, 'well, that's one down', and pick it up," said Jack—and that was that.

For the benefit of all those who would like instruction in the art, Jack will tell you that the important thing in catching it is not so much catching it, but throwing it correctly. As Jack says, "If it's not coming down right, you can't catch it."

But, for the sake of Mother's glassware and the living-room curtains, let us add that our Alma Mater will not go drum major-less after Jack's graduation this year even if you don't perfect your twirling technique.

Pictorial "Engineer" Appears On Schedule, Solicits New Aides

The "Villanova Engineer" featuring an entire and complete change from its former make-up, appeared on Friday, November 15, in a style similar to that used by the national magazine, "Life."

Printed on an Offset press, which is an adaption of the photolithography process, the magazine presented all its stories with the exception of the Fraternity news in picture form. Photographs explained by short, terse captions are its medium of expression.

The "Engineer" is one of the first college publications in the country to take advantage of the offset process and adopt the pictorial form.

Fr. John Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the magazine, has issued a call for all students of the engineering school who are interested in joining the staff of this magazine either as photographers or in any other capacity to see him as soon as possible or to report to the "Engineer" office—Room 222 Mendel—when they can.

EPT FRAT ASSISTS R.-V. CONCERT SUNDAY, DEC. 8

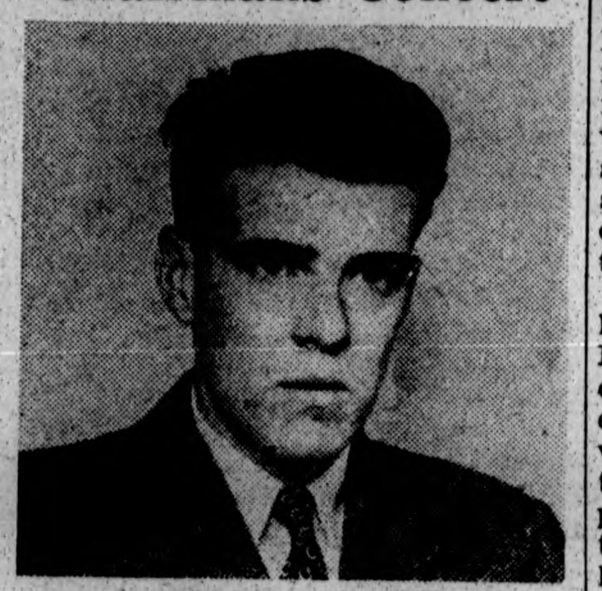
Daly Leads Artsmen's Cooperation With Combined Rosemont-Villanova Glee Clubs

(Picture on Page 4.)

The combined Villanova-Rosemont choral group under the direction of Rev. Ralph Handran, O. S. A., M. Mus., will give its third annual concert Sunday evening, December 8, at 8:30 P. M., in the College Field House.

Sponsored by the Arts fraternity, Epsilon Phi Theta, in conjunction with the college authorities, business affairs will be conducted by a committee with David F. Daly, junior artsman, as chairman.

Chairmans Concert



DAVID DALY

The program featuring two vocal soloists, a harp and a flute soloist, will present fifteen classical and semi-classical numbers. These selections will be the works of such famous artists as Schubert, Beethoven, Strauss, Rosello, Huhn, Vittoria, and Mendelssohn.

Part one of the program will be composed of five numbers: "Invictus," "Adoremus Te," "Naturgenus," "Ave Maria," and the "Hallelujah Chorus," rendered by the entire group; the "Silver Swan" and "My Bonnie Lass," presented by the Debate Schedule Lists Manhattan, Penn, Fordham

Trips to New York to debate Manhattan, Fordham and New Rochelle; to New Jersey to debate St. Peters' and Upsala; to various parts of Pennsylvania to debate Scranton, St. Francis and Misericordia, are the highlights of the tentative schedule released yesterday by Thomas J. Moore, chairman of the Beta Gamma Debating Society of Villanova.

Definite Dates

Other debates on the schedule include: Drexel Institute of Technology on Dec. 16; University of Pennsylvania on Jan. 10; Boston University on Feb. 2; Drew University on Feb. 10 and St. Francis of Loretto on March 9. Also tentatively scheduled are Immaculata College, St. Joseph's, and Penn Evening School.

All debates, with the exception of those whose dates are already known, are tentative and may be cancelled. All the road trips are indefinite—some may be cancelled and some may be added.

Before Seminars

Debates are also being planned to take place before the Current Events, History and/or the International Relations Seminars.

Moore stated that there will be an attempt made to secure keys for those senior members of the society who have been active for two years.

Due to the absence of a league judge, Beta Gamma's first Philadelphia Forsenic League debate last night was ruled a no-decision debate. John P. Fullam and David N. Reardon will meet the Charles Morris Price Forum team later in the year and a decision will then be given.

Drama Features Program Tonight

Three Comedies, Recordings, Refreshment, Offered for $.25 by Belle Masque

Tonight at 8:30 P. M. in the Field House, Belle Masque will inaugurate the current season when it presents its annual Dramateurs Reception.

An elaborate program has been arranged to include the three one-act comedies chosen from six possibilities; variety acts between scenes; recordings and refreshments.

Tickets are being sold by the members at $.25 and will be on sale at the door.

Director John McGovern's "Girl To Order" has to do with parental audit of a college student's financial and social figures. Frank Buckley's "Dress Reversal" is a farce about back-stage doings before a first night. Andrew Melton will produce "Frenzied Finance," a skit which concerns a young upstart of a nephew attempting to outdo his old experienced uncle in the real estate business.

Following the dress rehearsal last Thursday night, Anthony J. Frayne, faculty moderator, expressed approval at the efforts of all the embryonic thespians. So complete were the entire six productions that it was decided to divide the plays, presenting the three comedies tonight and the three dramas at a later date.

Students from Rosemont, Immaculata, and Chestnut Hill Colleges have made definite transportation arrangements to attend the performance and Belle Masque expects a capacity crowd of "stags" and "dates."

History Seminar Picks Ten Topics

Dr. Harold F. Hartman, moderator of the History Seminar, has prepared an outline of the program to be followed by the group for the rest of this year. At a meeting held last Tuesday at 3:00 P. M. in Simpson hall the outline, containing a list of ten problems which will be discussed by the organization, was discussed and individual problems chosen by students for preparation.

Discuss Defense

This afternoon, James McGarey, commerce senior, will lead the seminar in a consideration of the first problem, that of national defense. The discussion will be continued at the following meeting, on December 3, at which time an outside authority on the subject is expected to address the group.

The purpose of the discussion of this problem is "to familiarize the student with the essential interests which require protection in the enforcement of a program of national defense, as we understand it operating in a democracy."

Other problems to be considered by the group throughout the year are "Foreign Relations and Foreign Policies," "Conscription and Administrative Problems," "The War Situation and Economic Adjustments," "The Federal Courts: Problems of Constitutional Interpretation," "Propaganda: Its Role in a Democracy," "Government and Labor: Administrative Problems of National Labor Relations Act," "Anti-Trust Laws: Judicial and Administrative Problems," "The Problem of Administrative Reorganization," and "Democracy: Today and Tomorrow."

Each of these problems will occupy at least one week of discussion, and usually two or more. A different student will lead the group in discussion each week.

Because of the Thanksgiving Holidays, this will be the last issue of the VILLANOVAN until Tuesday, December 10.

Parson To Direct Junior Prom

Promotes Prom

JOHN J. PARSON

Early Appointment Designates Commerce Student As Chairman

Release of Committee in Next Issue Gives Juniors Great Time Advantage

By HOWARD A. McCALL

John J. Parson, commerce and finance student, was today appointed Chairman of the Junior Promenade, to be held in the Field House in the spring of 1941 during Junior Week activities. William J. Howlett, president of the class, made the announcement.

This coveted position entrusts the chairman and his committee, which will be released in the next issue, with the selection of a first class name band for the gala occasion The affair, which is open to the public, is the classic event of the year in the social life of the junior students.

Valuable Contacts

Parson, who graduated from Haverford School in 1936, has worked as a radio announcer on several eastern stations, including WOR, WJZ, WIP, and the Intercity Network. Through his associations with this profession he has worked with many orchestras on the air. Howlett stated that the numerous contacts and experiences of the chairman in radio, theatrical, and social circles ably qualify him for the position.

During Christmas vacation he will lecture to such organizations as the National Federation of Women's Clubs in Alabama, Gold Star Mothers, and American Legion Posts. During the summer he also lectured at resorts, Buck Hill Falls and Lenape Village being his most popular sites.

Besides these outside interests he has been a prominent figure around the campus for the past two years. As a high jumper on the track team, he holds the local record, which he set at a meet against Franklin and Marshall. Both years he directed the Amateur Night programs, and is writing and producing the minstrel show for the C. & F. school this term. He is also an active member of the History Seminar and the Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity.

When he learned of his appointment Parson said: "The prom next May should prove to be the greatest success of all Villanova dances, but I and my committee can not alone make it such. The greatest burden rests on the shoulders of every junior through their full cooperation in promptly paying the class assessment. It will be their dance. The committee and I will absolutely get the best orchestra or orchestras available. We hope to incorporate several new and revolutionary ideas into the plans for the dance, and Villanova will be proud to attend her junior class' affair."

Belle Air Wins Highest Award

Unprecedented honors, in the form of nomination to the Book of the Year Club, were awarded to the 1940 All-American and All-Catholic Belle Air, Villanova College yearbook.

In the November issue of the Scholastic Editor, official publication of the National Scholastic Press Association, the Belle Air and nine other books, representing all the colleges and universities throughout the country entered in the contest, were mentioned for this honor.

Chosen from among the All-American award winners, these books represented the last word in college yearbooks, according to the standards of the N. S. P. A.

One of the most notable facts about this achievement is that the Belle Air was the only book in the entire Eastern part of the United States to be included.

In the words of the Scholastic Editor, "The N. S. P. A. felt that some special honor should be paid to those All-American books that are personality standouts, books that delight casual readers who don't know a thing about the individual schools—yet feel as though they were right in the school."

This marks a new high in the awards for excellence received by any Villanova College publication.

Rev. Edw. McCarthy Discusses Proposed Pan-American Union

"We are inclined to look down upon the Latin countries of South America, due to the fact that their mother countries were Portugal and Spain. As we know these countries were notably Catholic, it is evident that the culture and religion of South and Latin America should be Catholic."

With this statement, the Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O. S. A., began his address on the "Attitude of American Catholics toward the Pan-American Union." at a meeting of the Spanish Club last Wednesday night.

Continuing, Fr. McCarthy stated, "The culture of the United States, due to England's being our mother country, was primarily Protestant and the control of our government for the most part was in the hands of Protestants. Because our southern neighbors were Catholics, our government tended to consider them inferior.

"We have a specific example of this when, at the end of the Spanish War in 1898, President McKinley said that we took over control of the Philippines in order to convert and civilize the inhabitants. Since we know that the religion of these islands was predominantly Catholic we can readily see the connotation."

"Amateur Night" Plans Under Way

Regulations for Event Modified This Year; Austin, C&F Productions Set

Moderators of Villanova's various intramural teams, having recovered from the pre-Temple game decorations contest, are making elaborate plans for the annual Amateur Night competition, to be held in the Field House on Wednesday night, Dec. 11.

This year the moderators of the different groups have been requested to submit beforehand to Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., Vice-president, outlines of the programs which will be presented. This precaution is being taken in order that repetition of acts given in previous years will not occur.

Break For Students

Because of the past popularity of Amateur Night, attendance this year will be limited to students. At past performances, outsiders, who did not appreciate the local color in the various acts as much as the students did, have filled many of the choice seats. This year, however, students will be assured of the best seats at this strictly Villanova affair.

Last year Austin hall emerged victorious from the competition with its "Gay Nineties" review. Rev. Edward V. McKee, O. S. A., moderator of the hall, has disclosed that Austin is planning an "International Review" this time with which to defend its crown.

Fedigan Mum

Fedigan hall fresh from its victory in the decorations contest, has kept its plans shrouded in secrecy, as have Alumni and Mendel halls. The C. & F. dayhops will present an old-fashioned minstrel show, with John Pholeric, "Judge" Winterbottom, and George Flannery as end men. John Parson will be interlocutor.

A meeting will be held in the near future to determine the order in which the different shows will appear. At that time, the judges for the occasion will be chosen. These judges will probably be selected from the faculty, as the Student Council will not decide the winner of the event this year.

The amount of time that each group will be given to display its talent will also be decided upon at this meeting. If a team runs over the time allotted, it will be penalized.

Frosh May Discard Prescribed "Regs" After Thanksgiving

At the conclusion of the Thanksgiving holidays, members of the freshman class will be permitted to discard their regs.

It is customary to dispense with the regs after the Temple game, provided Villanova is the victor in the annual fray. When Temple wins, as was the case this year, it is left for the discretion of the Orientation Committee to decide when the Frosh will be permitted to discard their "dinks," buttons, and ties. Usually the arbitrary date is set at Thanksgiving.

Those members of the freshman class who have been ordered by the Student Council to continue wearing their regs are not included in this dispensation. They will continue to wear them until the date set by the council or until some contrary regulations are passed.

AH! VACATION

Thanksgiving Day holidays will begin tomorrow at 12:30 P. M. All resident students will return from their vacation on Sunday at 7:30 P. M. and classes will be resumed at 8:55 on Monday.

First "Bulletin" Appears By Dec. 15, Stressing Simplicity

"Mendel Bulletin," quarterly periodical of the science school, will be issued on or before December 15, according to a recent release from the science office.

The Bulletin will contain articles which are of interest to general readers, as well as science men.

Simplicity of subject and manner of presentation will be stressed without detracting from the scientific value.

Feature of the first issue will be an article concerned with work performed by Villanova students at Wood's Hole, the foremost biological research center in the world. A second feature will be "Two Men in White."

All features will be augmented by pertinent photographs and sketches.

The department of "The Junior Scientist" will be continued, along with the Exchange department and the department on Book Reviews.

FLIERS SOLO

Last week saw the last C. A. A. student fliers make their first solo flights. Though many of those taking the course had previously passed this test, a small number did not attempt their solos until last week.

Polling Unpopular Opinions

DO YOU leave dishes and trays on the tables when you finish your meal?

Do you leave napkins on the table, throw them on the floor?

Do you put gum on the dishes and trays? On the floor?

Do you put ice cream wrappers just any place?

Do you cut into the line?

Do you throw butter chips on the floor?

If you are able to answer all these questions in the affirmative, you are the one student in a hundred who is responsible for making the dining hall more difficult to keep clean. If you can answer any of the questions in the affirmative, it is time to come over to the side of popular opinion and vote in the negative.

The dining hall has been improved for you, and your abuse of it is to your own detriment. There is no reason why men must work an extra half hour because of your carelessness. It is no effort to keep things clean; consideration is all that is needed. You do not enjoy sitting down to an unkept table. Why make one for the person who sits down after you?

It will be a real Thanksgiving for those men if you relieve them of that half hour's work every day by your cooperation. Answer our questions in the negative, and keep a bright and clean dining hall.

"Wolf! Wolf!"

ALMOST simultaneously with the publication of the reports of the recent explosions and fires in munitions factories and chemical plants, an hysterical fear of widespread sabotage has spread over the country. To many it seems that they were too well timed to be just coincidental. At the present the Federal Bureau of Investigation is actively engaged in determining the origins or authors of these occurrences.

Considering the non-belligerent role the United States has assumed in this war on the side of Great Britain, one finds it highly possible that these were cases of sabotage meant to hinder our material aid to our overseas ally, and for this reason they must be investigated thoroughly.

But there is another side to this question which must not be lost sight of while the cries of "Wolf! Wolf!" are striking fear in the minds of the workingmen engaged in these dangerous industries.

To meet the increased demands of the National Defense Program, plants heretofore idle have had to be geared to full-time production basis hurriedly and with machinery which in some cases has not been used since the last war. Haste always carries with it, as a necessary evil, a certain amount of negligence and a breakdown of vigilance. Then, too, half-trained skilled workers and men unemployed for years have been suddenly put back to work before they have had a chance "to warm up", as the sports slang goes. Even in normal times accidents are bound to happen in these industries which involve delicate operations of violent materials.

It is to be hoped that the F. B. I. does not go to the extreme of arresting everyone with a foreign background on no grounds, or that the American people will start a wave of racial discrimination in their industries by "clamping down" unjustly on aliens.

Gratias Agamus

MORE than three hundred years ago an idea originated in New England which has been preserved and commemorated from generation to generation. It was conceived by a people who represented the same democratic and liberal sentiments upon which our nation was founded. Their flight from intolerance and religious oppression brought them to the "land of the free"; here they erected their crude huts, protected their homes, and harvested their first crops. For the benefits they received that year they dedicated to the service of God a specified day for praise and thanksgiving.

In anticipation of the anniversary of the event which we shall celebrate this Thursday, many substantial realities may be cited for the sincere gratitude our nation should express to the Creator.

Our land has thus far been spared the horrors and miseries of the bloody combat across the seas. The devastating mechanics of this conflict, gorging themselves on the wounds of men and the splinters of their property, have not yet been thrust against us. Our mothers still have their husbands and sons beside them, or at least on the same shore with them. For this physical peace and our ability to help the distressed countries through our rich resources we should be indeed grateful.

Some Americans too little appreciate the rights, liberties, and privileges extended to them by virtue of their citizenship.

We Catholics have just reason to be most thankful. Though our faith has been subjected to severe trials in many parts of the world, it has gloriously survived persecutions, and has been throughout this crisis the ebb flow of strength to the weak, and refuge for the oppressed. The greatest blessing that we can ask is that the nations of the world will grasp the principles of the Church's teachings and soon arrive at a just and Christian peace.

With bowed heads we humbly say, "DEO GRATIAS."

Thanksgiving— Old And New Style

By FR. DUNNE

THE title of this article refers apparently to the change, effected by the President of the United States, from the date set by tradition to the change demanded by American business interests. In reality, the title is to illustrate the difference between the traditional American custom of celebrating Thanksgiving and that Act of Thanksgiving daily rendered to God in the sublime Sacrifice of the Mass.

The purpose of the Pilgrim Fathers was a worthy one, and one that in a Christian spirit recognized the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Surely, their proposal of a feast to honor the goodness of God in carrying them through many trials, and in providing them with an abundant harvest implied their belief in God as a provident Father. Their invitation, on the other hand, to the neighboring Indians to enjoy with them the fruits of the field bore testimony to their Christian belief that every human being was their brother under God.

Sacrificial Principle Overlooked

What is overlooked is the principle of sacrifice which is at the base of this great American custom of Thanksgiving, and which is closely allied to many other similarly great American customs. Perhaps the reason on the part of a modern civilization to overlook this principle of sacrifice, while at the same time it daily puts into practice many similar principles involving sacrifice, is its failure to grasp the purpose of sacrifice and its inability to comprehend its need.

Since American customs are basically founded upon the purpose of sacrifice, then whether part of the world regards the custom of sacrifice as outmoded, or whether most of the modern world, despite its practice of Christianity, thinks differently, a true interpretation of the motives underlying our own American customs should enable them to appreciate the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass.

The Greatest Sacrifice

Praise is given to many people for some outstanding achievement. In the Mass, the highest praise is given to God. In our finite relationships, we feel many times that words are not sufficient to show how highly we appreciate the courage displayed by the individual, or how highly we rate his skill, which is outstanding in relation to that of others competing with him in the game or sport. Then we give the individual a gift. In the first place it may be a medal. In the second case, perhaps a trophy. The gift expresses in a very tangible and substantial way our feeling which in our words, perhaps, is inadequately expressed. However, the relationship of God to Man is not finite, but infinite; and in the Mass the gift offered is an infinite gift. Since man is finite and God is infinite the gift offered has to be infinite, hence the sacrifice of the Old Law was nothing more than a prefiguration or foreshadowing of the Sacrifice of Our Lord Jesus Christ—the Sacrifice of the New Law. In the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass the priest together with the people offer to God Christ Himself.

Mass, a Sorrow Pledge

Sorrow or regret is likewise inadequately expressed in words. Hence, the universal custom of sending flowers on the occasion of death or the American custom of placing a wreath at the grave of the Unknown Soldier. Also, we are aware of a peace-offering. So likewise in the Mass, the words are accompanied by the gift of God's own son to manifest our unworthiness, and as a pledge of our sincere sorrow for having sinned against God.

Everyone has need of the help of God. In the Mass we petition His grace for the salvation of our souls. We also ask Him to take care of us in a temporal way. The Mass then expresses in the highest degree that very human habit of seeking favor by offering gifts. The wedding ring is a token of the favor conferred that was sought by presenting the engagement ring. Again we offer gifts to express gratitude. It is certainly the custom among all mankind to show thanks through rewards. Words never seem to suffice and the offering is the external evidence of the inner feeling of appreciation and gratitude. By offering to God that highest gift that He ordained—the offering of Himself in the Second Person of the Most Holy Trinity, Our Lord and Saviour, we seek and petition His grace and greatest blessings.

Thanksgiving Reflects Sacrifice

The feast of Thanksgiving, then, reflects in the American manner the spirit of sacrifice, just as many of the ancient customs of humankind furnish us with the notion of ancient sacrifice. In other words, the modern custom of offering gifts to show praise, to manifest sorrow and to express gratitude as well as thanks, is a signi-

Whispering Grass

By Jim Donovan

WELL, boys, here we are again, ready to sing out with all the glad tidings. Things have been popping fairly steadily in this land of where men are men and women just aren't. What with the Owl Hop and the local college proms, all our so-called elite really burned the candle at both ends and in the middle. Last Friday night Fedigan hall looked like a rummage sale and Austin would have made the Duquesne game look like a Rosemont Tea Dance. But as always, a few bleary-eyed gargoyles stood out in the social turmoil. Let their names be recorded here for the admiration of Lower Merion and the envy of Georgetown.

Ed "Tommy Manville" Wagman still playing peek-a-boo down at Harcum with the home town girl. Rumor unhappily has it that York's gift to cafe society is all packed up and ready for conscription and is looking around for an exemption as desperately as Roosevelt looks for a good date for the Fourth of July. Maybe, then, our Romeo is not entirely on the sentimental side. Right now Ed is a lone wolf, for Ernie "On Wisconsin" Robinson has decided that he'd better shop around the East for a suitable heart pitter-pat before he starts to invade the Big Ten. Look what happened to Penn!

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD—Cliff "I Only Want a Pal, Not a Sweetheart" Randolph is up to his old tricks again. Each year our Brooklyn bomber comes back to hey-hey land with a new gleam in his eye. Each year he joyfully lies that it is merely one of those spiritual brother and sister affairs. Right now, Cliffy is carrying a beautiful torch for a West Chester bombshell and, of course, it's so, so Platonic. So each night in the wee, small hours, Cliff adds to their beautiful friendship by sitting down and batting out four or five sheets of geometry to his little snuggle-bunny. If that's being a buddy, then when our vest-pocket glamour-boy really falls like a ton of Macalis' biscuits, we'll really have a three-ring circus in Fedigan.

For the best broken field running of the week, we timidly nominate Jack "I Met My Love Again" Eldracher. For two weeks Jackie has been playing hide-and-seek with two Rosemont lassies about their Senior Prom only to see both dates explode in his face. But was our Trenton Terror thrown for a loss? Not on your interference. He shows up at the shindig with a booful bit of Freshman femininity and so, according to gory details, we have one more name added to the ever-growing list of girl friends of the whirling-dervish.

This one is the funniest thing we've heard since Eleanor Roosevelt made the rotogravure. It seems that two innocent little sophomores, Al "Sweet Varsity Sue" Gelling and Paul "The Pal that I Love" Henski, hot-footed it over to Rosemont to look over the incoming stock. Both spied the same eyeful at the same time. A bitter feud was waged for the right of the first impression. Dirty looks were cast for a couple of weeks, and in general the boys were not in the best of terms. They finally settled the battle by the toss of a coin. Al was the lucky gentleman and he's been rushing the little lassie ever since. And in the background patiently waiting his turn sits Paul, his heart broken by a two-headed nickel.

Well, good-bye, dear public — I kiss you all farewell. A really happy Republican Thanksgiving from us to you!

ficant reflection of the ancient idea of sacrifice.

In its proper sense sacrifice is that which is offered only to God. God has instituted the Sacrifice most acceptable to Him, and that is the Mass. It is the most precious gift that God can give to man, and in turn it is the most precious offering man can make to God.

Meet The Boys: Mr. Flannery Controls All D. P. E. Men, While "Ming" Toy Is Lad With A Musical Yen

By JOHN P. FULLAM

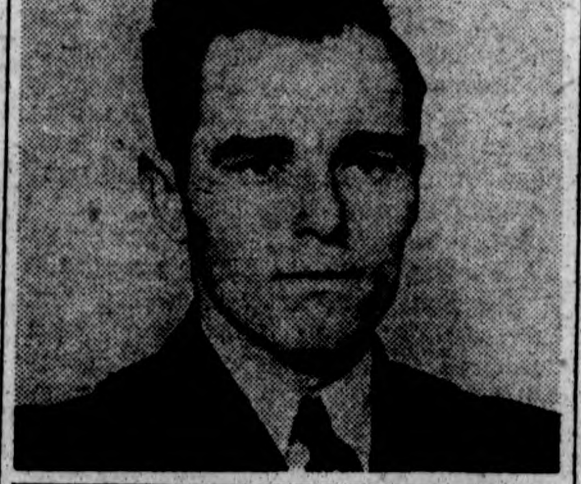
A WORD-PICTURE of the life of this fellow Flannery would have to include the word "varied." His life has everything.

It all began quetly enough back in 1916, in Atlantic City, New Jersey. It came very close to ending very abruptly in a South Jersey forest fire in 1935 but it's still going strong, in 1940, at Villanova.

George J. Flannery, Jr., has managed to keep his life more than just comfortably filled — his has been positively gorged. After eight years at Our Lady Star of the Sea grammar school, uninhibited by the abundance of name, little George entered Holy Spirit High School—all in his native Atlantic City.

Graduates With Honors

Participation in debating, baseball, and basketball was climaxed by his graduation with honors in 1934.



Getting a big jump on the draft, he spent a year in the government's reforestation service. It was at this time that his bout with the forces of Vulcan took place. A shift in the draft, natural in this case, almost proved the cause of his undoing.

Then the religous life beckoned, and George spent the next two years studying for the priesthood in the Augustinian Order. But it was not to be; George came to the realization that his vocation was in the world, and withdrew.

Prefers Variety

Variety is the spice of life, and friend Flannery likes seasoning. As a consequence, George became a journalist. "The Atlantic City Daily World" was his sheet; on it he rose from cub-reporting to "Winchelling." Yes, he was a gossip columnist.

But what George liked best in the newspaper business was interviewing the participants in the annual Beauty Pageant.

"Well, well," we interrupt, "How were they?"

A gleam appears in the Flannery eye, the Flannery pulse quickens: "Nice," is his judgment.

Majors in Diplomacy

Always the diplomat, George looks cautiously around him and adds, "But they're no nicer than some of the students of the nearby girls' colleges."

Villanova welcomed this moss-covered, rolling stone in 1937. And he has paid dividends. Freshman debating, intramurals, Sophomore Class officer, the Orientation Committee, the VILLANOVAN, the Belle Air, etc., almost ad infinitum, have been fields for his energetic endeavors.

Reorganizes D. P. E.

Outstanding among his college activities was his part in the reorganization of the commerce and finance school fraternity, Delta Pi Epsilon, and the digging up of its long lost constitution. Secretary of the fraternity last year, he is now its president.

George is majoring in marketing, and intends to enter either law or sales-promotion after his graduation come June.

And incidentally, his biography will appear in the "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities" for 1940-'41. We don't blame the publication for choosing George. In fact, we think they're getting a bargain—a "lot in a little."

WILLIAM "MING" TOY is another C. & F.-er with a history. Villanova's Dr. Gallup (remember the student poll?) began to gallop in Olney, and still gallops homeward there nightly.

His career here was immediately preceded by a career at North Catholic, which was in turn preceded by one at St. Ambrose grammar school.

He's an Official

That air of distinction of his is more than just an air. For he is one of those privileged few who serve in an official capacity. "Ming" is Villanova's more or less official Notary Public. He has been one ever since his twenty-first birthday, and will probably remain one as long as the fees keep coming.

Most of his notarizing in these parts concerns absentee ballots—"all Republicans, the suckers!"—and the draft.

Musically Versatile

In between whiles, the Toy boy woos, and sometimes wows, the Muses, with whatever he can lay his hands on—piano, clarinet, saxophone, or what have you. Bill really has a right to even longer hair than he now has, for he is something of a composer. He is at the present time working on the score for a musical comedy, which he expects to be, and I quote: "lousy."

"Ming" is also a hep-cat of sorts, having played in several Philadelphia dance bands. He has been in the Band for three years, "clarineting." It was to his very great sorrow that he saw that organization go through game after game, year after year, without any definite arrangement for "College Days." Its members were forced to improvise. This year "Ming" himself wrote an arrangement to overcome this lack. The result: "They still improvise."

The Girl Question

On the perpetual and unanswerable question of girls, Bill has quite definite and quite contradictory views. He likes blondes, if natural. "No peroxides need apply" is his motto, and he sticks to it.

He terms his contribution to the pageantry of Friday night's Owl Hop "luscious, whether Parkin thinks so or not." Of course, she was a brunette.

This very paper has had the benefit of his efforts for four years now.

Doesn't Know Which

If Uncle Sam doesn't catch up with him, Bill would like to enter law school, or perhaps go into insurance or real estate. At various odd times he has worked in real estate offices, as well as in the Post Office.

Don't get Bill into a political argument, even if you're on the same side. We did. It was a long argument. There was a little matter of a dead-line. We stop here.

E.P.T.-ers Meet Yehudi, Still Wonder Who He Is

By GERARD BELZ

WHO IS Yehudi? Perhaps the new brothers of Epsilon Phi Theta, the arts fraternity, can tell you.

Last Wednesday evening in the initiation ceremonies, the pledgees were formally inducted into the fraternity when they were taken through the "ordeals" by men, who to the pledgees seemed to be sometimes there, and sometimes not. The solution to their problem was Yehudi and his cohorts.

We promised to keep Yehudi's identity a secret, but we'll let you in on another secret. One of his chief cohorts was none other than Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith. The "Clipper" who had graciously accepted an invitation to attend the initiation was so amused that he also joined the ranks of Yehudians, and devised his own ordeal. Few of the pledgees initiated will forget the ordeal of steps.

As sportsmen the new frat brothers were exemplary. They subjected themselves willingly, entered into the proper spirit of the initiation, and generally conducted themselves like men, even although perspiration was detected on the foreheads of certain individuals.

When the initiation program reached the entertainment period, our varsity football mentor again stepped forth. Showing motion pictures of last year's Temple game, Smith gave a running comment on the Villanova and Temple plays. Incidentally, as "Clipper" is accustomed to run the film backwards to explain a particular play, it became a common sight to see 22 men running backwards with the speed of jack-rabbits, the whole team backing into position, and the halfback throwing the ball to the center under his legs.

"We dare not trust our wit for making our house pleasant to our friends, and so we buy ice cream." —Emerson

The fraternity followed the reasoning of Emerson, but supplied sandwiches, coffee, cookies, and nuts in abundance to supplant the ice cream.

Judgment Day

Fifty Shaky Commercemen Pass 'Oil & Thunder' Test

By DAVE REARDON

AMID the mystic surroundings of the candle-lighted Commerce and Finance Auditorium, Delta Pi Epsilon, the business school fraternity, last Thursday evening held their first initiation since reorganization. Over fifty new pledgees were inducted into the brotherhood and became fraternal brothers.

Chairman Vincent Murphy and his committee executed the ceremonies in deadly precise fashion.

Forced to observe silence outside the hall, the initiatees were blindfolded and draped in a holed sheet. Individually they were brought before the members and the initiation committee. Any and all questions had to be answered publicly and willingly or the ensuing punishment was intensified.

Then they were invigorated with that famous home-remedy, castor oil, and given an empty glass of water to wash it down. After a few clippings of hair and dousings with water the new members were given a sound going over so that they will probably be eating from the mantlepiece for a week.

Following the ordeal the entire group were gathered together and repeated after President George Flannery a pledge of loyalty to the fraternity.

A mad rush was then made for the pie shop where sandwiches, coffee, cigars, and cigarettes were distributed to all the members.

It was unanimously agreed that the affair was conducted in accordance with ethical principles despite the bruises sustained in the ensuing scuffle.

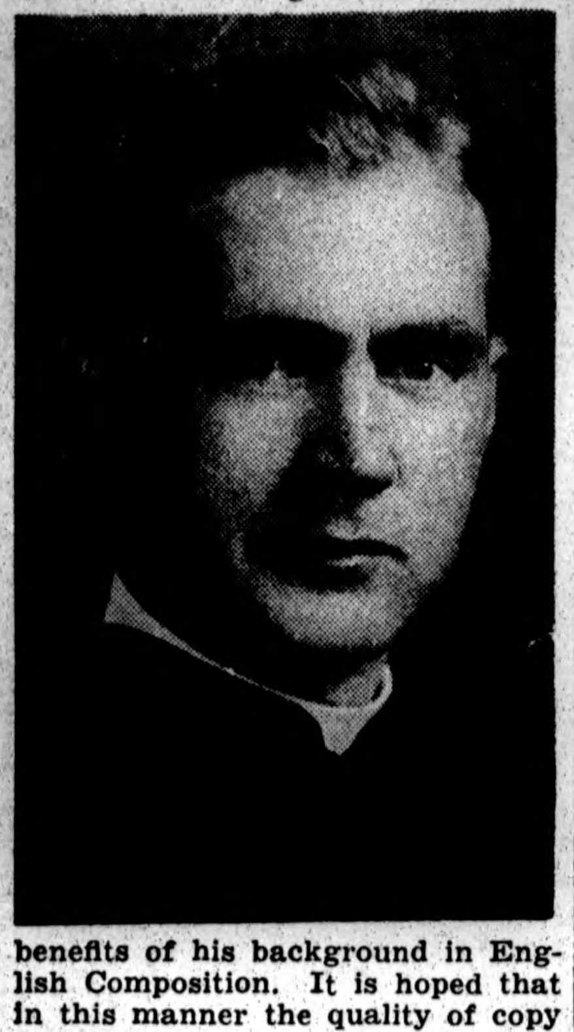
Fr. Sullivan To Advise Yearbook

Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., has been appointed to serve on the board of advisers of the Belle Air, college yearbook, according to a release of today.



Fr. Sullivan will serve in the capacity of literary adviser and will thus be able to give the book the benefits of his background in English Composition. It is hoped that in this manner the quality of copy included in the yearbook will be improved even over that of recent years.

Commenting on the new appointment, Thomas J. Moore, Editor-in-Chief remarked: "Collaboration between the editors of the Belle Air and Fr. Sullivan should bear fruit in the way of producing copy that is lively, informative, and interesting. Consequently, it should be an additional assurance that the high standards already characteristic of the Belle Air will be upheld and possibly improved upon."

In addition to his present position as literary adviser, Fr. Sullivan also serves as faculty moderator for several other student organizations. He is in charge of the dramatics and debating societies and directs the activities of the present junior class.

Contact Gray

For Junior Class Ring Orders Early; Late Order Means Late Delivery

All juniors who have not arranged for their ring orders are requested to contact Richard Gray, chairman, or any member of his committee before tomorrow afternoon.

The chairman will post a notice after the holidays specifying the date and time that additional orders will be taken. This will be the last opportunity for the junior class to purchase its rings. Unfortunately, those who have failed to comply with the previous arrangements will not receive their rings during the Christmas holidays.

It included a discussion of some of the most important poisons, their physiological effect, and the means by which death is effected.

Due to the Thanksgiving holidays, there will be no meeting this week.

Book Club

Members to Present Reviews of Current Works on December 4

Next regular meeting of the Book Club has been set for Wednesday, December 4.

For the meeting of the club last Wednesday, Arthur S. Somers, senior commerce student and president of the group, had prepared forty current book reviews for the use of the members. Each member, who will make a report on some aspect of one of these books at the next meeting, utilized the reviews to aid him in his selection.

The Book Club is a compact study group whose avowed purpose is to enlarge its members' knowledge of current literature and, ultimately, of the older classics.

At the regular meeting of the student chapter of the A. I. E. E. yesterday, a talk was given by Daniel Dalina on the theory and operation of the mercury arc rectifier.

Several different types were described, and their respective uses in industry given.

Villanova members of the society were among those present at a joint meeting of the local student branches of the organization last Friday night, Nov. 22, at the University of Pennsylvania. Swarthmore, Drexel and Haverford were also represented.

D. C. Prince, manager of Application Engineering for General Electric and chairman of the Philadelphia section of the A. I. E. E., was honored at a dinner preceding the meeting and was main speaker of the evening.

Society Will Consider Relations Of Americas

"Latin American Relations" will constitute the general subject of the next several meetings of the International Relations Society.

At the first meeting on this topic, to be held in Simpson hall at an indefinite date in the near future, the diplomatic angle of this problem will be attacked.

Reports by individual members, followed by open discussion, will treat of the colonial backgrounds of this aspect, in relation to both the United States and Latin America, and will be divided into five or more reports on each subject.

Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O. S. A., moderator, will give an individual report upon the rebellion of the South American countries and the development of their individual governments. This report together with other findings is intended to cover the South American situation.

Madrigal Group; and "Andalouse," a flute solo.

Part two of the program will include three numbers: "The Galway Piper," "Mountains," and "Tales of Vienna Woods," presented by the combined chorus; two soprano solos, "On Music's Wings" and "Panis Angelicus"; "Song of the Jolly Roger" sung by the quartet; and a harp solo, "May Night." The concert will close with the Alma Maters of both schools and the National Anthem.

The soprano soloists will be Miss Rita Schildnecht who will sing "On Music's Wing" and Miss Jane Schwartz who will present "Panis Angelicus."

Miss Kathryn Jane Kearns will be the harp soloist and Joseph Gambescia, sophomore science student, the flute soloist.

The male quartet will be composed of William Appel and John Fullam, tenors, and Hugh Boyle and Joseph Rozum, basses.

Mr. Eugene Sullivan will be the accompanist of the combined chorus.

The committee appointed by James P. Collins, Arts Fraternity President, to assist in the concert's presentation includes John Maher, John Fullam, Francis Vogel, Gerard Belz, Andrea D'Angelo, Arthur Connor, and Howard McCall.

This group will confer with Daly this afternoon at 1:00 P. M. in room 110, Mendel hall, to lay basic plans.

Tickets for the concert will be on sale at the bookstore. Student tickets will be priced at $.25; all other tickets, $.75.

Camarda To Direct L. K. D. Admissions

Joseph C. Camarda, senior science student, has been appointed chairman of the Board of Admissions of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity, according to an announcement made by president Joseph S. Santaniello yesterday.

Camarda has been a member of the L. K. D. throughout his stay at Villanova and has had experience on various executive committees of the fraternity.

Other members appointed to the committe are Joseph Clarken, David Morse, Joseph Nelson, Leonard Bortin, Sante diSanto, John Dalton, and John Callahan. The officers of the fraternity are automatically on the Board.

All science students applying for admission to the fraternity are asked to be present at the meeting which chairman Camarda has called for today during the noon hour. This includes all those who have made application and those who wish to enter but have not as yet made application.

A. S. C. E. Hears Position Of Engineers In Defense

That engineers hold a key position in the preparedness program was the theme of an address by Major F. H. Kohloss, C. E., at a dinner recently held at the Engineer's Club in Philadelphia attended by members of the local A. S. C. E. and their moderator, Mr. John Oakey, associate professor of engineering.

Major Kohloss, the featured speaker of the evening, is an executive officer of the Planning Branch of the Office of the Assistant Secretary of War. The topic of his talk was "Engineers in Industrial Mobilization."

Joseph Light, senior civil engineer, will present a paper at the next meeting of the college society branch on Monday, Nov. 25. His subject will be the causes of the failure of the Tacoma, Wash., suspension bridge.

Haenisch To Discuss Opera "La Boheme"

Explanation and study of the opera "La Boheme" by Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Ph. D., associate professor of chemistry and chemical engineering, will feature the program of the Music Seminar on Wednesday evening, Dec. 4.

Novel feature of this program will be that many of the members of the seminar, after hearing Dr. Haenisch explain the story and music of "La Boheme," will journey to Philadelphia on Monday evening, Dec. 9, to see the Philadelphia Opera Company's presentation.

Senior Dance Committee Delayed Until Next Issue

Names of the seniors selected to serve on the senior ball committee will appear in the next issue of the VILLANOVAN, Dec. 10.

Due to the extensive plans for decorations which have been drawn up, it has been decided to name approximately twenty members instead of the usual fifteen.

Names of committee members were to have appeared in this issue but delay in their approval by the respective Deans of the schools made their publication impossible.

"Engineer"

Staff Change Will Be Released Next Week; New Format Reason for Switch

New staff of the "Villanova Engineer" will be released next week, according to an announcement of Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the magazine.

In making the announcement, Fr. Vrana declared that the change was necessitated by the change in format of the "Engineer."

Charles Schaefer, retiring editor, has declared that he is confident the new staff will be able to make the new magazine a popular and enduring one.

Fr. Dougherty Advises Science Frat Members

Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., Dean of the School of Science and moderator of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity, addressed the members at the first formal meeting of the fraternity last Wednesday evening, Nov. 20, at 7:30 in Mendel hall.

Fr. Dougherty spoke about the medical and dental professions and cited examples of successful doctors who are graduates of Villanova and former members of the fraternity. He instructed the group to be true to the Augustinian practices and to have the desire to succeed in their chosen work.

At this meeting tentative plans were made for this scholastic year. These plans dealt with outside speakers to address the group at later meetings and also a new type of initiation which is expected to be inaugurated this year.

Meetings will be held bimonthly on Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:00 in room 215, Mendel.

Proofs Due

Members of the senior class will have their last opportunity to return proofs and place orders for their pictures on the Tuesday following the Thanksgiving holidays, December 3.

At that time Miss McCarthy, representative of Zamsky Studios, will again be in the reception room of Mendel hall to meet the students. After this date the seniors will have to go personally to the studio to complete their arrangements.

Sixteen Game Schedule Arranged For Basketball Team; Carnegie Tech, Loyola Of Chicago Featured On List

First Game December 2nd With St. Francis at Field House; Card Includes Three Short Trips and Intersectional Tests With Detroit and Kansas State Fives

A sixteen game schedule, the smallest in several years, has been arranged for the varsity basketball team of the coming winter campaign. The card is headed by such strong foes as Carnegie Tech, Loyola University of Chicago, Wake Forest, and Detroit University.

Despite the comparatively few contests scheduled, the season will get underway very early—on the second of December to be exact. St. Francis College of Loretto, Pennsylvania, will provide the party of the second part in the inauguration proceedings.

Following the little St. Francis meeting the Cat five will engage a strong foe in Rider College of Trenton on December 7. Both St. Francis and Rider will be met in the home Field House.

Bad Omen

The third home fray will be played Friday night, December 13, which will probably result in bad luck either for Villanova or for the foe from Upsala College.

On the night following the Upsala clash the Wildcats will hit the road for the first time, resulting in a one night stand at Reading, Pa., for a meeting with Albright College.

First "big time" meeting of the season will come on December 27 when Kansas State's high-flying members of the Big Six Conference will stop off at the Field House in the midst of their Christmas trip. Always an athletic power the Kansas five will probably provide Al Severance with the toughest competition of the coming campaign.

Detroit Here

Detroit University will visit the Field House on Janaury 4, for the second Villanova intersectional test of the season. An old and formidable foe in football, this will be Detroit's first basketball introduction to Villanova.

Wake Forest on February 4, will provide another threat to Severance's social security. A perennial power in southern court circles and Dixie's representative in the N. C. 4A's championship tourney two years ago the southerners will this this year present what is reputed to be the finest team they have ever placed on the court. Sophomores from the Dixie Champions of the '38-'39 powerhouse have now reached senior perfection and the Foresters are ready for all.

W. & J. Foe

Ivy clad Washington and Jefferson, one-time athletic power and now struggling to regain supremacy will provide an interesting test on February 7, in another game to be played on the Field House boards.

February 13 will bring famed Carnegie Tech, annually ranked with the east's best, to the Field

NICK BASCA, behind nice interference by Ed Collins (56) and Tony Anderson (45), picks up prolific yardage against Duquesne in Saturday's game. Despite a wonderful exhibition the 'Cats lost 14-10.

Duquesne Eleven Noses Out 'Cats

Slick Play in Last Quarter Spells Doom for Villanova Despite Brilliant Play

By BOB FUNABASHI

Villanova came out of its lethargy Saturday, at Shibe Park, fairly exploding with courage and fight, but fate dealt to that bruised and battered Cat a doleful epitaph, as a gallant band of "Dukes," turned back the Blue and White, 14-10.

After four long periods that extended into the late dusk of afternoon, 15,000 weary rooters filed from the field knowing that Villanova had really been in a game. For certain the 'Cats had put on a worthy show, fighting as only the best can, but still without victory.

Going into the battle as the underdog, Villanova put on its best performance of the year. Defensively, the 'Cats were never better, with jarring tackles and roaring charges keeping the "Dukes" on the run. Only the famous play, with well-executed deception, that toppled St. Mary's, turned the trick to give Duquesne a victory.

Lead Changes

In the second half of this bruising affair the lead changed hands in rapid alternation. Villanova came from behind in the final quarter, went ahead by a 10-7 margin and then was nipped at the finish in rude fashion.

Apparently beaten in the first half by Coach Donnelli's two class "A" teams, Villanova came back to boomerang the Duquesne defenders pulling a bag of scoring tricks, which for the most part were unused this season.

In that second half the 'Cats retaliated with a touchdown and a 41 yard field goal to forge to the front. Taking personal account of the scoring was Nick Basca, who with six other seniors, was playing his final game in Shibe Park.

That bruised and tired Nick, who pitched a few dozen passes around the park during the afternoon and who had to retire in the first period because of an aggravated shoulder injury, came back to pitch Lindy Kolenda a touchdown aerial from the 30 yard line after Kolenda had

By Joe Barnes

OVER on the other side of this page you will read of the schedule Al Severance has prepared for this year's basketball team. Those of you who have some knowledge of basketball will see that it packs plenty of competitive punch. The great majority, however, will look in vain for "name teams," and therein lies our story.

We, too, look for the so-called name teams. We look for contests with the nation's best. Up until yesterday we thought that such tests were possible. Yesterday we learned a different story. We learned that story from documentary proof so there is no denying it. It is based on fact, fact that can be proved, fact that is contained in the rest of this article.

Last week this sportorial advocated a basketball game with Notre Dame on the day following the N. D.-Penn clash this year. We thought it a good idea since there exists absolutely no impediment. We knew Notre Dame would be in Philadelphia, we knew a lot of things. What we didn't know was that Al Severance attempted to schedule the "Irish" as early as last March. Al offered them a huge financial guarantee, one that was four times as large as an ordinary team draws. The cash would have been clear profit for N. D. for the expense in transporting a team from Philadelphia to Villanova would be negligible. Al told the Irish of the fine playing conditions here at Villanova. The inducement was one of the most attractive ever offered any team. And it was offered last March when no school has its court card absolutely completed.

Net result was a short letter from South Bend—"Sorry, but our schedule is completed." It should have been, "Sorry, but we can't play. There is too much chance we might lose." For that was the only possible reason. Villanova, under Severance, has compiled an enviable record, a record which over a four-year span can scarcely be matched anywhere in the land. Villanova courtmen have struck terror into the hearts of coaches from coast to coast. It isn't profitable to play Villanova. The odds are that you will lose.

That is not merely the reason for death of the Notre Dame idea. It's also the reason for the absence of some of the nation's big boys from the list. Yesterday Al showed us requests and refusals from a list of colleges including Pittsburg, Minnesota, Dartmouth, Penn State, Stanford, Michigan, Harvard, Navy, Army, Duke, Tulane, Syracuse, Kentucky, and a list of others of like calibre numbering close to forty. And almost all of these requests were made several months ago when basketball schedules were not near completion. And the dates were left up to the opponents for the most part. Some of them legitimately couldn't arrange for a match this year. But most of them didn't want to play for the reason mentioned and for another reason.

The second reason is that many of the big boys have explicit orders

Wildcats To Close Season Dec. 7th Against Plainsmen At Montgomery

By FRED CLARK

The eight senior gridders of Villanova College will answer their last curtain call a week from Saturady when the local aggregation meets the Plainsmen of Auburn in an intersection tilt in the opponents own backyard way down in 'Alabam'. This game is also the finale for Auburn, who, like the Wildcats, have enjoyed only a fair season.

Head Coach Jack Meagher's men have felt the sting of defeat three times this year but they have risen to the glorious heights that only an underdog victor can attain by garnering decisive wins over Tulane, Clemson, and Georgia Tech.

The Plainsmen lost a one-point decision to Georgia, a team that figured to be easy pickings for the Alabama team, and their other two defeats were suffered at the hands of L. S. U. and S. M. U. by the narrow margin of one touchdown in each game.

Tough Competition

Year in and year out Auburn plays one of the toughest schedules in the country and they are performing wonders if they win a majority of their games much less go undefeated So, in order to get a real line on the Plainsmen, you must consider the teams they play as well as the number of games they win or lose.

Auburn's record thus far this season seems to indicate that they possess a strong high-scoring offense and a defense that is not too tight or impregnable. The Plainsmen have scored at least 7 points in every game for a total of 130 while their opponents have done likewise for a total of 103 points.

Intact Backfield

Coach Jack Meagher will have on hand to greet the 'Cats a backfield foursome that returns intact from last year's team which defeated a "Bascaless" Villanova eleven by the score of 10-9. Captain Dick McGowen, Lloyd Cheatham, Carl Happer, and big Rufus Deal have among them just about everything a coach prays for and dreams about in backfield talent.

McGowen, All-Conference halfback, is a long-distance passer of some note but it was due to his kicking that Auburn was the No. 1 punting team in the country last year. He punted 93 times for an average of almost 45 yards per try. Villanova players who made the Auburn trip last year swear that his average was closer to 60 yards against the 'Cats.

Battering Ram

Deal is a human battering ram from his fullback post and also is a vicious line backer-upper. He was voted the hardest hitting fullback in the Southeastern Conference in his sophomore year. And that is saying plenty.

Cheatham quarterbacks for the Plainsmen and his forte is blocking. He is known as the finest blocker to come Auburn's way in many years, while Happer holds down the remaining halfback post and, being very small and fast, he is a tough man to bring down once

Arrange Banquet For Lightweights

Affair Set for December 11th To Be Sponsored by Student Body Contributors

Villanova's ultra-successful 150 pound football team will be feted at a banquet to be held December 4 in the fotball training room of Mendel hall. The affair will be presented to the team by the student body of the college under the combined sponsorship of the Student Council and the VILLANOVAN sports department.

In charge of arrangements are Murray Zealor '41 and Joseph Barnes '41. The former is chairman of the council and the latter sports editor of the VILLANOVAN.

Feature of the banquet will be the presentation of the "Loyalty Award" to senior Frank Lombardo. Lombardo, the greatest lightweight fullback ever to perform on Villanova turf, was acclaimed winner of the award by an overwhelming vote of the squad.

Funds for the event are to be raised through the "tag days" method under which students will be solicited for funds by a special committee. Contributing students will wear tags showing that they are supporters of the team.

"Tag Days"

The "Tag Days" will be today, November 26 and tomorrow. Every student is expected to contribute according to his ability. The committee in charge express the earnest hope that "there are no slackers at Villanova."

Guests at the banquet will be the twenty-five members of the team plus Coach Tom Casper, Manager Jack Halpin, plus the Reverend Bernard M. Albers, Moderator of Athletics, and M. J. "Clipper" Smith, head coach of varsity football and Director of Intercollegiate Athletics. Others requested to attend will include all athletic coaches and members of the Athletic Board of Control.

It is hoped to make the banquet an annual affair, but this depends upon the success of this year's endeavor. If students and friends of the college cooperate sufficiently such success is assured.

Grid Banquet

The football banquet, given annually by the Philadelphia club of the Alumni Association, will be held on December 10th this year. Plans to make the event the finest since it began are rapidly materializing.

Ex-Ringmaster Bob Mentzinger Proves Ability In Other Fields

By WILL CAREY

. . . And in this corner at 155 we have that fighting Wildcat Bob Metzinger. Metzinger shuffles out of his corner, spars around his opponent, sizes his man up and in no time has him on the floor or on the ropes.

This just about tells the story of about 14 of Bob's 17 fights. Those scraps fought while "Duke" was wearing the Blue and White of Villanova during his first three years here at school.

But now those days are over for Dynamite Bob. Gone is the ten second warning whistle, gone is the clanging of the bell, gone are the cheers of the crowd ringing in his ears as he fights and slashes his way to victory.

In order to find Metz these days one has to travel down to the College field house and in to the training room where he is engaged in another field. He's the right hand man of head trainer Jumbo Elliott.

You'll see him rubbing his fingers over Nick Basca or taping up Len Kolenda's knee. Or maybe he'll be telling another gridder what to do about a weak ankle.

Austin Hall Wins First Half Crown In I-M Basketball

Firemen Clinch Championship in Slaughter of Mendel Commuters; Commerce Dayhops Take 2nd Place

By SAM CANNING

Rolling up the highest score of the year Austin Hall clinched the intramural basketball championship by thumping the Mendel Day Hops, 66-30, on Thursday evening. Bob Moore, the Fireman's star forward led his team to victory by breaking the individual scoring record for the year with 22 points.

Also close behind was Art Martin who accounted for 16 more to aid Bob in scoring more than half the total points of the team.

Big Dan Keating of Austin ran his point total up to 101 during the week's games to take the high scoring title for the first half.

The championship was really decided on Tuesday evening when Austin downed the second place Mendel Residents. If the Residents had taken this game there would have been a three-way tie for first place. But when they dropped the game it left only the last place Mendel Day Hops to try to stop Father McKee's Austinites. And as was expected the Day Students failed.

Dan Keating led the offense for the champions on this game with Mendel Residents by ringing up 17 points. Although the Freshmen were behind at the half by a close 19-15 they kept right on fighting and put up a good scrap to keep in the tournament but their foes were too steady and they went down to a 34-27 defeat.

The C. & F. Day Hops held on to second place by winning their final two games. They ran through Alumni 53-31 and just nosed out the Mendel Residents by 34-32. This set back of the Residents pushed them into fourth place.

The Fedigan Gigoloes also held onto their third place slot by taking a forfeit from the Mendel Day Hops and downing Alumni by a 38-23 score.

The Mendel Residents, riding the crest of second place just a short time ago, find themselves now in fourth with 5 wins and 5 losses.

The second half should be a thriller just as this first half was with Fedigan Hall pacing the league leaders in a much more aggressive way than will be expected after their first half showing.

House. One of the four outstanding games on the schedule this meeting promises to be the "make or break" of Villanova's year. When the Pittsburghers were members of the now disbanded Eastern Basketball Conference they were a continual threat to all opposition and word from west of the Alleghenies warns us that the Tartans are now at their best. Deemphasis of football has reputedly "made" Carnegie basketball. Watch the Plaid!

Close February 19

The season will come to an end on the home boards on February 19, with Loyola University of Chicago as the opposition. Several times the Loyola crowd has walked off with national crowns in basketball and every year they rank among the nation's ten best. A victory for Villanova would practically assure the 'Cats of a successful campaign. A loss will mean obscurity.

he breaks into the clear. He specializes in reverses and snagging passes and will bear plenty of watching because of his ability to snake-hip his way out of tough spots.

The forward wall of the Plainsmen will likely be composed of seniors except at the two end positions where juniors Teedie Faulk and Jim Samford will cavort. Abb Chrietzberg has taken over the center slot after spending his junior year on the sidelines because of an injured knee. Flanking the center are Ernest Mills and Wallace Wise at the two guard positions and Gordon Maceachern and Chester Bulger at the tackle posts.

Coach Jack Meagher is a graduate of Notre Dame and makes use of the Notre Dame system with his own variations. Because of this Auburn is sometimes referred to as the "Notre Dame" of the South. And so it will be a battle between teams coached by two disciples of the system taught by "the Rock"—"Marine Jack" Meagher and "Clipper" Smith. May the best man and the best team win.

uable knowledge concerning conditioning. So now this all around man has his hands full helping to train the charges of Clipper Smith, and other 'Cat sport mentors.

Taking a good look at Bob, it's easy to see that his 6-foot and presently over 155-pound frame hides a serious nature that combines a story book character and an easy going humor.

When you get to know Bob you will always picture him as a country boy who always has a strip of straw in his mouth, and one possessing a disposition that won't allow him to become excited.

Defeats Champs

But the man packs lightning in his fists. In the ring he's a different man. He's proved his ability by defeating the Rocky Mountain Golden Glove Champ who fought against him for Army. He also decisioned the Canadian Middle weight champ who opposed him as a representative of Catholic U. "Duke" has also won over a host of other champs from schools like C. C. N. Y., Bucknell, Wisconsin, and other famous boxing teams. He's met the toughest men in the game and made out pretty well for himself.

When the Wildcats dropped boxing back in '39, Bob wanted to keep up his ring work, so he joined up with the Chelten Club, and showed the amateur circles some fancy work. He was carving out a neat little career in the amateurs, when he figured he'd need too much time away from his books, so he did an about face, for the time being anyway, till he gets himself set.

Future C. P. A.

You see Bob has his heart dead set on being a C. P. A., and with his afternoon work in the training room, his boxing schedule was bound to suffer.

Keeping up his status as one of the senior class leaders is pretty important to Bob, and no matter how much he tackles he makes sure sure it won't hurt his "book larnin'".

Adding to his miracle man activities, Bob has to work in order to defray his expenses at school. Any weekend night "the Battling Duke" can be found ushering at the Erlen Theatre, a neighborhood cinema. And judging from the talk about town, he cuts a pretty mean figure in his uniform.

In these last four years, Bob has grown to be part of Villanova. He's tops in his studies, great in athletics, and a gentleman of the old school.

While other colleges have their unforgettable characters, Villanova has Bob Metzinger, and this old institution should never forget him.

Slick "Duke" Play Ruins Cat Hopes

set up the score by recovering a Duquesne fumble.

Kick Field Goal

That came five minutes before the start of the fourth period and on the very first play of the deciding frame, Nick artistically wound up that right foot and gave the ball a long shot, steering it right between the uprights for a 41 yard field goal. This was the result of another of the "Dukes" costly fumbles, and the 'Cats capitalized for a substantial profit.

The first of the Duquesne scores came after vigorous protest had been overruled. A Wildcat kick that went out on their own 41 yard line, gave the visitors their first break. On fourth down, with still plenty of yardage to go for a first, Phil Ahwesh of the "Dukes," on one of his hesitation plays elected to run the ball, and went to the 25 yard stripe. Again back in position he threw a screen pass to George Gonda who with good blocking went to the 11, for another first down. The same combination picked up six more yards and then on fourth down from the two yard line, Gonda plunged, hanging precariously over the goal.

Score Disputed

Head Linesman Charles Eckles ruled that Gonda had held the ball over the goal line, sufficient for a touchdown, but Villanova players declared he had not crossed the goal line but had been pushed back as he neared the goal. Despite the protests, Eckles' ruling stood and the "Dukes" assumed a 7-0 lead.

Here and There

By Jim Haughton

WHILE the nation's grid fans anxiously wait for the quarterback to call a play which he believes will surprise his opponents, high up in the stands sit several experts whose duty it is to work on what the opponent will call several plays ahead. They are the scouts, sometimes called spotters.

From their vantage spot they go to work right after the game starts. They try to pick out every flaw in the opponent's offense and defense. They check over the play of their own squad to advise on playing certain posts.

Villanova has several of these whose duty it is to advise Smith and McNally on what to expect. There is the famed "Doc" Jacobs who also scouts an opponent a week before it is met. To Doc this is an enjoyable, almost easy, job which he has been doing for years. Doc studies first the playing list to become familiar with the names and numbers of every squad member. This lessens his work in diagramming the plays. Then after watching the club in action he reports back to Clipper with copious notes and salient facts.

Smith and his aides then emphasize the many advantages and deficiencies which are discussed in the daily grid class.

When playing, Villanova also has several men up in the press box who advise the coach. Jacobs handles this job when he is not on a scouting trip. But much of the spotting work this year has been in the hands of Tommy Casper, coach of the lightweights. Tom has a direct wire to the bench by which he can talk to the mentors and give quick advice on certain situations. He also has cards on which he diagrams the plays and these cards are rushed down to the bench by student assistants. It is estimated that eight minutes after the kickoff the coach has the important facts on the opponent's play.

Deadline Stuff: If Saturday's game did nothing more, it proved that the 1940 edition of the Villanova Wildcats is capable of playing good football. Despite defeats, they came back to prove that they have a club filled with ability but plagued by the breaks. A team of which every Villanova man was proud on Saturday.

The game was also a fitting start to the resumption of athletic relations between Duquesne and Villanova after a lapse of several years. Villanova students hope and pray that it becomes an annual event. Both sides displayed the highest type of sportsmanship and each held the other in high respect. The Duquesne followers were more than pleased with the reception they received and hope to act as host next season.

Again the rumors fly thick and fast that Clipper will leave the Main Line for a spot up New England way—Holy Cross. Personally, we regard it as "just another rumor." For if you recall, Clipper has a very good memory. That memory runs back just a short time to a 28-0 defeat and some boys called Temple. Conclusion: Smith will remain at Villanova and the 'Cats will knock the pants off the Owls next year.

While the 150's bask in their newly acquired glory, a Fediganite was in receipt of a letter on the success of the lightweights. It's well worth repeating: "The one fifties win was the grand finale to a brilliant and a successful season. The squad must have been elated. More power to them, they will need it. 'Cause all will look upon them to do even better in the future. Hence, next year Number One in the league."

Ray Gadsby was back for the Duquesne game and told that he is in charge of plebe boxing at Annapolis. His squad is now in training with more than a hundred candidates working out. Ray is also attending the University of Maryland.

from two commercial profiteers from intercollegiate sport, the men who run the double-header orgies, the men who aspire to commercialize and strangle college basketball. Villanova believes in keeping its sports in a collegiate atmosphere. Villanova believes in playing its ball games in its own backyard — away from the evils of big time business — away from commercial exploitation.

The two men in question have dictatorial control over most of the big colleges in basketball and those big colleges are told either to avoid Villanova and a few others or else suffer the consequences — elimination from the picture. The reason for this is that Villanova refused to be exploited; Villanova refused to take any further part in the worst commercial orgy ever to hit collegiate sport. And, therefore, Villanova cannot book "big" games. Such is the situation and we must take it. For our part we sincerely hope that Villanova never accedes to the tempting dish set before it. We hope to forever stay out of the double-headers — and don't think for a moment that we couldn't get back in if we wanted to!

But why go back in and get scalded again? Nothing doing, for the life of the double-headers is rapidly shortening. Already another college is getting ready to drop and soon they will all wise-up and basketball will be given back to the colleges where it belongs.

How bad the situation is can easily be seen when you know that Severance wrote to the authorities of Temple University on March 5th of this year requesting a game. The letter was never even answered. Such is the power of the despot in control of the college court.

Another example is Duquesne which had even gone so far as to settle a date for a meeting with Villanova and then was compelled to withdraw because of "a New York contract." It wasn't Duquesne's fault. They were just caught in a vicious web of misfortune. Duquesne isn't afraid of Villanova—they are willing to play—but they aren't allowed to because two men, as far removed from college atmosphere as hell is from heaven, forbid it!

Example number three is Ohio University with a team that is probably one of the best in the country this year. Ohio and Villanova were willing to play each other despite outside influences. But those influences made sure that no other college in the east would play Ohio so that the trip was made financially impossible. So you will never hear of Ohio, despite her power.

If all the above isn't enough, may we present you with the highly-interesting case of C. C. N. Y., whom sportswriters almost unanimously state is one of the five best in the east? Severance asked the New Yorkers for a date and the answer came that C. C. N. Y. doesn't think they are strong enough to play Villanova this year! Phooey!

Quartet of Senior Lightweight Gridmen Close Careers In Blazing Glory of Finest Season In Team's History

By PAUL McCANN

Four of the most important cogs in the highly successful Villanova 150-pound gridiron machine were the seniors, Bill Brown, Frank Lombardo, Bill Nihill and Tony Sacchetti. Their all-around fine play comparatively unnoticed for two years, was worthy of superlatives as they aided the lightweight team to its banner season this fall.

Bill Brown, who resides in Fedigan Hall, hails from Brooklyn, N. Y., where he schooled at St. John's Prep. He was quarterback of the St. John's football forces for two seasons and made quite a name for himself in that department. His reputation earned there was reflected in his talent displayed as quarterback on the 150's throughout three seasons here.

Casper Praised

Bill attributes the lightweights' rise from the doldrums to the fine coaching of Tom Casper and to the cooperative spirit evidenced by the club all year. He states his biggest thrill came in the victory over previously unbeaten Yale a couple of weeks ago. The generous hospitality accorded the team when in New Haven was something that Bill will always remember, but he and his mates agree that the game in which he captained the team—the Cornell contest—offered the toughest opposition.

A Commerce and Finance scholar, Bill is majoring in Marketing and has found little time to devote himself to activities outside the one sport. His pet obsession, hat collecting, is testified by a choice assortment of felts stored in his closet. The object of his affections is a honey named Dot, back home in Brooklyn . . . Bill is the first Flatbusher we've met who does not think that the Dodgers are going to win the pennant "next year."

Lombardo "Shining Light"

Frank Lombardo, a day-hop from Philadelphia where he earned All-Philadelphia Catholic recognition as quarterback for St. Joseph's Prep for two years, has been a shining light in the 150's backfield for three campaigns, reaching his peak during the past season. Besides being an elusive runner, he was a power in backing up the line of defense. As an added accomplishment, Frank successfully converted 8 of 9 kicks for point after touchdown. He was captain of the team for the Princeton game, which was "before we hit our stride", as he puts it.

Frank is majoring in Accounting and is an active member of Delta Pi Epsilon, C and F Fraternity. The lovely lass with whom he may be seen tripping the light fantastic at the college dances answers to the name Ruth. He professes he doesn't have time for hobbies but prides himself on being a walking sports reference book.

Bill Nihill, who lives in Yeadon, had his pre-Villanova schooling at West Catholic High. However, his baptism in football didn't occur until he went out for the 150 pound team three years ago. Since joining the lightweights, Bill has certainly made up for lost time while playing each of the line positions. He usually alternated at the center and guard posts—being especially effective in backing up the line along with Lombardo.

Another "Frat" Man

Outside of football, Bill engages himself in the D. P. E. fraternity and at many of the dances. He captained the team for the Penn game and says that even then it was apparent that the Wildcat lightweights were soon to see the dawn of a new era.

Tony Sacchetti, Ardmore's gift to the bantam club, played a very capable guard position for two years at Lower Merion High School. He was quite a valuable member of the wrestling team there too.

Alternating at guard and tackle, Tony has been a stalwart in the forward wall for three seasons. His biggest thrill came in his captaincy of the team in the Lafayette game this year. He says he also enjoyed playing against two former high school teammates in the Lafayette and Penn games.

Tony is also a Delta Pi Epsilon man. His diversions include dancing, swimming and bowling—averaging a 177 per game score in the latter. Like Nihill, Tony is still footloose and fancy-free.

It is with reluctance that this quartet, close friends throughout their college years, hang up their cleats for the last time. In the chronology of their performances on the lightweight eleven is the history of Villanova 150-pound football. They started when the sport was in its infancy here, when practices were conducted under great hardships and games were played that would have discouraged the less-hearty.

It must be a great satisfaction to them to have realized in the past season the glory that is a reward for their untiring efforts in helping to make 150-pound football a formidable sport in the Villanova curriculum.

Court Layoff

There will be no more intramural basketball until the fourth of January when the second half of the schedule is to start. At that time several of the teams notably C. & F. will be strengthened by new men who played 150 football during the first half of the card.

Intramural Swim December 4th

Mendel hall will defend the intramural swimming crown on December 4th at the Field House Natatorium against a field of mermen who give promise of providing one of the most competitive meets in years. The varsity mermen will round out the bill of fare with various exhibitions of their respective talents.

Father McQuade's Mendel Mermen splashed away with the crown last year with a score of 32 points, with Austin holding 24 points, C. & F. third with 19 points, followed by Fedigan and Alumni with 16 and 9 points, respectively.

The biggest blow to Mendel's hopes of a repeat performance this year came with the moving of Desmond, last year's star, up to Austin Hall. Reilly, another winner of last year is also lost to Austin, but Jack Mauch, winner of last year's 100-yard freestyle returns this year to carry the colors for Mendel Hall with several freshman newcomers who show promise of boosting Mendel along to another championship.

Here's A Witty Li'l Ditty: Sit Tight Till Amateur Nite

By JOHN P. FULLAM

To be or not to be, that is the question—
To be a fine college, or an institution for madmen and others insane,
Is a question our antics have brought up again.
And if, in your journeys, you happen to hear
Soft pseudo-sopranos pounding the ear
Of all those who let their ears get in the way,
Let this have an influence on whatever you say:
Amateur Night will be here very soon—
A time when it's proper to act like a loon—
When students ignore all their esthetic senses
For the stuff that's to give them "panem et circenses."
This 'stuff' requires practice;
That's just what it's getting.
The keen edge of their talent
Our actors are whetting,
No labor's too hard in this effort they're making
To put on a show that will bring home the bacon.
"Playmates," and other not complex refrains,
Will be sung—quite liltingly—by fellows who are sane,
It's all an idea for nice recreation—
In the midst of our studies a little vacation.
The above exposition is the point of this tale,
Lest unwary students be frightened, and quail
Before all the weird noises, queer stunts, and the like,
Which, taken compositely, are Amateur Night.
But don't let this stop you from seeing the show.
Practice makes perfect, as all of us know.
Put in an appearance, be part of the throng;
And then, if it bores you, you can give it the gong!

Tid-Bits

Statistics . . .

Before starting the Penn game last Saturday the Big Red team from Ithaca had already gained almost a mile and half from scrimmage during the current campaign.

Dick McGowen, last year's collegiate leader, only ranks third at the present time in the punting department, but he has been consistently beating his last year's average. His habit, so far this year, has been to annoy opponents to the tune of an average considerably over 44 yards per kick.

Villanovans, take note . . .

School spirit, like ideas, won't work unless you do.

Science Dean Sees Exams As Step To Final Goal

Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., Dean of the School of Science, addressed the school's members of the freshman class at the weekly meeting of the Science Forum last Thursday.

The Dean told the first-year men that they have just come to the first hurdle in their attempt to reach their goals and that now that the quarterly examinations are over each student should show the proper spirit of study so that the next hurdle—the mid-year—will be just a stepping-stone to bring the goal nearer.

NO HONOR ROLLS

Honor rolls for the first quarter have not yet been compiled because all the marks have not been turned in by the professors. The School of Engineering will make up honor rolls only for two semesters but the three other schools will have four honor rolls this year as usual.

Edw. L. Jonik, Chief Of '40 Belle Air, To Be Wed Dec. 28

Edward L. Jonik, Editor-in-Chief of the 1940 prize-winning "Belle-Air," will marry Mary Prior of Philadelphia on December 28, 1940. The nuptial Mass will be celebrated in the Villanova College Chapel by Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, who in his eight years as moderator of the "Belle Air" has brought it from comparative obscurity into the favored position it now occupies.

Assisting at the Mass as acolytes will be Bernard J. McHenry, Editor-in-Chief of the 1939 "Belle Air," and Thomas J. Moore, Editor-in-Chief of the 1941 book.

Red Cross Drive Begins Dec. 3—Join!

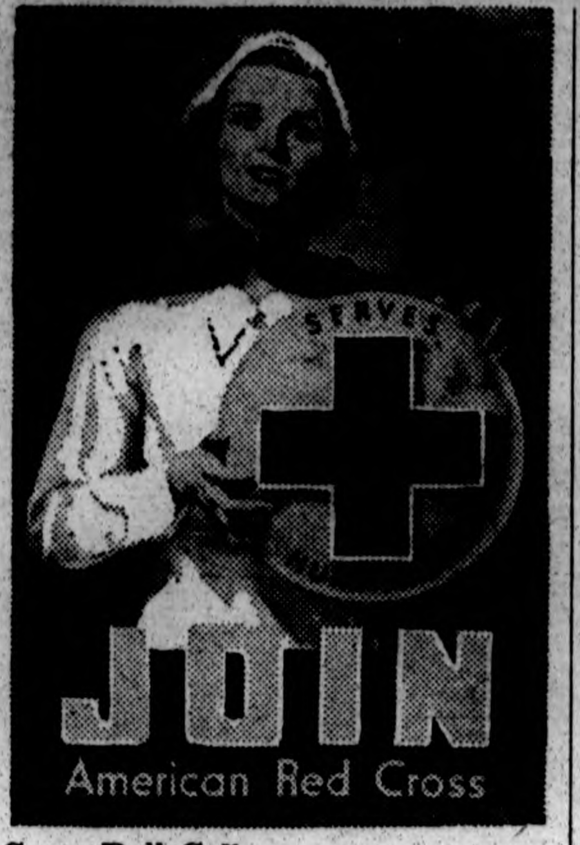
By THOMAS H. DOYLE, JR.

"OVER 5000 left homeless by the recent Mississippi flood are being cared for by the American Red Cross. Victims of the country's latest disaster, these unfortunates are being fed, clothed, and housed until they are able to support themselves again."

You've read stories like this in the newspapers more times than you can count. And you've probably said, "Good; I'm glad to see that in America we have an agency that gets right on the job and helps innocent victims like these." And then you might wonder if that's all the Red Cross does and where they get the money to do it.

They get their funds from such a source as us students of Villanova. Sad to say, they didn't get very much last year, but the present Roll Call to enlist members for 1941 should see us come through with a contribution of several hundred dollars.

The drive here at the college begins next Tuesday, Dec. 3. A table near the information booth in Mendel hall will contain boxes for donations, complete information regarding the sizes of the contributions and their use, membership cards, pins, and window stickers, and pamphlets of the Red Cross explaining how it "Serves Humanity."



Run under the sponsorship of Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of the college, and the direction of James P. Collins, editor-in-chief of the VILLANOVAN, Villanova's contribution will be part of the 24th American Red Cross Roll Call.

Students may purchase memberships under any of four classes: a $1.00 annual membership, a $5.00 contributing membership, a $10.00 sustaining membership, or a $25.00 supporting membership. In addition to these memberships in the Red Cross, contributions of less than $1.00 may be made without receiving the membership card, pin, and sticker.

This campaign is not a begging one; it is the offering of an opportunity to become a member of an organization headed by the President of the United States and chartered by Congress as the national volunteer relief agency. Since the government does not contribute any financial support to the Red Cross, the organization relies solely on voluntary donations to carry on its work.

And its work is far greater than most of us imagine. We may think it desirable because we, too, might someday need sustenance after one of nature's upheavals or may need succor on a future battlefield. But these noble services accounted for only about half of the $7,500,000 expended last year on the aid of humanity.

As great and expensive as these outstanding welfare activities are the unpublicized, everyday charitable works run mainly by the local Red Cross Chapters. Some of these, to mention only a few of the free services that do much to ease the burden of the underprivileged are the complete caring for families of disabled veterans and other poor, public health nursing, home hygiene and care of the sick, blood donations, first aid and lifesaving, services for underprivileged children, clothing manufacture, medical aid, and care of the blind.

American Red Cross membership increased by more than 1,378,571 during the last Roll Call, bringing the total membership to 7,047,251 men and women. Due to increasing duties, this membership must be topped this year.

So, whether you beg, borrow, or make the money, be sure to purchase your membership here at school next Tuesday or soon thereafter. For the American Red Cross "Serves Humanity" — and you are humanity.

Seniors Choose Eichman Chairman Of Dinner-Dance; Belle Air Ball, Junior Prom Committees Are Named

Commerce Student In Charge of '40's Last Social Activity; Twenty Men Selected to Aid Brosmer

Selection of Edward A. Eichman, senior in the commerce school, as chairman of the Senior Dinner-Dance Committee was released today, simultaneously with the appointment of twenty seniors to assist J. Gordon Brosmer, chairman of the Belle Air Ball Committee.

Those chosen to serve on the Prom committee are: John McGovern, William Epifanio, James McMenamin, Vincent Murphy, James Jernee, John McGuire, and Walter Brown, commerce students; James Collins and James Donovan, artsmen.

Dinner Head

EDWARD A. EICHMAN

Henry Mancuso, Anthony Scelba, Daniel Dalina, Joseph Norton, William Delahanty, Charles Schafer and William Appel, engineers; Peter Yankauskas, science student; Robert Schisler, Richard Dimarcantonio and Louis Schneider, majoring in education.

Ran Cotillion

Eichman, a resident student majoring in accounting, was selected for his proven ability in this line, since he was chairman of a committee which managed a very successful Sophomore Cotillion two years ago.

He has been a member of the Music Seminar and the Choral Society during the last four years, and joined Belle Masque, college dramatic society, this year.

Upon receiving notice of his appointment from class president William E. Deasy, Eichman promised that "the Senior class will come through with a highly successful Prom, provided that all its members cooperate both in regard to actual work and in the early payment of the class assessments. This last requirement is absolutely essential if a successful affair is to be held.

Select Site Soon

"As yet no definite selection of a country club or other site for the Dinner-Dance has been made, but several desirable ones are available and negotiations are underway. Though the affair will not be held until Feb. 22, we may be able to announce the site before Christmas."

The first meeting of the senior prom Committee will be held tomorrow at 1:00 P. M. in Fr. Dunne's office, Alumni hall. It is imperative that all the newly chosen members attend as plans for the dance will be thoroughly discussed.

Approximately twenty more seniors will be named to assist Eichman in the arrangemens for the Dinner-Dance. The selection is practically complete and will be announced by Deasy in next week's issue of the VILLANOVAN.

W. La Porte New Editor Of 'Engineer'

Walter N. LaPorte, junior chemical engineer, will be the editor of the Villanova "Engineer" for the coming year, according to an announcement made today by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the publication.

Assisting LaPorte in turning out the magazine—the official publication of the School of Engineering—will be Francis Mambretti, sophomore mechanical engineer, as managing editor, Donald Klein, sophomore chemical engineer, the new business manager, and Robert Ayerle, junior chemical engineer, circulation manager.

LaPorte, who was circulation manager last year, has before him the task of introducing to the college a magazine which is radically different from any other publication which has previously appeared on the campus. The pictorial magazine is an innovation in the field of engineering magazines.

The new staff was announced at this time instead of in the spring, as is the usual custom, because the change to a picture magazine required a change from a staff of writers to a staff which consists primarily of photographers and caption writers.

LaPorte in assuming the office made an appeal for all freshman and sophomore engineers who are interested in photography to join the staff, to which a number responded.

Howlett Appoints Thirteen to Assist on May Event; Doyle, Daly, Gallagher Head Sub-Divided Work

Thirteen members of the third-year class were named today to serve on the Junior Promenade committee by '42 president William J. Howlett. This group will assist John J. Parson, chairman of the dance, in contracting the orchestra, handling publicity, selling tickets, and putting up decorations.

These juniors are divided into three sub-committees to better distribute their work and sub-chairmen have been chosen accordingly to guide them.

Thomas H. Doyle, Jr., commerce student, is chairman of the group in charge of the orchestra and publicity. William Mowen, commerce student, and Roger Logan, science man, will assist him.

David F. Daly, artsman, will be in charge of the work handled by the decoration committee. Those who will aid him in this work are James McElligot, commerce student; Herbert Saner, engineer; Donald Speece, Edward Koriskey, and Joseph Rozum, science men.

John T. Gallagher, commerce student, will direct the sale of tickets. Thomas McKimmey, artsman, Joseph Dorsey, engineer, and James McCauley, science man, complete the ticket committee.

All members of the junior class will meet on Thursday, Dec. 12, at 1:00 P. M. in the amphitheatre. At this time each member may express his views in regard to the Prom orchestra, decorations, tickets, and other arrangements. Parson has promised that popular vote will be the final decision unless previous orchestra contracts make this impossible.

Immediately after this, the newly-appointed sub-chairmen and committee members will draw up tentative plans.

McLaughlin Heads Centennial Drive

Preparations for 1942, the centennial year, are already far underway, alumni secretary Slaughter revealed yesterday. Martin J. McLaughlin, '14, has been appointed Chairman of the Centennial Fund Committee, which is acting to raise the $40,000 set as the goal for the purchase of equipment for the proposed library. To aid this committee several sub-committees have been been formed.

Leonard Lynch, '15, is chairman of the Special Gifts Committee, whose work is to contact individuals wishing to bequeath large sums. Three other sub-committees, the Classes Group, the Publicity Committee, and the Club Group will attempt to have a representative of the Alumni personally call on every alumnus within reasonable accessability.

Four Gain Honor Roll 4.00 Ratings

Four students gained the distinction of having perfect 4.00 quality ratings for the first quarter, according to honor rolls released over the week-end by the Deans of the schools.

These top-rankers are: Raymond Valentine, commecre senior; Thomas Devine, sophomore artsman; and John Quinn and Melvin Samuels, freshmen in the arts and science schools, respectively.

As in former years, the rating system is based upon averages in which the student's grades in his subjects are weighted in proportion to the credit hours assigned to each subject. All those who attain an average of 3:00 or better per credit hour, and incur no deficiency grades, are placed on the honor roll.

Senior artsmen attaining distinction were Francis Vogel, James Donovan, James Forkin, and John Bader. Juniors included William Schubert, David Daly, and Gerard Belz.

Sophomores following Devine included Joseph Mahoney, John Hopkins, and Jacques Mauch. With the exception of Quinn, there were no freshman in the arts school with grades worthy of honor roll recognition.

Seniors majoring in education who had 3:00 or better were Andrea D'Angelo, Ralph Bracken, Wayne Hughes, Thomas Moore, Lee Kenney, and Robert Schisler. Juniors gaining recognition included Thomas McKimmey, John Fullam, Arthur Connor, Thomas Harford and Mark Fitzgerald.

No sophomores or freshmen in this department were placed on the honor roll.

Commerce seniors worthy of distinction were James McGarey, Walter Brown, Robert Mentzinger, William Epifanio, and Joseph Wood, in addition to Valentine. William Walpole led the sophomores, followed by Loring Jones, Richard Anderson, Joseph Halpin, and Paul Russo. Freshmen included Vincent Bradley, Herman Drizin, Robert Ryan, James Foster, Edward Milde, and William Walsh.

DPE Sets Thursday As Initiation Fee Deadline

Final date for pledgees to Delta Pi Epsilon to pay their initiation fee will be this Thursday, Dec. 12, fraternity president George J. Flannery announced at last week's meeting.

Flannery added that, since the group's informal dance will be held in the Field House on Jan. 17, all members, both new and old, must pay their annual dues by Friday, Jan. 10, or be dropped from the rolls of the fraternity. He expects to name those in charge of the dance next week so that preparations can start before the holidays.

President Asks "Times" Retraction Of Story That Thief Taught Here

By THOMAS A. SULLIVAN ..

"Far from satisfied" with a meager retraction by the New York "Times" of a story appearing in its Dec. 1 issue, erroneously stating that one Carl Klein, charged with looting the Chapel at St. Joseph's College, N. J., was formerly employed as a teacher at Villanova, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President, has requested the paper to properly correct their mistake.

Fr. Stanford, as well as New York Alumni, feels that the retraction, printed on page 22 of last Thursday's "Times," was not given adequate prominence, since the original article appeared on page 1, section 1, of the paper's Sunday, Dec. 1, issue.

Thief Arrested

As first printed in the "Times," the article began as follows: "A $3,000 diamond studded chalice stolen Nov. 7 from the Queen of the Miraculous Medal Chapel at St. Joseph's College, near here, (Princeton) has been recovered in pieces in a Boston pawn shop, where a man said to have been 'living by his wits all across the country' is under arrest charged with the theft, the State police said today in Trenton.

"Detective Nunzio De Gaetano of the State police station at Penns Neck, who was assigned to the case, said the man in custody was Karl Klein, 32 years old, 'who posed as a refugee professor of economics and languages from Germany, and who was employed until recently as a teacher at Villanova College.'"

Casts Aspersion

This story seriously affected Villanova's reputation in that the name of the college was linked with the person accused of the crime, and also because it implied that Villanova would employ a professor without first investigating his past record. Therefore, upon discovering the mistatement, Fr. Stanford wrote to the New York

Attention Pilots:

Applications are now being taken for the second Civil Aeronautics Authority student pilot training course at Villanova, which will begin on Jan. 15, 1941.

Since the size of the class will be determined by the authority in charge of the flight scholarships, applications, which will be considered as of filing date, must be turned in as soon as possible to William G. Slaughter, room 120, Mendel hall.

Talent Set For Show Tomorrow

Austin "Wax Museum" Defends Amateur Night Crown Against Four Challengers

A whirlwind of frolic is due to sweep into the Field House tomorrow night when the annual intramural Amateur Night get its curtain call at 7:45 P. M. Participating are last year's winner, Austin hall, and the other campus groups, Fedigan hall, Alumni hall, C. & F. day students and the Mendel hall residents.

The current edition of student talent display will be restricted to full-time students both on stage and in the audience. Each group will be given thirty minutes to do its bit with five-minute allowances for stage-setting and for dissembly. Lots were drawn to decide the order of presentation in the program and Alumni drew first place with C. & F., Austin, Mendel and Fedigan following in the order named.

Last year's champs at Austin hall had to forego their original idea of an international review due to the expense entailed and the lack of time. They will present, instead, an interpretation of a "wax museum" of historic figures. The full cast will number about fifteen, including Jack Gallagher, Jim Halpin, Joe McCabe, and John Burke; Andy Melton is the director.

Mid-campus Alumniites will present a skit entitled "The Same Old Story," based on the play, "Our Town." Imitators par excellence in Hugh Wells, Dick Lynch and Will Gagen promise to roll the audience into the aisles and Bill Swan will take on the duties of commentator.

Non-resident Commerce and Finance students will present an old-fashioned minstrel with John Parson as interlocutor and Joe McAvoy, George Flannery, Bob McIntyre, Joe Costa, Dan Haley and Tom Doyle as the darkened endmen. "The most sensational show this side of heaven," to use its official title, will also feature specialties by Tony Sachetti, a trio composed of Pholeric, Moses and Lattanza, Bob Gretz on the drums, Tom Winterbottom, "Major" McDonald and Bill Nihill.

Fedigan hall will satirize the draft. Particularly interesting because of its intimate relation to men of college age, the drafting of Americans into the army will prove to be a very timely theme. Director Al Skaf, who is also co-author, appeared very much enthused about the possibility of winning the crown this year. The cast in-

Chestnut Hill

German Club Visits Here Friday; Motion Picture, Singing, Dancing, Refreshments at Meeting

A joint meeting of the German Clubs of the College of Chestnut Hill and Villanova will be held this Friday evening in Simpson hall.

Main feature of the meeting will be a motion picture, "Konzert in Tirol," featuring the famous Vienna Boys Choir. The dialogue of the photoplay is in German with English sub-titles inserted.

Following the presentation of the picture, there will be group singing. Refreshments will be served to all those present and dancing will take place.

Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., moderator of the Villanova group, has invited all members of the German Club and the German students to attend the affair.

Teamwork Needed

THE recent strife between the Dies Committee and the Department of Justice, a source of consternation to the nation as a whole, last week took a turn for the better. Promising developments on the issue revealed that these two agents of the government had reached an agreement and curtailed all potential discord.

The squabbling sprang from the different policies of the two organizations in their treatment of subversive activities. The Dies group, mildly admonished by President Roosevelt for its method of presenting information concerning propaganda and plans contrary to the national welfare, believes in prompt and loud disclosure. The Federal Bureau of Investigation adheres to a soft-pedal policy and felt that the Committee was divulging their findings prematurely.

That such at situation unfortunately led to open hostilities is indeed a sad plight and we are glad to see that conditions are now more favorable. It is imperative that these bodies act in sustained coordination with one another if we are to protect our nation, our industry, and our people from the menace of propaganda and the threats of sabotage present throughout the land.

Now that the alleged wrong has been remedied, we trust that each of these organizations will continue in its own way to watch over America—the Dies Committee exposing subversive activities, the Justice Department apprehending violators of our laws.

Writing On The Wall

MORE attention, we believe, should be paid to statements like those uttered by Senator Hiram W. Johnson last week. Because of various prevailing conditions, he predicts that the United States will enter the War, adding, however, that "Those in command are perfectly mad to be 'in the game'.

"There is no doubt that we'll soon go to war—we're edging closer to it every day."

The public should not brand such statements as the rantings of an extreme isolationist, but should weigh them critically. They possess the character of the Biblical handwriting on the wall. What are the steps that will lead us to war?

1. A Congressional move will be inaugurated to repeal the Johnson Act, which prohibits Federal loans to World War No. I debt-defaulted foreign nations. This will lead to unlimited lending to Britain, which monies can only be repaid if England wins the war. It is only a step further to our active entrance to insure our cash's safety.

2. Another move will be made to modify the Neutrality Act so that U. S. warships will be able to convoy our armaments and ships sent to England. A roving submarine will provide the "issue".

It's about time that the American people got wise to these methods of creating issues and crises. It's about time they stopped fooling themselves and faced the facts—one way or the other.

Peace For Christmas? ? ?

WAR in England, War in Germany, War in Italy, and in Greece. And imminent starvation in at least seven of the remaining European states.

Why?

Thinking Christians have known the answer for a long time. And they've just been given another instance to substantiate what they know is true.

The other day, His Holiness, Pope Pius XII, issued a plea to all warring nations to cease hostilities at least during the Christmas season. But the Papal dove of peace was met by a burst of machine-gun fire; the voice of God's representative on earth was lost in the roar of dive bombers.

Christmas? Europe has forgotten the meaning of the word! Europe ignores the God who lay in Bethlehem's manger so many Christmases ago. And there is war in Europe . . .

Yes, during the approaching Christmas season, let there be "Glory to God in the Highest". Then and only then can there be ". . . on earth, peace to men of good will."

—J. P. F.

Congrats All Around

THE student-sponsored banquet held last Wednesday night for the 150-pound football team marked the close of the most successful year the lightweight squad has ever had. The fact that their fine work was rewarded in this manner is indicative of the awakened student interest in the team.

Prior to this year 150-pound football was the neglected child of the athletic program as far as the students were concerned. Perennial door-mats of the league, the team excited little interest early this year, even when the new coach, Tom Casper, sounded storm signals.

The results of the first two games seemed to warrant the apathy of the students. Despite the fact that they outgained their opponents, the Kittens lost both games. Then came the transformation! Accustomed to the philosophy and system of the new mentor, the team swept through the rest of the schedule without a loss, soundly trouncing the league leaders, and giving warning for next year.

For a remarkable comeback and for a valiant display of courage and tentacity, we salute a great coach and a great team.

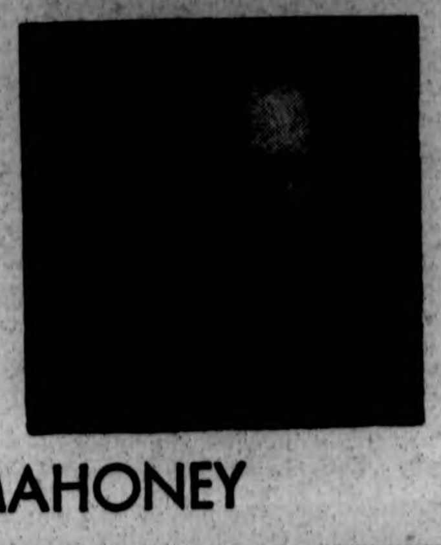
First Catholic President Of Mexico In Ninety Years



By FR. MAHONEY

GENERAL MANUEL AVILA CAMACHO took office as President of Mexico Sunday morning, Dec. 1. Many demonstrations have been made against him since his election some months ago, and it was seriously feared that the candidate would never reach office. Even Sunday morning at his inaugural speech, there were several demonstrations on the part of the Leftists and Radicals, known in Mexico as Marxists.

Camacho claims in a statement published in one of our local newspapers, "I am a Catholic. This does not mean that I am a member of the clergy or a fanatic. Mexico and Mexicans are faced with two great problems, one is moral; the other is economic — moral poverty and physical misery. I believe that the President himself should commence with moral problems."

Reiterates His Statement

In his inaugural speech on Sunday morning, Camacho reiterated this statement: "No Communists will be permitted to collaborate with my Government. The Communists, because of their ideologies and the national feeling against them, will have to travel alone. Communists' ideals have not flourished and cannot flourish in Mexico because the people are essentially Catholic. I am a Democrat."

To say that Camacho is the first Catholic ruler of Mexico in 90 years is a false statement. Nearly every ruler of Mexico in the last 90 years has been a baptized Catholic. Later when they were influenced by Masonry, they were not practical Catholics, but to show the general public that they had Catholic ideas and ideals, it might well be said of them that nearly everyone sent his children to Catholic schools and colleges. I know this to be true because for many years I actually gave Communion daily to the daughter of one of their recent presidents.

After the expulsion of the religious from Mexico in 1928, the people of the border towns invited the nuns, whom they had disfrocked across the border, without their religious garbs to teach their children the fundamentals of the Catholic religion, so that all might receive First Communion and Confirmation. It was a very inspiring, and at the same time awesome, sight to see a group of 150 children, led by the Army band, reach the border and be received by the priest who took them to his little village church where he administered Holy Communion to these tots.

To know that these same officials had such Catholicity in their hearts to have their children receive Communion as Catholics and to know, also, that they were so cowed by "higher-ups" is certainly a revelation of who was running the Mexican Government at that time.

This is only one instance of the influence of an extraneous, sly, silent rule which has been guiding the destiny of Mexico for a number of years.

Rise of Masonry

After the churches and convents were closed and the priests and nuns expelled, there arose, as if by magic all over Mexico, Masonic temples. They never had as many worshipers as did the Catholic church, but their influence during recent years was more powerful.

THE CONVERSION of Mexico began in the early 16th Century. The first Augustinians arrived in 1533. They traveled all over the country and made converts everywhere. They were aided by Franciscans and Jesuits. By 1549 practically the whole country was Catholic. The astounding efforts of these noble Spaniards turned a nation from paganism to Christianity in less than one hundred years. May their spirits survive and the faith of Mexico remain the same. VIVA MEXICO! —Fr. Mahoney.

Many of our own priests and nuns were expelled from their churches and convents and placed in prison under the vilest of conditions. They were forced to submit to barbarities which are not even fit to print. But in talking to one of our ex-Provincials, he frankly told us of many of the horrors to which he himself was subjected, and he was a man of seventy years. Some of his younger brethren were taken out and cruelly shot and the story of Father Poa has become almost universally known.

His Cause for Beatification has been started and many miracles are supposed to have been wrought through his intercession.

Population is Catholic

The people of Mexico are nothing, if they are not Catholic, and to even think of electing a ruler who would be opposed to the Catholic Church, if the general public had a right to vote, would bring practically to them self destruction.

AS this is being written, the gentlemen of the campus are busy reverting back to childhood. The presence of the first real snow on the campus this term has caused them to roll the white particles into compact balls and hurl them at one another, and the mirthful glee, reminiscent of a kindergarten, tells of a hit. Passing Alumni hall, one takes his life into his hands as the frosh are quick to catch the strategic importance of their dwelling.

RETURN TRIP:

Although many of the students returned earlier, a majority seemed to favor the seven o'clock train leaving Penn station on last Sunday night.

Once aboard the train the reason for this was apparent. Located at the rear of the "choo-choo" was a special car for Rosemont College, that place where all the beautiful (oh, yeah) girls matriculate.

It was not long after the train left that the Casanovas, Don Juans, and the like began to drift around. The traffic between the cars was like Macy's on bargain day and the climax came at 30th street where the unofficial members of Porters' Union, Local 0010, took charge, headed by that "red-headed" red cap, Jim Halpin.

Aboard the Paoli special, social relations were once again resumed with the girls still holding down the end of the train. All went smoothly until the "whistle stop" was reached.

After the poor chumps who were trying to create an impression had assisted in the embarkation, they were rewarded with nothing more than a hurried "thanks."

Maybe that will be a lesson to all concerned, a further proof that Villanovans are considered nothing more than "has beens" by these "fairest of the fair."

CORRECTION DEPARTMENT:

In order to prevent a serious international situation, this column wishes to correct a mistaken impression which is quite prevalent. It has to do with a message to be delivered to Frank Abbott. We have it on good authority that the first name of the lady DOES NOT begin with the letter "K."

INDIGESTION:

Joe Connor, pride of the Greeks and light of his father's life, is a silent though amorous admirer of a young lady who is a member of the chorus in the Ice Follies. Usually much outspoken, the mighty mite is strangely silent concerning his new friend.

The forthcoming Amateur Night productions will put forth such a wealth of talent in the form of singers, dancers, and comedians that it is felt by many that a revival of Turf and Tinsel would be well worth-while. . . . "Quincy" De Grace is quite the traveler. Having a female acquaintance who dwells in Virginia, he burns up the highways between here and there on more than one week-end, even though his visit be brief. The elections in Mexico for the past few years have not been free elections as we understand them in the United States, but they have been controlled by a clique and are usually influenced by the Army. The Army has notoriously dominated the voting for a long time, and if a man is forced to vote at the point of a gun, with only one candidate in the running, he certainly hasn't much right to choose.

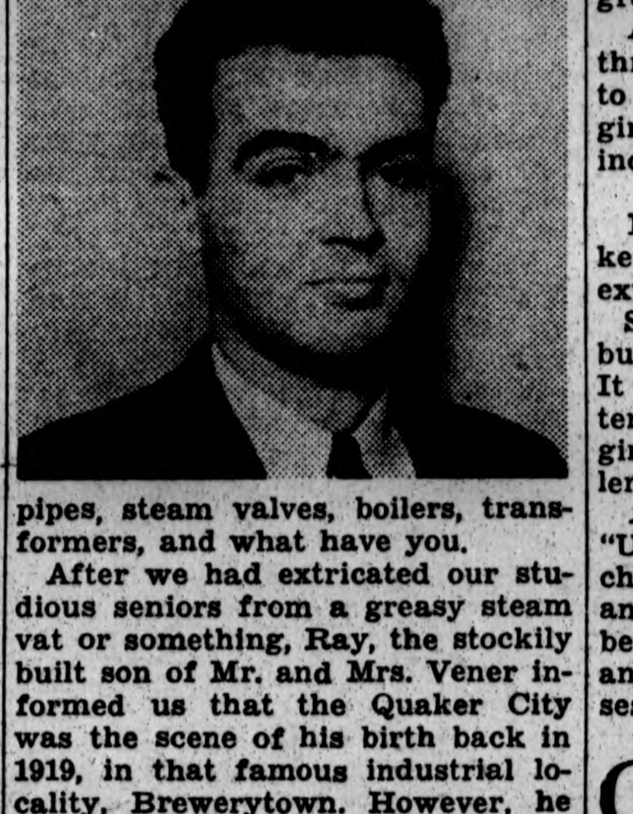
Mexico is Catholic, has been Catholic since 1549, and the heart of the people will never be anything else. A Catholic President, thank God!

Perhaps many of the abuses which the Church has suffered will now be corrected because the blood of her martyrs has watered the soil, and, as in every other country, will grow great fruits.

Meet The Boys: "Uncle" Ray Plus "Cynical Chick": As A Combination You Must Admit It's Slick!

By DAVE REARDON

DELVING deep into the dark dungeons of Mendel Hall's Unit Operations lab, we found Ray "Uncle" Vener and "Cynical Chick" Schafer busily experimenting with their playthings. This maze of mechanical toys includes intricate apparatus for the study of fluid flow, heat transfer, evaporation, humidification, drying, absorption, distillation, and filtration. At least that's what the book says. Anyhow to us it looked like a boiler room resplendent with vats, pipes, steam valves, boilers, transformers, and what have you.



After we had extricated our studious seniors from a greasy steam vat or something, Ray, the stockily built son of Mr. and Mrs. Vener informed us that the Quaker City was the scene of his birth back in 1919, in that famous industrial locality, Brewerytown. However, he contends that his environment had nothing whatsoever to do with his current social likes and dislikes but he does admit a certain amount of skill with darts.

Wins Scholarship Here

St. Ludwig's school taught our boy his three R's. Next he entered Roman Catholic High School. Here he continued his excellent scholastic work and was a consistent honor roll student. Upon graduation he was offered a scholarship to our great institution which he immediately accepted.

The engineering school was selected by him as his course of study and in his second year he decided to become an electrical engineer. At the present time he is one of 13 seniors in this difficult course.

Membership in the Phi Kappa Pi Engineering fraternity is foremost in his activities; this year he is serving as president. Our energetic executive has revolutionized interest in the fraternity by broadening its scope to include research in arts, music, sociology and other cultural fields. In this way the engineers receive a widened educational viewpoint.

Honorary Frat Member

His remaining societies include the necessary mechanical research organizations. They are the Chemical Engineering Society, of which he has been a four-year member and Chi Epsilon Mu, an honorary scholastic fraternity, consisting of only four outstanding scholastic members of the school. Of this group he is vice-president.

As a laboratory assistant for three years, Ray has provided aid to many a distressed neophyte engineer and has proven himself an indispensible man in this respect.

Socially A Success

Participation in intra-mural basketball and bowling round out his extra-curricular activities.

Socially, he has attained success but upon this he will not comment. It is sufficient to note that he attends all the school dances with a girl who, rumor has it, is an excellent automobile driver.

According to "Chick" Schafer, "Uncle" Ray is a self-made psychologist and attempts to psychoanalyze everyone he meets. He has been gifted in the art of speech and can hold his own in any "bull session" on any subject.

CHUCKLING "Chick" Schafer, the Don Juan of the engineers, entered the world on the second of January, 1918, in Philadelphia. This, incidentally, is the anniversary of the Second Battle of Bull Run.

After crawling around on his hands and knees for six years, he climbed the stairs of Transfiguration School and eight years later entered the portals of West Catholic High School.

He holds that some unknown force influenced his matriculation here at college but his registration day was a memorable one.

"Engineer" Editor

Our illustrious interviewee has been outstanding throughout his four years. During the past year he has been Editor-in-Chief of the "Engineer." He is also a four year member of the Chemical Engineering Society and is its president this year. Phi Kappa Pi, Sophomore Cotillion Committee, and Student Council complete his list of activities.

Summers have found him as a driver-mechanic for a truck manufacturer and a laboratory assistant in an aerial map-making company. Also for two years he has needled Vener as a laboratory assistant. During the Christmas Holidays he works in the Post Office.

Hobby Is Fishing

Fishing is his hobby, but according to his cut-buddy, Uncle Vener, Mr. Schafer's hobbies are far more extensive than he admits.

Socially, he attends all the college affairs in the company of a little lass named Mae, who resides in the vicinity of Drexel Hill.

Self-assured and easy going is this dark-haired, good-looking senior. His sense of humor is highly developed. However, his concentration results in some brilliant ideas which need merely to be applied.

Lay Concert Success To 'Seasoning'

By GERARD BELZ

SUCCESS of the combined Villanova-Rosemont Concert was clearly manifested Sunday night by the very appreciative reception tended by an audience of some nine hundred people.

Further confirmation of the success of the concert became evident when, at the conclusion of the performance, a broad, radiant, unmistakeable smile of satisfaction enlightened the countenance of the director, Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A.

Commenting on the concert, Fr. Handran said, "This year's concert has no doubt surpassed former years and the success is due primarily to the well-seasoning of the group. The two choral groups are just now becoming accustomed to singing together and are effectively functioning as one group."

To single out the best performer —or performers—of the evening is almost impossible but if a very accurate applaudometer would have been utilized we think the results would have given Miss Rita Schildnecht top honors. Her rendition of "On Music's Wing" was superb.

Every great show has its man behind the scenes who contributes greatly to the success but receives little of the recognition. Villanova had two such men in the persons of Father Boyle and Father Vrana.

Father Boyle was the concert committee adviser, the director of the stage settings, and although few of the performers realized it, the source of their fine morale.

Father Vrana, as ever the man who does everything but wants nothing, was directly responsible for the fine amplification which contributed no small part to the general performance.

Last but not least the Villanova singers expressed their appreciation to Mother Mary Paula of Rosemont College, who was responsible for the development of the Rosemont group.

'Song-Fest' Doin's Shock Maw's Boy: Reckons Affair Quite Tolerable

By JEREMIAH GARDENVILLE

I WASN'T a-figgerin' on going' to it in the first place—it bein' so late, an' all—but now that it's over, danged if I hain't right glad I did. Them gals looked mighty purty, even without their aprons on. 'Course, I don't know how good they can cook—but Maw'll prob'ly live quite a while yit.

Eh? Oh, ya'as, I mean that there psalm-singin' they had over to Rosanova, or Villamont, or whatever it is, the other night.

I had aimed to go sparkin' over at Susie's house, but Susie hadn't baked no pies that day, and she said she hadn't no objection to me goin' to the song-fest instead.

Must Be Nice!

Eh? Oh, ya'as, the gals. Well, they was all tintivated an' befurbished fit to kill. I swan, with all those long, colored dresses a-minglin' an' a-mixin', they looked mighty nigh as good as Si Everts' flock of mixed pullets at feedin'-time. Yessir, jest about.

Oh, of course I dozed off durin' part of the affair. It didn't start 'till after eight o'clock. I woke up all of a sudden, wondering why all the young fellers near me was a-settin' on the edge of their seats, clappin' their hands off. Then I saw. It was some gal a-singin' all by herself—Rita something, I rec'lect her name was.

Strange Doin's

Durin' the intermission, I was a-talkin' to one of the ones as was in it. She must've been eating some kind of red jelly-beans or something, and some of the red got on her lips. I figgered on maybe doin' her a favor, and told her about it. But all she did was make some kind of choking giggle in her throat. And then she took another swig out of the little jug — as I tho't — in her hand. Then I looked closer, and seen she was suckin' on a lemon. Honest to gosh-all-catfish, it was a lemon.

That was enough for me. Them college girls is purty, all right, but they eat candy kind of messy-like, and they like lemons. An' they stay up late, too. Took me 'till almost five o'clock to get up next mornin'.

Eh? Oh ya'as, the singin' was right tol'able, right tol'able.

Retake Pictures

Since all "Belle Air" pictures in Zamsky's Studios were destroyed by fire on Thanksgiving eve, all senior portraits must be retaken.

No charge will be made for these sittings provided that each senior have his picture taken at the time specified on the bulletin boards.

Those fourth-year men who still have proofs retained from the first sittings should bring them at the time of this new sitting so that they can point out which pose they liked best and have it duplicated.

COMING into the home stretch of the first semester reminds us that we have only a few more opportunities to make known any thoughts which we consider pertinent to the welfare and progress of Villanova, so here goes. . .

Congratulations to Joe Barnes and the entire student body for their unprecedented response in support of the 150's. This small edition of "Clipper's" Wildcats shows great promise of continuing the winning tradition that we have grown accustomed to during the past years.

On the subject of improvements, we might say that one of our pet ideas for a long time was the inauguration of a lecture series here at Villanova such as is in vogue at most other colleges. The science and engineering schools have been fortunate in having this feature as a regular part of their curriculum and the many interesting speakers who have been presented before this group have served to supplement classroom work and add practical experience to theory. This department feels that such an activity should be a part of every school's activities.

Dr. Harry Gideonse, President of Brooklyn College said recently that the Communist party is "deliberately using the free colleges of New York City as a sounding board for its own activities." This is a classic example of the failure of our schools to develop and inculcate the real American spirit in their students and shows the evil of confusing the "liberty" of free speech with the "licence" to talk down the very ideals of our society and government.

Speaking of winning streaks:

One of the most phenomenal winning streaks in the history of inter-collegiate sports has been compiled by Penn State's soccer team over an eight year period. In this time the Nittany Lions have not tasted the bitter dregs of defeat in 61 contests.

This used to be a man's world:

The inability of Temple's director of dramatics to obtain enough male actors has caused him to change his selection of plays to include more feminine thespians. Adding insult to injury, it was also discovered that Temple has three women editors, two women class presidents, and that women were in the majority in the freshmen class. It looks like the draft has already had its effect. —Temple News

Once burned is not enough:

Jesse Jones' remark last week to the effect that England is a good risk and that we should loan money in addition to our already voluminous material aid reminds us of the ancient proverb. It seems to us that there are records somewhere indicating that the British still have a slight obligation remaining from their last escapade. The frequent recurrence of such statements makes us wish there were more rock-ribbed Americans like Senator Hiram Johnson speaking to the public instead of such "hyphenated Americans" as the said Mr. Jones.

The last straw:

The University of Toledo student council discussed the placing of plainsclothes secret police among the students in order to enforce its campus regulations.

Obsession

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA
(With apologies to Joyce Kilmer)

I think that I shall never see
  A course like cat anatomy.
A cat that glares at me all day
  As I sadly lift my arms to pray.
A cat who may have in summer roamed
  But now is just a bag of bones.
A cat who intimately lives with me
  And taunts and haunts this soul with glee.
  Poems like this are made by me;
  That's why I'm flunking anatomy!

Teamwork Needed

THE recent strife between the Dies Committee and the Department of Justice, a source of consternation to the nation as a whole, last week took a turn for the better. Promising developments on the issue revealed that these two agents of the government had reached an agreement and curtailed all potential discord.

The squabbling sprang from the different policies of the two organizations in their treatment of subversive activities. The Dies group, mildly admonished by President Roosevelt for its method of presenting information concerning propaganda and plans contrary to the national welfare, believes in prompt and loud disclosure. The Federal Bureau of Investigation adheres to a soft-pedal policy and felt that the Committee was divulging their findings prematurely.

That such at situation unfortunately led to open hostilities is indeed a sad plight and we are glad to see that conditions are now more favorable. It is imperative that these bodies act in sustained coordination with one another if we are to protect our nation, our industry, and our people from the menace of propaganda and the threats of sabotage present throughout the land.

Now that the alleged wrong has been remedied, we trust that each of these organizations will continue in its own way to watch over America—the Dies Committee exposing subversive activities, the Justice Department apprehending violators of our laws.

Writing On The Wall

MORE attention, we believe, should be paid to statements like those uttered by Senator Hiram W. Johnson last week. Because of various prevailing conditions, he predicts that the United States will enter the War, adding, however, that "Those in command are perfectly mad to be 'in the game'.

"There is no doubt that we'll soon go to war—we're edging closer to it every day."

The public should not brand such statements as the rantings of an extreme isolationist, but should weigh them critically. They possess the character of the Biblical handwriting on the wall. What are the steps that will lead us to war?

1. A Congressional move will be inaugurated to repeal the Johnson Act, which prohibits Federal loans to World War No. I debt-defaulted foreign nations. This will lead to unlimited lending to Britain, which monies can only be repaid if England wins the war. It is only a step further to our active entrance to insure our cash's safety.

2. Another move will be made to modify the Neutrality Act so that U. S. warships will be able to convoy our armaments and ships sent to England. A roving submarine will provide the "issue".

It's about time that the American people got wise to these methods of creating issues and crises. It's about time they stopped fooling themselves and faced the facts—one way or the other.

—A. J. D'A.

Peace For Christmas? ? ?

WAR in England, War in Germany, War in Italy, and in Greece. And imminent starvation in at least seven of the remaining European states.

Why?

Thinking Christians have known the answer for a long time. And they've just been given another instance to substantiate what they know is true.

The other day, His Holiness, Pope Pius XII, issued a plea to all warring nations to cease hostilities at least during the Christmas season. But the Papal dove of peace was met by a burst of machine-gun fire; the voice of God's representative on earth was lost in the roar of dive bombers.

Christmas? Europe has forgotten the meaning of the word! Europe ignores the God who lay in Bethlehem's manger so many Christmases ago. And there is war in Europe . . .

Yes, during the approaching Christmas season, let there be "Glory to God in the Highest". Then and only then can there be ". . . on earth, peace to men of good will."

Congrats All Around

THE student-sponsored banquet held last Wednesday night for the 150-pound football team marked the close of the most successful year the lightweight squad has ever had. The fact that their fine work was rewarded in this manner is indicative of the awakened student interest in the team.

Prior to this year 150-pound football was the neglected child of the athletic program as far as the students were concerned. Perennial door-mats of the league, the team excited little interest early this year, even when the new coach, Tom Casper, sounded storm signals.

The results of the first two games seemed to warrant the apathy of the students. Despite the fact that they outgained their opponents, the Kittens lost both games. Then came the transformation! Accustomed to the philosophy and system of the new mentor, the team swept through the rest of the schedule without a loss, soundly trouncing the league leaders, and giving warning for next year.

For a remarkable comeback and for a valiant display of courage and tentacity, we salute a great coach and a great team.

First Catholic President Of Mexico In Ninety Years

By FR. MAHONEY

GENERAL MANUEL AVILA CAMACHO took office as President of Mexico Sunday morning, Dec. 1. Many demonstrations have been made against him since his election some months ago, and it was seriously feared that the candidate would never reach office. Even Sunday morning at his inaugural speech, there were several demonstrations on the part of the Leftists and Radicals, known in Mexico as Marxists.

Camacho claims in a statement published in one of our local newspapers, "I am a Catholic. This does not mean that I am a member of the clergy or a fanatic. Mexico and Mexicans are faced with two great problems, one is moral; the other is economic — moral poverty and physical misery. I believe that the President himself should commence with moral problems."

Reiterates His Statement

In his inaugural speech on Sunday morning, Camacho reiterated this statement: "No Communists will be permitted to collaborate with my Government. The Communists, because of their ideologies and the national feeling against them, will have to travel alone. Communists' ideals have not flourished and cannot flourish in Mexico because the people are essentially Catholic. I am a Democrat."

To say that Camacho is the first Catholic ruler of Mexico in 90 years is a false statement. Nearly every ruler of Mexico in the last 90 years has been a baptized Catholic. Later when they were influenced by Masonry, they were not practical Catholics, but to show the general public that they had Catholic ideas and ideals, it might well be said of them that nearly everyone sent his children to Catholic schools and colleges. I know this to be true because for many years I actually gave Communion daily to the daughter of one of their recent presidents.

After the expulsion of the religious from Mexico in 1928, the people of the border towns invited the nuns, whom they had disfrocked across the border, without their religious garbs to teach their children the fundamentals of the Catholic religion, so that all might receive First Communion and Confirmation. It was a very inspiring, and at the same time awesome, sight to see a group of 150 children, led by the Army band, reach the border and be received by the priest who took them to his little village church where he administered Holy Communion to these tots.

To know that these same officials had such Catholicity in their hearts to have their children receive Communion as Catholics and to know, also, that they were so cowed by "higher-ups" is certainly a revelation of who was running the Mexican Government at that time.

This is only one instance of the influence of an extraneous, sly, silent rule which has been guiding the destiny of Mexico for a number of years.

Rise of Masonry

After the churches and convents were closed and the priests and nuns expelled, there arose, as if by magic all over Mexico, Masonic temples. They never had as many worshipers as did the Catholic church, but their influence during recent years was more powerful.

THE CONVERSION of Mexico began in the early 16th Century. The first Augustinians arrived in 1533. They traveled all over the country and made converts everywhere. They were aided by Franciscans and Jesuits. By 1549 practically the whole country was Catholic. The astounding efforts of these noble Spaniards turned a nation from paganism to Christianity in less than one hundred years. May their spirits survive and the faith of Mexico remain the same. VIVA MEXICO! —Fr. Mahoney.

Many of our own priests and nuns were expelled from their churches and convents and placed in prison under the vilest of conditions. They were forced to submit to barbarities which are not even fit to print. But in talking to one of our ex-Provincials, he frankly told us of many of the horrors to which he himself was subjected, and he was a man of seventy years. Some of his younger brethren were taken out and cruelly shot and the story of Father Poa has become almost universally known.

His Cause for Beatification has been started and many miracles are supposed to have been wrought through his intercession.

Population is Catholic

The people of Mexico are nothing, if they are not Catholic, and to even think of electing a ruler who would be opposed to the Catholic Church, if the general public had a right to vote, would bring practically to them self destruction.

AS this is being written, the gentlemen of the campus are busy reverting back to childhood. The presence of the first real snow on the campus this term has caused them to roll the white particles into compact balls and hurl them at one another, and the mirthful glee, reminiscent of a kindergarten, tells of a hit. Passing Alumni hall, one takes his life into his hands as the frosh are quick to catch the strategic importance of their dwelling.

RETURN TRIP:

Although many of the students returned earlier, a majority seemed to favor the seven o'clock train leaving Penn station on last Sunday night.

Once aboard the train the reason for this was apparent. Located at the rear of the "choo-choo" was a special car for Rosemont College, that place where all the beautiful (oh, yeah) girls matriculate.

It was not long after the train left that the Casanovas, Don Juans, and the like began to drift around. The traffic between the cars was like Macy's on bargain day and the climax came at 30th street where the unofficial members of Porters' Union, Local 0010, took charge, headed by that "red-headed" red cap, Jim Halpin.
